Dollar Is Unpegged And Bank Rate Cut

Effect To Be Small

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Setting the Canadian dollar free to set its international exchange value in world markets is likely to have little immediate effect on Canadian consumers unless there is a radical market change.

Announcing the change in government policy Sunday night, Finance Minister Edgar Benson said he does not expect a marked change in the exchange rate. He also said the finance department will use its foreign exchange funds to moderate day-to-day swings in the exchange value.

There could be an impact in time on Canadian employment as imports less expensive and exports costlier, but not right away.

The government decided at a Saturday cabinet meeting, on finance department advice, that when foreign exchange markets open today, the government will ease up on its buying of U.S. dollars with Canadian dollars.

It has been buying U.S. dollars at a rapid rate in recent weeks in order to hold the Canadian dollar below 93.2401 cents. This is in accordance with Canada's membership in the International Monetary Fund and a commitment to hold the Canadian dollar within one per cent of 92.5 cents, the par value set by a former finance minister, Donald Fleming, in 1962.

The Canadian dollar was quoted in international exchange markets at noon on Friday at 92.094 U.S. cents. In other words, it cost about $1.07 ½ in Canadian money to buy 91 U.S.

What determines the international exchange market value of the Canadian dollar is the multitude of transactions every day between Canadians and foreigners converting one currency to another.

In recent months there has been a big inflow of foreign funds to buy Canadian products and to invest in Canadian enter-

Benson May Ease Spending Restraints

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian dollar was adrift on international money markets today for the first time in eight years.

The move announced Sunday to take effective immediately, was in response to extreme demand for Canadian dollars.

The government had decided Saturday that the weeks of pressure were intolerable.

Initial reaction was mixed. But banks, playing safe, were discouraging conversions of American dollars to Canadian until later today when a uniform rate becomes more evident.

The opening New York quote was 96.5 for the Canadian dollar in U.S. funds.

The Canadian dollar has been pegged by international agreement since 1962 within fractional margins on either side of 92½ U.S. cents.

For Canadians generally, the move will have no immediate impact at home, although travellers abroad will find their Canadian money goes a little further — paying perhaps 1.06 or so for a U.S. dollar instead of 1.08.

But finance Minister E. J. Benson hinted Sunday night at some relaxation of domestic restraints on spending and credit to offset any depressing effects on the economy. He promised a statement on credit conditions to Parliament today.

In the first such restraint-relaxing move, the Bank of Canada today dropped its largely-symbolic bank-interest rate to seven per cent from 7½—a signal to commercial bankers and financiers to keep interest rates down.

It was the second drop of that size in four weeks, and reflects a decline in short-term borrowing rates among dealers. It also is designed to discourage an inrush of flows of foreign investment funds.

Depending how far the Canadian dollar rises above its present exchange rate on the markets, the move in a floating rate would tend to make Canadian export goods more expensive, while imports into Canada would be cheaper.

However, Mr. Benson made clear that federal monetary authorities would stand ready to intervene to keep dealings in Canadian funds orderly and to make sure the dollar does not go up too far in relation to U.S. funds.

Too great a rise, for example, might make imports so cheap that they would become substitutes for domestic products in Canadian markets, depressing production and costing more jobs.

Politicians and Bankers Disagree on Free Dollar

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Initial reaction was varied to the federal government's announcement Sunday that the Canadian dollar would be allowed to float freely on international exchanges.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Canada is in for "a period of uncertainty," possibly higher unemployment and further disruption of primary producers because of the move.

He said the move is bound to hurt Canada's exports, reduce income for primary producers and increase unemployment unless offset by other measures.

London: Toleration

LONDON (CP) — Britain is not a keen supporter of free-floating currencies but a central bank official said today the unbinding of the Canadian dollar can be tolerated "providing it is a temporary move."

But W. Earle McLaughlin, chairman and president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said the government did the right thing.

"We would have been a lot better off had the government not decided to peg the Canadian dollar to a fixed rate in the first place," he said.

Allen T. Lambert, chairman of the Toronto Dominion Bank, said he found the government's action distressing and said: "I am very disappointed that the authorities felt it necessary to make this move."

Paris: Belief

PARIS (Reuters) — Banking sources here believe the decision to float the Canadian dollar and cut the bank rate will have the desired effect of reducing Canada's trade surplus and the inflow of foreign speculative funds.

"This is good for the Canadian consumer," said Keith Dixon, Canadian importers Association manager, and "represents considerable triumph for Canadian exports abroad."

J. Leonard Walker, Bank of Montreal president, said he is in favor generally of maintaining a peg for the dollar but that freeing the rate should have a favorable bearinging on the short-term picture.

David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, welcomed the move as "the right thing to do at this time."

E. P. Neufeld, University of Toronto economics professor, called the measure "a very sensible move even though the government didn't have any alternative."

Tokyo: Hope

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese banking sources today expressed hope that Canadian monetary authorities would continue to intervene to help the Canadian dollar find its natural level.

Cambodians Placed Under Martial Law

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Plagued by public resentment and a torrent of rumors, Gen. Lon Nol's Cambodian government today proclaimed martial law, without a full explanation of what it means.

Diplomatic sources said the purpose was to formalize what is already going on and to warn critics of the government to keep quiet.

Homes are already being searched without warning or warrant. Military patrols already enforce a nightly curfew in Phnom Penh and in the countryside.

There were suggestions that the military would intervene to speed up trials of those accused of any crimes connected with the war effort.

The government has been particularly concerned about rumors flooding Phnom Penh, and "rumor mongers" were thought to be one target.

"We will strike, we won't strike! We will strike . . ."

Mediator Silent On Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Mediation of the postal dispute is scheduled to continue here today with no visible signs that any significant progress was made in solving the bargaining deadlock during lengthy weekend talks.

Mediator A. W. R. Carrothers, who arrived on the job early Saturday, refused late Sunday to say whether a compromise has yet been reached on any of the 12 disputed main items, which include wages and employment security.

However, he indicated that he is not expecting any quick solutions, jokingly telling reporters they can expect to be on the job for a while.

Mediation sessions begin at 2 p.m. EDT. Meanwhile, Vancouver became the fourth site of a harassing 24-hour strike and all area post offices and depots shut down for the one-day stoppage.

Negotiators for 27,000 postal workers and their paymaster, the treasury board, met for 16 hours Saturday and eight hours Sunday.

At the first meeting, Mr. Carrothers told both sides to keep their lips "zippered", apparently in an attempt to clear the atmosphere of the many public counter-charges made since negotiations began eight months ago.

Postal officials refused even to say in what rooms the talks were taking place in a downtown Ottawa hotel.

Guerrillas in Jordan Shell Israeli Village

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab gunners wounded six Israeli schoolchildren and three adults today in a rocket attack on a settlement south of the Sea of Galilee after a weekend of heavy fighting along the Suez canal.

The Israeli military command said the gunners in Jordan hit the village of Beit Shean, 15 miles south of the Sea of Galilee. Israeli army units returned the fire.

Reuters news agency said one child was killed and five children and three adults injured in the rocket attack.

Fighting raged in the air and on the ground along the Suez canal during the weekend.

Fourteen Israeli soldiers were killed Saturday—the highest death toll in one day since the 1967 war. Thirteen were killed in two Egyptian commando raids across the canal. The 14th was killed by artillery fire, the Israelis said.

Peru Quake Kills Thousands

LIMA (Reuters) — At least 5,000 people are believed to have died in the city of Huraz and untold others are feared dead in the area after a severe earthquake hit northern Peru Sunday, it was reported here today.

The figure was given to the influential daily newspaper El Comercio by Luis Vidal, manager of an important state development corporation in the area.

The city of Huraz is about 250 miles north of Lima, the capital.

The Peruvian Geophysical Institute said the quake struck at 3:23 p.m. EST, with its epicentre 211 miles northwest of Lima and 12 miles off the Pacific coast from Chimbote. Communications to many of the towns in the stricken area were cut by the quake and officials still were trying to assess the full extent of the damage.

At least 50 persons were unofficially reported dead in the port of Chimbote while in Trujillo, farther north, the death toll was reported at 20 with about 100 injured.

Trujillo, the fourth-largest city in Peru and the capital of La Libertad province, is without light and water, reports reaching here said.

Local Reaction to Benson Move On Dollar Is Mostly Favorable

Local reaction to the announced unpegging of the Canadian dollar was generally favorable this morning.

Roger Hunter of Hunter and Crawford Ltd., Belleville stockbrokers, said there has been heavy buying on the market this morning.

"There's going to be mixed reaction to this revaluation attempt," he said.

"The dollar will go up and this will make items from abroad available for cheaper prices to the Canadian consumer."

"The downward trend of the market has been halted for the time being but this may not mean too much on the world market," he continued.

"After all, Canada is pretty well tied to the US market and even though the American dollar has been sold short by certain speculators in brokerage houses to enable them to buy the Canadian dollar as an investment, the US dollar will still be the basic international unit of exchange."

A controller with a local industry Stephens Adamson Co., Mr. T. Rhenius, announced that "if a firm had a set contract in US currency, they would be bound to this contract and with revaluation, they would lose a certain percentage of every dollar."

Also voicing the opinions of many local bankers and members of industry, Mr. Rhenius said, "If a Canadian manufacturer quotes a customer outside of the country a price based on Canadian dollars, they may not accept the quotation based on American currency."

A bank spokesman feels that "the tale will be told in the next few days and a clearer picture will be presented."

Other local bankers feel that the dollar will initially go up but not to the level of one dollar in American money.

The bank rate, which was lowered from eight per cent some months ago and has now been lowered another half per cent, "is just an indicator" according to a local bank spokesman.

"It doesn't have a heavy bearing unless a bank borrows from the Bank of Canada, which it has not had to do for years."

"Where it will have an impact, is on the housing industry," another spokesman continued.

"By lowering the bank rate to seven per cent, more money will be freed for mortgages and there is a good possibility that mortgage interest rates will come down slightly."

"At least that's something good to look forward to."

In further comments received locally, several businessmen indicated approval for the free exchange which would allow the Canadian dollar to find its own level.

In Ottawa, today, the Hon. George Hees, MP Prince Edward - Hastings, criticized the floating exchange proposal but endorsed the lower bank rate. He said:

"It is regrettable the government's mismanagement of the country's financial affairs has now caused it to put the country on a floating rate of exchange.

"The increase in imports and decrease in exports which will result from this change will further slow the economy and increase unemployment.

"I am pleased to see the Government has finally taken the advice of this opposition and instructed the Bank of Canada to give the lead to the commercial bank in lowering interest rates. The previous reduction of from eight per cent to 7½ per cent was nullified by the simultaneous increase from eight per cent to nine per cent in the second any reserve rate.

"The present reduction is a genuine one and the reduction in the ratios by the commercial banks which will follow, will not only help to reduce costs, and thereby prices, but will also help industry and producers to borrow the money they need for their expansion plans and will thereby stimulate economic activity and employment.

"I am also pleased to learn the Government plans to announce that it does not intend to proceed with inflationary to curtail consumer credit."

Damaged Craft Is Under Tow

A Canadian coastguard cutter this morning was towing a damaged pleasure boat with four people aboard closer to home at Syracuse, N.Y.

The 24-foot cruiser went aground off False Duck Island in Lake Ontario off Prince Edward County some time last night, damaging the rudder.

Flashlight lights from the drifting craft were spotted about 11.30 p.m. by the crew of the steamship Warwickshire, which alerted the air-search - rescue unit at CFB Trenton.

In turn, provincial police at Belleville were called and the Warwickshire's message relayed to the Canadian coastguard cutter Spindrift, at the time berthed in Picton.

The Spindrift went to the area, made contact with the damaged craft and took it in tow for a rendezvous with a U.S. coastguard cutter off False Duck Island.

Kenneth G. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Denton Taylor, 130 MacDonald Ave., Belleville graduated May 29 with a first class honours history from Queen's University. Mr. Taylor will do post graduate studies in geography at the University of Alberta in the fall. On Sunday he leaves for Edmonton en route to a summer job in Northern Baffin Island.

Car Washers Are Injured

Two Belleville area young people were injured Saturday afternoon when they were struck by a car during a car wash exercise to raise money on the Cheddar Taxi parking lot.

Police chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that Sonia Felow, 13, of RR 4 Belleville, and Eddie Rists, 13, of 1545½ Church Street were struck by a juvenile who was moving a car during the car wash.

Miss Felow sustained cuts and bruises to her legs and head and Mr. Rists suffered lacerated legs. Neither required hospital treatment.

Nautical Salute

Lt.-Cdr. D. C. Raynor of Kingston was inspecting officer for the annual sailpast of RCSSC Quinte Sunday afternoon in the harbor. He received the traditional raised-oar salute from the rowing crew as it passed the saluting base on the Sea Cadet dock.

Park Museum Attendant Outwatches Watchers

The museum attendant at Presqu'ile Park is one up on members of the Quinte Field Naturalists.

On their annual May 24th field trip to Presqu'ile, the Quinte naturalists spotted almost 100 different varieties of birds, but a careful search of the trees and shrubberies failed to turn up the rare and elusive blue grosbeak.

Then, when they called at the park museum they attendant said he had recently spotted a grosbeak.

More than 30 members of the field naturalist club took part in the field trip, spreading out from Dunsworth Corners at where Joy Nichols acted as hostess. The Belleville group met bird watchers from Peterborough, Cobourg, Madoc and Kingston.

New Water Sources In Upper Moira Region Should Be Checked

David E. Hitchon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hitchon, Belleville received his Bachelor of Education from MacArthur College, Queen's University, May 22. Mr. Hitchon received his honors B.Sc. degree from Guelph University in 1969, a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, he hopes to teach in Belleville this fall.

Arsenic levels in the Upper Moira are no cause for alarm to residents of the area.

This is the assurance of Dr. C. R. Leuk, medical health officer for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, who, in a press release, however, states that because of the natural occurrence of arsenic in the area, new wells or other sources of underground water supply should be checked before being used as drinking water.

Dr. Leuk, in the press release, cautioned residents or visitors to the area to use the facilities of the health unit for advice on water sampling procedures and the interpretation of results.

The medical officer of health said that the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, the Ontario Department of Health and the Ontario Water Resources Commission for several years have monitored arsenic levels in the Moira watershed and have worked with the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company to bring about a containment of arsenic from that company's former operation at Deloro.

With the installation of treatment facilities at Deloro in 1966, the arsenic levels in the watershed did not exceed the drinking water quality standards established by the Ontario Department of Health.

Early this year, however, in the light of new knowledge, the Department reviewed former guidelines for arsenic in drinking water and established new standards. Under these new guidelines, an increased level of surveillance and a greater effort to contain the arsenic from Deloro is needed.

Operations at Deloro have been shut down since 1961 but last year the company undertook additional work to intercept, flows of contaminated ground water on their property and redirect it to treatment works. The program is being continued this year and a stepped up monitoring schedule has been initiated to ensure the success of the program.

Trent Claims Young Victim

FRANKFORD (Staff) — The Trent River in this area has claimed its second young victim in less than a month.

Provincial Police scuba divers this morning were probing the swift-flowing river at a dam south of here where 10-year-old Kenneth Wayne Barr of Hamilton Park fell in the stream last night.

In an effort to reduce the swirl of water, slop logs were inserted in the dam — one of a series used to control water levels along the Trent Canal system.

As a result, levels in the canal were reported down by the transport department today.

The accident occurred about 7.40 p.m. in the area where the river is laced by a current and eddying waters.

May 7 Edward Campbell, nine, of Frankford, drowned in the Trent while playing on a jetty here.

Pulp-chip Plant Opens July 1

A new $200,000 pulp-chip plant for C. W. Martin Lumber Ltd. is under construction in Harcourt township just south of Algonquin Park and west of Baptiste Lake.

The new plant will utilize all grades of low grade hardwoods and softwoods and will transform this material into pulp chips for the paper industry.

The mill itself will employ up to 40 men, while it is expected that another 60 to 70 men will be employed in the bush to cut the pulp material. The start - up date for the new plant 20 miles northwest of Bancroft is expected to be July 1, with a second shift expected to start later in the summer.

In addition to material cut from company limits, timber for the new plant will also be purchased from private operators.

Wood chips from the new plant will be transported by tractor - trailers to paper mills in Quebec and the United States. The final product will be tissue, writing paper, newsprint and other paper products.

Weekend Break-in

Belleville City Police are investigating a weekend break-in at 89 Cannifton Road, the home of Gordon Parkhurst.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that the entry was discovered at eight a.m. Sunday.

Thieves gained entry by forcing a rear door on a porch and then by climbing in a window.

Mr. Parkhurst, away for a number of days, has not yet returned and police do not know what, if anything, was taken in the incident.

Ordain Two At Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Twenty-five clergymen participated yesterday afternoon in ordination services led by Bishop Creeggan of the Anglican diocese of Ontario, in the church of St. Mary Magdalene.

The ceremony, ordaining two men, was the first of its kind to be held in the church in the past 20 years.

During the service Rev. Kent Gardiner, of Milford, became an ordained priest, while Gordon Lindsay was ordained a deacon.

Attending the special ceremony were the two ministers ordained 20 years ago in St. Mary Magdalene, Canon Stanley Harrison, Kemptville, and Ven. W. L. Simmons, Napanee.

The litany was said by Canon R. B. Wright, Belleville, and the candidates were presented to Bishop Creeggan by Archdeacon Simmons.

Rev. R. F. Dunning gave the epistle reading.

Bishop Creeggan yesterday visited Picton in his official capacity for the first time since his recent appointment following the death of Bishop Evans, Kingston.

William R. Hales, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hales, 54 Plaza Sq., Belleville, received his Bachelor of Mathematics degree from Waterloo University on May 28. He majored in Computer Science and has accepted a position with International Computer Optics, Don Mills, Ont.

RCSCC Quinte Holds Inspection

Belleville citizens took advantage of the sunny skies yesterday to visit the Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps which held its 42nd annual inspection at its headquarters on South Front Street.

Inspecting the cadets was Lt.-Cdr. D. G. Raynor from HMCS Cataraqui, Kingston. A trooping of the color and a march past by the cadet company was also included in the program.

Proud parents and friends were on hand to watch displays of various aspects of training, and a sailpast by the corps' fleet of sailboats.

The corps band also presented a concert which included parade and popular music from Tchaikowsky to John Lenon and Paul McCartney.

Flotsam, Jetsam - - And Then Some

The Trent River is getting that clean-scrubbed look. Volunteer work crew, here approaching Glen Ross lock, is spring-cleaning debris accumulated in the waterway during the past year.

Trent Clean Sweep Success Despite Drop in Volunteers

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — For several generations the Trent River has taken care of area residents by providing a base for industry, commerce, recreation and tourism.

Added strain on the river — particularly in the form of pollution — accompanied increases in industry, population, commerce, recreation and tourism.

On Saturday area citizens moved to alleviate the problem of pollution of their faithful Trent waterway.

Volunteers combed a 60-mile stretch of the Trent, and also five miles of the Bay of Quinte around the Trent's mouth, removing litter, trash and rubbish from the river shore, shallow waters and public lands adjoining the river.

Cy Macdonald, chairman of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority which organized and directed Operation Clean Sweep, said that 61 truckloads of refuse — totalling 62 tons — were collected and carried to municipal dumps.

"We're satisfied and pleased with the amount for the number who took part," he added.

"The volunteers who turned out did one fine job."

However Mr. Macdonald expressed disappointment that more citizens did not participate, explaining: "We definitely could have taken out between 150 and 200 tons if we had had just 10 more workers in each of the 10 districts."

Though the project fell far short of its 600 - ton goal, conservation authority chairman Macdonald said that his organization had benefitted greatly from the experience and "all signs indicate that we will carry on the project next year."

Each of the 10 districts was organized and headed by a district captain who set up a headquarters and kept in constant radio contact (through the efforts of the United Counties and Quinte Emergency Measures Organizations, the tri-county GRS and the Piston Pushers Club) with central at number seven lock, Glen Ross.

Volunteers contributed manpower, boats and trucks in the concentrated effort — the biggest ever in this area — to rid the Trent waterway of such undesirable objects as tires, glass bottles, tin cans and plastic containers.

The operation pooled between noon and 2 p.m. when 127 volunteers, 53 boats and 21 trucks waged war against pollution of the Trent.

Operation Clean Sweep's organizers were hoping Mother Nature would co-operate with decent weather and she did, but perhaps too much.

Skies were sunny, winds were light and the thermometer soared to 73 degrees in mid - afternoon, creating summerlike conditions which may have prompted many people to pursue various recreational activities rather than work — no matter the value of the work involved.

Sunday, Cy Macdonald concluded: "The state of the river between Trenton and Hastings is not bad — it's much better now than Saturday morning — but it could be brought up to a higher standard!"

Operation Clean Sweep, which was conceived by authority member Bill Mennies of Trenton, had been in the planning stages since January.

But with a "higher standard" to aim for, the authority will meet next week to analyze and assess its biggest project to date, at the same time contemplating future action for the betterment of the Trent waterway.

PM Is Back

Among other typical shows of eccentricity — that he is not like the rest of us — during his concluding days in Japan, Prime Minister Trudeau tossed a Toronto-born judo expert over his shoulder, to the admiration tinged with shock of accompanying Japanese.

"This is your Prime Minister!" said one.

"What an extraordinary man," Well . . . er yes. You have to admit the Japanese fellow's appraisal was accurate. But now that Mr. Trudeau is home again such exhibitions, while they occasionally enliven the scene here too, should take a back seat to matters of more serious import.

Inflation, for example is still with us and. Mr. Trudeau is not so naive as to imagine that it might have been miraculously solved during his absence. On television recently we heard a visiting U.S. economist pour scorn on tight money and embacks as a means of controlling inflation, but he offered no other cure in its place. And that is the trouble with economists — none of them are in agreement as to either causes or cures, while the uncaring public goes merrily on its spending and grasping (for still more) ways.

The Prime Minister knew he was back in stern old Canada when at a press conference at Vancouver airport he was confronted by an angry and impolite group of women demanding freer abortion laws. The current legislation involving study of individual cases by a panel of three is, in the opinion of the women protesters, "killing women every day." In other words we still have backroom operations by unskilled quacks which result in deaths. On the other hand those who have the money can go to Britain for a legal operation there.

There is no denying that this is a distressing problem and one about which Mr. Trudeau says he will consult with his Cabinet. The women mentioned a figure of 2,000 deaths from abortions, apparently resulting from unskilled operations, and the Prime Minister said he would check if this figure were accurate. As to any possibility of the law being liberalized, Mr. Trudeau made it clear it would not be during the life of this Parliament.

So what else does Mr. Trudeau find in his crystal ball? Well there are the rotating postal strikes. city by city. The lot of a Prime Minister is not a particularly happy one, although when you are a Trudeau it has its lighter moments. Just now it is on the serious side. At least, in this new era of confrontation and participatory democracy, Canadians can get the attention of the Prime Minister.

Picton Prospect

If, as seems possible, a hospital for mentally retarded children is established at Camp Picton it will be good news for both the Picton area hit economically by the army's withdrawal and for parents unable to get their children into existing places of care.

As revealed by our Picton correspondent last week, Mayor H. J. McFarland has received calls from parents over a wide area noting that other homes are full.

With the possibility of one staff member being required for each patient it would also mean a boost to Picton's population and economy. An announcement is expected this week and we hope it will be in the affirmative.

Ceylon Veers Left

Back in power again, at the head of a leftist government, is Mrs. Bandaranaike of Ceylon. The world's first woman prime minister when she succeeded her husband following his assassination in 1959, she is now talking of "radical reforms" being necessary to carry on "the great revolution" begun by her husband. She leads a three-party coalition which includes two Communist parties, and on the world scene joins India and Israel as countries with women at the head of affairs.

It's Different

The CBC's Ab Douglas, on a tour of European capitals with External Affairs Minister Sharp, heard from a Yugoslav this description of how the Communist society in his country differs from that of Russia and its hard-core satellites: "We like our women to wear pretty clothes and to travel."

The Prairies: Economics and Pragmatism Or

A Child Alone Amid the Essentials of Land and Sky

Something in the quality of the land puts its stamp on the character of its inhabitants. Historian Pierre Macfiowan found this particularly true on the Prairies and below this distinction is running. This is another in a series by Pierre, one of the Montreal staff of The Canadian Press, on feelings in Western Canada.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The poetry of prairie, earth and sky entered the character of generations of westerners but is heard less clearly or not at all by today's generation, says W. O. Mitchell, playwright and novelist.

"This saddens the creator of a whole community of mythical characters such as Jake and the Kid, Old Daddy Johnson, Malleable Brown—mythical but just as colorful as the author in articulating Prairie life.

"I think landscape has everything to do with the way we grow as human beings," said Mr. Mitchell, 50, now writer-in-residence at University of Calgary.

A sort of yearning is evident as the vigorous, amiable novelist speaks of basic changes in the Prairie provinces, expressing in article language what more pragmatic men discuss in terms of wheat acreage and grain quotas.

"A way of life has become a way of making a living," said a Regina wheat official, himself showing a dash of poetic insight—but no regret—as he likened the bewildering scope of change on the Prairies to Gideon's Quiet Revolution.

Mr. Mitchell said a writer can only produce good stuff by "lowering a bucket into his own past," and that is while he proceeded to do for a visiting reporter.

A child alone amid the essentials of land and sky—or sea and sky, if the child grows—can develops an "over-awareness" of his own mortality, in the observation of the author.

It seems the fate of people who dwell on the awesome prairie expanses to live in memory and suspense with the grip of mighty forces over which they have little or no control. They can be lifted up or thrown down.

They remember blizzards, dust storms and crop failures. But they also remember triumphs beyond the dreams of conquistors in many other areas. Mr. Mitchell spoke of childhood:

"When you're alone and you walk out . . . and there's the entire thrust of all the sun on the top of your vulnerable head. . . . That's when a Prairies child learns about mortality. I think I knew I was mortal at the age of eight back at the same old place the CPR track when I saw a dead cat with a cloud of flies exploding off it and undertaker beetles on the dried husk."

Once understanding the impact of landscape and elements, the Prairies product finds it easier to comprehend Canadians in other settings, said Mr. Mitchell, whose wife is from Mahone Bay, N.S.

On visiting Nova Scotia's south shore, the author made an important discovery:

"The landscapes are different but perhaps not that different, really, in the effect on people. A niggardly environment and a harsh sea is not too much different from the prairie and the bitter winters, burning summers and drought. That's tough on people, too. . . .

"Westerners pride themselves—as Canadians themselves—it's forever printed in stories and news and announced on TV—on their wide-open, free-wheeling individualism.

"Well, 50 years ago that was right. Today—judging by most people I met in Nova Scotia—I think it is still true of Maritimers. Given time, the Maritimers are, I think, going to lose that in the sense that I think the West did.

"I don't notice it about the people in British Columbia, where I have a summer home in the interior. To me, B.C. people think much smaller than do Maritimers."

Mr. Mitchell was a trifle deflating, perhaps about Ontario, too.

Because of family background, he had always thought the West began in Ontario. But wandering around Bluenose museums "I realized that was where Canada began."

"Ontario, the North American continent in fact, began in Nova Scotia."

A Bluenose-born reporter had never heard a more impartial comment on Nova Scotia.

Mr. Mitchell is concerned about today's influences on the life of Canadians and, indeed, much of mankind.

The environment of Canadian youngsters is "less and less the responsive living whole" that unfolded so naturally before the eyes of children in his birthplace, Weyburn, Sask.

"Now it's an environment that is man-made. The average child growing up is denied . . . its heritage of earth and the great element, which stirs his hair in the wind, which springs from and dies.

"What is his extension of himself now in the precise geometry of the city and asphalt, moulded glass, plastic."

True, there is also an exciting "poetry of the asphalt" but "I don't think it's going to have been a writer except for those first years and the influence of the prairie."

William Ormond Mitchell and his wife Merna raised their three children, Ormond, Hugh Birtle and Willa, in a prairie setting. The two boys now are teachers; Willa is 20.

John Nugent, Montreal-born sculptor who was captivated early by the romance of the West and has lived at Lumsden, north of Regina, for 20 years, said Saskatchewan's economic troubles constrict art and life in general.

"A way of life is passing here as much as in Quebec," he said. "But the people who are most aware of the changes—I'm including some of the political forces—are also willing even to mention them because political platforms are based on the price of wheat."

Saskatchewan had enjoyed a lively decade in the arts, but now the scene was "devastating" because of economic and political factors. Artists, architects, tradesmen and contractors were closing shop and Mr. Nugent himself thought he might be forced by circumstances to depart.

"The province seems to thrive on a depression mentality," said the sculptor. "You can have everything going for you, and someone will caution, 'Remember the Depression.' It puts on the brakes.

"Farming—on which we are all living—is undergoing going through a tremendous revolution. I think prairie-born should have been made 20 years ago. But again, political powers were fearful of saying what these changes are and what they are going to be.

"As a result, we're in a bad situation. The more we try to make the rest of the country aware of it, the more it regenerates itself. We talk of depression. Immediately people say this is the last place they want to come to or set up an industry."

Another version of Prairies thinking was given by Allan R. Turner, Saskatchewan provincial archivist, who said the traditional attitude is twofold:

"On the one hand, always the sense of uncertainty, always the need to take one step at a time and not to plan too long ahead because next year might be bad.

"But there was always coupled with this a feeling of optimism—the feeling that this might have been a bad year, but next year will be better. So you get the standard phrase, 'next year country.' This does not necessarily reflect pessimism but optimism. Next year would be better."

The creative artist is under heavy economic pressure to gravitate to the centres of power and money but in so doing he loses regional inspiration, said Mr. Nugent.

He himself felt impelled by the urge of loadstone and "tremendously vigorous country" to attempt works on a monumental scale, but under the circumstances this was impossible—and frustrating.

A reporter, driving through Saskatchewan's rich district between Saskatoon and Regina, remarked that life must indeed have been lonely for farmers in the past.

"Actually, the Prairies are lonelier now than in years gone by," said Roy Atkinson, farmer and president of the National Farmers Union.

"Social and economic life revolved around the school in a four-mile area in those days."

Now community life lacked local focus and young people, particularly, sought recreation in the towns—or, of course, in front of the television goggle-box.

A life-long city-dweller, impressed in but intrigued by the attractions of rural living, recounted the reminiscences of an ancient uncle who at a boy had seen virgin prairie land broken.

"I thought . . . It was all worth while but I'm not sure now that we didn't have to go too hard in some things, remembering the effort," the old man told his nephew.

"You know, I used to consider myself wealthy. In front of my kitchen window as a boy of prairie with buffalo grass. I never broke it. So when things got real bad I would console myself say that at least I had a piece of prairie to look at. It was one of the best I ever planted here. I was never really poor. I told myself."

When the old man died, the symbolic acres were put to the plow by his son, who has a different measure of the good life.

Cruelly Alleged

Science Fair Experiments And the Use of Animals

Hamilton Spectator

Canada-wide Science Fair officials have promised to be more strict about needless brutality inflicted on animals in so-called experiments at the youth science competition.

The science fair administration should not only refuse to tolerate sadism but should co-operate with the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in reporting cruel "experiments" and prosecuting their perpetrators.

The case that provoked public attention at this year's fair in Hamilton involved a white rat, subjected to solvent fumes. The "experiment" reportedly was designed to demonstrate that inhalation of solvent would have harmful effects — as if there is any doubt the agonies of an animal to show that.

One science fair official said the monstrous project had been approved by a teacher "on a shoestring to think what is happening to animals in that teacher's care) therefore the child who perpetrated the act should not be blamed.

But anyone who knows what pain is certainly should be blamed. It doesn't take a panel of experts to see the difference between science and sadism.

Discipline and The Young

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Much has been said for and against spanking children.

In my opinion based on years of observation, most children do not, or very seldom do need such punishment. Good example and kind words will have greater effect in raising a child.

There are, however, a few hard - core youngsters (I am speaking about boys) who want their own way, right or wrong. Knowing they are untouchable, they will misbehave with a bad example to others. Here a good thrashing may solve the problem.

A child who does not learn to respect and obey authority in his early days, may have to learn it some day the hard way.

It is cruel to let a child believe he can get away with anything, just to find out years later he's not up in a jail that this is not so.

Historic Buildings

Kingston Whig-Standard

The action taken in Great Britain to protect historic buildings should be of great interest to Canadians. Each year in Canada many fine old structures fall before the wrecking hammer despite the spirited efforts of individuals and groups to save them.

In Britain historic buildings used to be destroyed at the rate of more than one a day. They were destroyed simply because there was a lack of legal machinery to protect them, a lack of co-ordination among agencies and a lack of enough special agents to detect threats to the architectural heritage of the nation.

Now the law has been strengthened. The Historic Buildings Council and the Royal Fine Arts Commission have a much greater influence. Planners are obliged to notify the Ministry of Housing when a building officially listed as of historic interest is threatened. The number of investigators compiling lists of such buildings has been doubled.

In 1958 400 houses of historic interest were destroyed. Last year the total was reduced to 346. This year, according to recent news reports, the total is expected too drop to 225. And in five years' time, the ministry hopes to achieve "the irreducible minimum" — which may be 50 a year.

The problem in Canada is that municipalities such as Kingston simply do not have legislation giving them the power to preserve their fine old buildings. Until there is such legislation communities will be powerless in the face of insensitive, unilateral action by planners, government departments and other people who in their dedication to "progress" frequently display little appreciation or lack of regard for the Canadian heritage.

Mr. Benson also indicated the floating exchange rate will be temporary.

Canada "would resume "as soon as circumstances permit" its obligations to the International Monetary Fund, which includes agreements on fixed exchange rates.

He made clear, however, that the move away from a fixed exchange rate to the dollar is a costly and lonley battle to keep the dollar pegged within the agreed one per cent of 92½ U.S. cents.

The government has shelled out hundreds of millions of dollars from federal funds—about $670,000,000 in the last month alone—to meet demands for Canadian currency as its value would not be pushed beyond the agreed upper limit of 92.43 U.S. cents.

In recent days, federal monetary authorities have not only been selling Canadian dollars for U.S. funds on a spot basis, but also dealing in the so-called forward markets under contracts to provide Canadian funds three or six months hence at an agreed price.

The intervention was necessary because the price of Canadian dollars for delivery in three months reached the agreed upper limit 18 days ago.

Canada's already-bulging foreign exchange reserves have surged ahead by more than $1,300,000,000 U.S. in the first five months of this year—an unprecedented advance of almost 40 per cent to about $4,440,000,000 now from $3,230,000,000 Jan. 1.

More than half the jump took place during May, despite a series of measures four months ago designed to stem the tide.

At that time, in addition to dropping the bank rate to discourage any inward flow of foreign investment funds, the government borrowed $250,000,000 from the chartered banks to help replenish its hard-hit cash balance.

The demand for Canadian funds resulted from unusually strong demand for Canadian goods abroad, a boom in commodities among world interest rates and other developments.

Sales of Canadian goods to other countries have been galloping ahead while Canadian imports have risen only moderately. Canadian exports outstripped imports by more than $762,000,000 in the first four months of this year, a record for the period.

Foreign buyers have to pay for Canadian goods in Canadian funds. That explains part of the demand for Canadian currency.

In addition, interest-rate yields on investments in Canada —held relatively high by anti-inflation pressures against credit —become more attractive to foreign investors late last year and early this year as yields in Europe declined.

One result has been that investment funds flowing into Canada exceeded Canadian capital flowing out by an estimated $300,000,000 in the first three months of this year.

To be invested in Canadian capital markets, those foreign funds also have to be converted into Canadian dollars.

As demand pushed the dollar against its agreed upper ceiling, foreign businessmen who knew they were going to make a purchase from Canada would be inclined to buy the necessary funds for current or future delivery at the current price, for fear the money might become more expensive.

Mr. Benson said the government was no longer willing to keep filling the demand at the pegged price, thus draining government cash. The government soon would have been forced to borrow again, breaching its own anti-inflation policy.

Effect to Be Small

prises, including Canadian borrowings of foreign funds to finance municipal and provincial governments.

For this money to come into Canada, foreigners have had to buy Canadian dollars with their U.S. dollars or other currencies. This big demand for Canadian dollars has forced the value of them up, just like a big demand for mousetraps would force up their price.

The government has had to borrow money from Canadians in order to sell dollars and try to keep the international price down.

Mr. Benson said Sunday night the government is going to stop buying the U.S. dollars that would be necessary to keep the Canadian dollar within its old limits.

This will have some softening effect on Canadian money markets, the experts say, but the federal government will have less need to borrow funds. The coincident reduction of the Bank of Canada's bank rate to seven from 7 ½ per cent is also a signal for lower interest rates elsewhere.

If money becomes easier to borrow for new industrial expansion or for more roads, bridges and the like, this could be an impetus for employment.

If the Canadian dollar rises appreciably in foreign exchange markets, imports should be cheaper. Prices of tea, coffee, citrus fruits, and anything else grown or made abroad, might be reduced. The Canadian dollar will also go further for Canadians travelling abroad.

But Canadian exports will cost more for foreign buyers. So will Canadian vacations for foreign visitors. Canadians receiving remittances from abroad will get fewer Canadian dollars for them.

Mr. Benson said Canadian manufacturers will have to "sharpen their pencils" to meet competitive prices at higher exchange rates. Export sales contracts will be harder to negotiate when Canadian raw materials such as wheat, wood and mineral products, will be lodged more cannily against world prices by foreign purchasers.

International exchange markets quote changes in rates in 64ths of a cent. A change of 1/64 could mean $156,250 on a $10,000,000 order. But for a $2½ purchase, it amounts to less than 17 cents.

If the Canadian dollar does find a markedly higher level, and stays there for any prolonged period without government action to cut it back, there could be an adverse impact on job levels in Canada as cheaper imports make inroads on Canadian production.

But that remains to be seen.

Canada's action is similar to West Germany's freeing of the deutschmark late last September after it had been subject to strong upward pressures. The pegged rate was four to the U.S. dollar, set in March, 1961. After the rate floated free for about four weeks, the West German government repegged it at 3.66 to the U.S. dollar.

Canada pegged its dollar at 92.5 cents in U.S. funds on March 25, 1962 after allowing it to float for 11 ½ years. France also had a floating rate between 1969 and 1961.

But Mr. Benson indicated to reporters this new Canadian experience may not be a direct parallel to the German action last year. He would not say how quickly he expects to return to a pegged rate, if at all, in the foreseeable future.

The Germans freed the mark with the specific intention of letting it find its own level in international exchange markets, and then fixing it there.

Mr. Benson said the government will use its exchange reserves to moderate any violent swings in the dollar. He expects the dollar to go up, but "not a marked increase."

He's Safe Driver

On October, 4, 1929, John Henderson began driving coal delivery truck for the Schuster Co. Ltd. Since then, the roads have improved and so have the cars. But with the improvements increasing, so have the speeds. For 33 years now, Mr. Henderson has been driving safely and he was recently honored by the Department of Transport when they presented him with a 33-year safe driving award together with other drivers from the area. Mr. Henderson has just received new diesel delivery truck which he sould be driving until his retirement in three years from Motra-Schuster Ltd .

Report From Ottawa

By RUSSELL C. HONEY, QC, MP

Last weekend I went to the Eastern Arctic to visit the Manhattan. At that time the giant tanker was at the entrance to Pond Inlet at the north end of Baffin Island.

The beauty of the eastern Arctic is unforgettable. It must be one of the most beautiful areas of the world. Mountains shoot up a sheer 8,000 feet from the sea, forming fiords which rival the majestic inlets of Norway. This was my first trip to the Eastern Arctic. I had been in the western Arctic twice before but it does not approach the beauty of its eastern counterpart.

During the two full days I spent in the Arctic, the sun was always in the sky. The first night I went to bed on the Canadian icebreaker Louis St. Laurent at midnight. At that time the sun was well up in the sky as it reached its low point and began its ascendancy for the next day.

The next night at Igloolik, I was wakened at 4 o'clock in the morning by a disturbance outside my window. I pulled the drapes to see about six Eskimo children aged 5 or 6 years playing in the snow in the brilliant sunshine.

The Louis St. Laurent is indisputably the best icebreaker in the world. It is the newest of Canada's ice breaking fleet. It assisted the Manhattan through areas of heavy ice when the American tanker ran into difficulty. The owners of the Manhattan are confident that with the knowledge gained in the two Arctic trips they can now build a ship that can traverse the Northwest Passage without icebreaker assistance.

The Manhattan is a huge ship . . . over 1,000 feet long. It was modified to conform to regulations of the Canadian government designed to prevent pollution from oil spill. There was no hesitation from the owners of the Manhattan in conforming to our anti-pollution regulations. They recognized that Canada has special interests in this area and was entitled to require anyone wishing to travel in the Arctic to take the precautions we feel are necessary to make it absolutely sure that there is no pollution of Arctic waters.

The ice where the St. Laurent and Manhattan were operating is about 4 feet deep. While on the Manhattan it got stuck on an "ice ridge" and was hung up there for several hours. An ice ridge is an unique ice formation which can extend from 30 to 45 feet below the surface.

Hunting and fishing this year have been better for the Eskimos than in previous years. The staple caribou and seal are in good supply. The arctic char industry on a commercial basis is providing a very good income to many Eskimos. The Eskimos are doing very well. They are very mobile. The snowmobile has replaced the dog team. It is quite common for an Eskimo family to travel 200 miles by snowmobile to visit relatives. A sled (kamotik) is towed behind the snowmobile to accommodate the children and travelling supplies. The trip confirmed my belief that Canada's Arctic and the people who inhabit it are one of our greatest assets.

All it takes is one call to "Repair Service". Our people there know the locations of all our underground telephone cables—whether they are buried along streets or highways, under private yards or vacant lots.

As you know, we are burying more and more cables; it improves the appearance of our cities, and it also reduces damage by natural causes to our cables—that is, to your communications lifelines.

Two Girls Save Youth

A Foxboro youth is in satisfactory condition in Belleville General Hospital today — thanks to the swift action of two plucky teenage girls.

Provincial police say Dennis Davis, 16, 184 Main Street, Foxboro, was swimming Sunday afternoon in an abandoned quarry about a half-mile north of Foxboro near the old Madoc road.

Diving into the swimming hole, he swallowed water and began choking.

Marilyn Horn, 15, and Patricia Gould, 14, both of Foxboro went to his rescue with an inner tube, holding the youth's head above water until an ambulance arrived, say police.

The boy was admitted to hospital for observation.

Group for Retarded Meets

The Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded held its general meeting in the Happy Hours School recently with an excellent representation of members, also members of PEYMR and the Board of Education.

The meeting opened with the prayer for the retarded being given by 1st vice-president Mrs. Rose Mullarkey, followed by various business matters.

Nancy Cairns, Region 1 Director of YACMR (Youth Across Canada for the Mentally Retarded) gave a most interesting and informative report of a youth conference recently attended in Ajax; pertinent facts being: "Any retarded can be trained in some way; severely retarded can only progress so far; there is no such thing as "eternal children" as the retarded are subject to the same things we age as regards happiness when we are pleased, frustrated when we are not, enjoyment of friends, pets, hobbies, etc; residence house parents should be young in order to create a full potential in adult retarded; the retarded adult should not be treated as a child, but as an adult".

President Mrs. John Shannon extended thanks of those present, then introduced the PEYMR executive: past president, Dorothy May; president, Becky Young; secretary-treasurer, Lynn Cooper.

Mrs. Thera Falconer reported on the "Flowers of Hope" fund-raising campaign, which is now underway.

The incoming new Happy Hours' principal, Mr. Gordon Brown of Belleville was introduced; as Mrs. Clarence Gibson is retiring after many years of teaching.

Mr. Jim Flower, chairman of the special education committee congratulated the association upon what has been achieved in the past, and hopes the same continues with Mr. Brown.

President Shannon explained the reason behind the change in films; "I followed by the Jean Vanier film, "If You're Not There, You Are Missed," dealing with the adult retarded in France.

QUINTE MEDICAL SECRETARIES

April meeting of Quinte Medical Secretaries Association was held on Thursday, April 9. After the business meeting a workshop was held when office problems were exchanged and possible solutions discussed.

At the May meeting, held Wednesday, May 13, the president, Mrs. Doreen Ware read an invitation from the Kingston Medical Secretaries asking Quinte to join with them for their June meeting.

Plans were also made to hold another car wash on Saturday, May 23. June meeting is to be a potluck dinner.

Joseph Kennick of The Integra Foundation spoke on Camp Towbee, a co-educational, residential and non - denominational summer camp for children with perceptual motor disabilities. Perceptual handicaps are often a result of damage to the brain, although they have no relationship to intelligence. Children with these handicaps frequently have difficulty concentrating, they seem disorganized in their thinking, and often repeat themselves. These children have problems in understanding logical relationships and in co-ordinating their movements. Their vision, hearing, touch and taste are often quite intact, yet they perceive what they see, hear and feel differently from normal children. This makes it very difficult and often impossible for them to develop along with others their own age or to cope with the problems of daily living. There are very few facilities in North America capable of diagnosing perceptual handicaps. Resources for treating them those children who are identified are inadequate.

Only five camps exist in North America for perceptually handicapped children; of these, Camp Towbee is the only one in Canada. Perceptually handicapped children often are placed in classroom for exceptional children which includes problems from group physical abnormalities to mental retardation. The value of this kind of experience in a perceptually handicapped child is minimal, if not damaging. While Towbee provides specialized rehabilitative procedures, these occur within the integrated framework of a camping environment and thus include the normal intellectual, physical, emotional and social experiences of childhood.

A film on Camp Towbee showing the work and operation carried on was shown.

Mr. Prasick was thanked by Mrs. Mae Cathcart and a cheque for $100 was given towards this worthwhile work.

QUINTE TECHNICAL TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION

Technical teachers from Hastings and Prince Edward Counties gathered in Prince Edward Collegiate, Picton, last Wednesday evening for the regular meeting of the Quinte Technical Teachers' Association. Following the reading of the minutes there was a short business meeting; a nominating committee was formed to select a slate of officers for next year; tentative plans were made for a family picnic in June; and the OVEA annual meeting June 19 in Toronto was discussed.

The guest speaker, Mr. B. Cooke, vice-president of the newly-formed Quinte District Labor Council, gave a concise account of the function of the local labor community. The council, made up from the previous Belleville and Trenton councils, has influence over a fairly large area, including Picton, Madoc and Brighton. It is affiliated with all organized labor which comes under the Canadian Labor Congress and is active in many aspects of trade unionism, ranging from an educational program for students (consisting of seminars on CLC instruction) to practical assistance given to groups of workers in forming their own union branch. The speaker was well-received by the audience and a lengthy question period followed.

The next business meeting will be held in October, but any teachers interested in this area who wishes to attend the family picnic in June in urged to contact either W. Slavin, president, at Quinte Secondary School or R. Floate, secretary, at Prince Edward Collegiate, Picton, as soon as possible.

NEIGHBORS' AID

The May meeting of the Neighbors' Aid was held at their hall recently when they entertained the 4th line Neighbors' Aid. Present were 46 guests and members.

President, Mrs. Robert Atkins welcomed all and then conducted a short business period.

Program convener was Mrs. Mitchell. During the program Mrs. Bruce Pratt played a piano solo. Guest speaker was Mrs. Walter Leavens who showed slides of New Zealand.

Miss Scott of Scotland who was visiting with friends spoke briefly as well.

Man in Services Stricken with Leprosy

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My cousin, who is in his 30's, is a career man in the Army. Bill has been stationed all over the world these last 12 years. Yesterday we learned the horrible news. He has leprosy.

Bill's young wife, who is visiting us, is a wreck. They have two small children and she's afraid he'll never be allowed to see them again. I think it was a mistake for Bill to call her from Honolulu and give her such news. The phone connection wasn't very good and there was some crying on both ends so I'm not sure we have the correct information.

Why do lepers have to live in colonies if leprosy isn't very contagious, as Bill told his wife? (She does not believe him and neither do we.)

Please answer in the paper. We live in an apartment building and cannot take the chance on a neighbor getting your answer by mistake. — ANONYMOUS PLEASE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR A.P.: The victims of Hansen's disease are isolated because the image presented in the Bible was enough to scare people out of their wits for thousands of years.

Any physician will tell you that Hansen's disease is one of the least contagious of all diseases. In this day and age it is outrageous that victims of this illness should be made to live in colonies. Until fearful and ignorant legislators pass laws which will enable these sick people to be treated in public hospitals (not unfortunately remain in leprosariums and be treated as outcasts.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother is a lovely person but she has a habit that drives me up the wall. I'd like to know if she is beyond help — in which case I will grit my teeth and remain silent. If you say "tell her" — I will/do so.

Mother is quite a talker. She enjoys recounting trivial incidents which she embellishes to sound like monumental events. Lately she has developed a habit of stopping in the middle of a dramatic episode with this sort of thing:

"Then on Tuesday — or was it Monday. No it was Thursday because my dentist appointment was at four o'clock and — I said to Harry, or was it Herbert — no it was Harry — You get the idea.

Naturally her story is ruined which is a pity because no one gives a hang if it was Monday or Thursday or Harry or Herbert. Would it help to tell her? — HACKLES.

DEAR HACK: Self-interrupters are compulsive personalities who must settle matters in their own mind even if it spoils the story. A self-interrupter is generally beyond help and hope. Do make the effort, however. It might work the next time Mom gets snagged on a meaningless detail. Say: "It really doesn't matter — please get on with the story — "

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 12-year-old girl who has a terrible problem. I have a big mouth and I can't keep it shut. When I'm with a friend and she tells me something and makes me promise not to tell anyone, I'm always sure I will keep the promise. Sometimes I even cross my heart and take an oath on my little brother's life. But I end up telling anyway. I feel like a rat afterwards but it's too late. Please tell me how to get over this babyish habit. — MOUTHY MABEL.

DEAR MABEL: You seem to have the notion that telling secrets is a childhood disease. You are wrong. Many adults are afflicted with it. People betray confidences because it makes them feel big for the moment when they have something to tell. The only cure is self-control and I know of no magic formula that will produce it if you don't have it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I noted a gentleman was unhappy because you "wasted" column space on a recipe for meat loaf. I have another recipe which I believe is more in keeping with what the readers expect when they turn to Ann Landers. It is a recipe for friendship. Please print it.

Take two heaping cups of patience, one heartful of love, and two handfuls of generosity. Add a dash of laughter and a full cup of understanding, and two ounces of loyalty. Mix well and sprinkle generously with kindness. Spread this irresistible delicacy over a lifetime and serve everybody you meet. — E.A.B.

DEAR E.A.B.: Thanks for the recipe. I recommend that it be made in double batches and kept on hand at all times.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "That's my good girl. Now try another taste of this stew."

Child: "Will you tell me a story if I eat it?"

Mother: "I think it's very good. Try one taste and you may think so, too."

Eating is its own reward and should not be done to please nor to frustrate Mother.

Misunderstanding Leads to Resignation from Committee

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: The chairman of our city convention committee asked me to join the committee to represent our church. Then I was asked to approach the women's group in the church about helping with a banquet to raise funds. The ladies just couldn't see letting them buy all the food and make all the money while the ladies did all the work; so I carried back their refusal.

Then I heard from the church group president that the chairman of the committee had phoned her, and she had turned around and agreed to get her group to work on the banquet.

I have been so upset about this that I couldn't sleep. I wrote a letter resigning from the convention committee, pointing out that if they were going to deal direct with people they obviously didn't need me. — Overruled

Dear Overruled: You started out to be helpful; ended up feeling slapped down.

* * *

The convention chairman was at fault, probably new at his job. No one selects a representative without the consent of the body being represented. The church ladies should have appointed you.

You filled in for a member who let's down, too, which caused you to offer something without realizing what it meant.

The chairman unwisely, inadvertently and undemocratically talked with the ladies' group without you. Three bad mistakes altogether.

I don't blame you for getting off the committee. Now swallow your pride and good naturedly help with the banquet. These things happen to everybody.

* * *

Dear Doris: We are two girls who have had the same boy friend for two years.

These two boys graduated last year and it cost us a lot of money, gowns, etc. This year we are graduating and we are in doubt as to who provides the entertainment tickets.

Do you think the boys are fair in letting us pay for the tickets? They never seem to take us anywhere.

I don't blame you for getting sore — Girl Friends In Name Only

Dear Girl Friends: It happens both ways. When a girl graduates and invites an escort, she may indeed buy the tickets; but he looks after all other expenses of the evening, like taxis or car or refreshments, if any.

If he is a steady, and used to taking her out, it is highly likely he will provide the tickets. A lot depends on whether your special Romeo has the cash to take you places.

Confidential to Two Religions: It isn't easy for a Catholic janitor to accept a Protestant son-in-law. But the final decision has to be up to you.

In the flush of young love, nothing seems important but to plan a lifetime together; and from the sound of your letter, you are truly in love. But consider this: Your fiance's religion is something which matters to him, so that he cannot bring himself to change it. And he and you will be asked to raise any children as Catholics.

A mixed marriage starts off with a few strikes against it. Don't pressure him; don't let others make up your minds for you. Talk it over and help him to consider all sides with you.

Baked Creamed Potatoes Recipe

By MARY MOORE

Glenhyrst has done it again. Glenhyrst Arts Council in Brantford, Ontario have their annual Antiques Show and Sale early in May when southern Ontario tulips are at their best. It is a beautiful spot to visit and the antiques are all authentic.

But it is the gourmet luncheons and dinners that draw me like a magnet. On the final evening of the show I was the guest of Peter and Rosalind Preston. He is the Managing Editor of the Brantford Expositor.

The Menu: Hors D'Oeuvres: Gurkas Norge, Oeufs Farcies aux Paiacchio, Soup: Bouillon de Champignons. Entree: Boeuf Renaissance, Jambon Continental, Vegetables: Pommes de Terre en casserole (see below), Oignons Berichonne, Carottes au Cointreau. Salade Edwards et Choux Rouge. Desserts: Compose: Divers au Vin Rose, Chiffon au Citron, Torte. Cheeses. Tea and Coffee.

Strangely enough out of all these exotic foods I have chosen the Pomes de Terre en Casserole to pass on to you. I discovered it could be made in advance. It is a delicious variation of Potatoes au Gratin.

BAKED CREAMED POTATOES (serves 6 to 8)

3½ cups cooked diced (¼") potatoes (about 5 medium)
2 tbsps. butter (first amount)
2 tbsps. flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. MSG
1-16 tsp. pepper
1¼ cups milk
¼ cup chopped parsley (or 1 tbsp. fresh, chopped or freeze dried chives
1 cup soft breadcrumbs
1½ tbsps. butter (second amount)

About ¾ cup grated cheese

Scrub potatoes and cook in skins until nearly tender. Drain and cool. Peel and dice.

Make medium white sauce by blending butter, flour, salt, pepper and MSG then stirring in milk until thick. Stir in parsley (or chives). Turn into unbuttered shallow baking dish. Melt butter (second amount) and stir crumbs into it. Spread evenly over potatoes. Top with cheese. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 20 min until bubbly and tinged with gold.

Welcome Note: This Baked Creamed Potato dish may be made right up to the step before baking then cooled and chilled in refrigerator until half hour before mealtime, but if put in oven, refrigerator cold, it requires a little longer baking, obviously.

Dinner Menu

Ham Custard Pie (Guiche Lorraine — using beldover ham from Sunday): Warmed Chili Sauce: Combination Salad with Herb Garlic Dressing; Fruit Cup: Sliced Strawberries, Sliced Bananas, Cubed Pineapple; Coffee.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Jittery Legs Inflict Discomfort Upon Many

You don't have to be a neurotic to have the "leg jitters." I have observed this syndrome in well-balanced, calm persons. It is the first lieutenant of insomnia. Ask the person whose legs are uncontrollable and jump around like a nervous frog's, and you will understand why leg jitters cause so much unhappiness and discomfort.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My legs are driving me crazy! I dread going to sleep. I used to sleep like a baby, but for the past year or two I have been fortunate to get one good night's rest during the week.

I just settle down when one of three things happens. I either get prickly sensations all over my legs, as if ants were walking up and down, or a very nervous feeling which I call the heebie-jeebies; or cramps which just seem to lie in the calves of my legs. I am 67 and otherwise reasonably healthy. Is there a remedy? — Mr. S.

• • •

Comment: If it will make you feel better, you are not alone. Since Dr. K. A. Ekbom of Sweden described restless leg syndrome" in 1944, both doctors and patients have been aware of this awesome and nagging condition. Thousands suffer from it and are unaware that it has a label: restless legs.

It drains them of their energy because they lose sleep. It is not a serious illness: it doesn't shorten life, but how it disturbs one's rest! It can waken one out of deep sleep. It may recur, on and off for weeks at a time and then disappear for months.

Patients give varying descriptions of these discomforts: "My legs simply will not keep still." "Something is pulling or stretching my legs." "Something keeps creeping up and down." "It feels as if my whole leg were full of small worms." "It spoils my life. At times it makes me hysterical."

Patients have told me that uncomfortable sensations are worse at night. Leg jerks may come on while at a lecture or the movies. They may have to get up and leave. They can not relax and sit still at a bridge game or at a dinner party. Their legs suddenly begin jerking and thrashing out dangerously at unwary bystanders.

Enough about symptoms. There are hundreds of variations. What most people are interested in is similar to your query, Mr. S. "Is there a remedy?" The answer is there is no specific cure. But here are some procedures that have helped some patients:

1. Prolonged soaking in a hot bath. 2. Stick the feet out from under the cover. 3. Pour cold water on feet before bedtime. 4. Sleep with socks on or use hot water bag or a heat pad. 5. Take a cold shower. 6. An aspirin or two before bedtime often relaxes some patients. 7. Occasionally, sleeping pills or tranquilizers help. 8. Your doctor may try other drugs. 9. Beware of taking narcotics.

So you see, what works for one may not help the other. Self-experimentation is often the only answer. Thankfully, as I said, restless legs are not a menace to health nor do they shorten life — but sufferers will tell you that they "sure take the joy out of life."

• • •

For Mrs. M.: Twenty cups of coffee a day adds up to a lot of caffeine. Perhaps this is making your husband so nervous. If you can convince him to cut down, this may give you your answer.

KITCHENER — Clarence Campbell could probably claim as much poison-pen mail as any public figure, but the controversial National Hockey League president always reads it.

Somewhere in his stacks of correspondence, Campbell always manages to find some constructive criticism of hockey's greatest show on earth.

"My mail indicates there seem to be two major objections to NHL hockey," he was telling the first annual convention of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association Saturday.

"Apart from the officiating, that is," the eloquent Mr. Campbell quipped.

"People complain that goalies stop the play too much and that defence players stop the play too often, ostensibly because they are being checked.

CLARENCE CAMPBELL
Fights the Press

"We feel the game on the basis that we are protecting sixty minutes of sustained action, so this can't be tolerated."

A couple of well-placed probes later, and the cat was out of the Campbell bag.

This surprise fellas came in the form of an NHL proposal designed to penalize teams for game-stalling tactics.

A so-called "free face-off" will be given experimental use in the league's pre-season exhibition games this fall to determine the feasibility of making it part and parcel of the NHL rule-book.

"In most games, a team loses possession for stalling tactics," Campbell explained. "But the infraction is not of such a serious nature that it should deprive the offending team of playing strength."

The free face-off is the "sufficient deterrent" Campbell and the NHL hope will put an end to those action-interrupting flops by goaltenders, a la Gerry Cheevers, or the jamming of players up against the boards to freeze the puck when an opposition attack becomes too threatening.

This is how the proposed innovation would work.

If any player or goalie intentionally freezes the puck OR shoots it out of the playing surface, the puck will be placed in one of the face-off circles in the offending team's end of the rink..

Both teams must be ready, and the non-offending team will have the right to play the puck — without interference. No direct shot on goal may be taken, however. The player taking the free face-off must either pass or carry the puck out of the circle before shooting.

One financial consideration about adopting the rule troubled Campbell. Once shooting the puck into the crowd is made a penalized offence, the NHL becomes liable for any injuries sustained by spectators struck by hockey pucks.

"Our insurance rates would go up 10 per cent," the league president revealed.

As it stands now, spectators cater as NHL risk ad their own risk, insofar as the puck is concerned.

Campbell was equally adamant that a change would have to be made in the empty-net regulation following the fiasco on the final Sunday of the 1968-70 regular schedule.

"There is no way this can continue," he stressed. "That regulation has outlived its usefulness."

Down at the other end of the seminar table, talk of free face-offs mortified one George Imlach.

Already distraught over being left only the dregs of enticing NHL rosters from which to form the Buffalo Sabres line-up in this week's expansion draft, Imlach now faced a weapon that could do no good for his hapless charges.

Imlach has visions of a free face-off sending a soft, unobstructed pass out to a Bobby Hull slapshot.

"I better mark that down," he sighed. "Now I need to get a real good point man!"

Bowerman Paying Off

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP-Staff) — Gary Bowerman may take another little slice off the mortgage on his PGA tour card Sunday, picking up a $750 cheque for his 179 finish in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Open Golf Tournament.

The Belleville native was fifth after shooting a pair of 67's in the first 36 holes, but slipped to a third-round 74. He fired a one-over par 71 in yesterday's final round for his 279 total, 17 shots off Dave Hill's winning 262.

Bowerman's cheque was the biggest of three he has picked up in his first year on the tough United States pro tour. He must win $8,000 to retain the playing card he earned at the PGA players' school in December.

Hill's winning 267 total brought him $30,000 of the $150,000 prize money. Frank Beard, Homero Blancas, and New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles each pocketed $11,922 after finishing in a three-way tie for second at 268.

Dump Trenton Juniors 13-4

Kinsmen Belt Castellarin, May Pick Him Up

Trenton hurler Randy Castellarin who had his troubles with the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors yesterday may provide the answer to one of coach Moe Hunter's major headaches.

The tall lefthander was victim of some shoddy support from his Trenton teammates Sunday as the Kinsmen scored 11 runs in the seventh and eighth innings to hand the visitors a 13-4 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association setback.

"We're rounding into pretty good shape," said the Kinsmen coach after the contest, "we still need some pitching help for South Hastings play, but there's a possibility that we can get Randy and Joe Hastings to give us a hand."

The Belleville Juniors were anything but teammates to Castellarin Sunday.

Their big inning was the seventh as they overcame a 3-2 deficit with an eight - run explosion.

Dale Duvall singled to start the inning. A fielder's choice and a base hit by Glenn Carleton loaded the bases for Kinsmen catcher Paul Goodfellow, who responded with a "grand slam" grounder, as two throwing errors on the play allowed all four Belleville runners to score.

A double by Terry Meagher and singles to Brian Coughlin, Steve Moore, Dale Duvall and Glen Carleton accounted for an additional four runs in the inning.

The home team had scored their initial pair of runs on three errors and a fielder's choice.

Trenton had taken a one-run lead in the top of the seventh as Steve Bedard singled and scored on Dan Gohren's triple. Gohren was thrown out at home on a ground ball to the pitcher, but Phil Easton came through with a base hit to score Dennis Neron, who had reached first on a fielder's choice.

Garnie Adams went the distance for Belleville allowing only five hits. He walked a pair and fired third strikes past 15 Trenton hitters.

Castellarin was relieved by Dennis Neron in the seventh, who in turn gave way to Bruce McConkey in the bottom of the eighth. They were touched for 15 hits, while walking one and fanning 11 batters.

Terry Meagher was the top hitter for the Kinsmen strobing a double and two singles. Glenn Carleton had three base hits with Brian Coughlin and Steve Moore getting two each.

Steve Bedard was best to a batting cause as he reached Adams for a pair of singles.

Pop!

Belleville Kinsmen outfielder Glenn Carleton pops up a bunt attempt in Sunday's EOBA Junior contest against Trenton at the fairgrounds, as Trenton backstop Steve Bedard reaches for the ball. The home team scored eight times in one inning to help them fashion a 13-4 victory.

Auctions Equipment Saturday

Hull 'Packs Bags' for Trip West

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

PICTON — Prince Edward County still has its sandy Lake Ontario beaches, quiet, rail-fenced countryside and weedy Bay of Quinte waters.

It can no longer, however, lay claim to being the summer home of the highest scoring winger in NHL history, as Bobby Hull completed the sale of machinery and produce on his former Big Island farming plot.

The auction of over 50 pieces of farm equipment and 600 bales of hay was held Saturday and virtually severed Hull's farming connections with the Eastern Ontario community.

Sale of the land and cattle will taken place earlier, with part of Hull's herd of registered Hereford's being disposed of at a Quebec sale last fall, and the remainder being shipped to his new base of operations at Whitewood, Saskatchewan.

The Point Anne - born star has maintained ownership of about 200 of the more than 600 acres of land that he and partner Ralph Richards controlled.

Tucked away in a quiet farming community and accessible by country roads that even Meteor might have trouble smoothing out, Hull-vue farm is a long way from the fanatic filled bleachers of Chicago Stadium.

Nevertheless, hockey's Golden Jet proved to be a drawing card even in his own back yard as a number of arrow - shirted visitors mixed with the dark green or blue work shirts of the serious buyers. As one woman put it, "never mind the machinery, I came here to see Bobby Hull.

Curiosity seekers were destined for disappointment however, as this year's all - star left - winger was busy attending matters on his Saskatchewan ranch and was unable to be present at the sale.

A crowd of over 100 buyers responded to the litany of Picton auctioneer Creighton Carr, who proclaimed the sale as going "very well".

On hand to give particulars of the different equipment to prospective purchasers was Hull's former farm manager, Howard Cargill. "The cost of land just got too expensive for Bob to maintain his operation here," claimed Cargill, "it will be a lot cheaper out west."

Speaking of his five - year association with the Chicago super - star, he added, "He was a good man to work for. I never had any trouble at all, he gave me pretty much of a free hand in running things."

Hull will wait until school finishes in mid - June before moving his family to their new Saskatchewan residence.

R. Yankee Wann Takes Command At Buffalo

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — R. Yankee Wann took command at the three-quarter mark and went on to win the featured $3,000 Invitational Pace at Buffalo Raceway Saturday.

R. Yankee Wann was in 2:01, the fastest time of the five-week-old season, beating favorite Pine Hill by 2¼ lengths.

Owned by Campbell Wannamaker of Cossacon, Ont., the horse increased his earnings this year to $32,438. Saturday's victory was worth $2,500.

Turbos Take Top Spot In Industrial Softball League

CNR Turbos came through with an 8-6 win in their first-place battle with Mead Johnson Sunday to take the lead in the Industrial League standings, while the Intelligencer won an error-filled 11-8 game over the Fire Department.

Rod Bennett pitched three-hit ball to hand Mead Johnson their first loss of the season. Bennett fanned six opposing batsmen and walked a pair, with a 17-hit barrage against Mead Johnson hurler Paul Williams.

Ingrams Win

TRENTON — Few clubhouses in the Quinte area are surprised to learn that the name "Ingram" will be inscribed on any of their trophies or winners' boards.

So no-one at the Trenton Golf and Country Club could be accused of shock Sunday when Belleville's Betty and Hank Ingrahm shot a 77 gross to walk off with top honors in the annual Trenton "Mr. and Mrs." tournament.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club couple's score was the best of 43 entries in the mixed two-ball foursome field.

Second low gross honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mack of the host Trenton club.

Mr. and Mrs. Gord Coathup of Napanee took low net prize with a 69½, one stroke better than Trenton's Mr. and Mrs. Peter Natergio.

C. Bell blasted three hits, including a triple to lead the CNR attack. Bob Dafoe and R. Plumbe also had three safeties, with Zeine Plumbe and R. Conlon getting a pair.

The total blew a 4-1 lead, but came up with four runs in the top of the seventh to erase a 10-6 lead for the firemen.

Dave Feeney hurled the win, allowing seven hits and five walks while striking out three batters. Bob Davenport was touched for nine hits on the Fire Department mound, walking three and striking out an equal number. Walks and errors combined to get both pitchers in trouble on occasion.

Harold Redquist was the big gun for The Intelligencer, with a triple and a single. Ron Emerson had a double and single and Bill Hoard collected two base hits.

Bruce Hall and Bob Andrus doubled and singled for the Firemen, with Grant Parks hitting a home run and Perry Soule a triple.

Mexicans, Soviets Play Polite Tie to Open World Cup

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Before the World Cup soccer tournament opened, the bosses of international soccer made clear what they wanted: more goals and less mayhem.

They got half of what they wanted Sunday in the opening game between Mexico and the Soviet Union. The Russians and Mexicans played generally polite soccer before more than 107,000 fans in the Aztec Stadium but could manage only occasional sparks of action and finished in a scoreless tie.

The International Association of Football Federations (FIFA), governors of world soccer, announced before the 21-day competition started that it would use a new system to decide ties in the tournament. Goals against will be subtracted from goals scored to determine which teams advance to the next round. The aim was to get less defensive play and more scoring.

But the Mexicans and Russians played a game devoted almost entirely to defence. The opening pace was so slow that after 15 minutes, the huge crowd began to boo the players.

But there was none of the flaring temper or rough play that often mar games in international competition. West German referee Karl Tuschenber kept a firm grip.

FIFA had instructed referees to clamp down quickly on any trouble. Tuschenber complied and handed out reprimands at the first sign of dirty play and the Group I game was completed without incident.

All 16 teams get a day off today and action resumes Tuesday with three games to be played simultaneously in Puebla, Guadalajara and Leon. These will pit England against Romania in Group III, Uruguay against Israel in Group II and Peru against Bulgaria in Group IV.

Most of the interest will be centred on the England-Romania game. England won the last World Cup on home ground in 1966 and is ranked as a favorite here. The lighter Romanian team is regarded as the weakest of the Group III teams but could prove a spoiler.

Action picks up Wednesday with the first four-game day: Belgium vs. El Salvador, in Group I, Italy vs. Sweden in Group II, Brazil vs. Czechoslovakia in Group III and West Germany vs. Morocco in Group IV.

Following a series of round-robin games, the top two teams from each group advance to the quarter-finals.

The only real moment of excitement in the first day's game came when Horacio Lopez of Mexico drove through the Soviet defence and executed a header 16 yards in front of the cage. But Soviet goalkeeper Anzor Kavazashvili blocked the shot.

Italian centre-forward Roberto Boninsegna said after the match:

"It was not exactly a brilliant start to the World Cup. But I suppose the altitude and the heat must have some effect on the players."

Chicago Prevails 22-13

Sox Run Ragged Chasing Record Total

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eight pitchers absorbed 40 hits Sunday as Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox chased a 20-year American League scoring record.

The White Sox unloaded 24 hits against six Boston pitchers in taking a 22-13 victory. The teams totalled within one run of tying the league mark for most runs in a game by both teams. It was set in 1950 when the Red Sox whipped Philadelphia Athletics 22-14.

Boston also set the one-team, one-game mark of 29 runs in the same year against St. Louis Browns.

Elsewhere Sunday, Kansas City Royals manager Charlie Metro objected to the use of a television camera by the Washington team in the outfield seats, but the Royals beat the Senators 6-5.

California Angels clipped Baltimore Orioles 6-1, Minnesota Twins whipped New York Yankees 14-10 in 10 innings, Cleveland Indians edged Oakland Athletics 3-2 and Milwaukee Brewers outscored Detroit Tigers 7-6.

Saturday, Minnesota downed New York 10-6, Oakland edged Cleveland 5-4, Washington nipped Kansas City 3-2, Milwaukee clipped Detroit 8-7, Boston beat Chicago 7-3 and California edged Baltimore 3-2.

Luis Aparicio and Walt Williams paced Chicago with five hits each. Aparicio, playing only the first six innings, drove across three runs with three singles and a triple, and scored three times himself. Williams tagged a double and four singles in seven times at bat and scored five times.

More than one-third of the combined Chicago and Boston hits carried for extra bases. They included three homers, two triples and 10 doubles. Bill Melton homered for the White Sox while Carl Yastrzemski socked his 12th homer of the year and Mike Andrews his fourth for the Red Sox.

Metro said he would seek a ruling from league president Joe Cronin about the camera, which the Royals say use to tape their pitchers and hitters.

Metro's official protest of the game was wiped out when the Royals rallied for two runs in the eighth inning on Joe Keough's single and run-scoring doubles by Luis Alcaras and pinch-hitter Hawk Taylor.

Home runs by Ken McMullen and Jim Fregosi paced the Angels to their second straight victory over the Orioles.

Boog Powell homered for Baltimore and team-mate Paul Blair was struck in the face by a pitch from Ken Tatum in the eighth and suffered a broken nose.

The Twins maintained their 1½-game lead over California in the West Division when Harmon Killebrew socked his second home run of the game in the 10th inning to beat the Yankees.

A two-run ninth-inning double by Ted Savage helped the Brewers past the Tigers. The Brewers had scored three times in the eighth.

A single by Graig Nettles, a sacrifice and Ted Uhlaender's run-scoring single accounted for Cleveland's winning run against Oakland in the ninth inning. Reggie Jackson and Bert Campaneris homered for the Athletics and Ray Fosse for the Indians.

Carty's Revenge 6 RBI's After Hitting Streak Broken

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Outfielder Rico Carty, who had a 16-game Major National League hitting streak cut by Philadelphia Saturday night, got a lot of revenge Sunday.

The Atlanta slugger drove in six runs with three home runs and a single as the Braves whipped the Phillies 9-1.

Carty, who has been held hitless in only four of Atlanta's 46 games this season and earlier this year hit safely in 31 consecutive games, raised his league-leading batting average to .438.

In other Sunday action, San Francisco pitcher Juan Marichal was tagged for five runs in 2 2-3 innings as the Giants fell 7-3 to Pittsburgh Pirates. New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Houston Astros, 16-4 and 4-3—the second game going 14 innings—Cincinnati Reds beat Montreal Expos 6-4, Los Angeles Dodgers outscored St. Louis Cardinals 8-6 in 11 innings and Chicago Cubs downed San Diego Padres 7-4.

Saturday, Cincinnati nipped Montreal 5-4 in 10 innings, San Francisco tripped Chicago 13-11, New York edged Houston 4-3, Los Angeles beat St. Louis 7-4, New York beat Houston 4-3, Philadelphia clipped Atlanta 7-5 and San Diego split with Chicago, winning 11-4 before losing 8-7.

Carty Sunday hit three homers and a single to account for six runs. He now has 14 homers.

His spree helped righthander Jim Nash to his sixth straight victory. Nash, 7-1, scattered five hits, struck out 11 and blanked the Phillies until the eighth inning.

Gene Alley homered to ignite a five-run third-inning burst that finished Marichal and carried the Pirates past the Giants.

A 14th-inning single by pinch hitter Duffy Dyer delivered an unearned run that completed the Mets' sweep. Righthander Denny Lemaster, who had taken the first-game loss as a starter, was the victim again in relief as second baseman Joe Morgan booted Ken Boswell's leadoff grounder to open the game.

Ron Swoboda delivered five runs in the opener with two homers and a bases-loaded walk for the Mets. Jim Wynn homered in each game for Houston.

Tony Perez's 18th homer of the season, a two-run wallop in the seventh inning, carried the Reds past the Expos, who have dropped eight in a row.

Flu Bugs Cowan

SAO PAULO, Brazil (CP-Reuters) — South Africa won the Humberto Almeida amateur golf cup Sunday, finishing 18 strokes ahead of second-place Canada.

The South Africans finished first with a total of 555 strokes. Canada took second with 574 and Argentina was third with 593. Brazil was last in the four-country tournament with 603.

Canada went into the final round 14 strokes behind South Africa. Gary Cowan of Kitchener, the lowest-scoring Canadian after the first three rounds, had a flu attack and had to withdraw.

Cowan, a 31-year-old insurance salesman, who won the U.S. amateur in 1956 and the North-South amateur this year, shot a 70, 72 and 71 for 34 holes.

Nick Weslock, 52, of Burlington, Ont., a former Canadian amateur champion, shot 76-72-72-72 and Wayne McDonald of Port Credit, Ont., had 74-72-74-70.

Scoring for the competition was determined on the best two scores of the three-man teams during the four days of play.

Canada's Delegate Nixed South Africa

KITCHENER (CP) — Jim Worrall of Toronto, Canada's only voting delegate to the International Olympic Committee, disclosed Sunday he voted for the expulsion of South Africa from Olympic competition.

"I voted for withdrawal of recognition of South Africa by the IOC," Worrall said during questioning at the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association convention.

"It was seemingly impossible for the National Olympic Committee of South Africa to fully carry out its commitments to the Olympic movement, to eliminate discrimination and diverse itself from government policy.

"But I know those people. They are bound by the laws of their land. Until this situation changes, they cannot field a team truly divorced from discrimination.

"I'm not chickening out, but so many countries were seriously concerned with the South African problem. The Olympic Games and the Olympic movement itself were threatened with disintegration.

"At some point, you have to stand up and be counted," Worrall said.

The expulsion was voted upon at a meeting earlier this month in Amsterdam.

Sawchuk's Death Subject of Inquiry

NEW YORK (CP) — A 21-year career in the National Hockey League, studded with all-star selections, trophies and the praise of countless fans and colleagues, has ended with the death of goaltender Terry Sawchuk.

The 40-year-old veteran with New York Rangers died in hospital Sunday of cardiac arrest following extensive surgery to correct injuries suffered in what was reported as a "horseplay" incident with a team-mate at his home.

Police said Sunday an investigation would be conducted.

"The death of Terry Sawchuk is a tragic and shocking loss to hockey in general and the New York Rangers in particular," said Emile Francis, the Rangers' coach and general manager who was at the goalie's bedside for most of the last four days.

"Sawchuk's record speaks for itself," Francis said, referring to the many all-star selections and four Vezina Trophies the Winnipeg native earned as the league's top goalie.

Sam Pollock, Montreal Canadiens general manager, said:

"Sawchuk was one of the greatest goalies of all time. I'm just shocked. It's a very tragic thing."

NHL president Clarence Campbell also called the death "a terrible tragedy."

Bob Kimsar, who scouted Sawchuk for Detroit Red Wings, said:

"What is that rhyme? Wednesday's child is full of woe? Terry was born on a Wednesday and he had a lot of troubles but he was the greatest goalkeeper I've ever seen and as far as I was concerned, a wonderful kid."

A detective in the Nassau County homicide bureau said Sunday an investigation would begin today into the cause of death.

Dr. Elliott Gross, deputy chief medical examiner for New York City, said preliminary findings of an autopsy, which determined that Sawchuk died of a pulmonary embolism—a blood clot on one of the arterial branches—have been sent to Nassau County district attorney.

The Nassau County police have jurisdiction over the East Atlantic Beach area where Sawchuk rented a home and where the alleged injury occurred April 29.

At the time he was admitted to a Long Beach hospital, police said Sawchuk had been "horseplaying" on the lawn with a team-mate although the other player later said he knew nothing of the incident.

Sawchuk underwent surgery to remove his gall bladder and had a second operation following complications. He was moved Saturday to a New York hospital and underwent a third operation for further complications Sunday morning.

The league's all-time shutout leader with 103, Sawchuk started his four-season career with Omaha Knights of the United States League in 1947-48. The next season he went to Indianapolis Caps of the American League before graduating to Detroit of the NHL where he was rookie of the year in 1950-51.

He spent six seasons with Detroit before being traded to Boston Bruins in 1955. He was traded back to Detroit in 1957 and then drafted by Toronto Maple Leafs in 1964. He played a leading role in the Leafs' Stanley Cup victory in 1967 and was narrowly beaten by Toronto's Dave Keon for the Conn Smythe Trophy as the outstanding player in the playoffs. Sawchuk had won the Jr. Bickell Trophy as the outstanding player in the club that year.

The Leafs left Sawchuk unprotected in the 1967 expansion draft and he went to Los Angeles Kings for one season before being traded back to Detroit again.

The Red Wings sent him and winger Sandy Snow to New York in 1969 in exchange for Larry Jeffrey.

When told he had been acquired by Rangers as back-up goalie to Ed Giacomin, Sawchuk said: "I can't play. I'm old and I'm tired. I don't want to be—I can't be—No. 1 anymore."

Sawchuk told his troubles even when he was No. 1.

He was 36 when Leafs physiotherapist Karl Elieff checked over the goalie in training camp and stuck him with the nickname "old skin and paint."

Another Leafs spokesman said: "He played games when he should have been in hospital."

In 1954, Sawchuk suffered a collapsed lung in an automobile accident and once almost lost the sight in an eye which was saved by emergency operation.

In 1966 he underwent surgery to correct ruptured discs in his back and aggravated the condition the following season, hinting he would retire should he have further trouble.

He weighed only about 175 pounds last season, about 25 pounds lighter than during his best years, and carried the marks of about 400 stitches that closed cuts on his face during his long career.

Boys Best on Board

WINNIPEG (CP) — Seven members were named Sunday to the diving team to represent Canada at the British Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh July 15-25.

Canadian champion Beverley Boys of Pickering, Ont., winner of both three-metre springboard and tower events in the Canadian diving trials which ended Sunday, led the girls' team.

She will be joined by Elizabeth Carruthower of Edmonton, Nancy Robertson, also of Pickering, and Kathy Rolfe of Saskatoon.

Only three men were selected — Ken Sully of White Rock, B.C., Bob Eaton of Agincourt, Ont., and Ron Frisent of Saskatoon.

Miss Boys, 18, won the tower event with a 50-point margin over Miss Robertson. The two girls compete for the Oshawa Aquatic Club.

Ross Hetherington, one of two Canadian coaches, said this year's diving team is the "strongest in history" for Canada and perhaps the "strongest in the Commonwealth."

Wins by Lap

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — McLaren driver Eppie Wietzes of Thornhill, Ont., lengthened his lead in the Canadian road-racing championship Sunday with a one-lap victory over Lola driver Horst Kroll of Scarborough, Ont., in the featured Invitation Formula A race. A crowd of 13,500 watched Wietzes set a track record as he clustered through the 27th lap of the 56-lap race in 75.6 for a lap speed of 96 miles an hour. The old record for the 1.8-mile track was set in June, 1968, by McLaren driver John Cordts of Port Credit, Ont., with a time of 1:08.7.

Ortiz Dead at 53

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Former world bantamweight boxing champion Manuel Ortiz died in hospital Sunday of cirrhosis. He was 53. The native of Corona, Calif., who spent most of his later years in the El Centro area east of San Diego, won 52 bouts, 45 by knockouts, and fought three times in his 18-year ring career which ended Dec. 10, 1955.

Heat Was On

HAMILTON (CP) — Andy Boychuk of Toronto Olympic Club Sunday won over a field of 32 other starters in the annual Canadian marathon over a course of 26 miles, 385 yards. Boychuk, a 27-year-old chemical engineer, finished with a time of two hours, 32 minutes and 21 seconds in the race, which started at 1:30 p.m. in 80-degree heat. Three minutes behind Boychuk was team-mate Robert Moore who ran side-by-side by Boychuk for the first 15 miles. Only 20 of the starters finished the race in the mid-day heat, an effect anticipated by many of the runners who complained of the starting time.

Ford Wins in Clutch

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — Al Ford of Edmonton retained his Canadian lightweight boxing title Saturday by pounding out a majority decision over a game but outgunned Lawrence Haley of neighboring Stellarton. Ford, 19, used a quick jab and effective counter-punching to gain the victory in the 12-round bout. There were no knockdowns. Ford weighed 133 pounds, two pounds lighter than Haley, No. 1 contender for the Canadian lightweight championship. Judge Len Roy scored the fight 57-49 in favor of the champion while Judge George Petrie saw it 58-56, also for Ford. Judge Henry Boutilier scored it 57-54 for Haley.

Bruins Give Green, Murphy Full Cup Share

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins, fresh from winning the Stanley Cup for the first time in 29 years, awarded 25 full shares and two one-half shares Saturday in splitting the fat playoff money.

The National Hockey League authorized 21 full shares of $6,750, including 18 players, coach Harry Sinden, general manager Milt Schmidt and trainer Don Cazney.

The Bruins' management also decided to grant out-of-club money for four full shares and two one-half shares. The four full shares will go to defenseman Teddy Green, and forwards Ron Murphy, Wayne Carleton and Don Marcotte.

Green was sidelined after suffering a fractured skull in a pre-season exhibition game. Murphy was sidelined most of the season by shoulder injuries. Carleton was detained in midseason from Toronto and Marcotte was called up from the farm system in January.

One-half shares, the club announced, will be given to assistant general manager Tom Johnson and assistant trainer John Forristall.

Al Unser Shares Indy Glory

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Al Unser, auto racing's newest glamor boy, gives credit where credit is due—to this case in his pit crew and to mentor Parnelli Jones.

He showed up Sunday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, kicked through the debris left by 300,000 persons, and visited with the crew which had helped him win a dramatic victory Saturday in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race.

A few hours later he accepted the biggest single cheque ever paid to the winner of a motor-sports event—$271,697.72.

"This has to be the greatest single day in a race driver's life," the handsome, dark-haired member of a racing family from Albuquerque said.

"The guys back there in the garage made it possible."

He also had some sentimental words for Jones, winner of the 1963 Memorial Day 500. Jones is co-owner of the P.J.-Colt turbo-charged Ford that performed so flawlessly for Unser Saturday.

Rutherford got to the first turn ahead of the field but Al passed him on the back stretch. "From that point on, there were only three other leaders—Foyt, Mark Donohue and Lloyd Ruby —for a combined total of nine of the 200 laps.

The average race speed was 155.749 m.p.h., held down by 27 minutes under the caution flag.

"I ran a very conservative race," Unser said. "I ran only as hard as I had to do to keep a cushion over the others."

The youngest brother in the celebrated New Mexico clan came close to trouble only when a five-car pileup with 60 miles to go spilled oil and brought out the yellow caution light.

"There was oil all over the racetrack," he said. "I did slide a little sideways but I didn't have any trouble.

"The second time I came through a car was on fire and I simply went by on the infield grass."

What Unser didn't say but what he admits privately is that a year of seasoning under Jones has made him one of the world's best drivers, with wealth and glory ahead of him.

He finished sixth and second in two previous Memorial Day races, but missed the lineup when he broke his leg while frolicking with a motorcycle in the garage area.

After his leg mended, he drove Jones' car to six victories in 11 races, finished second three times, third once and fourth in another.

Separate School And Secondary Teachers' Fight Grows Sharper

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The situation of separate school teachers in Ontario worsened over the weekend with the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association picketing the Windsor separate school board.

The OECTA, previously had taken similar action—asking for bids association members to accept positions with the picketed boards—against Metropolitan Toronto and Middlesex County separate school boards.

The latest pick-lining came Saturday at a meeting in Toronto after more than 83 per cent of Windsor's 761 separate school teachers resigned Friday.

Patrick O'Neill, a spokesman for the teachers association, said after Saturday's meeting that the Windsor board's last offer equalled the Windsor public school board offer in salaries for classroom teachers, but principals and others in positions of responsibility were offered less and fringe benefits for—It were also considerably less.

The OECTA's board of directors also decided Saturday the association would provide financial support for teachers who have resigned by Middlesex County and Windsor if the deadlock in the two areas are closed in September.

A total of 271 Middlesex County separate school teachers submitted their resignations last Thursday.

Resignations also were collected from Toronto teachers, but were not submitted by the May 31 deadline because an insufficient number of Metro's 3,400 separate school teachers resigned, Mr. O'Neill said.

A similar situation among Toronto's 7,500 public secondary school teachers was responsible Friday for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation decision not to submit the resignations it had collected.

A majority of the more than 1,000 London, Ont., secondary school teachers also voted Friday not to resign.

An idea of implementing a work-to-rule policy starting this week was temporarily abandoned later when the city's secondary school board agreed to discuss in public the conflict between teachers and trustees across Ontario.

Jack Scott, president of the London district of the OSSTF, said Sunday a Tuesday deadline for the public debate remained.

He said the main items the teachers want to discuss are:

—The moratorium on secondary school teacher hiring in the province, imposed by the Ontario School Trustees' Council after the OSSTF picketed the Metro Toronto boards.

—The London board's refusal to guarantee a 20-day period after the lifting of the moratorium for teachers to submit resignations.

After May 31, the next legal resignation date for Ontario teachers is Nov. 30.

Bright spots in the situation this weekend were in Sault Ste. Marie and Timmins.

The 377 secondary school teachers in Timmins ratified a contract Friday night that will give them a 10.5-per-cent wage increase and add $229,000 to the city's board of education's $7,186,000 payroll.

Sault Ste. Marie's 490 elementary school teachers signed their new contract Saturday, agreeing to an estimated 9.05-per-cent increase in wages and benefits.

Montreal Bombings Called 'Simple Terrorism'

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Sunday that "pure and simple terrorism" was the apparent reason behind the five dynamite time bombs that earlier in the day rocked the wealthy, mainly English-speaking suburb of Westmount.

"We don't have any chas as to the particular reasons behind these bombings other than pure and simple terrorism," a member of the police anti-subversive squad said in an interview.

Seven bombs, five of which exploded, were placed in Westmount before dawn Sunday and police searched into the night for other explosive devices that might have been planted in the west-end suburb.

Three persons, one of them a nine-year-old girl, were treated at hospital for cuts and shock resulting from the bombings.

Two of the bombs were placed in empty houses and one police investigator said this confirmed his belief that terrorists were involved.

"It seems that these people are not out after anyone or anything in particular. They just want to scare the public at large."

The anti-subversive squad, a combined unit of RCMP, provincial and municipal police, was formed after a wave of terrorist bombings struck Montreal in 1963.

Another member of the squad said he believes a new group may be behind the bombings although they might try to identify themselves with other terrorist groups "because it adds a little romanticism to the cause."

A Westmount police officer said one of the unexploded bombs, consisting of 30 sticks of dynamite, would have demolished the unoccupied house behind which it was placed if it had exploded.

Two large homes belonging to financiers, an office building, a vacant house and a stone retaining wall running alongside a street were damaged by the blasts.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa described the attacks as "a last futile gesture of despair by fanatics of a dying cause."

He promised in an interview that his new elected Liberal government will "stamp out the last vestiges of movements dedicated to the spread of chaos."

The five blasts brought to eight the number of bombings in as many days. (The separatist-terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois claimed responsibility for the first at an Old Montreal building May 24.

...The first blast Sunday, at 1:57 a.m., smashed windows and shattered the rear wall of the office building at 4130 Sherbrooke St. West. A policeman said the building, owned by Financial Collection Agencies, was "hit the hardest" of the five locations bombed.

At 4 a.m., an explosion occurred at 5 Lansdowne Ridge, home of Peter Bronfman, chairman of Great West Saddlery and son of Allan Bronfman, vice-president of Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd.

Then a blast tore a hole in a retaining wall, throwing large chunks of rock through windows of 26 Belvedere Rd. across the street.

Thirteen minutes later, an explosion knocked windows, doors and long sharp wood splinters out of a vacant house at 61 Belvedere Rd.

The last explosion at 4:30 a.m., hurled a sidewall, shattered windows and wrecked the front balcony of the home of Hugh R. McCuaig, a partner in a brokerage house of Doherty Roadhouse and McCuaig Ltd. The home is at 185 Edgehill Rd.

An unexploded bomb with 30 sticks of dynamite was found behind a vacant house on Roxboro Drive and started police on a house-to-house search of the upper region where Westmount streets climb the west slope of Mount Royal.

Lieut. R. Swailes of Westmount police said the 30-stick bomb was probably the largest.

"If that had gone off it—would be no bones standing there," he said.

Earlier, a bomb was found beneath the parked car of Gabriel Hecsch, a consultant with the International Civil Aviation Organization. He spotted a package under his car as he emerged from his home at 788 Upper Lansdowne Rd.

The injuries were suffered by three residents of two homes behind the Sherbrooke Street building.

It was the second time in seven years that Westmount, often considered a bastion of English-Canadian wealth and power, has been hit by a concentrated rash of bombings. In the early-morning hours of May 17, 1963, 11 mailboxes in the suburb were torn apart by bombs.

Westmount police handled the investigation Sunday, although the Montreal police technical squad helped and disposed of the unexploded bombs.

Police were flooded with telephone calls after Westmount Mayor Peter McIntyre appealed to residents to check their property for any suspicious-looking parcels.

Mr. McIntyre said that among leads police were searching for a sports car with three or four bearded passengers seen in the suburb overnight.

The Gazette said an anonymous telephone caller told one of the bombing victims he knew who had planted the bombs. The newspaper said a name mentioned in the conversation had been passed on to police.

The previous Sunday a bomb exploded before dawn outside the old Board of Trade building in Old Montreal, shattering windows for blocks around.

Two bombs last Thursday were planted at the doctors' residence at the rear of Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital and in the trunk of a car near a building of Canadian General Electric.

Accident Toll 66

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 66 persons died accidentally in Canada during the weekend, 41 in traffic and 19 by drowning.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times, shows five others died in fires, one when crushed by a plow and another was asphyxiated.

U.S. Firms and Unions Are Both Under Fire

BRANTFORD (CP) — Persons in the managerial class are the only ones in Canada who prosper from United States ownership of industry in this country, Leo Johnson, a professor of history at University of Waterloo, said Saturday.

Mr. Johnson, at annual meeting of the Canadian Textiles and Chemical Union, Prof. Johnson said U.S. control now is so extensive that Canada cannot disengage itself from such control.

With the Americanization of Canadian industry came Americanization of Canadian unions, he said. He referred specifically to the United Steelworkers of America's attempt to take over from the Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers—a Canadian organization—the representation of Sudbury-area mine workers.

Kent Rowley, president of the textile union, expressed criticism because, he said, Canadian union members' dues go to the U.S.

"Over the years, hundreds of millions of Canadian union dollars have been salted away in the United States," he said.

"That Canadians should be sending union dues to any foreign country is bad in itself, but that he should be subsidizing the wealthy United States is simply beyond reason."

He said the federal government should pass legislation to "bring this exploitation to an end."

Seaway Said in Danger

OTTAWA (CP) — A booklet prepared by the Dominion Marine Association says higher transportation charges on the St. Lawrence seaway could sound the "death knell of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes shipping route."

"The only sensible transportation policy for Canada is one which will transport the maximum goods the maximum distance at the minimum cost," said the booklet, prepared by the association, whose 21 member companies operate most shipping on the St. Lawrence.

Trailers Need Attention, Too With Tires Particularly Vital

By RAY STAPLEY

While sitting with a friend on the balcony of his apartment recently we heard a sudden scream of metal from the four-lane highway below. We looked down and saw a heavy house trailer that had flipped over on its side.

Most trailers break loose under these circumstances, but this one followed a most unusual pattern. As it rolled over, the hitching device held fast and raised the rear wheels of the towing vehicle about a foot from the pavement.

The trailer then took the lead and dragged the car backwards at a fast clip for some distance on its front wheels before both units (still coupled together) finally came to rest.

With some fast manoeuvring, the drivers following managed to avoid a collision and the bewildered driver got out of the ordeal without a scratch to himself or his car.

Apparently the trailer tires were badly underinflated, and as the driver attempted to steer into another lane the trailer spun out of control. Frequently, motorists who take good care of their cars pay little or no attention to their trailers.

Too often a trailer is accused in the elements of wind, water, and when Spring comes it is pressed into service and no thought is given to a routine safety check. For maximum stability, especially at high speed, correct trailer tire pressure is just as important as proper car-tire inflation — sixteenth of an inch tread depth.

In most instances, trailer tires require much higher pressure than car tires. Make sure that the tires are job-rated. For example, after buying a bigger boat the extra weight may call for heavy-duty tires of the same size, or even larger tires — which, of course, means larger rims.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Early Warnings Needed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The other day, a friend of mine, who goes back to the early days of the automobile, was chatting with me about the problem of pollution. "Who could have imagined," he said, "when Henry Ford started mass production of the Model T, that cars would become our No. 1 air pollution problem a half-century later?"

Who, indeed? Or, when Thomas Edison developed the incandescent bulb, that our society's need for electrical power would pose an equal threat to our environment, health? These were both good, valuable, beneficial, "progressive" steps on behalf of all our citizens.

Nor need we even go back that far. Just a few years ago, when the detergent manufacturers strengthened their product to get clothes cleaner, hardly anyone was aware of the unfortunate consequences that these phosphorous additives might have upon our rivers and lakes.

We are learning more all the time — most of it dismaying — about the side effects and by-products of our mighty industrial technology. But we have not been learning in time to prevent ecological distress, or sometimes disaster, that may prove far more costly to cure than it would have been to avoid initially.

This is why I am so keen on a proposal by Cong. Emilio Daddario of Connecticut, to set up an "Office of Technology Assessment" as an independent Federal bureau for considering and evaluating the probable social and environmental consequences of new technology.

Both the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering have agreed with Daddario that some kind of "early warning system" is needed by the nation — and the world — to identify the good, bad or neutral implications of new inventions before their consequences become nearly irreversible.

Nobody is doing precisely this job now. Indeed, agencies often work at cross-purposes, or oblivious of what others are doing in the field. The U.S. Interior Dept. looks at "weather modification" one way, the Agricultural Dept. another way, and the Federal Aviation Administration is still another. The "total systems approach" is lacking.

But we need a total systems approach in technology even more crucially than it is needed in industry or any other segment of modern life. And we need it evaluated by a legislative group that is independent of the various executive bodies working on programs they are too likely to justify for their own continued power and existence. Only by planned foresight can we keep from contaminating this globe by our enthusiasm for newness combined with our ignorance of long-term results.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For June 2

Your Birthday today: Stiffer competition is coming your way. Achievement must come from improved skills and inner resolve instead of outside help. There will be moments of crisis when everything hinges on your decision. Well established relationships need your attention. This year's stress; recent friendships do not weather as well. Today's natives are alert, logical and, where the details of individual horoscopes are difficult, critical.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Work goes another; there is the inclination to drift into a decision, stay with matters and see that they get done properly.

We are learning more all the time — most of it dismaying — about the side effects and by-products of our mighty industrial technology. But we have not been learning in time to prevent ecological distress, or sometimes disaster, that may prove far more costly to cure than it would have been to avoid initially.

This is why I am so keen on a proposal by Cong. Emilio Daddario of Connecticut, to set up an "Office of Technology Assessment" as an independent Federal bureau for considering and evaluating the probable social and environmental consequences of new technology.

Both the National Academy of Sciences and the National Academy of Engineering have agreed with Daddario that some kind of "early warning system" is needed by the nation — and the world — to identify the good, bad or neutral implications of new inventions before their consequences become nearly irreversible.

Nobody is doing precisely this job now. Indeed, agencies often work at cross-purposes, or oblivious of what others are doing in the field. The U.S. Interior Dept. looks at "weather modification" one way, the Agricultural Dept. another way, and the Federal Aviation Administration is still another. The "total systems approach" is lacking.

But we need a total systems approach in technology even more crucially than it is needed in industry or any other segment of modern life. And we need it evaluated by a legislative group that is independent of the various executive bodies working on programs they are too likely to justify for their own continued power and existence. Only by planned foresight can we keep from contaminating this globe by our enthusiasm for newness combined with our ignorance of long-term results.

Andras Lashes Out

Politicians, Industrialists Use Pollution As Gimmick

ASHLAND, Wis. (CP) — A Canadian cabinet minister called Sunday for drastic new directions in society—quality instead of quantity in production, decentralization of governments and of technology, and an end to human exploitation by the economy.

Robert Andras, federal minister without portfolio responsible for housing, made the remarks after receiving an honorary doctorate from Northland College in Ashland, across Lake Superior from his home at Thunder Bay, Ont.

Notes for his address were given in advance to the press.

Mr. Andras denounced the superficiality of current concern about the environment and pollution. He said some people have discovered "that preservation of 'our natural environment' is a good political gimmick" and some want to build a "new multi-billion-dollar industrial colossus" to clean up pollution.

Destruction of the environment is a logical result of the way human values have developed, he said, based on attitudes which grew up at a time when material goods were scarce.

Such scarcities had brought about the domination of some people by others, an emphasis on production and 'economic' growth at all costs, destruction of natural resources, wars, a growing difference between rich and poor, and the "emergence in some developed states of bloated and freakly neurotic societies."

What is needed is a realization that environmental problems are rooted in human history, he said. Reform must deal with natural, political, social, economic and psychological factors.

Soviet Craft Aloft

MOSCOW (AP) — The first manned Soviet space flight in eight months put two cosmonauts in orbit Monday night, but there was no indication any innovations were planned.

The launch at 10:09 p.m. Moscow time—3:09 p.m. EDT—was hailed by the Soviet radio and television as "another glorious step in space exploration." The mission was "an extensive program of scientific and technical research," the Soviet news agency Tass said.

There was speculation that the space shot was intended as a prestige booster, timed to coincide with a space conference being held in Leningrad and the visit of American astronaut Neil A. Armstrong, who has been attending the conference.

Rotating Strikes Continue

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal mediator A. W. R. Carrothers said today that if neither side in the deadlocked mail dispute makes a major change in position by Wednesday night, he will tell the government that mediation has been a failure.

Meantime, rotating mail strikes called last week by the Council of Postal Unions in an attempt to force a settlement without resort to a national strike moved into Newfoundland early today as 250 postal workers walked off the job.

In Vancouver, another 1,850 postal employees ended their 24-hour walkout.

Officers Form Peace Movement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anti-war movement has reached the United States military officers' corps.

Calling themselves the Concerned Officers Movement, about 60 Washington-based officers, mostly navy men, have banded together to provide a forum for what they say is growing disillusionment among their ranks with the Indochina war.

A Lowered Rate

Gail Reid, head teller at Belleville's Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, adds $4.86 in Canadian coins to a $300 bundle of Canadian bills, what you would get if you turned in $300. U.S. As of last Friday, $300 American would have cost an extra $22.50.

Little Speculation Here

Belleville banks reported today the Canadian dollar had strengthened by three cents since the exchange rate was freed on Sunday.

"The rates keep bouncing around," one spokesman said. This morning the Canadian dollar was worth 95¾ across the wickets at local banks, up from the pegged rate of 92.5 in effect up until Finance Minister Edgar Benson made the government policy announcement on Sunday.

Monday, the first day after the dollar was freed to find its own level on the international market, the rate varied from 92¼ at bank opening up to 96 cents by closing time.

Rates charged by local banks come from head offices, but as one spokesman said:

"I can't explain whether these figures are based on the federal government's quotations or whether they are based on the international market figures."

"They keep bouncing around and it's very hard to tell where the figures come from" he said.

With tie level at 95¾ cents this morning, one local spokesman suggested "that speculators or anyone else buying American funds should hold off for a few days until the market settles." However, speculation was light, he said.

"Usually the fluctuation between the banks buying and selling price moves no more than ¾ of one per cent, but at this time, it is 1¼ per cent."

"Tomorrow it will be different again, and won't settle for three or four days, if not longer," he concluded.

Hotel Permit Issued

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville city council yesterday gave approval to a recommendation to supply water to Thurlow Township and in so doing cleared the way for the construction of the proposed $1,500,000 Holiday Inn project north of Highway 401.

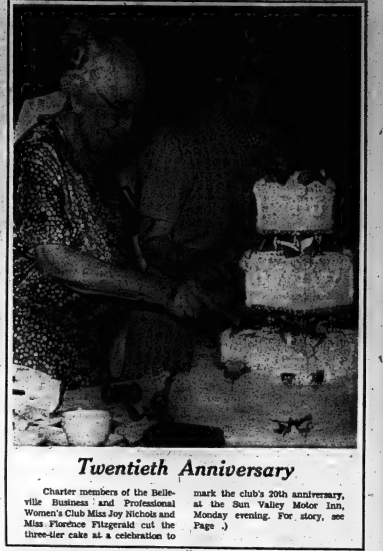
The recommendation authorizing the sale of water to the township is subject to seven conditions, one being that the service will not be given until the city's new addition to the water filtration plant is in operation — hopefully by June of next year.

The proposed four-storey Holiday Inn project will have 122 units with parking space for 261 cars. A convention hall for 500 people will be included.

The building permit for the new motor hotel has already been taken out and it is reported the owner is prepared to take up land purchase options within a week after receipt of official noutication that the city is prepared to supply water.

Site of Holiday Inn will be immediately east of the new Gulf Oil service station and restaurant now under construction north of Highway 401 at the Highway 37 intersection.

The seven conditions under which the city would provide water service to the township were drafted May 20 at a joint meeting of city and township officials, along with representatives of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.



At that time one of the

Credit Control Plan Abandoned by Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal plans to impose consumer credit controls were abandoned Monday as no longer necessary in view of Sunday's announcement of a floating exchange rate for the Canadian dollar.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons that the government is reviewing its economic policies in view of higher prevailing exchange rates and will announce further decisions in due course. Some would depend on how high the dollar rises.

U.S. funds, the dollar quickly moved up on international exchange markets to 97.5 cents.

In Washington, the IMF said Canada has undertaken to peg the dollar again when circumstances warrant.

Mr. Benson also said the exchange rate is freed "for the time being" but he and officials refused to indicate where or when they expect it to settle.

Conservatives and New Democrats pressed Mr. Benson for details on accompanying measures and the government's stance.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said the move by itself could have adverse effects on the farm, fishing, petroleum, potash and other exporting industries.

He also accused Mr. Benson of "incredibly bad forecasting" of the economy.

Mr. Benson said the exchange fund will step in to stabilize the market if the dollar rises too sharply.

And reports from Toronto and Montreal Monday said the government, through the Bank of Canada, had moved into the market to stabilize the floating dollar at about four cents above its former pegged rate. Mr. Benson would not confirm this.

In the Commons, Mr. Stanfield said the government "broke its word" to the IMF on a commitment to hold the dollar within one per cent of the 92.5-per-cent peg. Mr. Benson said Canada has a director on the IMF who had kept the body informed of the government's thinking.

He told the Commons Monday however that the freed rate would put sufficient control on the economy to make credit control unnecessary. He also said the rate of price increase has slowed in recent months.

Free $$ Upsets UK

LONDON (CP) — Britain's central banking authorities expressed rising concern today over the free-floating Canadian dollar which has tended to depress the strength of the pound.

"The sooner the Canadian dollar is brought under a fixed rate the better," one banking official commented.

Bankers explained that many commercial dealers were shifting pounds into Canadian dollars in the hope of a quick profit on the exchange rates.

"We are very strong and can meet this situation comfortably for some considerable period," the official said, "but we would be happier if Canada does not wait too long before fixing a new exchange rate."

600-mile Devastation

Peru Death Toll in 40-Second Quake Reaches 1,000

LIMA (AP) — The Peruvian government said today the 600-mile stretch of coastline devastated by a massive earthquake during the weekend. The confirmed death toll passed 1,000, and officials expressed fear that as many as 30,000 may have died.

The quake Sunday afternoon lasted only 40 seconds, but destroyed thousands of buildings and almost totally demolished a number of towns. Pilots of military observation planes reported entire villages "erased from the map" by earth slides or floods from Andean mountain lakes.

Official figures put the number of known dead at 630 in Huaras, 175 miles north of Lima, and at 200 at the port town of Chimbote, some 35 miles to the northwest. Reports from dozens of other Peruvian cities raised the confirmed total of dead to more than 1,000.

Government spokesmen said more than 200,000 persons were homeless. With winter starting in the Andes, there was fear of pneumonia and other illness as sleet and rain plagued those seeking shelter.

Twenty army paratroops from Lima are to be dropped today into Huaras, a city of 22,000 high in the Andes that suffered 95 per cent destruction in the quake. After the paratroops establish communications, more air drops are to deliver provisions, doctors and medical supplies. Huaras then will serve as a centre of relief operations for the surrounding area.

The navy training ship Independencia was sailing today to Chimbote to serve as a hospital ship for that area.

The navy cruiser Bolognesi, which took President Juan Velasco to Chimbote Monday night, was returning to Lima with 300 injured persons.

A battalion of army engineers was en route by road to begin removing rubble from highways and rebuilding bridges. Army communications men were setting up a radio network to replace the ham operators who have been the only communication channel with much of the stricken area.

The government issued a communique Monday night stating that "given the magnitude of the catastrophe, it is estimated that the number of dead and injured is high." But officials were holding down the official death count to avoid panic.

The disaster hit the central and northern reaches of Peru and covered the largest area affected by any Peruvian quake in memory. The area includes 10 states with a population of about 6,000,000.

Officials feared thousands of persons were killed by floods when the quake ripped away natural dikes holding back one or more lakes in the mountains.

An American priest said in a ham broadcast that about 15,000 persons had been killed in Huaras. Another amateur radio operator in Caraz, 45 miles to the northwest, said loss of water had completed the destruction begun by the earthquake the day before. He estimated the dead in Caraz at 2,000.

Vandals Hit Picton Park

PICTON (Staff) — Recreation director Wayne King last night told town councillors what vandals "tiptoeing through the tulips" at the Angus LeHacq Delhi Athletic Field have destroyed recently planted flowerbeds. He reported that two benches in the park have been broken this spring as well.

His remarks prompted councillor Jack Reid to note, "There is an element in our town trying to ruin what council can do for them. It's a terrible thing when they deliberately destroy things."

The councillor added that he is convinced the only way to curb such destructive conduct is by setting an example with a few of the culprits.

Mayor H. J. McFarland observed, "Until the law is enforced what can we do?" The police sometimes work night and day to apprehend these offenders and when they come to court they get a suspended sentence.

He referred specifically to two juveniles who recently took what the mayor described as "enough dynamite to blow up all of Picton" from a storage shed on his property.

Praising the prompt action of the police in the case, the boys the mayor commented that when they appeared in court he understood they received only a warning.

Repeating councillor Bird's remarks, McFarland said, "You are so right. This is serious and something must be done. If a fellow happens to push one of these youngsters and one goes along", he becomes a son of a gun. If a teacher uses the strap today many of the parents disagree." The mayor ended by saying, "Perhaps it's our own fault."

Garry M. Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Gray, 19 First St., Belleville, received his B.A. Sc. in civil engineering from the University of Waterloo May 20, 1970. Garry is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

Councillors Propose Resolutions Committee

If Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott and Alderman E. A. Orr have their way, city council will have a resolutions committee to draft local resolutions and screen outside motions for presentation to council.

Mayor Scott said that as a result of attending the Mayors and Reeves convention in Windsor he had arrived at the conclusion that the city should have such a committee.

He noted that well-worded resolutions had the best chance of being passed at conventions and of winning approval by other municipalities. "If they are not well worded they are simply torn apart," said the mayor.

Alderman Orr, who also attended the Windsor convention, came to the same conclusion and yesterday presented a notice of motion to council calling for the appointment of a resolutions committee.

He assured council he came to his own conclusion without consultation with Mayor Scott.

A second notice of motion presented by Alderman Jean Smith on behalf of Alderman Arthur Keegan calls for the Ontario Water Resources Commission to provide a chemical analysis of the arsenic content in the Moira River and for a similar analysis with respect to fish in Moira Lake.

Alderman Smith presented the notice of motion for Alderman Keegan who left council early to catch a train to London to attend the provincial traffic conference.

Also last night council approved an earlier motion from Alderman Keegan requesting the Ontario Housing Corporation to carry out a survey of need for serviced land for residential purposes in Belleville as well as for senior citizens' housing and low rental housing.

Bruce Downing, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Downing, Belleville, received his honors Bachelor Science degree in geology at Queen's University convocation, May 29. Bruce is a graduate of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and will continue toward his M. Sc. degree.

City Wants Help With Boat Sewage

City council yesterday concurred in a Board of Parks Management recommendation asking the Ontario Government through the OWRC to initiate legislation providing grants to municipalities providing pump - out stations for boats.

The parks board resolution noted that the Ontario Water Resources Commission was asking that municipalities install pump - out stations in order courses to provide pump - out stations to handle sewage from boats.

The parks board resolution noted that the Ontario Water Resources Commission was asking that municipalities install pump - out stations in order courses to provide pump - out stations to handle sewage from boats as a means of combatting pollution.

These wastes must be disposed of through sewer lines, or where no sewer lines exist, by waste collection tanks trucks and then into sewage treatment plants.

The resolution asks that the Ontario government provide assistance grants to help municipalities provide the necessary services.

The resolution will be circulated throughout the province.

Retarded Workshop Support Sought

PICTON (Staff) — A spokesman for the Prince Edward Association for the mentally retarded has successfully petitioned council for moral support of a workshop for adult retardates.

Chairman of the association's adult services committee, Larry Richardson, explained that through ebt facilities of Happy Hours school, the community's retarded children are assisted, but no program is offered for retarded adults.

Mr. Richardson added that if the workshop is built, it would probably be established in Picton.

Contacting minister of health, Thomas Wells, he has learned that possibly Prince Edward County could co-operate with the provincial government in organizing a joint adult workshop.

The petitioner pointed out that three per cent of the population suffers from mental retardation and revealed that a county-wide survey has shown that many retarded adults in this community remain inactive in their homes.

Mr. Richardson described the Sheltered Workshop as a centre providing retarded citizens of the community with a place where they can perform worthwhile tasks under close supervision.

In such a setting persons may learn how to cope with life more successfully and therefore grow more useful to themselves and to those around them. He added that the workshop would create a place where the retarded adult could meet others sharing similar interests and problems.

Financially independent in its workings purely to date, the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded is not seeking monetary aid from council.

Education Board Hooked Into The World's Largest Computer

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Thanks to a benevolent department of education and a data processing company with an idea, Hastings county board of education is now equipped with an electronic brain.

Installed two weeks ago at the heart of the county operation — the old office at 235 Bridge St. East — the brain is now being set up to monitor the board's financial operation.

It is the third such computer hookup installed in the three county board operations as part of a pilot project in new and more efficient methods of handling board financial affairs. It has inspired a new slogan for the Hastings county board — "We're last but we're fast."

The slogan refers to the installing company's aim here: to determine how quickly a board's operation can be tied into a computer and put on a completely operational basis.

The story of the complicated electronic wizardry began with ACT Data Systems in Toronto — a data processing company with an idea for streamlining the new county board's complicated business administration.

ACT evolved a system for hooking the boards up to the world's largest computer, located in Ottawa.

Time — about two to three hours a day — is leased by the Ottawa company to ACT Data Systems, which in turn supervises programming for educational requirements and supervises each board's time on the computer.

The Toronto company chose three county boards in which to institute its system — York, near Toronto, Simcoe in western Ontario and Hastings in the east.

For several months, representatives of the boards met with ACT personnel and worked out a program to handle the requirements of a county board's financial system.

Ian Munro, assistant business administrator with the Hastings board was involved in the project from the beginning — in part because of his experience in computerized business administration with the North York board.

ACT programmed a complete pilot system for handling invoices, month-end statements, general ledger, payroll and personnel records at a yearly cost of $40,000.

There Hastings county's involvement in the pilot project stopped for lack of funds.

But the department of education, which set up the involved accounting methods now required of county boards had an interest in instant availability of financial information and long recall.

The minister of education, under fire in the legislature recently for allegedly letting educational spending get out of control across the province, has as great a need for instant information as the individual board's business personnel here.

He has discouraged on-site computers in board offices on the ground of excessive expense (about $140,000 a year), but manual handling of board finances is under the new department of education system is virtually impossible.

Hence the department of education's acceptance of the proposal that it give a grant to finance hooking up the three boards in the pilot project to the Ottawa computer.

Hastings county's share of the money is $21,000.

Thus the computer hook-up operates at no cost to the county — except for the salary of one terminal operator, who would have been necessary anyway if manual handling of accounts had continued.

Bell Telephone technicians from Kingston installed the hook-up two weeks ago in a room in the board office. Two members of the accounting department operate the terminal two to three hours every morning. After a telephone call ties them in to the computer, they feed it information by typing statements on a machine resembling an electronic typewriter with a few extra buttons.

At present, the two operators are feeding information about the first five months of 1970 operations into the computer's memory bank. The objective is to determine how fast the job can be accomplished and the computer fed enough facts to enable it to answer any financial question it is asked within less than a minute.

For instance, should a trustee ask an awkward question about how much the board has paid this month this year and to whom, a quick call to the computer would produce the answer in seconds, including the amount already paid, the amount outstanding, the number of pencils, and numbers distributed to each school. For good measure, it would also aid the estimated payroll budget for the year, and the amount remaining to be spent.

At the end of July, a committee of the department of education will inspect the operation for acceptance across the province. Everyone associated with the program hopes the department will authorize a complete grant scheme to enable the Hastings operation to continue. If so, payroll and personnel records of both staff and students will be computerized into the computer and the mechanical brain hook-up will be here to stay.

As well as a slogan, Hastings county's new brain has a name — GEMS.

It stands for Generalized Educational Management Systems and is the call word, used in conjunction with this county's special code number to address the Ottawa computer.

It could become a name to be reckoned with in the future of education in Ontario, if, this county would be far from last, and indisputably fast.

GEMS in Action

For the past two weeks, Hastings County board of education has been hooked up with an Ottawa computer which will eventually handle all its financial records. Assistant business administrator Ian Munro, who played a key role in setting up GEMS, Generalized Educational Management Systems, watches terminal operator Mrs. Deanna Day feed information to Ottawa during the two-hour time period leased by the county every morning.

Fame Is The Spur

Picton athlete Paul Cory pays the price of victory as he dusts the trophies he has won recently in long distance running. This weekend he will compete at the All-Ontario track meet in Toronto following two record-breaking wins in Ajax last Friday during the COSSA track meet.

Picton Distance Runner Sets His Sights High

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton athlete Paul Cory combats the loneliness of the long distance runner with a very possible dream. As Canadian sports promoters plan for the 1976 Olympic games in Montreal, this 17-year-old student is completing his first lap in a gruelling six-year training program planned to carry him into international competition.

Paul, who won the Ken Colling trophy in Belleville this month in a record-breaking time of 21.48 minutes over a 4.5-mile course, sped on to shatter two additional long distance records during last Friday's COSSA track meet in Ajax.

By winning his race in the COSSA meet, Paul qualified for the all-Ontario meet to be held at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds in Toronto this weekend.

One of more than 30 runners earning the right to challenge for the title of all-Ontario champion, Paul describes his upcoming race optimistically. "If I get a good position, and if I can get out at the start, I'll do okay," predicts the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute student. Thoughtfully he adds, "This year I've already beaten the first three finishers of last year's race, but it can be like horse racing — you just never know."

Why is Paul Coty on the run? Always a sports enthusiast he won his first trophy for running several years ago while attending the Salvation Army camp at Robin Lake.

In a five year arts and science course at PECI, Paul began to run on the track team in his first year of high school but competed that season without making any outstanding marks. Encouraged by school athletic coach Chris Hewett, former runner for Oregon State University, Paul continued to practise and discovered hit-efforts paying off in trophies the following year.

With each win he developed an increasing enthusiasm to become a distance runner. Distance runner .Setting up a rigid training schedule this winter Paul ran more than 100 miles a week in February. Hitting the road at 6.30 a.m. he ran an hour each day before classes. To increase his endurance he ran another 60 minutes at the close of his school day. "It is lonely when you run 10 or 15 practice miles and you think a lot. Not about girls or school but about running. You ask yourself what your training is doing for you and wonder if it will take you to the top some day," says Paul.

Describing himself as an average student the young athlete hopes to win a scholarship to Oregon State University where he would have an opportunity to join a track team. "I have done a lot of long distance training and I'm convinced I'm a long distance man. Sprinting is for speed and for the long race a runner needs endurance," notes Paul assessing his strong points.

"I like anything over a mile, it's just the right amount of distance for me to run without tiring too quickly. I find a pace when I'm racing and I try to hold it, pulling away at the end. If you can't pull ahead in the middle of a race you try to make it at the finish — it's the middle that bothers a lot of guys."

How does Paul feel when he crosses the finish line following a hard race? "If I'm out fresh I feel fine," says Paul with a grin.

All season Paul Cory has managed to keep out front, finishing his races in record making time. This weekend's race represents his biggest challenge of the season and he confesses that he worries with every race.

"It's a win or lose worry," he confides honestly, "but now I'm thinking more about June."

The loneliness of the long distance runner, it seems, lies between races as he waits, considering the competition or in the hours spent in jogging practice sessions. On the track, for Paul there is no loneliness, just the magic speed propelling him across the finish line where a crowd always waits.

Fire Inspections Start Next Week

Although vacation time for some people has arrived, fire and fire inspectors do not take vacations.

Belleville Fire Inspectors Paul Stephenson and Reginald Christopher will be hard at work next week when they once more take to the city streets to inspect buildings for potential fire hazards.

Mr. Stephenson explained that the objectives of a fire department are to reduce loss of life and property from fire in Ra community.

And it is with the utmost seriousness that the inspections will begin next Monday.

"Statistics prove that fire ranks second in causing home accident deaths," Mr. Stephenson said." Approximately 80 per cent of all fire deaths happen at home and 50 per cent of these deaths are children.

"One statistic that is very shocking," Mr. Stephenson said, "is the yearly property loss per person in European countries. It is approximately 33 cents per person where as in Canada it is approximately $7 per person.

"This makes us one of the highest fire loss countries in the world and that figure does not include forest fires."

With all this in mind, the Belleville Fire Department is undertaking an in-service home inspection program. The inspections will start Monday, June 8 in three main areas of the city.

The first area covered will be that bounded by Boswell Street on the west, the CNR tracks on the north and East Moira Street on the east.

The inspectors will also cover an area bounded by North Front Street on the west, the CNR tracks on the south, East Moira Street on the east and the city limits on the north and an area bounded by College Street west of North Front, Park Dale to the city limits and West Park Village.

Two men, equipped with a radio-controlled truck will be dispatched for each inspection.

All inspections are strictly voluntary and citizens may call the fire department to get their residence inspected. The inspectors will be concentrating on basement areas, garages and yards, but homes will be done if requested.

All inspections will be confidential and" hazards will be pointed out to the occupants.

Ontario House Now Occupied

TRENTON (Staff) — Ontario House has received its first occupants.

Fourteen members of the Hastings-Prince Edward regional assessment office — the vanguard of a staff totalling 50 — moved into unfinished temporary headquarters in the brick structure Monday.

Today a drop ceiling will be placed in the temporary headquarters and the farm valuation section of the regional assessment office will begin operations in their new Division Street home.

The walls will be finished at a later date' as workmen now concentrate on completing the remainder of the first floor office and the exterior of the brick structure in preparation for the July 1 arrival of the remainder of the assessment staff.

"It's not finished, but it's adequate," said farm valuation manager Clarence, Bird. "We're very happy to get in here because the temporary headquarters on Quinte Street were overcrowded." he explained,

While the moving was in progress Monday, workmen were busy tarring the roof and bringing the two-storey building (which also has a basement) nearer to completion.

When it is completed, Ontario House will be the home of several businesses in addition to the regional assessment office.

Set Up Committee

SYDNEY MINES, N.S. (CP) — Students of 30 provincial high schools have formed a co-ordinating committee to maintain communication in any of their schools. The move was made at a meeting here and the committee is organizing a follow-up conference this fall. Part of the year is to be spent preparing a brief on improved curriculum changes for the provincial education department. The department has said it will take the students' views into consideration.

Board to Rent 15 Portables

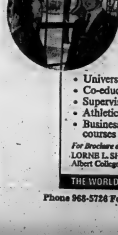
portable classrooms will continue to be a feature of the school landscape for some time to come as Hastings county board of education decided last night to rent another 15 for next year.

Seven of the rented portables will go to secondary schools throughout the county and the remaining eight will go to elementary schools.

The board decided shile year to rent the portables for about $3,000 a year instead of buying them for four or five times the amount.

Trustees see the portable demand as temporary with the school populations fluctuating, and expected to decrease dramatically in some grades and areas over the next few years.



At the same special meeting last night, the board accepted final architects' drawings for Bayside Secondary School and will go to tender on the building June 15. Tenders are expected to close July 14.

In Their Debt

Communities such as Bancroft and surrounding areas owe an incalculable debt to their local hospital.

We have no statistics indicating just how many hospitals of this size are operating in Canada, but while they are likely numerous it is doubtful if they are anywhere near sufficient to deal with the needs of all the population. Health Minister Munro was made sharply aware of this when he toured Indian communities out west earlier this year, and he indicated at the time that he would try to remedy the situation.

Nursing stations serve a vital need in such areas where there is no hospital close at hand. However, there is no substitute for the hospital itself, not only for treatment of emergency cases but for patients in need of long-term care.

In Bancroft the Red Cross is reported to be anxious to relinquish operation of the hospital, but as pointed out last week it could continue under the jurisdiction of Belleville General Hospital. The matter came under discussion by hospital governors here in the course of a study project involving all Quinte-area hospitals.

Across Canada hospitals, large or small, are keepers for the sick and the maimed. Lives depend on them. Such a hospital is the one which serves Bancroft and surrounding area; this facility should be maintained and there seems no doubt that it will.

UN Soldiers On

For all its weaknesses, the United Nations still soldiers on, 25 years after its establishment.

And Burma's U Thant, as Secretary-General, carries on with the same sense of mission and vitality as his predecessors Trygve Lie of Norway and Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden.

Peacekeeping by military forces of the UN, the inspiration of former Prime Minister Pearson and first tried out following the Suez crisis of 1957, has enjoyed mixed success. The Gaza Strip in Egypt, the former Belgian Congo and Cyprus to this day, have all seen UN troops from such widely-assorted armies as those of Canada, Finland, Norway, Sweden and Ireland.

In recent days U Thant has called for the establishment of a permanent UN military peacekeeping force. We fear this is something of a pipe dream, for the UN is plagued by money problems and the fact that the Soviet Union has never reacted with any favor to such a force, let alone contributed to its upkeep.

It is an ideal in a world not greatly given to idealism or lengthy periods of peace. Would it work, even if member countries could afford it? Admittedly it has functioned to some degree in the areas mentioned, but a permanent force might present more difficulties. There would be language problems, possibly friction among the various national units. Better yet that the world heed another suggestion of U Thant's that members obey rulings of the World Court. And while they are at it they might also heed the rulings of the Security Council with regard to such brushfire wars that are taking place at any given time.

A Discriminatory Notion

Discrimination is the same whether it is leveled against the rich or the poor. For example it would be discriminatory against people who are wealthy to take from them the monthly family allowance and give it to those in greater need.

Yet that is what Ontario Minister of Social and Family Services Minister John Yaremko would like to see done. He told the Senate poverty committee that about 80 per cent of the $616,000,000 Ottawa spends nationally on family allowances goes to middle and upper-class families. Ontario's $216,000,000 share, he said, could be redistributed by the province to people who are described as "meaningful benefits to the poor and near-poor."

It is the old Robin Hood theory of robbing the rich to help the poor — in a word, socialism, and we have enough of that in our latter-day legislation as it is. It would mean further perpetuation of the bureaucracy, that is jobs to administer it, and a hopeless task of sorting out who should benefit and who should not. Mr. Yaremko's plan, we believe, would be as unworkable as it would be discriminatory.

Mackasey Gets Once-Over from His Own Hatchet Men

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Three of Prime Minister Trudeau's bright young Cabinet swingers are sitting around these days in the Commons with pie on their faces.

Latest to wear the custard-cream makeup happens to be Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

He has just taken it, all over his jovial Irish puss from, of all unlikely pie-tossers, the federal government's own Labor Gazette.

This is the same Gazette which happens to be the house organ of Mr. Mackasey's own Department of Labor.

Right on the back cover it proclaims itself proudly as "The Official Journal" of the department, published under the authority of "Honorable Bryce Mackasey, Minister."

So what has the dear old Gazette been doing?

Socking it to Publisher Mackasey as a showoff, running around the country settling labor disputes and doing a lot of people more harm than good.

There it is, in the May edition of The Gazette, setting him have it in these impossible-to-misunderstand words:

"We look around and what do we see?

"Rapidly rising prices with high unemployment.

"Incredibly high interest rates, tight money with no relief in sight, and an economy that has for some months been growing at much less than potential.

"Looking around further we see wage-rate increases that are wildly in excess of productivity increases, and price increases following wage increases."

Right at this point, Bryce Mackasey personally takes it right on the nose and between the eyes for "not telling it the way it is," and like most other official "government" "authorities," confusing more than informing people.

"The Minister of Labor should stop congratulating himself on achieving wage settlements that have a strong inflationary content, and should raise publicly the possibility that some settlements, by necessitating strong monetary restraint (high interest, tight money, credit restrictions) might actually hurt other workers."

So how does Labor Minister Mackasey like scraping this Labor Gazette-tossed pie off his face?

To mix metaphors, he says: "It is like water running off a duck's back."

He simply refuses to be embarrassed as Labor Minister even by his own departmental magazine.

So many of his Cabinet colleagues in the Commons, where the Opposition sat chuckling over it, obligingly felt embarrassed for him.

Next to catch the pie face-on was Consumer Affairs Minister Basford.

He came hop-skipping into the Commons to jump on the 11,000 members of the Ontario Medical Association and missed them by a whole year.

Now, even for a swinging Trudeau Cabinet sport, that has to be something of a record.

Somebody told Don Basford that the Association was raising medical fees nearly five percent, and he blew his stack right there in the Commons. He would call out Dr. John Young and his Prices and Incomes Commission to block it, he promised. It was just too irresponsible of the medical men so soon to break their gentlemen's agreement with the government not to raise fees this year.

Then, oops, too late somebody else told him he was getting all mixed up, that the increase was not coming until next year, in June, 1971.

And when it came to irresponsibility, backing the Ontario Medical Association, could you top the government, and its Consumer Affairs Minister in not knowing one year from another, much less what they were talking about?

What had happened was that Ron Basford had come racing in from the airport on arrival from Vancouver, galloped straight to the Commons, asking on the way "Who is going to be the somebody had bonked with the misinformation on the medical men. "Okay," Hon. Basford had rapped, "I'll fix 'em!" — and instead, fixed himself.

Finally, up to his ears, almost frustrated, in his Health Ministry office, There he was weeping tears which turned out to have such a high crocodile content about the "plight of the poor pensioners," and then right away voting against even a small token interim increase in their pittance.

And to round out his incredibility after two and-one-half years of railing against the "evils of tobacco" — but out of pot — confessing he is still a two-pack-a-day addict.

UK Feels Backlash of Wall Street Unrest

LONDON (CP) — Wall Street's convulsions undoubtedly will throw a transatlantic shadow across the British general election campaign.

It is too early to figure how the New York toboggan ride—interrupted by a substantial gain Wednesday—will affect British politics, but already some signs are evident.

The first, of course, is that Wall Street has had a depressing effect on the London stock market. In a time of political tenterhooks, this could easily have a bearing on votes.

The Conservatives like to think that the onset of a Tory government would lend stability to the market and, as perhaps a corollary, to the British economy.

The Labor government of Harold Wilson, on the other hand, has always proclaimed: "Labor is good for the market."

At the moment, Labor is not doing much for or against the market which seems to be tied to the tail of the New York bear.

Some commentators suggest that the financial heart of London, The City, has lost faith in the Labor administration, especially since galloping inflation has gripped Britain. This is simple an explanation.

Wilson's chancellor of the exchequer, Roy Jenkins, actually has brought the country off the canvas in the last couple of years, largely through Draconian tax measures. The pound is relatively strong and the balance of international payments — a barometer of the economy — also is going well.

However, there is no doubt that there is a medium-term apprehension in the financial community about sterling and the balance of payments holding up. This is a secondary factor—the first is Wall Street—and is partly tied to the election.

The City mistrusts the Socialists—if only because they have tightened up on a lot of laissez-faire practices—and would feel more at ease with a conventional Tory administration.

And it got some reassuring words this week from Conservative leader Edward Heath as he made public his party's election manifesto.

Heath delivered a strong promise to combat inflation—which may be interpreted broadly as putting a curb on runaway wages—and to produce measures that would counteract a bad international economic situation such as that generated in New York.

But how the Wall Street nosedive and its effect on London prices will affect the voting is highly problematical.

Some figure the British inclination to stick with the government in power during time of trouble will help Labor.

Others say that if the market slide gets disastrous in London, there will be an inclination to blame the governing party and switch to the Tories.

All in all, the betting on the market effects in one direction or another is no safer than putting your money on a Wall Street stock.

Many Are Not Citizens

Edmonton Journal

Of the three million post-war immigrants to Canada one-third — although eligible — have not taken out citizenship.

The federal minister responsible for citizenship and immigration, Robert Stanbury, does not know why. He "would like very much to have the answer" presumably to find a remedy to "a not particularly healthy situation."

A survey of these one-million alien residents, possibly in connection with the next census, should provide enough of a bench mark for remedial action, it seems, allowing for very elderly immigrants coming with their children, a high percentage.

Most of the one million immigrants would probably be reluctant to give up their original citizenship, even though it is apparently no longer necessary to renounce allegiance to the British crown to become a citizen of Canada.

The remainder should be told that they would have to reapply periodically for permission to stay in this country. This would probably be too much trouble for most to bother about them to apply for citizenship, too.

People from other lands who have consciously adopted Canada as their and their children's new homeland must really make this choice by becoming citizens and assuming all rights and privileges which go with it. The waiting period, incidentally, should be lowered from the present five to three years, as Mr. Stanbury suggested.

Business Leaders Reassured...But

U.S. Needs More Than Presidential Pep Talk

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon diverted his attention Wednesday night from the battlefronts of the Middle East and Indochina to try to bolster the sagging economic front with a private dinner and pep talk for United States business and financial leaders.

While all indications are that the gentlemen had a pleasant meal, financial sources here indicate that the longest and deepest bearish market decline since the stock market crash of 1929 is a severe case of market indigestion that one dose of medicine is not going to cure.

The Wall Street malaise, despite the record-breaking one-day gain Wednesday in anticipation of Nixon's dinner, is no long-standing, they say, to be wiped out by one presidential talk.

While press coverage of the three-hour meeting was banned, interviews with businessmen following the dinner indicated that Nixon's talk, although offering nothing new, was well-received.

"He did a fine job of explaining a lot of things that might have puzzled some people before," said one New York financier. "Any time you hear things you have read in the papers directly from the president of the U.S., you're a little more impressed."

Nixon, the businessmen said, reassured them that "everything is on target and going better than expected" in Cambodia, and reiterated the administration's forecast that the economy will turn upward in the second half of the year.

Despite the glowing reports, however, one high-ranking administration official has been quoted as saying the stocks and bonds market will not be stable until Nixon can prove that his strategy for ending even the war in Indochina is working.

"This is a Cambodian market," he said.

He said that despite the record-breaking rally Wednesday, continuing concern about the war will keep markets in a nervous state and make it difficult to mount a bull market.

If all U.S. troops pull out of Cambodia by the end of June as planned, and if the withdrawal persuades investors that Nixon's Indochina policy is succeeding, he said, the revival of confidence should strengthen the markets.

While the Cambodia issue must be considered one of the main influences on the depressed market, two others have raised psychological doubts about investors as to this country's ability to handle its problems.

There has been widespread lack of confidence, especially in recent weeks, that the president can control inflation without bringing on a severe recession, or that he can narrow the divisions across the country now pep brought about by racial strife and the Vietnam war.

As the W ashington Evening Star says:

"What the market needs, in addition to the encouraging presidential words, is some really good news about the economy, the world and troubled American nation."

Hastings County Students Learn to Look as Well as See

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Almost everyone can see, but you have to be taught to look.

And learning to look, to observe the world around them, has become almost as important a subject for Hastings county school children as the three Rs.

A case in point was the geography - geology field trip taken by Centre Hastings elementary school pupils to Bancroft.

It served a further purpose — integration of pupils from different areas of the county's elongated school jurisdiction.

The expedition began at Stirling, where the elementary school camera club and selected students climbed aboard a school bus. More pupils and teachers were picked up en route at Marmora, Madoc and Bancroft Public School, until 75 people were sitting three to a seat on the bus as it began its ascent of the Eagle's Nest at Bancroft.

Pupils were issued a list of questions, designed to make them look at and consider the scenes they saw through the bus windows. Teachers prompted them along the way, and expanded on the answers they found to the questions.

Make a list of man - made resources.

An enterprising youngster pointed out the first one — Skirling's liquor store.

Note types of specialized farming.

Try to estimate by percentages the amount of land in scrub, cultivation, woodlot, orchard, swamp.

Point out an example of a drumlin, an esker.

The bus stopped at Springbrook, where the pupils inspected a grist mill owned by G. A. Fleming and powered by a one cylinder diesel engine.

How does the pulley system increase the revolutions per minute from about 300 to 2,-200?

On Highway 7 between Marmora and Madoc the bus stopped at the Deed Swamp, while a teacher explained the absence of vegetation.

Leaching of arsenic from the slag heap of the mine at Deloro has killed off all the plant life on the small tributary of the Moira River that crosses the highway at that point.

It was time for a Marmora boy to tell his favorite "city slicker" tale and give a dramatic lesson in pollution.

A Toronto woman, he recounted, gathered bushels of the rich, black swamp muck for fertilizer for her city garden. It killed all her flowers.

At Madoc the bus took aboard a "resource person" Harry Roscoe, a mining engineer and retired former manager of Madoc Talc Mine. He has made his services available on a consulting basis to groups of school children since his retirement. He came equipped with a prospector's pack containing his home - made Geiger counter. Made from an old tin bandage can for about $15, it proved the bit of the trip as pupils clambered to borrow it and listen to it click its way across the north Hastings hills.

One little girl even claimed to have a radioactive heart — until her principal pointed out the souvenir rock specimen she was carrying in her pocket.

At Bancroft's Centennial Park on the top of the Eagle's Nest the children got their first close look at the bedrock of the Laurentian Shield and the glacier-carved valley below.

Why has the York River so many curves and loops? Can I borrow the Gleiger counter? What time's recess at your school? Can you wear slacks to school? Can I borrow the Geiger counter? Listen, this rock's radioactive — can you chip off a piece for me? How come, if this rock's got iron ore, you can't pick it up with a magnet? How do you make a magnet?

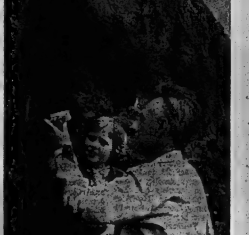
And so on, until lunch at the public school, prepared and served by the senior Bancroft students.

In the afternoon the pupils split into groups for varied activities. Some stayed at the public school for athletic events: others competed in a complete round robin ball and floor hockey tournament at the high school.

The camera club members, under the direction of former professional photographer Gary Stevenson, principal of Bancroft Public School, set off to record a picture story of the district.

They visited two abandoned mines and clambered over rock cuts above roads, learning to identify rocks and shooting film to record the experience.

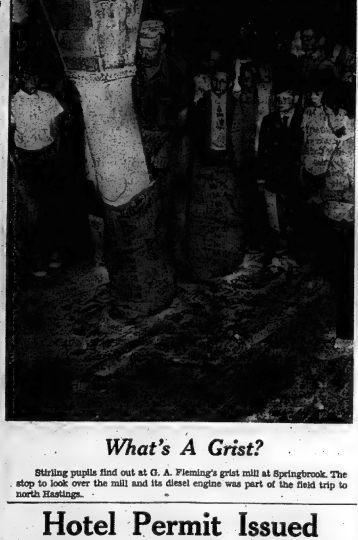
But the Geiger counter got a bigger workout than the cameras. It packed up just about the time the children did — with exhaustion — and it was time to return to the bus for the ride home.



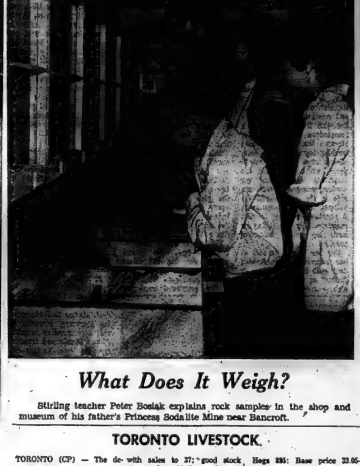
It was a long day for staff and pupils — and it will extend for another week or so, as field trip experiences are reviewed in the classroom.

Fall and spring are field trip seasons in Hastings County and buses leave the schools almost every day on trips to places as faraway as Mexico and as close as the neighborhood fire station.

Hastings County board of education provides about $1 a pupil each year for excursion transportation. Each school principal allocates the money within his school, but it never stretches to cover all the activities the staff would like pupils to take part in.



Money raising ventures are ganized by the pupils themselves provide the remainder of the money needed for field trips.



One of the side-effects of field trips is the exchange of information among teachers on money - raising schemes. Comparing notes on the success of fund drives in different parts of the county fills in the lulls in the long bus rides, and ensures that the yellow buses will be on the road until the summer recess — filled with eager youngsters learning to look.

Listen, It's Radioactive!

Geologist Harry Roscoe of Madoc shared his knowledge with the pupils as he explained rock formation and helped them look for radioactive rocks with the aid of his homemade Gieger counter.

What Does It Weigh?

Stirling teacher Peter Boslak explains rock samples in the shop and museum of his father's Princess Soda lite mine near Bancroft.

What's This?

Mr. Roscoe helps a pupil find radioactive rocks on a cliff face near Bancroft.

What's A Grist?

Stirling pupils find out at G. A. Fleming's grist mill at Springbrook. The stop to look over the mill and its diesel engine was part of the field trip to north Hastings.

Hotel Permit Issued

conditions outlined was that the water service would not be provided until the extension of city's sewage disposal plant was also in operation.

This condition was amended by Alderman Enos David who said that Holiday Inn was prepared to install its own septic tank.

In view of this, Ald. David said he couldn't see the point in tying Holiday Inn down to completion of the city's sewage plant addition and the construction of the Moira River sewer to Highway 401.

He said the motel would be a big asset to the community and would provide many jobs.

A requirement of Ald. David's amendment is that Holiday Inn will be required to hook up with the proposed "up the river" sanitary sewer when it is completed.

Council was told that the primary phase of the city sewage plant addition would be completed by June 1971, and the new filtration plant addition at about the same date.

Plans call for completion of the Holiday Inn at about the same time.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the "up the river" sanitary sewer would be completed to Adam street by June of next year. However, he had no information as to when the extension into Thurlow township would be ready.

Ald. Gerald Joyce said that Holiday Inn normally did not construct motels in cities of under 50,000 but in the case of Belleville it was hoped there would be considerable business from Highway 401.

Belleville, he said, would receive much publicity from the project.

"Council would look awfully silly . . . if it doesn't approve the water service", he said.

He said the decision had to be made, otherwise the Belleville area would lose a facility that was badly needed.

Ald. Arthur Keegan wanted the original condition of no service until the sewage plant addition was completed to stand.

Otherwise, he claimed there would be danger of river pollution.

However, when it was pointed out that Holiday Inn was prepared to instal a septic tank to the satisfaction of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, he withdrew his objection and the amended recommendation was passed unanimously by council.

A Greeting on Arrival

Guest Mrs. Ruth Follwell and member Mrs. Shirley Woodcox stop to chat with guest speaker Mrs. Margaret E. Ashdown, nationals president, prior to Monday evening's celebrations of the 20th anniversary of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville, at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

B and P Club Marks 20th Birthday

By ALLISON STICKLE
Women's Editor

"Faith is essential to move forward; for is have faith in to have wings", stated Mrs. Margaret E. Ashdown national president of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs as the addressed members of the local club and guests, Monday evening, at Sun Valley. The occasion marked the 20th anniversary of the Belleville B and P Women's Club.

In her opening remarks Mrs. Ashdown congratulated the club 6n its 20th birthday and expressed "joy of meeting with the members — a tremendous privilege". She stressed that it was women working together for women, in this case for the past 20 years, which had lifted the standards and status for working women, which in turn aids in the growth and development of the community. A personal growing is also maintained by the taking on leadership which belonging provides.

For the main portion of her address, Mrs. Ashdown dealt with the topic "Code of Ethics" or the Creed of this club, a moving and inspirational prayer also used by many other women's groups, specifically, the Mary Stewart Collect. She -primarily dealt with its origin written by a young woman of 22 years, whose chief interest was civic betterment, especially for women.

In turn she dealt with each maxim and how it applied in every day living. She stated "Bear with the faults of others. Life is too short to be vengeful. Each has gifts of time and talents with the same number of hours per day with which to chart a course."

In conclusion, the speaker noted "We must learn to communicate with one another, it is the human touch that counts."

Mrs. Ashdown was introduced by Shirley Woodcox and thanked by Charlotte Lockyer, who also presented her with a gift on behalf of the club and guests from many centres including a former president Mildred Scarrett who now resides in Chula Vista, California.

Head table guests were introduced by Nettie Brown and these included Sam Score, husband of the provincial president; Ross McMullen, provincial treasurer; Jessie Rogers, regional advisor; Miss Jean Stephenson, president elect; Joy Nichols, first president; Barbara Cameron, Cobourg president elect; Shirley Woodcox, ways and means chairman; Margaret E. Ashdown, national president; Dorothy Ellis, past provicial president; Isobel McLellan, chairman of the national committee of publicity and public relations; Charlotte Lockyer, public affairs chairman; Florence Fitzgerald, past president; Peggy Wood, chairman of publicity and public relations; Hazel Smith, telephone committee chairman and Lil Jordan, pianist.

Throughout the evening a number of presentations were made, but perhaps the most touching and significant was the presentation of paid up life membership scrolls to Joy Nichols and Florence Fitzgerald by club president Dorothy Ellis, who previous to the address had warmly greeted everyone present.

In an impressive candlelighting installation ceremony Kay Score, provincial president installed the new executive including: president, Jean Stephenson; 1st vice-president, Lois Brown; 2nd vice-president, Marion McFaul; recording secretary, Marcella David; corresponding secretary, Allison Stickle and treasurer, Colombe Both. Various committee chairmen were also introduced.

At intervals during the celebration a number of draws were made and the winners were: Mrs. R. Cecile, Mrs. Bernice Asselstine, Miss Hazel Smith, Myrtle Cross, Mrs. Gloria McNeil, Mary Broadbent, Verna Nelson, Mrs. Ruth Follwell, Jean White and Joan Bellamy.

Guests and members were entertained at the home of Dorothy Brown, 16 Nora Street following the event.

Babysitters' Guide Now Available

TORONTO (CP) — A guide for baby-sitters has been produced by Ontario's social and family services department.

Copies will be sent to schools, churches and youth organizations for distribution to teen-agers.

The guide offers sitters sensible advice to make the job as smooth and safe as possible.

It tells sitters to make out an information card showing where the parents can be reached, someone else who might be called and emergency phone numbers.

They would know in advance how many children there are and how old they are, and should meet them ahead of time if possible.

It suggests getting written instructions on bedtime and snacks.

A good sitter is on time, waits to be invited to use radio or television, finds out where the children's rooms are, where light switches are and how the stove works.

She brings her own snacks and something to do, cleans up after herself and does not tie up the phone.

She stays awake, even if the children are asleep, and checks every door on the children and on the security of the house.

The book explains how to change a baby and what to do if he cries.

"The most common cause of crying is an empty stomach," it says.

Women Not Keeping Pace: Researcher

SASKATOON (CP) — In education, women are not keeping pace with men because they do not have as strong a commitment, says Barbara Miller, who has just finished a year's research on the role of women through the University of Saskatchewan extension department.

"For all there has been a dramatic growth of members of women's guild to college, 9 per cent are dropouts after two years," she told a meeting of a women's return-to-learning committee.

Mrs. Miller said there are three main areas of concern for women: education, marital status and age.

"Educational institutions do not make provisions for women's special problems—supporting a student-husband, raising a family, need for day care centres — so they are discouraged both from specializing or from going on with their studies."

Women worry about being failures but they also worry about being successful, she said. This is because of the myth that success means loss of femininity.

Even before girls go to school they are taught to be unaggressive, compliant and undetermined, Mrs. Miller said. They are rewarded when they conform and frowned upon when they don't.

This forever inhibits them and sets up sentences which compound their efforts when they try to take part in activities outside the home, she said.

The return-to-learning committee was formed a year ago to help women desiring further education to find out what they needed, where to get it and how to manage their home situation.

Successful Living
Evil Spirits Blamed for Illness

By DORIS CLARK

Those were when mental illness was blamed on evil spirits. Victims were flogged to within an inch of their lives to make them better.

Then during the 18th century a few people with some Christian warmth and some basic belief in people had the temerity to bring about the kind demented up from their dank dungeons and into the sunlight. With loving care, symptoms diminished and, surprisingly, mental balance returned. Still we have with us some remains of suspicion, superstition, stigma, attached to the mentally ill. It does seem we provide all the stresses and strains which can plague the human system, then are surprised when we witness nervous breakdowns.

Anyway, we've wiped out the evil spirit theory. Mental illness has definite causes, some of them partly physical; it is being treated and cured every day of the week.

Dear Doris: Our sons work for their dad, farming. The only money they get is from their own cattle which they sell in the fall. The son who lives at home is 24, and his dad doesn't like him to go out and meet girls. What is wrong with my husband?

Last fall the boys each bought a ski-doo. Now their dad wants them to sell their ski-doos and put the money into the farm. I don't think it's fair. Everybody feels sorry for our area. Their dad is so cranky that it's nerve wracking for me. Really Worried.

Dear Really Worried: What kind of a father robs his sons of the right to live their own lives? He has spoiled your younger son's opportunities to meet a marriage partner; has derided him at the very things that he has enjoyed himself.

He has played the tyrant too long. Better all join forces and stand up to him. Tell him in no uncertain terms that he must pay a steady, living wage and give the boys shares in the farm, or they'll look for other work. Stick together.

"This is the type of shock treatment a tyrant needs to bring him to his senses!

Dear Doris: I have gained in knowledge and a broader scope of understanding in human nature by reading your column.

Now, as I get older — flowering about 75 — and find others who have been helped in tracing old poems, would like help in getting two I had long ago and lost.

One began:

"Backward, turn backward, oh time in your flight,
Make me a child again just for tonight."

The answer began:

"Backward? nay, onward, oh time in your flight."
— Poem Seeker.

Dear Seeker: The first is entitled "Rock Me To Sleep" and is by Elizabeth Akers Allen. The second we just can't find. Could a reader help?

If this is not possible then it must be verified by a blood relative. The initiation fee must be sent to meetings and on each occasion at all time. The beret is to be worn to all meetings as well. There will be no voting or installations by proxy.

It was decided to sell draw tickets to help meet convention expenses and the tickets will be sent to each auxiliary by provincial command. This year the convention will be held in Niagara Falls.

Sports were discussed and Comrade Achenbourg pointed out that one should not forget the past but remember the sacrifices that were made. One should become more aware of Armistice Day, November 11. Members were requested to sacrifice in order to help the youth of the community in any way possible.

The question box was closed and several questions answered. For those not in attendance one point was clearly set forth. An auxiliary member is permitted to go into any dining lounge in full uniform.

It is not a place to drink but a place to eat.

Comrade Rashotte was returned to the office of zone commander by acclamation. Comrade Achenburg conducted the installation for the first time at the zone rally. In other words Comrade Rashotte was carried out at the convention, Comrade Rashotte took her vows of office and promised to continue the work of the organization to the best of her ability.

It was decided to hold the next rally in Picton and in the future each branch will take its turn.

Gifts were presented to Comrade Theresa Achenburg, Dorothy Rashotte, Kathy Fraser and Agnes Bradley for their efforts in the past year. Gifts were also then closed by Comrade Agnes Bradley.

After a short intermission, the banner was formed and a wreath was laid at the cenotaph by Comrade Achenburg while Comrades Bradley and zone commander Rashotte as escorts.

The banquet was held in Centre Hastings Secondary School and closed by Mrs. Kincaid of Madoc. Guest speaker was past zone commander Sgt. Ray Dowe of the Madoc detachment of the OPP. A social evening and dance were held in the Madoc Legion Hall bringing to a close the zone rally.

Reader Says Column Reflects Many Changes

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Everything in the world is changing and your column is a faithful reflection of those changes. So why don't you say something about society's unfair criticism of the married man who is forced to seek the warmth and companionship of someone other than his wife?

I was a faithful husband of 11 years. One evening it dawned on me that my wife had, in the space of a single hour, complained that I blew my nose too hard and looked "very old" in my new glasses. She criticized my table manners, my posture and the grammar of the girl who runs my office switchboard. And then she lectured me for 36 minutes because I didn't pay enough attention to her at a family dinner.

ANN LANDERS

I was a faithful husband of 11 years. One evening it dawned on me that my wife had, in the space of a single hour, complained that I blew my nose too hard and looked "very old" in my new glasses. She criticized my table manners, my posture and the grammar of the girl who runs my office switchboard. And then she lectured me for 36 minutes because I didn't pay enough attention to her at a family dinner.

I'm very sorry to have responded in a most natural way to the kindness and tenderness of the first woman who spoke to me — my secretary. For the past several months we have enjoyed a wonderful, warm relationship. It makes me feel like a man — something my wife never did. I am happy in her presence, yet there are very few places we can go because of unfair, unrealistic social rules set up by society. I cannot divorce my wife because her father owns the business. Emotionally however, I left her long ago. There's a lesson here. I hope those who need it get it. — COLOR ME GONE.

DEAR MR. GREAT-HEART: No point in trying to reach you since you're Gone. To others who are still around and having similar problems, I suggest that you verbalize those feelings about your wife to her not to me — and make an attempt to heal your sick marriage. Or should I color you yellow?

* — * — *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a homosexual who is considering professional help. I have heard from several friends that psychiatry is a waste of time and money. A young man with whom I work told me he had nearly ten years of therapy but it didn't help him become the heterosexual person he wanted to be. Others in my group have told the same thing.

I have read several books on homosexuality and I am aware that the basic personality pattern of an inindividual is set by the time he is five years old. If this is true, what chance has a homo in his early 20's of turning straight?

Has anyone ever made the switch through psychiatry or psychoanalysis? Most of us will be watching your reply with interest. — STRAIGHT TALK.

DEAR T.: The number of homosexuals who have been made heterosexual through therapy is not impressive. The most optimistic estimate is under four per cent. And in this group are those who were not true homosexuals in the classic sense.

I recommend therapy for homosexuals who ask for counsel — not because I believe it will change them, but because it might help them handle other personality disorders which often accompany homosexuality. Therapy can help the homosexual accept himself as he is. It can also relieve him of the anxiety and bitterness which often makes his life unbearable.

A 'Yummy' Party Dessert

By MARY MOORE

Here is one of those yummy party desserts that will serve 10 people. Read on. It requires no cooking and it is ideal for the girls who have to make preparations the evening before the party. Indeed it must be prepared in advance. Jackie B. serves it to her bridge club and it is a perennial favorite for the girls know what is coming and love it. It do is 2 cups sifted Dr. REFRIGERATOR TORTE (Serves 16)

One chocolate, or orange or lemon chiffon cake (bought from supermarket bakery for 59¢ or 69¢)
½ lb. butter (fairly cold)
2 cups unsifted icing sugar (first amount)
¼ tsp. salt
2 eggs — yolks and whites separated
2 oz. (squares) unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 tsp. vanilla
¼ cup strong brewed coffee (or 1 tbsp. instant coffee dissolved in 3 tbsps. boiling water)
½ pt. 32 per cent (whipping) cream
2 tbsps. icing sugar (second amount)

1 tsp. vanilla

1 small bar milk chocolate (for shaving over top)

Into heater bowl measure butter, icing sugar (first amount) and salt. (Break up butter with a spoon and it is roughly with the sugar to prevent sugar flying all over the counter when you turn the power on.) Now beat until creamy and light, scraping down sides once. Add melted chocolate, egg yolks, vanilla and coffee and beat until creamy and light and blended. Fold in 2 beaten egg whites.

Carefully cut the chiffon cake (I used orange) into four even layers. Place bottom layer on large fancy cake plate from which finished cake will be served. Spread filling between layers. You have to pile it on because there seems to be too much for only three layers of filling — the top does not get any. Chill cake in refrigerator overnight and until near serving time.

Whip cream, add icing sugar (second amount) and vanilla when it begins to thicken. Whip only until it will retain its shape. Carefully spread all over sides and top of chilled cake, peaking it up prettily. Now shave, on your fine shredder, one small bar sweet chocolate all over top to decorate. Time you have a crowd and guest desserts that you will bless Jackie and me for next time you have a crowd and are short of time and ideas.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mr. Smoth: "I almost ran over that Taylor youngster on my way home. He shot out of his driveway on his bike. Wasn't paying a bit of attention to the traffic."

It's not enough for a child to learn to balance and ride a bicycle. He should be instructed in traffic and safety rules and parents should check often to be sure he obeys them.

A child may be old enough to have a bike, but still may be unaware of his responsibility. He actually may not know that an automobile cannot always be stopped instantly, and he may not realize the hazard of riding without proper lights at dusk or of weaving in and out of traffic.

Play Will Have Sidewalk Cafe

The Belleville Theatre Guild has moved into the cafe business, at least during the run of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf which begins at the Pinnacle Playhouse tomorrow night.

Mrs. Eleanor Jourard and Mrs. Stiela Shaw are co-managers of the cafe which will be situated in the lane-way north of the Pinnacle Playhouse.

The cafe will supplement the play every night that it runs, opening at seven and closing at curtain time, serving customers during both intermissions and after the play until midnight.

The "Laneway Cafe" will seat from 80 to 100 people at a time and will offer entertainment after the play on Fridays and Saturdays.

Mrs. Jourard explained that entertainment would include a number of folksingers and even a strolling waiter — "strictly off the cuff entertainment-wise."

Lindsey Hallam will be present at the cafe to do sketches as well.

Food and refreshment will include regular and Viennese coffee, three kinds of strudel, lemonade and cheese and crackers.

The project is designed to assist the Belleville Theatre Guild in raising money to pay some of its expenses over the past year.

The cafe is expected to complement what resident artistic director Roy Higgins calls "the guild's most superb production" — Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf playing from June 3 to 7 and June 10 to 14.

The play stars Lois Summerville, John Shaw, Helen Porter and Claude Marquis as the entangled matrimonial participants.

Little Japan Moves Into Bleecker Auditorium

Little Japan moved into Ben Bleecker Auditorium at Exhibition Park today for a four-day stand.

The ambitious undertaking is the combined efforts of 15 schools in the Quinte district, banded together in a "thematic approach to learning."

As a window to the monolithic study in the schools during May, the kindergarten to grade 8 pupils are presenting the display for the public.

It opened at 1.30 p.m. with Miss Hideko Umeda of the Japanese Consulate in Toronto as special guest. The consulate has worked actively with Miss Phyllis Beatty, consultant with the Hastings county board of education, who instituted and supervised the program.

The pilot project in the thematic approach to learning involved using Japan, its arts and crafts, economy and culture, as a springboard for conventional classroom teaching. The way in which it worked was filmed by the educational television unit, Kingston, in county class rooms and will be one of the exhibitions at the auditorium.

Entertainment and activities by the pupils are planned for the week — including drama, music, mural painting, puppet plays, judo, the tea ceremony, doll making and demonstrations of origami and ikebana.

Four Japanese families in the community and returned missionaries from Japan have assisted in the project and some will be at the auditorium Wednesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9 to give demonstrations.

To get things off to an appropriate start, the Harmony School choir under the direction of Mrs. M. Meiklejohn began the opening ceremonies by singing the Japanese National Anthem.

Refreshments were served by the home economics classes from Queen Elizabeth and Harry J. Clarke schools.

Little Japan will end at noon on Friday. For the week, the pupils invite all adults interested in what goes on in county schools to come and see for themselves at Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

Kenneth McLean Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ward, Eastwood Park Dr. received his Bachelor of Science degree with first class honors from the University of Western Ontario May 29. He is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

Belleville Becoming Industrial Hub Between Major Markets

By KENNETH G. SMITH
Staff Reporter

Two years ago, Allied Chemical came to Belleville and the town has not been the same since.

Yesterday, R. V. C. Aikten, manager of the Allied Chemical operation marked the anniversary by inviting those people instrumental in realizing the plant's success to tour the factory and judge for themselves.

Today may be an opportune time to sit at the "post Allied" period and see what has been done in our civic economy during these last two years.

Since Allied arrived, Belleville has gained three other large industries: Brooke Bond Foods Ltd., Constellation Canada Ltd., and Wilson Sports Equipment Canada Ltd.

Belleville's industrial, institutional and commercial expansion in 1968 generated seven new jobs, an additional 90,000 sq. ft. of new floor space and the outlay of $3,440,000 in capital.

Expansion in 1969 meant a potential 716 new jobs. It has meant the addition of 425,173 sq. ft. of floor space and the sinking of $18,935,000 into the facilities.

Belleville has come a long way since that day two years ago when four Allied men came to town to begin the new operation.

Now Allied has a staff of 39 and only one employee has left the operation since it began, and he left on favorable terms.

Two years ago, Allied had only a skeleton operation, how financial and technical departments have been added.

The research facility which has been added to the operation since its inception is having considerable success.

Certain cost-saving processes have been developed locally and the next few months offer the prospect of Belleville-developed new product lines.

Cyprus, a nylon vacuum packaging filler is the staple of the Allied operation.

It is used largely for the packaging of meats and cheese.

In 1968, the Belleville Allied works sold to five Canadian "converters".

Now, this list of clients has been expanded to include four more Canadian buyers, as well as five in the United Kingdom and one in Australia.

Research at the Belleville plant offers the prospect of an even greater volume of business.

Mr. Aitken made clear that the Belleville plant is a key area for development in the entire Allied family".

Fred Deacon who was chairman of the Industrial Commission when Allied came to Belleville, looked upon the contributions made by Allied to the City from several angles.

"There is the obvious contribution in terms of employment and taxation. Furthermore," Mr. Deacon explained, "there is the contribution of people."

This was a reference to the fact that Mr. Aitken had served as vice-chairman of the Industrial Commission in the year after he moved to the city from Montreal.

"Allied has encouraged development of Belleville, not only in word but in deed," one party commented.

Gerald Joyce, chairman of the Industrial Commission, gave an example of Allied's involvement in Belleville's development.

The facilities of the Allied Chemical Tower the landmark operations head office of the firm in midtown Manhattan, were made available to the City of Belleville for industrial promotion.

Mr. Joyce concluded that Allied Chemical has been a peace - setter for Belleville's new corporate citizens.

The Allied plant, itself costing an estimated $2,180,000, has been joined in the northend industrial park by another corporate neighbor.

Packing the Allied Chemigel operation across University Avenue is the newly-opened Brooke Bond Foods Ltd. plant.

This Montreal-based firm is now operating its spice, meat extracts and gravy and sauce mixes at the Belleville plant.

In a chain of events beginning with the Brooke Bond acquisition of Black Diamond Cheese and the visit of Brooke Bond president, P. L. Patterson to Belleville in October, 1968, the firm's Belleville operation became a reality.

The $1,800,000 facility employs 106 people and of these $8-odd were drawn from the local labor pool.

Like Allied, Brooke Bond also has a favorable export volume. Particularly important are shipments to the Caribbean and the United States.

Although the staff at Brooke Bond is near the full complement, officials of the firm point out that it may increase with an increase in product demand.

Mr. Joyce expressed the hope that other food producing plants would follow the Brooke Bond lead and locate in the Quinte area.

Chromalloy Canada Ltd. is the third major addition to Belleville's industrial complex in the last two years.

Chromalloy Canada Ltd., a division of Chromalloy American Corporation, announced its intention to build in Belleville on June 27, 1969.

The plant, adjacent to Union Carbide on Dundas Street East, will employ 150 to 200 workers.

Total estimated cost of the plant is $1,300,000 and Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown pointed out that "an addition was being added before the cement was dry".

The Constellation Canada facility, another Chromalloy division on the same location, will be engaged in the several aspects of carpet manufacture operating together with Chromalloy under the name Constellation Canada.

Not only lasting and shearing but also dyeing, printing and finishing will be carried on at the east-end plant.

The distant future may also see other firms in the carpet industry lured to the Quinte area.

A fourth new industry, Wilson Sports Equipment Canada Limited, is slated for completion July 27.

The factory, located in the new north-west industrial park, just off Sidney Street at the freeway will employ about 85 people when it begins operations and this number will increase.

Ground was broken for the new sporting goods plant last November.

Production in the new $1,-800,000 plant will focus on the Wilson line army of golf clubs.

There is the prospect that the Wilson firm may secure certain of its materials in the Quinte area rather than importing them from the United States.

Wilson's also leave open the prospect of expanding their Canadian manufacturing operation into other products.

The Wilson name is also synonymous with top-line metal fabricated targets and golf balls used on the PGA tour.

In Canada, the Wilson name will be more than synonymous with Belleville. One informed source reports that Wilson products will bear a "Made in Belleville" label.

Of additional importance to Belleville is the fact that the Wilson firm will not only establish a manufacturing plant in Belleville, it will also establish both its national headquarters and national sales office in the city.

Assessing the importance of these four new firms, Ray Brown said that "these industries represent basically what we have tried to do with our industrial development program.

"They have helped in establishing a standard for our industrial parks and have helped us commit our servicing programs to those areas we

Housing Activity in City Reflects Industrial Growth

By KENNETH G. SMITH
Staff Reporter

The phrase "Housing Crisis" has been well-worn in Ontario during the last few years but Belleville is in relatively good shape.

Many municipalities, construction of housing facilities has not kept pace with popular demand.

In March, Ontario's urban housing unit starts totalled 2,-742 or 43 per cent more than in the corresponding month of 1969.

The Metropolitan Toronto census area had 50 per cent less unit starts in March 1970 than in March 1969.

Belleville's housing situation is quite different.

In March, 1969, there were five unit starts in Belleville but in March 1970 there were 86 starts.

March 1970 also saw Belleville with 301 housing units under construction compared with 116 in March 1969.

Brantford had 163 units under construction in March 1970. Cornwall had 224, Peterborough 288 and Sarnia 212, with comparable or larger populations.

Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown reflected that when he arrived in Belleville, he had made several strong statements about the local housing situation.

"Since then, it has improved greatly," he commented.

The condition of the home-building industry is a factor in total community development and, if it is sound, it is a drawing-card for new industries.

Mr. Brown spoke of the tremendous demand progress has placed upon the developer and homebuilder alike.

The cost of serviced land has gone up in Belleville in the last five years according to Maurice Rollins, a leading developer, but "the cost of each housing unit has risen less than almost every other commodity, despite the 11 percent building materials surcharge."

In many municipalities, speculative building of subdivision has all but ceased.

Houses are only built when the home buyer has contracted with a developer for the building of his house.

The days of prospective buyers driving down streets of newly - built unpurchased homes may be gone, but one local developer reported that he still builds 75 per cent of his homes on speculation.

What are the reasons for a builder of housing units?

Supply of building materials is adequate, but Mr. Rollins pointed out that there was a shortage of materials last May, but this has not overcome.

The labor pool of construction tradesmen (particularly masons, plumbers, and heavy equipment) is another important factor in the success or shortcomings of the building industry.

Belleville, however, has a good supply of such tradesmen and has been able to draw on the glut of such workers in other areas, notably Quebec.

Supply of money is a concern for the housing unit builder and accupant alike.

Release of federal and provincial money for the housing trade had a direct effect on the number of units to be built.

In November 1969, there were more building permits issued than in any other month during the year.

This peak came concurrently with the release of government funds for mortgage purchase.

Additionally, there are about 78 financial houses in Canada actively involved in mortgages.

Only four or five of these are active in Belleville and their stake in development of the city is considerable.

One informed source pointed out that certain financial concerns will only lend money for housing in very large sums because this eliminates on the paper work that would be involved with many small mortgages.

Many interests that will finance large metropolitan developments will not, or at least, do not involve themselves in the development of smaller regional centres like Belleville.

The mortgagers involved in Belleville's growth were commended by many parties involved in the housing industry and their financing has been an essential force in Belleville's favorable housing situation.

Demand for housing units is still very heavy in Belleville and, new industrialization has been a major factor in this constant demand.

The office of Frank Folwell, realtor and president of the Belleville Real Estate Board reported that "people wish the new industries are coming in all the time".

Donald Whalen, a leading realtor, concurred that industrialization had been a force although he said several other realtors pointed out that unease in the national economy had brought on a discernable slump.

"There is a fantastic demand for rentals to be added and this may be met more and more by "outsiders who will build large scale apartments."

Hesitancy of local developers to build on a large scale has left a gap which outsiders may fill, Mr. Whalen believes.

One highrise manager mentioned that he had had only one vacancy since his building opened.

The demand for housing units has changed considerably in the last 10 years.

Realtors and developers feel that the need for houses in price ranges above $23,000 has been largely filled.

Gerald Joyce, a local realtor contends that the greatest need in single family dwellings is below $23,000.

To qualify for an NHA mortgage, Mr. Joyce explained, the total of principal, interest and taxes on the dwelling concerned must not be more than 27 per cent of a man's income.

Fifty per cent of a wife's income may also be added to fulfil the requirement of the National Housing Act.

Mr. Joyce concluded that many Bellevilians could not satisfy the NHA requirements.

There is a considera ble market for low-priced homes with uncompleted 6½ per cent mortgages.

Mortgages are now usually at interest rates of from 9½ to 11 per cent.

The demand for housing units is reflected in the number of building permits issued.

In 1965, there were 201 permits; in 1967 this figure fell to 197.

A considerable increase came in 1968 with 312 housing units and in 1969 this figure rose to 412, according to Mr. Sickle.

Looking back on the work of his construction firm, Mr. Rollins pointed out that from 1945 to 1960 the majority of his customers had been personnel from CFB Trenton resident in Belleville. Together with a large number of local commercial travellers.

The years after to 1968 were "very quiet" he continued.

"In 1968 our industry started to come in faster and when it arrived, it had a direct effect on the housing market and this may be met more and more by "outsiders who will build large scale apartments."

Hesitancy of local developers to build on a large scale has left a gap which outsiders may fill, Mr. Whalen believes.

Wants to Suspend Fire Captain

At last night's meeting of Sidney Township Council, Fire Chief John Aquino submitted a report recommending suspension of one of his captains for insubordination.

Asked to comment on the report, Chief Aquino said, "I'd rather not mention anything about this case . . . it wouldn't do money any good and it wouldn't do the department any good."

Council's decision on this matter is pending and a decision will be announced at its next meeting, June 8.

County Street Scene

Main street in Marmora still shows signs of reconstruction. But, when the project's finished, village of 1,400 is expected to have one of the smartest community thoroughfares in Hastings County — complete with boulevards, underground utilities.

Marmora Street Transformed

MARMORA (Staff) — The dust is beginning to settle on this village's main street.

When it's completely viewed, this community of 1,400 people can boast the most up-to-date thoroughfare in Hastings County — and at a bargain price.

It also will be the only community outside Belleville to have its main street free of unsightly telephone and power lines.

The services have gone underground with the reconstruction of the street. The unique trimness will be heightened by concrete light standards and boulevards flanking new sidewalks.

The entire rehabilitation project likely to exceed at about $250,000 estimates Reeve William Shannon. But cost to Marmora is only $20,000.

Reason for the low price tag on the village's biggest rebuilding scheme is fortunate coincidence and geographic location.

Marmora's main street straddles Highway 7, South of the major Toronto traffic link, Highway 37 to Belleville begins. North of Highway 7 a county development road to Cordova starts, explains Reeve Shannon.

Reconstruction of the street is being done by the department of highways and the county in their adjoining jurisdictions. The municipality is picking up the tab for the sidewalks and underground power and telephone installations.

The project was "a golden opportunity to get service lines below ground — something the village council had wanted for some time, says Reeve Shannon.

In a way it was wishful thinking because, until the thing that normally would be impossible," he adds.

The street reconstruction was synchronizing the co-operation of everyone involved — provincial and county governments, Bell Telephone and local merchants, says the reeve.

Main street businessmen he estimates, paid an average $400 to change power intakes from the front to the rear of their stores — when commercial power lines now are underground.

At first, the local council had mediated angle parking for customers of the street's 28 businesses. However, the highways department and provincial police advocated parallel parking which will ensure two wide traffic lanes.

Some villagers have been concerned that their spanking new business section will be ripped up in the near future when Marmora's sewage disposal system gets underway. However, sewer pipes will be laid behind the main street, says Reeve Shannon.

The reconstruction should be finished by early July, he estimates.

Rotary Speaker Anti Bad News

By BARRY McCULLAGH
(Staff Reporter)

Toronto businessman and toastmaster W. J. Purster yesterday lamented those "friendly breakfast" radio programs which point out the woes of the world, from riots and the cost-of-living to inflation and the latest plunge in the Dow Jones average.

"The Americans in Vietnam shoot down three more of their own helicopters — I don't want to hear about that. Or the post office strike is unofficial but you still don't get your mail on time. Or the pollution content is 23 (danger point 24), so should I go to work?".

Nowadays unions were more sophisticated, he said; but it was not only the unions, in the professions, too, things had changed. He told of going to a doctor, one his own age, and since trouble ,and being told to wait while the medical man did some paper work.

"They have their troubles too," he said.

Mr. Purster was still working off his "frustrations," as he put it, when he came to the end of his address, still worrying about those awful news items — like Memorial Day in the United States . . . 537 killed in traffic accidents over the weekend . . . "now do you want to know about that . . . ?

Council Agrees On Daylight Time

City council yesterday conversed in a Sandwich Werr resolution asking for establishment of a uniform period for observance of Daylight Saving Time but at least one alderman would like to see DST in effect throughout the entire year.

The Sandwich township resolution asks that Labor Day be the termination date for Daylight Saving Time.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey said she would go along with the resolution but personally would like to see DST in effect throughout the 12 months of the year.

Success is relative.

That's why you, and I, and everyone who enjoys a good hockey game can think the National Hockey League season was a flop, and, at the same time, Clarence Campbell can think it's the greatest thing since mashed potatoes.

Being president of the National Hockey League, which in spooky confusion is a business ("We sell hockey on the basis of presenting sixty minutes of sustained action") — Campbell's criterion of success is a fiscal one.

And he had the figures to prove his case for a weekend seminar of provincial sportswriters in Kitchener.

"From the standpoint of the economics of the position of the NHL's new-member clubs, there has never been anything in the entire history of sport to match our success," Campbell stressed.

"Expansion made possible the employment of 280 hockey players, in effect creating 280 major league jobs. Moreover, two of the expansion clubs are in an almost complete sellout position already."

Campbell also revealed there has been a 54 per cent increase since expansion in the basic salaries of eastern division players and 27 per cent in the new division.

However the controversial NHL figure-head was the first to admit that, conversely speaking, there is some justification for feeling expansion still leaves something to be desired. "I'm sure the answer given by the new owners will not be the same as that given by their coaches," he owned.

Fellow panelist Punch Imlach had a hearty 'hear, hear' for that one.

Imlach was very deep in the dumps about his chances at picking a workable Buffalo Sabres roster from the existing league letterers at next week's expansion draft meeting.

"The first expansion hasn't worked out as well as they thought," he bit. "The new division was supposed to be competitive in three years and they didn't win as many games last year as they did the year before."

"The key to expansion maladies, as Imlach sees it, lies in an inequitable draft system. What perturbs him is that the existing NHL clubs can protect 15 players and two goalkeepers, while established clubs in only 11 players and one goalie exempt from the first expansion draft in 1966-67.

President Campbell rebutted that this was due to a simple change in the situation's mathematics: now the two expansion clubs have twice as many clubs from which to draft as the first six newcomers.

Imlach continued the attack.

"The idea of the draft is to help last-place clubs — like Los Angeles. But when they trade away draft choices for players, you might as well not even have a draft. We might as well go back to having sponsored junior teams.

"The have-nots keep trading away their draft choices for players to keep them in the league. New Boston has this year's third and fourth draft choices, plus their own pick in the amateur draft!"

Campbell was quick to remind Imlach — and the associated protestertures — that he had footed for a waivers system on the draft, preventing trading of draft choices unless the players were first waived through the league.

"Strange as it may seem, I get violent opposition from the new teams, who feel this was an insult to their managerial ability."

Imlach sattered a mite. "Don't get me wrong — It's not the protest of the league that's to blame — it's the club owners." He also admitted he could hardly blame the existing teams for pulling all last-minute deals for players to avoid having to protect them in the draft.

"Just about every hockey player that has been traded in the past couple of weeks was good enough for Buffalo. We were working on a deal for Larcen (Boston's Jim)— and we won't be able to get Duff from Los Angeles now.

"Bordeleau, Mickey, Hextall, these guys are all better than we're going to get out of the draft," Punch lamented.

Lame duck or not, the Sabres will not apparently be playing in front of empty seats. "We've got over 5,000 season's tickets paid for in advance, and another 2,000 inquiries. About half came from Canada," Imlach announced, perhaps unaware he was bolstering the Campbell claim of expansion success.

Bruins Go with Cup-wise Tom Johnson

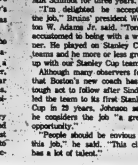
BOSTON (AP) — Tom Johnson has had his name engraved on the Stanley Cup eight times as a star defenseman with Montreal Canadiens. Now he's going to try to get it on hockey's most-coveted trophy again as coach of Boston Bruins.



The 43-year-old Johnson, who played 15 seasons in the National Hockey League before a foot injury ended his career, agreed Monday to a one-year contract to coach the Bruins, defending Stanley Cup champions in 1970-71.

The Bruins, shocked by Harry Sinden's decision to quit and enter private business a last month, needed only a push into their front office to find a successor. Johnson moved into an executive capacity when his playing career with the Bruins ended in 1965, and has been an assistant to general manager MIM Schmidt for three years.

"I'm delighted he accepted the job," Bruins' president Weston W. Adams Jr. said. "Tom's accustomed to being with a winner. He played on Stanley Cup teams and he more or less grew up with our Stanley Cup team."

Although many observers feel that Boston's new coach has a tough act to follow after Sinden led the team to its first Stanley Cup in 29 years, Johnson said he considers the job "a great opportunity."

"People should be novious of this job," he said. "This club has a lot of talent."

TOM JOHNSON

Schmidt said that "close to 30" men were considered before he, Adams and Weston W. Adams Sr., board chairman, "decided we had the man right here in our office who was best suited for the job."

"Tom was our unanimous choice," Schmidt said. "He is a good sound hockey man who has been in the organization seven years and knows the club. He also knows the likes and dislikes of the players both on and off the ice."

Johnson never has coached at any level and admitted that his experience may pose "a considerable problem for a while."

It's certainly better inheriting Stanley Cup champions than a last-place club," he said. "I think the only way we can top the past season is to win the league championship. And we can do it."

In Sinden's fourth season as coach, the Bruins tied Chicago in the NHL's East Division this year. Each had 99 points, but the Black Hawks were awarded first place on the basis of more victories . Boston then blitzed the Hawks in four-straight playoff games.

A native of Winnipeg, Johnson grew up in the Montreal Canadiens' junior system in Manitoba, but was drafted by Montreal when he was 19. He played 13 seasons with Canadiens before being drafted by Boston in 1965. His top season as a player was in 1958-59, when he won the Norris Trophy as the NHL's top defenseman.

Middle Sag Costly to Lacrosse Jrs.

A second-period letdown proved costly to the Belleville Juniors in their Quinte Lacrosse League opener as Cobourg coasted five times in the middle frame to come up with an 8-4 win.

The home team appeared disorganized throughout most of the game and took too many costly penalties.

Goalie Paul Muldoon was the lone Belleville standout, playing the first and third periods in the Belleville nets and allowing three Cobourg tallies. Wayne Casselman was the victim of the visitors' second-period scoring outburst.

Much of the local lack of scoring punch could be traced to the fact that playing-coach Al Partington, one of the team's major offensive threats was missing. Partington has been treated by Cobourg and will in all likelihood be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

Jerry Vincent, who has had senior lacrosse experience will be taking over Partington's coaching chores. "We're really fortunate to get someone of Jerry's ability to coach the team," said manager Roy Payne who was behind the bench last night. "It was a difficult job for Al because the players were all the same age he was."

Paul Allen counted four goals for Cobourg while Tom MacDonald added a pair and Randy McGregor and Dixon Larson scored one each.

Steve Casselman led the home team with two goals with the others going to Mike Scarlett and Mark Reid.

John Whalen and midget call-up Denny Payne both played strong games for Belleville, whose next action comes in the 8.15 Thursday night game with Trenton at the Memorial Arena.

Manning Kicks Three

Atlas Van Lines blanked Y's Men's Club 6-0 in one game of the peewee division of the Belleville minor lacrosse association last night, while in the other contest, Daisy Queen edged Bob's Sports 5-4.

Manning had a hat trick for Atlas Van Lines with single goals going to Richardson, Nuttal and Belanger. The winners drew seven of the game's 12 penalties.

In the other game, Ward paced the winners with two goals. Kerr, Edwards and Colden added the others for the Dairy Queen which had eight penalties against five for their foes.

Siddell scored twice for Bob's Sports with Merrill and Reid counting twice.

Little League Strikeouts Don't Always Bring Wins

Losing pitchers were recording strikeouts, but giving up runs in Belleville Minor Baseball action last night, as none of the four winning hurlers recorded more hurls than their opposing number.

In pee wee action Farrell Motors slapped Mel Hargrave 9-5, while Legion Branch 99 clobbered Cellulose 17-3.

Clyde Roadely and Joe Moskeic pitched the win for Farrell Motors as they walked five and struck out nine. Fred Weeks and Allan Brown toiled for the losers giving up five walks and striking out 13 Farrell batters.

Brian Rennett was good for three singles and a double for the winners, with Tim Walsh and Glen Taylor each getting a double and single. Chris Masterson had two singles for Barry Hogan Blesser which picked up a double.

McLaren Killed

GOODWOOD, England (AP) — Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, one of the world's top Grand Prix car drivers, died in a crash while testing a sports car at Goodwood today.

McLaren was testing one of his own high-powered sports cars which he hoped to race later in the season in the Can-Am series. He won that series last year.

Although he never made the top in Grand Prix racing, McLaren was a leading contender in Formula One events for the last 10 years.

He finished third in the world championship last year behind Jackie Stewart of Scotland and Jackie Ickx of Belgium.

Billy Casper Says:

START DRIVER BACK LOW

A very simple statement at the start of the backswing can correct innumerable driving errors. Merely move the clubhead back low to the ground and in straight back from the ball as possible.

To accomplish this, you must begin with passive wrists. Writers that sublime begin to cock too soon tear the clubhead one way or the other. The most common mistake in forming the clubhead upon with a clockwise turn of the wrists at the start.

The low start effectively begins to increase the desired upper body coil you'll want at the top. It further widens the swing arc and helps set up a strong left side.

Authorities Delve Into Sawchuk's Death

NEW YORK (CP) — The body of Terry Sawchuk, 40-year-old New York Ranger goalie, was sent Monday to Detroit as the district attorney in suburban Nassau County opened an investigation into his death.

Funeral services for Sawchuk, for 20 years one of the top goaltenders in the National Hockey League, will be held Friday.

Sawchuk died Sunday in a New York hospital following a mysterious injury. He underwent surgery Saturday after being transferred to the New York hospital from one on Long Island where he had undergone two other operations.

He had told authorities he tripped and fell over the knee of a team-mate April 29 while "rough housing" on the lawn of the home the two shared on Long Island.

Dr. Elliott Gross, deputy chief medical examiner of New York City, who performed an autopsy Sunday, said Monday the exact cause of death was a blood clot that travelled from a vein into a pulmonary artery.

But Dr. Gross also determined there was a "trauma," or injury to Sawchuk's liver which police said was caused by a blow.

"Forty-year-old men don't just get pulmonary embolism," Dr. Gross said. "It usually is brought on by other factors."

TERRY SAWCHUK

An autopsy report prepared at the hospital following Sawchuk's death had attributed death to a pulmonary embolism—a blood clot in the lungs. A secondary cause of death was the laceration of Sawchuk's liver during the span of a month.

The homicide squad of Nassau County decided to open the investigation after they were given the report of Monday's autopsy by Dr. Gross.

Detective Matthew Bonora of the homicide squad said after studying the autopsy report the contributory causes of death were "injuries received in an altercation."

Sawchuk was one of the NHL's stars for two decades, playing with Detroit Red Wings, Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs, Los Angeles Kings and New York.

He was selected to the first or second all-star team seven times and won the Vezina Trophy, as the goalie who allows the fewest goals during a season, four times. He also had a lifetime total of 103 shutouts, an NHL record.

He was divorced last July from his wife, whom he married in 1953. They had seven children, ranging in age from 3½ to 15.

Lee Trevino held his money lead with $108,119 earned this year. Following him was Gary Player, $88,078; Dick Lotz, $75,861; Billy Casper, $69,483 and Miller Barber, $68,919.

Rounding out the top 10 were Bob Lunn, with $68,259; Frank Beard, $66,245; Homero Blancas $67,711; Dave Hill, $67,580 and Jack Nicklaus, $66,283.

Canada's Best Get Boxed In

VANCOUVER (CP) — United States fighters took some of the gloss off the crowns of Canada's new champions Monday night as they dominated the North American amateur boxing championships.

The Americans, showing more polish in the lighter Olympic weights than the Canadians, won nine of the 11 bouts before 2,500 fans.

The Canadians, eight of whom will represent Canada in the Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh in July, were declared the country's best at the Canadian amateur boxing championships Saturday night in nearby New Westminster.

The U.S. team won the first four of the three-round matches. Frank Scott, named Canada's outstanding boxer Saturday, lost to Ray Lunny in the 125-pound class.

Lunny of Redwood, Calif., 1970 U.S. Golden Glove champion, won it in the second round when he connected with several jarring lefts to the head of Scott, a 21-year-old cook from New Westminster. Both fighters battled evenly in the third.

In the 119-pound division, Dave Kibby of Smith River, Calif., easily handled Joe Cooke, 18, of New Westminster.

Eduardo Santiago of New York had more trouble with Neil Austin in the 112-pound class. Santiago weathered a rough second round and scored enough punches in the final to win a close decision over the 17-year-old from Langley, B.C.

In the lightest division, 106 pounds, Larry Smith of Tacoma, Wash., defeated Noel Brain of St. Catharines, Ont. Chris Ian of North Vancouver had defeated Brain in Saturday's championships but, at 16, was too young to fight in the international competition.

Marvin Arneson, a 27-year-old research technician from Edmonton, was easily the most impressive Canadian fighter. Arneson, using his height to advantage, pounded James Parks of North Carolina, with a series of strong, left jabs to take the 132-pound class.

Fred Fuller, a 31-year-old veteran from Vancouver, brought the Canadian team its only other victory as he outpointed Rudolph Donato of Philadelphia in the 139-pound class.

Armando Muniz of Fort Bragg, N.C., won the 147-pound division when Paride Baldasarre of Montreal was disqualified in the third round after being warned three times for holding.

Seals Regain Control

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Seals Ltd., original owner of Oakland Seals, has regained control of the National Hockey League team.

Superior Court Judge Robert Schnacke said Monday that Trans-National Communications Inc., which owns Boston Celtics, of the National Basketball Association defaulted on terms of its agreement to buy the three-year-old hockey club from Seals Ltd. last year.

He adjourned a week-old trial over the club's ownership until June 9, when Seals Ltd., headed by Barry Van Gerbig, will propose selling the club for $5,000,000 to Charles O. Finley, owner of baseball's Oakland Athletics of the American League.

The Seals' executive vice-president, Bill Torrey, said he, general manager Frank Selke Jr. and coach Fred Glover still will leave for Montreal next weekend for the annual NHL draft meetings.

Gloomy Skies Over Chicago Boon to Sutton

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles pitcher Don Sutton has always approached Chicago Cubs with caution, but Monday the Dodger righthander's outlook brightened despite dark skies over Chicago's Wrigley Field.

Sutton, who went into the game with a National League career record of one win and 13 defeats against the Cubs, had help from bad weather as the Dodgers won 5-4 in a game shortened to six innings by rain.

San Francisco Giants were rained out at St. Louis and Pittsburgh Pirates whipped San Diego Padres 5-1 in the only other scheduled National League action. All 12 American League teams had the day off.

The start at Chicago was delayed for an hour and seven minutes by the rain before the Dodgers jumped into a fast lead, scoring twice in the first inning.

With rain threatening again, the Cubs moved ahead by scoring four times in the home half of the fifth. The Dodgers struck back for three runs and a 5-4 lead in the sixth. Sutton managed to retire the Cubs in order in the home half of the sixth, then waited for one hour and 22 minutes before the game was officially called.

A two-run homer by Bill Grabarkewitz won for the Dodgers in their sixth-inning recovery as Chicago pitcher Bill Hands suffered his third defeat in 10 decisions.

After giving up three straight hits and two runs to Los Angeles at the start, Hands held the Dodgers hitless until the decisive sixth inning.

Willie Davis opened the winning rally with a triple and scored on Wes Parker's double. Grabarkewitz followed with his fifth home run of the season and second in as many days.

The Dodgers' fourth consecutive win advanced them to second place in the West Division, half a game ahead of the third-place Atlanta Braves and 4½ behind the leading Cincinnati Reds.

At Pittsburgh, Dick Ellis scattered six San Diego hits, singled and scored twice as he posted his fourth victory of the season.

Matty Alou and Willie Stargell hit two doubles each to pace the Pirates nine-hit attack on three Padres pitchers.

San Diego starter Danny Coombs suffered his fourth loss in nine decisions as the Pirates scored on hits twice in the third inning to win. Steve Hamr and Ollie Brown had two singles each for the losers.

Feeney Admits Changes 'Fair'

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of the National League continues his testimony today in the controversial Curt Flood baseball suit after agreeing Monday that "it would be fair" to relax some rules of baseball's reserve clause.

Chub Feeney, the only witness in Monday's day-long proceedings, said he would favor a change in the reserve clause, letting a player become a free agent—but only at age 55.

Flood's suit against baseball and the major league owners is directed at the reserve clause, charging it is a form of slavery which binds a player to a team for life without individual recourse.

Flood, an all-star outfielder for St. Louis Cardinals for many years, brought his suit after he was traded to Philadelphia Phillies during the off-season.

Cross-examined by one of Flood's lawyers, Jay Topkis, Feeney was first asked if he would favor a change in the rules that made a man a free agent—a change the owners have steadfastly refused to grant.

"Yes," he answered.

"How about 55 years of age," Topkis asked, trying to get something on the record.

"That would be fair," Feeney said.

But Feeney also reiterated the stand of owners—that the reserve clause should not be abolished because it was necessary to baseball.

Feeney said farm clubs "would be the first to go under" if the clause was eliminated because wealthy teams would have all the advantages in the more costly competition that would follow.

Blair Resting

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Paul Blair, Baltimore Orioles outfielder, was reported in good condition and resting comfortably Monday night after three hours of surgery to repair injuries suffered when he was struck in the face by a pitch.

Blair had been placed on the 21-day disabled list earlier Monday by the American League East club. He was struck on the nose Sunday by a pitch from Ken Tatum of California Angels.

Doctors were unable to determine immediately whether Blair might suffer lasting visual difficulties. He was initially reported to be suffering from double vision.

Urban Policy Now Being Thrashed Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is thrashing out a national urban policy that it probably will unveil in the fall, Robert Andras, minister responsible for housing, said Monday.

But Mr. Andras told the Commons he could give no hint of these policies yet. They were the "subject of intense discussion among my colleagues."

He spoke during debate on a New Democratic Party motion criticizing the government for its "failure to establish an urban policy for Canada." The motion, under House rules, did not come to a vote.

Edward Broadbent, (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) who introduced the motion, said Prime Minister Trudeau has "turned his back" on his urban supporters.

The government was failing to provide leadership required to meet a growing city crisis.

Mr. Andras said the debate was premature, as the government's studies on city problems are at an advanced stage.

Mr. Broadbent said Mr. Trudeau stands apart in "bemused Olympian aloofness" as the country heads ruidderless towards an urban crisis.

While provincial governments could be criticized for lack of planning in cities, the federal demand for not providing national leadership.

"The prime minister callously told the cities that they must take their problems to their provincial premiers where, he asserts, they constitutionally belong."

But the federal government could take action in such fields as communications, housing, transportation, postal services, pollution, the arts and national parks.

The government could set up an urban affairs department which would deal with the prospects and functions of cities, Mr. Broadbent said. The cities should also be given the right to tax all federal and provincial property.

Quebec Offers Reward

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government has set up a $50,000 reward fund for information about three responsible for five bombings in suburban Westmount during the weekend.

A police spokesman said there is some indication that the bombings are the work of a new terrorist group, International in its makeup and dedicated to revolution in Quebec and, perhaps, ultimately in all of Canada.

Justice Minister Jerome Choquette announced the fund at a news conference Monday, saying rewards have proved effective in the past in breaking terrorist rings.

The police spokesman said the new group, suspected of the bombings is the Union pour la Liberation Armee du Quebec—Union for the Armed Liberation of Quebec. Files accumulated by the combined anti-subversive squad here show it to have members from Iraq, Algeria, France, Britain and Quebec.

"Their main aim at this time is revolution in Quebec, but the long-range target is all of Canada," he said.

The anti-terrorist squad is composed of officers from the RCMP, Quebec Provincial Police and Montreal police. It was set up after the first wave of terrorist bombings in 1963, believed the work of the front de Liberation Quebecois—Quebec Liberation Front.

Mr. Choquette, speaking after meetings with directors of the provincial and Montreal police forces, said "between 18 and 25" persons are responsible for the weekend bombings.

Venereal Disease Increases

NEW YORK (AP) — An old problem is causing new concern as venereal disease surges across the United States.

One form of VD, gonorrhea, is so widespread and out of control that public health officials say flatly it is an epidemic.

And the American Social Health Association predicts a rise in infectious syphilis, after the rates of infection had dropped over the years. The monthly figures already are creeping up again.

The U.S. public health service's Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga., estimates that there were at least 1,500,000 cases of gonorrhea in the U.S. last year, although only 494,227 were reported.

For syphilis, the estimate is about 30,000 cases, with only 18,679 reported.

This under-reporting, mostly by doctors, makes it difficult for public health workers to crack down on much of the VD, specialists say. New York City Health Commissioner Mary C. McLaughlin said her department is trying to "brainwash" all doctors on the need for accurate reporting.

LONDON (Reuters) — The director of British Social Health Education Council blamed a permissive society and "the back seat of a parked car" Monday for what he said was an alarming increase in venereal disease among young people.

Commenting on figures showing the incidence of VD to have doubled in 1969, Dr. William Jones said:

"The back seat of a motor car is more readily available than it was a year ago. Young people have more freedom."

Air Bag System for Autos Not Practical for 1973: Ford

DETROIT (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. has given a flat no to a United States government proposal that 1973 cars be equipped with an air-bag system to protect occupants in event of a crash.

Ford's unqualified rejection was the strongest voiced yet in the auto industry.

General Motors earlier had called the plan "technically feasible" but said there was no way of meeting the 1973 timetable.

Starr M. Frey, chief body engineer of Ford, said Monday:

"Ford is as anxious as anyone to halt the death toll on the highways, but even if we did have a developed air-bag system, which we do not have now, we could not meet the proposed effective dates for installations in cars."

Government and industry will exchange views on the air-bag system at a Washington conference June 24.

Ford gave 50 magazine writers a first-hand look at the system Monday.

A film clip showed a test car equipped with interior air bags colliding head-on with another car at 30 miles an hour.

The bag failed to inflate fast enough to keep a boy-sized dummy in the front passenger seat from crashing into the car windshield.

"If that had been a real boy and a real collision, that boy would have been killed," said Frey.

Saigon Artillery Base Overrun

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops overran part of a South Vietnamese mountaintop artillery base today, inflicting one of the heaviest casualty tolls suffered by the Saigon government's forces in such an attack.

Field reports said at least 46 South Vietnamese troops were killed, 86 wounded and 15 others missing. There also were some casualties among United States and Australian advisers at the outpost in the northwest corner of South Vietnam, the reports said.

At least 37 North Vietnamese were reported killed in the fighting, which began before dawn. A midafternoon North Vietnamese forces were still balding part of the base.

The outpost is a former U.S. marine base named Tun Tavern, after the Philadelphia inn where the Marine Corps was founded in 1775. It occupies a mountaintop overlooking the Da Krong River valley, a rugged region of jungled hills and mountains about four miles east of the Laotian border, and 21 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Although combined-forces operations in Cambodia have curtailed Communists attacks in the southern part of South Vietnam, there have been fierce North Vietnamese attacks recently against bases in the northernmost provinces, where South Vietnamese forces have taken over the major burden of combat.

The U.S. command reported no significant fighting by American units in Cambodia and said action in the Cambodian Fishhook and surrounding regions was "extremely light and scattered."

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 67 North Vietnamese killed and four South Vietnamese wounded in a North Vietnamese ground assault near Kompong Cham, and 36 North Vietnamese slain in clashes east of Prey Veng. Five South Vietnamese were killed and seven wounded in the latter action, headquarters said.

A Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh reported that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces had occupied the town of Rovieng in east central Cambodia, and were keeping up pressure on Kompong Thom, the provincial capital 90 miles to the south.

Several busloads of Cambodian paratroops headed south from Phnom Penh to sweep the roads 35 miles south of the capital where eight correspondents from the Colombia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Co. disappeared Sunday.

Three Americans were in the group, Gerald Miller and George Syvertsen of CBS and Welles Hagen of NBC. Cambodian soldiers said peasants in the area reported the Jeep in which Syvertsen, Miller and a Cambodian driver were riding was hit by a B-40 rocket, and then the Jeep and the two cars in which the other correspondents were riding came under automatic weapons fire.

War Wounds Heal in Biafra

OWERRI, Nigeria (Reuters) — The wounds of battle are healing across the land that was Biafra, but the scars run deep among the Ibos.

Life is pulling back into the market towns and villages of state. Starvation, which crippled the self-styled Biafran republic more severely than military action, has been checked.

But the problems are far from over. It is still a time of hardship and scarcity for the Ibo people of the East-Central state, which covers most of what was the Biafran enclave during 30 months of bitter conflict with federal Nigeria.

Because of a huge relief operation, the situation has improved enormously since the end of the fighting in January. The physical signs of war are few and the people in the towns look healthy and the markets are full of goods.

The farmers are still three or four months away from harvesting their main crop—cassava, a starch plant—and a lack of food and money are hindering their progress back to normality.

In the food that is available, there is the lack of protein which caused widespread disease among the Ibos near the end of the war. Nobody can estimate about 50,000 children still are being treated for malnutrition.

Doctors say they feel confident that if the food level stays the same there should be no more deaths. But starvation could quite easily happen again unless something is done to keep the food flowing.

Relief workers are seriously concerned about the future of emergency food supplies, which are scheduled to be phased out completely by the end of June. Only the main relief services will be continued by the government rehabilitation commission.

Wilson Hit by Egg In London

LONDON (Reuters) — A man who hit Prime Minister Wilson on the head with an egg Monday night said today he did it because of the cannibalistic meeting of opposed tour of England by an all-white cricket team from South Africa.

The man, Richard Ware, 22, hit Wilson on the forehead with an egg as the prime minister arrived at a political rally.

Ware, quoted in The Sun today, said: "I was standing five feet away and I aimed and I hit him. Mr. Wilson said people should demonstrate, so I did a bit of demonstrating myself."

Ware, however, will not be prosecuted as police said they did not see who threw the egg and would take no action.

Wilson dismissed the incident in good humor with the quip that because it was a fresh egg it was a clear sign that the cost of living could not have gone up too much. An aide wiped the egg off his face.

Mott Too Busy to Quit

NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Stewart Mott's birthday is today but he expects to be too busy for celebrations.

He doesn't like to waste time, even at 95.

Monday he attended, as usual, the monthly meeting here of the board of directors of General Motors Corp. He has been on the board since 1913.

Today he's to preside here as chairman of the board of U.S. Sugar Co., in which he owns majority interest.

Mott has devoted most of his time in recent years to philanthropy, giving away millions, primarily to education, through his Mott Foundation, in which he still takes an active part. His Hometown is Flint, Mich.

At one time he owned more than 4,000,000 shares of GM stock, but much of this and other holdings have now gone into his foundation, and he scoffs at reports he is one of the world's 15 richest men.

Mott is the last of the early organizers of GM.

Retire?

"Not as long as I can wiggle around," he responds.

Security Too Lax: Ex-Mountie

TORONTO (CP) — W. H. Kelly, a former deputy commissioner of the RCMP, said Monday Canada's immigration procedures are allowing European criminals and agents of the intelligence services of the Soviet bloc into the country.

Mr. Kelly told a conference of the Canadian Society for Industrial Security that Europeans with criminal records can come into Canada as visitors. When deportation proceedings are underway against them they can initiate a series of appeals and will probably be granted landed immigrant status in due time.

It "has not been lost on Soviet bloc intelligence services" that immigrants from Iron Curtain countries are able to enter Canada without a security check if sponsored by relatives, he said.

Foreign Communists can also enter if their visit is sponsored by a reputable organization such as the CBC or a university "and then he is allowed to lecture and conduct other Communist business."

Mr. Kelly said a bill before Parliament to expunge people's criminal records after a period of years without further convictions is "a suggestion that should get down the drain."

It would take away an important tool of the police trade, he said. Police investigating a crime on the basis of a fingerprint or method of criminal operation might not be able to cross-check through files of pardoned offenders and would not know whose records to ask the justice minister to release.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proves to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved — actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and — just as important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Legion Convention Split Over Membership for Non-veterans

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the Royal Canadian Legion's 52rd national convention were divided Monday over the question of extending legion membership to non-veterans.

The 1,200 delegates at Ottawa's Civic Centre held a split-filed debate on the proposal to allow associate members, such as sons and daughters of veterans, to take affiliate membership. Legion executives claim the membership extension must be accepted if the veterans' organization expects to survive.

Opponents claim it is a method for the national executive to get more funds from the provincial commands and individual branches.

Legion branches are at present allowed to admit non-veteran "club members" whose dues are never seen by national headquarters.

Doug McDonald, Ontario provincial president said that since branches have non-veterans "disguised" as members, opening up membership would be a logical way to legally screen applicants and get a "better type of affiliate member."

Roy Duckin of Thunder Bay argued the legion would be "changed" and taken out of the hands of the war veterans and there would be a danger of losing those old members.

Delegates are also disappointed with the federal government's proposals for revised benefits for war veterans as outlined in an address Monday by Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube.

Mr. Dube assured delegates that action would be taken next year on a government white paper. It does not deal with the issue of pensions but calls for a range of other benefits, particularly for the disabled.

Legion President Robert Kobaly said there is "no way the legion would accept" the government's white paper proposals.

The legion should continue to demand action on a report by the Government-appointed Woods committee which proposed benefits that would bring an additional $2,000,000 to veterans, Mr. Kobaly said.

The Estevan, Sask., lawyer urged veterans to write to MPs to increases in pensions and allowances ranging between 10 and 20 per cent on an interim basis.

George R. Pearkes, grand Legion president and former Conservative defence minister, disagreed with the convention's pessimistic mood and called Mr. Dube's address "reasonable."

"You couldn't really expect more than what he said because the government hasn't reached any decision yet," Mr. Pearkes said.

High School Girl Tells of Sex Study

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Many parents have written to me expressing their views (pro and con) about sex education. Occasionally a teenager comments.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: As a 17-year-old high school senior who recently completed an optional family life and sex seminar in social studies class, I would like to respond to Mrs. R's letter concerning sex education.

I agree that sex education is the parents' responsibility, but, fortunately, all too often parents fail to fulfill this responsibility because of their hangups, lack of confidence, knowledge and embarrassment.

This causes them to reduce their explanations to their children to "fowl facts" or vague generalities so that the ordeal will be over with as quickly and painlessly as possible. Such failure on the part of parents must be compensated for in the public educational system.

Contrary to the opinion of many parents, classroom teaching is a very good method of supplying this vital knowledge. The courses I took covered many aspects of sexuality and marriage.

In addition to the biological process, we discussed the sexual development of a child; the desire to dress and behave as males at different ages; emotional involvement in sex; the pros and cons of premarital sexual relations; the various social attitudes; the various churches' stands; the feminine and masculine egos; the female and male roles in society; standards for choosing a spouse; the dangers of teenage marriage; marital adjustments, and the psychology of a good marriage relationship.

The audio-visual and printed materials used in our class far from emphasized the physical aspects of sex as anti-sex educationists have accused them of doing. The teacher was very objective and presented all views.

As a result, the vast majority of the students came away from the seminar with the idea that premarital sex is not good. Not for vague and psychologically damaging reasons like "It's dirty," but because it interferes with the happiness of a future marriage.

Because of this course, the seniors at my school will have a much better chance for a life of happiness and for making and maintaining good marriages than any generation before them.

It is a shame that some parents whose pride is hurt because they are unable to adequately explain the phenomenon of sex to their children would selfishly allow their pride to stand in the way of their children's chances for happiness. — Miss L.

COMMENT: If adults will take the time to listen, they can learn much "from the mouths of babes." (Although rereading Miss L.'s logical letter will convince most people that she is far from being a "babe.") Here is a note from an adult who agrees with Miss L. in principle:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In reply to the letter from Mrs. R. in which she states that "sex education lies within the realm of parents' responsibility completely," she'll be most fortunate if her children are influenced only by the "atmosphere of great love, faithfulness and respect" she and her husband have for each other.

Wouldn't it be ideal if all children lived in such an atmosphere? But you and I know, better. How about the greater percentage of children who live with parents whose relationships are anything but good examples?

I believe that Mrs. R. is speaking of the ideal situation, and if her children are still young, she will come to realize they will be greatly influenced by outside factors regardless of her "old-fashioned virtues" and will be better off if taught the scientific facts rather than learn the distorted "filthy" ones from their playmates. — Mrs. B.

Mafia Invests Here

TORONTO (CP) — The Mafia is investing millions of dollars in Ontario as a cover for illegal activities, a Metropolitan Toronto police inspector said Monday.

Inspector Aubrey V. Potter said there are also aggressive groups anxious to restrict police use of surveillance equipment.

He told the Canadian Society for Industrial Security that the force needs new communications gear and equipment to cope with the influx of criminals into Toronto coupled with subversive groups who want to restrict police activity.

Ontario Cuts Housing Rents

TORONTO (CP) — Rents for the 27,000 tenants of Ontario's public housing will be lowered between $4 and $20 a month it was disclosed in an Ontario legislature committee Monday night.

A table of the new rents, effective July 1, was released in a committee questioning the estimates of the department of trade and commerce, responsible for the Ontario Housing Corp.

Rents in OHC units have been frozen since 1966.

Under the new scale, the lowest monthly rent for public housing will be $28 for a family with an income of $182 monthly, which currently pays $32.

For a family with two children and an income of $573 a month, the rent will be $143 monthly, down from the present $172.

The new scale provides for a rent-to-income ratio of 14.4 per cent for those at the lowest end of the income scale to 25 per cent for those at the highest.

In other business:

—George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said an international pollution conference scheduled for this month has been postponed to September because two states invited have not replied. Outside the house, he identified the states as Minnesota and Illinois.

—Mr. Kerr said the province now has regulations and criteria which, if obeyed by industry, will tell experts exactly what is happening as a result of discharge of any effluent or air pollutant.

The energy and resources minister also told the house Ontario is satisfied that sections of the proposed Canada water act which it considered unconstitutional have been covered.

—Mr. Kerr said that all industry which has been using a dump near Smithville, Ont., for disposal of liquid wastes will be under surveillance when the dump closes. He said anyone dumping industrial wastes in ditches, fields or drains will be prosecuted.

—Bert Lawrence, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said senior civil servants in his department and the department of education are discussing a school courses in consumer credit.

—Richard Smith (L—Niplssing) said the Ontario Housing Corp. paid $4,300 for lots in a low, wet area near North Bay when private developers were paying only $3,700 for better lots in the same subdivision. He said the purchase resulted in OHC paying $80,000 more than market value for 112 lots in a new subdivision. Stanley Randall, minister of trade and development, said he would check on the sales Mr. Smith referred to.

—House Leader Robert Welch said the government is prepared to move legislation that will permit Ontario separate schools to sell special services to the province's public schools.

Vote to Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A strike against the Toronto Hydro-Electric System was approved Monday by an 80 per cent vote of Local 1216 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Dick Proctor, a union spokesman, said the negotiating committee has recommended a strike be delayed pending further negotiations.

Shulman Introduces 30 Bills

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park), who entered politics a dab a day during the current sitting of the Ontario legislature, made up for lost time Monday by introducing 30 separate bills.

Up to Monday, the 60th sitting day for the house, he had introduced only three bills. Private members' bills are debated but die on the order paper without coming to a vote.

Dr. Shulman removed his suit coat in the oppressive 80-degree heat of the chamber and kept bobbing up and down to introduce his sheaf of bills to occasional jeers from the Conservative government benches.

Dr. Shulman's proposed legislation covered a wide gamut-to permit conjugal visiting in prisons, allow persons at an inquest to cross-examine witnesses, control wiretapping, and prevent the sale of inflammable lenses for eye glasses.

It costs the government about $200 to process each individual bill.

Other bills would raise the age of juvenile delinquency to 18 from 16, provide for the adoption of children by persons from outside the province only as a last resort, remove abuses in the fitting and selling of hearing aids, require cigarette firms to carry warning labels on cigarette packages about the danger to health, and relieve doctors, registered nurses and others of liability when giving prompt emergency medical treatment.

His 30th and last bill of the day would amend the Election Act to force candidates to report campaign donations of more than $100.

"Purpose of this bill," Dr. Shulman said with a smile, "assures the defeat of the present government."

Bourassa, Roberts Confer with Benson

MONTREAL (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson met here Monday night with premiers Robert Bourassa of Quebec and John Roberts of Ontario.

The two provincial leaders had met earlier in the day for the first time to discuss "social, economic and cultural" problems and similarities of both provinces.

Two Montreal newspapers-The Gazette and Le Devoir-suggested that Mr. Benson was fearful of an Ontario-Quebec "united front" at a finance ministers conference which opens Friday in Winnipeg.

Le Devoir said:

"This united front appeared to be formed so that the provinces could present Ottawa with common demands in fiscal matters . . . during the finance ministers conference. . . .

"Before the meeting in Winnipeg, the federal minister wanted to spell out his point of view and familiarize himself with the views of the two premiers."

The Gazette said:

"The unprecedented move came following mounting speculation that Canada's two big provinces have found so much common ground in their fiscal demands that they could hold the balance of power during the finance ministers' talks Friday and Saturday."

Nixon Wants Schools Open Twelve Months

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon called Monday for year-round operation of schools and more hiring of students by provincial government departments to solve the problem of finding summer jobs for students.

Mr. Nixon, speaking to the Burlington Chamber of Commerce, said 70,000 of 240,000 students seeking employment in Ontario won't be able to find full-time permanent summer work this year.

Operating schools in the summer months would ease the pressure on summer employment since many students would opt for increased study time. Mr. Nixon said some school boards have offered credit courses in high schools during the summer which have proven successful.

"These schools still, however, stand out as examples when, I believe, they should be the norm."

Women Work in Steel Mill

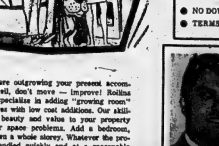
In a column a few months ago, I discussed the discrimination against women in business and in professions, where they are either barred from job equality or paid less for doing the same work as men.

The other day I happened to find myself in the company of the manager of a new steel works employing 6,000 people. He told me that since the works opened, it has hired some 250 women to perform tasks formerly done only by men.

"We tried it because of the labor shortage in our area," he said. "And at first everybody objected. The farmers insisted that women simply didn't have the physical strength, apart from the skills, to do these jobs."

"Actually," he went on, "the women have turned out to be more satisfactory employees than the men. They may lack in strength, they more than make up in diligence. Their attendance record is far better, and the turnover among female employees is substantially lower than among the men.

"I think we've convinced the foremen," he said, "but it was an uphill fight. The prejudice against women is as strong as ever, even though during World War II they proved they could do defence plant work."



The only men they had been able to get were in the 18-24 age group, who could take work or leave it alone, who would work for a week or two and then goof off, who changed jobs seasonally, or reared on the benefits of unemployment insurance.

"But the women are a different breed," he explained. "Many of them are working wives who are helping pay off a mortgage. Some are divorced, with small children. They're a lot more stable and responsible than the young men, and they take their work more seriously."

There is another factor militating against the use of women in industrial plants these days. Automation has decreased the need for physical strength, and increased the proportion of supervisory and clerical employees. As plants become more and more automated, quickness and intelligence and conscientiousness are valued higher than muscles.

Women all over the world are performing tasks that formerly were the exclusive province of men. It is doubtful, indeed, if the State of Israel could have survived without its women on farms, in factories, and even in the military. And it is foolish male chauvinism to suggest that such jobs "de-feminize" women, when the millennia men have been "de-humanizing" them into bovine creatures for breeding purposes.

35,000 Dead

Entire Town Swept Away

LIMA (Reuters) — An entire Andes town with 20,000 inhabitants was wiped off the map during the Peruvian earthquake Sunday. As the full extent of the holocaust was pieced together today, the over-all death toll soared past 35,000.

Northern Peru was shattered Sunday by the 45-second tremor, easily the severest ever to shake this earthquake-prone country.

The worst single disaster was in the tourist resort of Yungay, nestled between the Andean peaks of Huascaran and Huandoy, each more than 20,000 feet high.

The town and its 20,000 residents were swept away by avalanches set off by the quake, a presidential press spokesman, Augusto Zimmerman, said Tuesday.

He quoted an air force pilot who flew a helicopter over the town as saying: "There was just no trace of the town—just a cloud of dust."

Zimmerman said some 14,000 others also apparently died in surrounding villages and described the whole area as "very hard hit."

Yungay, 250 miles northeast of Lima in a central valley, was a town of narrow streets, picturesque markets and colorful Indian festivals.

The army started putting relief supplies and personnel into the area, and Lt.-Col. Enrique Flores Coron, named by the government as military and political chief of the devastated region, parachuted into the town of Huaras along with doctors, army nurses and radio operators.

Some 750 persons were killed in Huaras, and 2,500 were injured. Among those killed were 100 young girls and their teachers who gathered in Santa Elena school as part of a celebration for Corpus Christi, an army report said.

Flooding threatened to become a problem after large chunks of glaciers were shaken loose into lakes which overflowed.

End Car Engine Pollution In 5 Years Kerr Ultimatum

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario government will either end pollution from automobile engines in five years or ensure their replacement by another form of propulsion, George Kerr, the provincial resources an energy minister, said Tuesday.

He told delegates at the North American fuel technology conference here that the government has already taken some steps to curb emission of carbon monoxide from exhausts and emissions from carburetors and gasoline tanks.

"We are determined to either clean up the internal combustion engine by the middle of the decade or see it replaced by another form of propulsion," he said.

Dealing with North American pollution generally, Mr. Kerr said that predictions the human race will be dead in 30 years from pollution have caused unnecessary fright.

"These dire predictions are based largely on the premise that man will do nothing about the problems of air, water and soil pollution in the next decade or so," he said.

"This will not happen because, even if we politicians were the unfeeling Frankensteins we are often painted by our critics, the pressure of public opinion would force us to do something."

Telegram Asks Trudeau to Act

By MALCOLM JORNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The executive of the Hastings-Prince Edward Liberal Association has urged Prime Minister Trudeau to employ Canadian Forces planes in an airlift to assist earthquake victims in Peru.

"We most strongly urge that the Canadian Forces Transport Command at Trenton again be put to humanitarian use to help alleviate the suffering of these earthquake victims in Peru," the association concludes in a telegram sent to the PM last night.

The telegram notes that Air Transport Command rendered a great service by coming to the assistance of stricken people when a similar earthquake struck Chile eight years ago.

"The assistance given by Canada at that time was deeply appreciated by the people of Chile and recognized by all our neighbors in South America," the association stresses.

In addition the telegram says that a number of Canadian missionaries, of both Catholic and Protestant faiths, in Peru may be in great danger at this time.

A plaque, presented by the Chilean ambassador to Canada, recognizing Canada's contribution in the previous disaster is on display at Air Transport Command headquarters in Trenton.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday that the government has given $25,000 to the Canadian Red Cross for aid to earthquake-stricken Peru.

Meanwhile the Red Cross announced that aid valued at about $18,500 — $8,000 in clothing and $7,500 in cash — has been sent to help the Peru earthquake victims.

A spokesman for Air Transport Command said this morning that a "special" aircraft which just happened to be in Lima, Peru, on a regular flight, will be detained 24 hours in case it is required.

He added however that not many airfields in Peru can handle an aircraft the size of the Yukon transport and doubted that it would be used.

Any supplies delivered from Canada would be carried by other planes from Air Transport Command headquarters, he explained.

Meanwhile the estimated death toll in the Peruvian avalanche set off by Sunday's earthquake has risen to 25,000 — making it the largest disaster of this kind in Latin America during the 20th century.

A Chilean earthquake which claimed 30,000 lives in 1939 is the previous ranking Latin American disaster of this century. The largest earthquake in Latin American history took 61,000 lives in Ecuador in 1797.

Biggest North American earthquake of the 20th century was the San Francisco disaster of 1906 which killed 700 people. However all these are a far cry from the 1556 earthquake in China's Shensi province which resulted in a loss of 830,000 lives.

A similar disaster in Calcutta in 1737 killed 300,000 while in the 20th century China's Kansu province suffered losses of 180,000 lives in 1920 and 70,000 lives in 1932.

A Tokyo earthquake in 1923 claimed 143,000 victims.

Mediator Gives Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The pace of rotating strike activity by postal workers was stepped up today in the wake of a Tuesday breakdown in mediated talks.

Following announcement of the breakdown at a news conference by departing mediator A. W. R. Carrothers, postal locals across the country were ordered by national union headquarters to continue the rotating strike action which hit Tuesday in Newfoundland.

Although both sides said they wanted to keep talking, post office operations were disrupted as workers walked out in Saint John, N.B., the northwestern Quebec centres of Rouyn, Noranda, Val d'Or, Amos and Malartic, and in Calgary and the British Columbia communities of Prince Rupert, Kitimat and Terrace.

William Houle, co-chairman of the Council of Postal Unions which represents the workers in their contract dispute with the government, said all the walkouts were on orders of union headquarters.

Workers in Windsor, Ont., remain out in defiance of national council directives.

William Houle, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said in an interview that the unions' negotiating team would await a call Wednesday morning from the federal treasury board to settle on further meetings.

"We don't want to leave the bargaining table," he said.

Treasury board officials were also hopeful of getting back to the unions for more talks.

With Creation of Artificial Gene, Scientists Have Tool to Remodel Us

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Scientists announced Tuesday they have created a gene. Genes are the units of heredity, and control all life processes.

With this first artificial gene, the scientists headed by Dr. H. Gobind Khorana, a Nobel Prize-winner, have taken a profound step toward correction of inherited diseases, perhaps genetic "engineering" of improved humans and animals, and perhaps ultimately artificial creation of life itself.

The work of the University of Wisconsin team makes it possible to fashion genes completely from simple organic chemicals. Their artificial gene duplicates one occurring in a yeast cell.

Practical applications are still a long way off, especially artificial creation of life. The first simple life form for example might be a man-made virus but there possibly could be a hazard then as whether drugs existed to control such a new virus.

Genes are the chemical letters of the alphabet of life, forming a printing press that prints out people, and all other forms of life.

There are four basic chemicals, tied together in long sequences and therefore capable of myriad variation to make different "letters" or instructions that print out a highly complex living organism, from virus to man.

The synthesis of a gene is a major step in a genetic revolution that began in the 1940s with the discovery that growth and heredity are controlled by the chemical substance called DNA, for deoxyribonucleic acid. Genes are molecules of DNA, and there are about 150,000 genes clustered in chromosomes in the nucleus of every human cell.

The genes control the cells as they assemble amino acids into proteins, the basic building blocks of living tissue. The DNA contains the four chemicals that hold the inherited information that prints out the shape of your nose, your sex, everything that makes you you.

Picton Medical Man Moving to Belleville

PICTON (Staff) — Seeking "growing room" for his family, Dr. Lionel Dockrill, who operated a practice in Picton here 11 years ago, has decided to locate in Belleville in July.

Describing Picton as "a very progressive community and a small enough city in which to live", Dr. Dockrill said he feels it can offer opportunities for his children, Lionel Jr., Patti, Kevin, Joe, Sean and Danny. His eldest daughter, Mrs. Peggy Young (Roberta) resides with her husband in Calgary while a younger daughter, Glenna, teaches elementary school in Ottawa.

The 48-year-old physician is a graduate of Dalhousie University in Halifax, his home city. He completed his studies following service with the Canadian army in Europe during World War II and arrived at Camp Picton as a medical officer in 1958. Discharged from the army in 1959, he opened his practice in Picton.

Dr. Dockrill, nicknamed "Doc," quickly became involved in community affairs and served a term with town council. He was president of the Liberal Association for the federal riding in 1967-68 but today says he has no personal political aspirations in any direction.

Dr. Dockrill, named Man of the Year by the Picton Jaycees in 1967, devoted much of his free time to young persons interested in sports. He has acted as coach and instructor for hockey, softball and lacrosse teams here. His fifteen-year-old son, Kevin is recognized as a skilled junior B hockey player in Belleville.

A past president of the Picton Kiwanis Club, Dr. Dockrill has also served this community as a member of the Prince Edward County Memorial hospital board, the county fair board and the arena commission. He was also chairman of the sea cadet committee for some time. Summarizing his years in Picton, Dr. Dockrill remarked, "We've enjoyed our life here very much and, in many respects, deeply regret leaving. We feel, however, that with so many young children we must find opportunities and growing room for them."

Dr. Dockrill is married to the former Ethel Lings, a registered nurse originally from Capreol, Ontario.

Following his arrival in Belleville Dr. Dockrill expects to establish his practice in an office formerly occupied by Dr. Richard Potter, Conservative MPP for Quinte. He and his family will reside on Bridge Street East.

Two Men Face Multiple Charges

Bail has been set at $10,000 for two Kingston men who have been charged as the result of a shooting incident at the home of Albert Horlock, 56 Stanley Park Drive on May 3.

Police revealed this morning, almost a month after the incident, that Ralph Patrick Longstaff, formerly of Belleville and residing in Kingston has been charged with shooting with intent to wound and possession of stolen goods.

A second man, Franklin Ralph Hart, 21, of the same address in Kingston has been charged with possession of stolen goods.

Both men are also charged with six counts of breaking and entering in Kingston — three they are at present in custody — and two counts of arson surrounding the $250,000 burning of a Uniroyal store in Kingston and LaSalle Tire and Battery.

Police revealed this morning that on the night of May 4, two men were chased away from Mr. Horlock's home by Albert Horlock Jr. During the chase one of the fugitives fired at him.

Police apprehended Mr. Longstaff and Mr. Hart in the area shortly thereafter and following investigation, two revolvers, stolen from Alfred's Sporting Goods in Kingston, were discovered.

R. Alastair Rickard, BA son of Rev. R. H. and Mrs. Rickard, 235 Foster Ave., received his Master of Arts degree in history at the convocation held at Waterloo University, Kitchener, May 29. He attended high school at Central Collegiate and Vocational School in Oshawa and Quinte Secondary School in Belleville. Following his graduation he was awarded his BA at Carleton University and his training as a teacher at Queen's University. After teaching at Chesterville Area High School for one year he entered Waterloo University for graduate studies in history. This summer he is remaining at the university to complete a degree of Master of Philosophy.

Miss Hideko Umeda of the Japanese Consulate in Toronto brought an authentic touch to the ceremonies opening Little Japan yesterday at Ben Bleecker Auditorium. # OMB to Control Subdivisions

Recent purchase of river front acreage by outside developers, prompted this week's session of Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough of subdivision control on Rawdon township.

The Hastings county municipality was one of four township plazed under subdivision control this week by Mr. McKeough. The other three were in Grey county.

Rawdon township clerk William Barlow said today he was attempting to arrange a meeting for Friday of this week to have subdivision control regulations explained by a representative from the municipal affairs department.

"Until then I won't know much about it," he said.

Mr. Barlow said, however, that outside developers had recently bought up considerable acreage along the Crowe and Moira rivers in the northend of the township.

With subdivision control he said these people would have to work with the municipal affairs department and there would be controls on development.

Council Considers Loitering Bylaw

PICTON (Staff) — Just "standing on the corner" could become an expensive pastime in Picton should town council favor a bylaw to prohibit loitering included in the monthly town police report.

The bylaw, effective in Georgetown, states that no person can lounge, lurge or stand as an idler on any public sidewalk or street or highway or in any public place, as specified in the Canada criminal code statutes.

Citizens ignoring this bylaw are subject to fines of not less than $10 and not more than $200, costs exclusive.

Members of town council have referred the bylaw to clerk Andrew Jarvis who will discuss it with town solicitor R. E. Nourse.

Expo Alternative At Bleecker Hall

If a visit to Expo 70 at Osaka is out, a substitute can be arranged — a viewing of Little Japan at Ben Bleecker auditorium this week.

The exhibition was opened yesterday afternoon and will continue until Friday noon for public viewing.

The result of a month-long project by 15 Quinte district schools, Little Japan has transformed the auditorium into a colorful exhibition hall with something to interest everyone.

"This project is probably unique in Ontario," L. P. Reid, superintendent of academic service for the Hastings county board, told the audience at opening ceremonies.

A pupil, Miss Karen Hasselfelt was master of ceremonies for the opening. Guest speaker was Miss Hideko Umeda, from the Japanese consulate in Toronto, who complimented the two school choirs in attendance for their singing of Japanese songs and the national anthems.

The exhibition is open during the days between the hours of 9.30 and 11.30 a.m. and 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Following the opening girls from the home economics classes of Queen Alexandra and Harry J. Clarke schools served tea and cookies they had baked themselves.

Wednesday and Thursday nights the exhibition will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. to feature exhibitions by members of the local Japanese community who assisted the schools with the project.

Tonight, Edward Attrill will demonstrate origami, the Japanese art of paper folding. Mrs. Frank Andrews will demonstrate Ikebana — a Japanese school of flower arranging.

Thursday night will feature a karate display and Mrs. Mahkawa will be on hand again for a Japanese language demonstration.

New Stamp Issues Planned for June

By IAN ROBERTSON
(Staff Reporter)

With the present postal unrest in Canada bringing about strikes in cities across the country, the plans by the Philatelic Service of the Post Office could very well be upset with this summer's commemorative release plans. They have tentatively set release dates for two special stamps in June.

LOUIS RIEL

This year marks what is considered the 100th anniversary of the high point in the career of Louis David Riel, infamous leader of the Metis in the North West Rebellion of 1885. He was hanged for treason at Regina on November 16, 1885.

To commemorate this event, honoring this man whom historians refer to as one of the decisive figures in Canada's formative years the Post Office will release a special commemorative six cent stamp on June 19.

Designed by Reinhard Derath of Vancouver, 34 million of these red and blue stamps featuring a portrait of Riel will be printed by the British American Bank Note Company, Ltd., a two color gravure process.

SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE

On July 22, 1793, Alexander Mackenzie, only 29, completed the first crossing of the North American continent north of Mexico.

Born in Scotland in 1764, he emigrated to Canada, entering the service of a fur trading company at the age of 15.

1789 saw him the first white man to reach the Arctic at the mouth of the river named after him — the Mackenzie — but he wasn't satisfied until he was able to erect a marker at the Pacific Ocean.

To this day, his life's ambition is marked by his writing on a stone on the Fraser River by Ocean Falls, B.C. The original writing in paint has since been preserved by chiselled letters filled with red cement.

It is this inscription that appears on the special brown stamp featuring a Government Archives photograph of the marker.

Knighted for his successes by King George III in 1802, Mackenzie later returned to Montreal and sat as a member of the Lower Canada Assembly. He retired to Scotland in 1808 to die there in 1820.

It is this anniversary that is marked 150 years later by the issue of this special stamp on June 25.

Printed by the Canadian Bank Note Co. Ltd., Ottawa, 34 million of these steel engraved stamps will be issued.

First day covers should be self-addressed and forwarded to "The First Day Cover Service," Canada Post Office, Ottawa 2. Ontario to arrive not later than June 12 for the Riel issue and June 17 for the Mackenzie issue. There is a service fee of 10 cents for each cover only if the face value of the affixed stamps does not total 75 cents or more.

It was recently announced by the post office that plates 3 and 4 of the Queen Elizabeth regular series are available from Ottawa, Toronto and other philatelic orders, write to the Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Confederation Heights, Ottawa 8, Ontario.

The 1970 nickel dollar, still referred to by collectors as a "silver dollar" has been unavailable at the local banks for the past three to four months. However, recently certain branches have obtained limited quantities of these heavily sought-after coins and they announce that further supplies are expected.

This year's coin was specially designed to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Manitoba's joining Confederation. The coin has been considered by many collectors to be one of the best designs the Canadian Mint has struck.

In Hospital After Crash

TRENTON (Staff) — Patrick Donato, 28, of Trenton, is under observation in Trenton Memorial Hospital following an early morning single car accident.

Donato was proceeding west on Dundas Street East at 2.56 when he failed to make the turn at the top of Gilmour Hill.

The 1966 vehicle he was driving struck a safety island and caused $150 damage to a flashing light and standard. Damage to the car was estimated at $1,000.

Police are continuing their investigation.

STEADILY IMPROVING

No Fence-Hopping Here

The residents of the Ghent Drive subdivision off Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton are fighting to improve their surroundings. By blocking this road, they are attempting to prevent cottagers and car-cowboys from ruining the stretch of park to the left of this parked car.

Just Mucking Around

Sid Carswell digs soft algaed mud from the surface of his neighbor's land. The water level of the land in the Ghent Drive subdivision off Highway 2 is so high that the addition of new homes and runoff from the area have left pools of stagnant water standing on homesites.

Standing Water Pools Irk Sidney Residents

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

The 19 families living in the Ghent Drive subdivision off highway two in Sidney Township are annoyed to say the least.

Their subdivision has a very big problem, and that problem is water.

The homes are situated on a section of land where the water table is very high. Situated right on the shores of the Bay of Quinte and in a natural dip in the land the ground has a high level of water below the surface.

That in itself is only part of the problem.

When the first homes began to rise, adequate drainage for them was not installed. As more homes were built, this drainage was increased to the point where the water table has risen, leaving water on the surface of the land in large, stagnant pools.

The culverts that were installed are in many cases at uneven heights, making the flow of water inadequate.

To top that off, the subdivision being on a lower level, receives water drainage from Highway 2 and some of the homes nearby.

Is it the township's problem?

The families around Ghent Drive think so.

Last year they petitioned Sidney Township Council to have something done about their problem. Council sent in surveyors and health officials from Trenton and the area.

The results of their findings were forwarded to the families. It was going to cost $3,000 to provide adequate drainage and divert the water to the west of the properties. Council was willing to pay half the cost if the residents would meet the other half.

Nothing was done about it.

One resident, Mrs. Harold Howard explained, "not one of our neighbors has complained about taxes, but since the lowest taxes are $200 and the highest $450, which does not give us garbage disposal, sidewalks, paved streets, street lighting, or sewers, we think we pay enough for the township to clear this problem up."

Since last year, when the families approached council, two more homes have been built and the backup is worse.

Weeks after the spring runoff in other areas has drained away, the properties of the subdivision have pools of water and the ground is, in many places, soggy under foot.

Another delegation met with council on Monday night to demand that something be done.

"We've called in health officials, and if we have to go through the channels to the top in Toronto, we're going to do it," said one delegate.

Reeve Jack Bush explained that their teams had just recently investigated the problem and were quite aware of the facts.

"But one thing I must make clear is that of your annual taxes, Sidney Township can only take 11 per cent for improvements."

"Why, 55 per cent alone goes for school taxes," he explained.

"On that basis, you can only do so much on improvements."

One decision reached at the meeting and agreed upon by everyone was the fact that there should have been adequate draining provided when the lots were first laid out for a subdivision.

As township clerk J. Byron Harder explained, "the problem has existed for over 10 years now."

One delegate conceded "it was a shame that the township took over our subdivision without the contractors previously providing adequate drainage."

"We can't make our homes nice places to live in with this problem," said Mrs. Howard.

"We've got nice homes, and a lot of us have spent a lot of time and effort landscaping . . . we've even built a retaining stone wall along this ditch which is filled with algaed water."

"You know, most of these people have little children and this business is not only dangerous, but it's unhealthy," Mrs. Howard explained.

Along with their problems with water runoff, the families are having a hard time keeping their subdivision attractive from another angle.

Lot 29 of the subdivision was deeded to the families years ago as a park to be used by the residents. This park borders on a rocky beach on the bay and provides access to the short.

At the northerly corner of this lot is the end of a stone, fence erected by the family of the previous owners. This fence has long since been broken down and a roadway has emerged through which cottagers drive to gain access to their dwellings.

"How can we make this into a nice park with everybody driving through there . . . young fellows race their cars through here and through our park area, making ruts, and leaving an unholy mess," one delegate explained to council.

"Why there are even rats down there."

The purpose of mentioning this was to get council's reassurance that they had the right to block up the old stone fence with boulders. Council reiterated that because the private roadway running parallel to the fence was not in a department of highway standards, the township could not assume responsibility for its maintenance but that the residents in the subdivision have the right to protect their property and could enforce it by blocking the pathway entrance.

So while one problem has been settled to allow the families to improve their property, another exists.

Council announced that while the drainage problem will be left in abeyance, they will be conducting further investigations to find a cheaper method of draining the land and providing better methods to remove the runoff. Results of these investigations should be available in the future.

Trailer Group Holding Rally

The quarterly meeting of the Travel Trailer Club Association of Ontario was held last weekend at Big Boulder Camp Ground, Glen Miller.

Plans were completed for the annual rally, to be held this year in Trenton on June 26 to 30. More than 300 trailers are expected to be present at the rally, with Quinte Travel Trailer Club members as hosts. Trailer enthusiasts from all over Ontario are expected to attend.

Edward Todd, Trenton, is chairman of the 1970 rally and Mrs. Douglas Porter, Picton, is in charge of publicity. They will be interviewed on Kingston television June 4 concerning their trailer club interests.

Auto Accident 'Epidemic'

It is a long time since we have said anything about the auto accident toll, but three related news items attracted our attention recently.

First, an accident that killed four young Niagara Falls people, including two teenage sisters. Their station wagon, driven by a young man — one of the dead — smashed into a tree on the Niagara Parkway near Fort Erie. Earlier it had been observed emerging from a sideroad and swerving down the road at high speed. Two bottles of wine, one partially empty, were found in the car.

A fifth passenger in the car, a young man of 24, survived. "We were just taking a ride," he said from his hospital bed.

In addition to the two girls and the driver, the accident took the life of a 21-year-old man.

Thus we are reminded that what might be termed the "hot-rod syndrome," rather than seeming less prevalent of late, is still with us. In fact traffic accidents now are the leading cause of deaths in North America in the age group one to 37.

On the same general theme we turn to the city of Brockville where a recent traffic safety check revealed that of 74 cars observed no fewer than 56 were found to have defects. These ranged from a loose front seat to defective headlights, but only one vehicle was found to be so seriously defective that the plates were removed. In previous checks three had been ruled off the road.

Using this as a base we wonder how many defective cars are being operated across the country, and how many lives may be lost as a result?

And finally, to refer to the Toronto seminar which revealed the fact about traffic being the leading cause of death for people aged one to 37. It was the first seminar in Canada on the medical aspects of safe driving and delegates heard Dr. Donald Huskins of the University of Michigan note that "mechanized death has reached epidemic proportions."

Dr. Huskin called for improvements in highway design, stricter controls on drivers with mental and physical ailments and better automobile design.

We agree entirely, but with the melancholy thought that it is really a losing battle. A long line of new cars on a passing freight train recently . . . an accident like that on the Niagara Parkway . . . and results of the safety check in Brockville are cause only for imagining.

Easy Handling

The magazine Sweden Now, in a recent issue showed two young men wearing what appeared to be a new line of leisure clothes for the fashion-conscious male. Instead it was a new style for hospital patients and staff. Evolved by a firm which takes care of a good deal of Sweden's hospital laundry, the clothing is designed to make handling easier. Each size has a specific color and all colors match each other so that a patient, if necessary, can wear a jacket of one size and trousers or skirt of another.

The same magazine contains an article on Stockholm's ultra-modern Danderyd hospital which has a computer bank containing information on more than a million people in the Stockholm area. The computer provides rapid information on such vital matters as blood group, vaccinations, case history and so on.

It is the kind of thing which hospitals will be going into more and more in the future but which now is being carried out only in such specialist establishments as Danderyd.

Name Game

You know how people mess up each other's names. They never familiarize themselves with names in general, never bother to ask if one is spelled this way or that, and often add insult to injury by saying it is near enough, or the number on the receipt, say, is sufficient for correct identification.

It happens all the time, anywhere one's name is required — in government offices, doctors' offices, drug stores and so on. And the thought occurs, if the Apollo 13 astronauts, or ground control at Houston, had been as careless about their calculations as people generally are with names the space trip never would have made it back.

But then, those same mathematical geniuses possibly are like the rest of us when it comes to names. So we get back to the old problem, a fellow just cannot win.

Unemployed and Pensioners Need Relief

The Freeing of the Dollar and Its Consequences

The Globe and Mail

The Finance Minister had only two reasonable choices — having wisely rejected the excessive inexplicitness of 1962. He could revalue the dollar to a higher fixed figure, which would have invited more speculation and run the risk of selecting a figure which could not be supported. Or he could temporarily free the dollar to find its own natural level, after which that level could be accepted as the new fixed rate.

In taking the second course, Mr. Benson did the correct thing and did it correctly. He had forgotten the recent revaluation of the German mark, which was preceded by the freeing of the mark to find its own level. He notified the IMF, in advance, of what he intended to do. He did it unexpectedly (surely one of the few times when such a manoeuvre has been successful and surely not the sort of useful skill for which the Opposition should be blaming him). He made it clear that Canada would return to a fixed rate of exchange "as soon as circumstances permit".

This initial measure, however, can only be as good as the measures which succeed it; but Mr. Benson has already made it evident that the freeing of the dollar was not an act in isolation from other means which the Government could use to direct its economy. While he was dealing with the dollar, Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, was announcing that the bank rate would be reduced from 7¼ to 7 per cent — a move which is largely symbolic but which does indicate as Mr. Benson said, "some easing of the monetary situation in Canada". Then, he told the Commons that he was abandoning the credit restraints which had been projected in the budget, because the rising strength of the freed dollar would itself have a deflationary effect on the economy.

It will. Canadian exports will be as much less competitive on the world market as the dollar increases in value. Imports from foreign countries will be that much more competitive with domestic products.

The effects will be several. The United States, our major trading partner, has been suffering because our dollar was undervalued in relation to theirs and this has given us a competitive advantage. Freeing the dollar should improve our relations and that — in the various disputes which are involved at the — would be a good thing.

There is also the possibility that falling exports and rising imports will increase unemployment. Increases will appear to feel that the chief enemy is inflation. His measures have already, in the first quarter of 1970, given Canada one of the lowest inflation rates in the western world, while the U.S. inflationary position worsened but he apparently still believes the battle is not won and he could result the provinces on Friday in Winnipeg, possibly with a view to imposing wage and price controls.

Mr. Benson will have to play with a lot of levers to maintain any sort of balance; and second the first should be those which relieve the lot of Canadians who have suffered from inflation and the fight against it.

Measures should be taken to improve the lot of the unemployed and to increase the income of old-age pensioners on the supplement program. Cost of living escalation clauses were supposed to have been provided for pensioners, but they don't rise high enough. The near future should see genuine escalators provided for both pensioners and unemployed.

On the Beach

On April 1, 1770, Captain Cook sailed from New Zealand and headed home to Britain via the hitherto unknown eastern seaboard of Australia. He charted the coast in spite of the perils of the Great Barrier Reef and sailed through the Torres Strait between Cape York and Papua and on to Batavia where crew members were stricken with malaria and dysentery. Cook finally made it home on July 12, 1771 and was promoted to the rank of commander. In this scene sailors and marines and assorted cubs, brownies and beachcombers re-enact a three-volley salute following Cook's planting of a Queen Anne naval ensign on the beach at Kurnell, in Botany Bay. ### Instead of Walkathons

Why Not Clean-up Days for Money?

In the following letters students attending high school in Belleville discuss a contemporary issue and offer some interesting suggestions.

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I have read many of your articles on water pollution and have come to the conclusion that except for informing the public of the current water conditions it does very little by way of encouraging people to help with the crisis.

I would like to suggest a way in which people could raise money as well as clean up the water.

Recently a young Trenton boy, while participating in a walkathon was struck by a car. Due to this incident any further walkathons may be cancelled. I asked myself why these people couldn't be cleaning up beaches or shores to raise money instead of walking along busy highways.

After discussing this point with a few people, I decided to write to you and ask your readers for their opinions of this idea.

I believe this may solve two of the more serious problems of our community. These problems are littered beaches and need for charitable funds.

JOHN LITTLE

• • •

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
Belleville is full of litter bugs. Open your eyes and take a good look at our city. It is our city because we live in it and we make it prosper. When you enter a city its appearance tells you something about it and the people who live there. How would our city rate?

Think about it for just a minute, a place at the streets. Belleville is becoming littered, and it's our fault. How many times have you just thrown a piece of garbage on the ground, because there wasn't a garbage can close by?

You've heard the saying "Every little Bit Hurts," well, it's true. With every piece of garbage you drop on the ground, you're adding to what may become a disease-infested city, one in which you would not be proud to live.

The garbage attracts insects and rats and they are two of the main sources of spreading and carrying diseases. A city has to give a good impression to people who are just visiting, or to people who are looking for a good responsible community in which to raise their children and families.

A good impression will not be created if there are papers blowing along the streets or boxes piled and thrown along the sidewalks. That's what dumps are for as well as garbage cans and it's up to the people to see that the litter is disposed of properly. Garbage collectors can not be expected to do everything.

There is nothing embarrassing about throwing garbage in a disposal can, but you are certainly showing your ignorance by not doing so. It's up to everyone to do their own part, for at least try to keep our city clean.

The YMCA's Role in The Community

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In reading and listening to the controversy that took place recently over the local tax situation and The Belleville Family YMCA, I could not help feel that many people in our city do not realize the importance of the YMCA, not only to our community but to our nation and world.

For example: the YMCA in Jerusalem has been the only place that Jews and Arabs have been able to sit down together and discuss their differences. Even though they are still in conflict, if there is to be peace it will likely result from their peoples meeting on common ground in places like the YMCA. The YMCAs around the world are developing young lives to seek a world peace and freedom for all people.

The YMCA across Canada is in action trying to deal with the realization of youth by creating dialogue, stimulus, educational opportunities, etc. This is a difficult task, especially when you are trying to give leadership to your own children. I have faith in this national movement because it has helped to develop great men and has given leadership that stimulates youth in all walks of life which has helped to make Canada a better place in which to live.

The local Family YMCA is part of this great institution. The controversy that took place over whether the city should make grants to the YMCA in lieu of taxes, made many people question how important the organization is. I feel this is a poor way to tell people what the Y does because the Y doors are open to all.

Many statements were made that were not true because people will not take the time to go to the Y and discuss with the Y people what it is all about. There are always two sides to every story and unless you know both sides no one should make any decisions.

In answer to His Worship the Mayor that the city might be taking the Y over in two or three years: if this occurs, it will be the first time in the history of the YMCA that a city in Canada has taken over a YMCA.

In the depression years two cities in Canada took over the deeds of a YMCA for a short period of time and then later gave a sizable donation to build a new YMCA in one city and renovate the other.

YMCA is another city a short time ago was in financial difficulty with what it owed to a lender. The people of that city realized the situation and the money was raised and the Y there is now a flourishing institution.

It is impossible for you and me to value the importance and good that a YMCA does. Many people today who have come up through the Y are outstanding citizens because of the training received there.

Money is important, but more important is that young people realize that they should have good physical and moral bodies as they are in the world to improve our way of life.

Canadian Content

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I listen to the Pierre Berton and Charles Templeton radio dialogue every day. Mr. Berton doesn't think the 30 per cent Canadian content will be an unbearable burden for any TV station.

Wouldn't it be as logical to limit his "interview" of celebrities to the same restriction — or Front Page Challenge?

Imports from Far East Undercut Canadian Products

From Hansard

Hon. George Hees (Prince Edward - Hastings): I wish to direct a question to the Minister of Finance. On April 23, four weeks ago, I asked the minister if the government would give consideration to its tariff policies as they apply to imports of footwear and electrical goods from low-wage countries such as Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and others where wage scales are so low that Canadians cannot compete with these conditions. This situation is causing mass lay-offs in these Canadian industries. The minister was kind enough to say that the government expected to make a announcement on this very soon. I checked the words "very soon" in his answer. Has "very soon" now arrived?

Hon. E. J. Benson (Minister of Finance): Mr. Speaker, an announcement was made in one particular field, the textile area. The other areas are under continuing study.

Mr. Hees: A supplementary question. I ask the minister when "very soon" will arrive? When can we expect an answer to be given regarding these two industries?

Mr. Benson: Very soon, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Hees: What in the world is very soon? Is it the four years the minister has taken to fight inflation?

Mr. Speaker: Order, please. The end of the question period is coming very soon.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 3, 1970 . . .

The battle of Midway—the turning point of the war in the Pacific—began 28 years ago today. Japan was seeking a naval showdown. Japan committed the bulk of her fleet to an invasion of Midway Island, westernmost of the Hawaiian chain. American carrier-based planes attacked the Japanese off Midway and sank four large cruisers. Japanese planes sank the American carrier Yorktown, but most of their losses the Japanese called off the invasion of Midway. The destruction of their aircraft carriers robbed the Japanese of their early initiative in the Pacific and restored naval parity.

1934—Dr. Frederick Banting, co-discoverer of insulin, was knighted by King George.

1963—Pope John XXIII died, aged 81.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1945—British troops took the mountain-bound highway stronghold of Thandaung, hurling Japanese forces in southeast Burma back toward Thailand; John E. Davies returned from London where he conferred with government officials as President Truman's representative.

'Blow Me Down'

Sunny weather and brisk winds brought Belleville sailing enthusiasts out in force Sunday. Members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club held a warm-up race around the bay in preparation for the regular racing season which begins next Sunday.

Surtax Will Help Local Shirtmakers

The placing of a surtax on low-cost imported shirts, announced yesterday by Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin will benefit the Canadian shirt industry as a whole.

This is the feeling of Jack Kostas, manager of Bell Shirt in Belleville who said that Canadian shirt manufacturers had been hard hit by imports from low-cost labor countries.

The trade minister said the surtax on imported shirts had been instituted to offset falling employment in the Canadian textile industry.

The surtax, effective today, is expected to hit low-wage Asian, African and Communist countries with which Canada does not have restricted agreements. Imports from high wage countries such as Britain and the United States won't be affected, officials said.

Neither will imports from Japan and other countries with which Canada has restraint agreements.

The full $24 surtax will apply to shirts leaving their home plant at less than $13 a dozen. Canadian buyers have been paying as little as $8 a dozen.

Importers of shirts priced at above $13 a dozen will pay twice the difference between $24 and the lower export price of a dozen such shirts. For those selling at $13 a dozen, for instance, the surtax would be $11 doubled, or $22.

The trade minister named no countries in his Commons statement but said "disruptively low prices" for imported men's and boy's woven fabric shirts forced the action.

Coronation Knitting Mills Canada Ltd. in a typical reaction from the industry said the surtax is "the finest thing the minister ever did."

Fifty Canadian textile plants have closed since 1966.

A spokesman from Deacon Brothers in Belleville said he didn't believe the surtax on imported shirts would have and affect on their operation.

Mr. Kostas, however, said the surtax would reduce some of the problems of Canadian manufacturers who he said had been forced to diversify to remain in business.

Without the surtax, shirt imports from low wage countries were being landed in Canada for less than Canadian manufacturers paid for the cloth, he said.

However, Mr. Kostas felt that in recent months there had been an increasing awareness of the Canadian-made label by buyers in this country.

Changing styles and the advent of colored shirts had improved the position of Canadian manufacturers who were able to get the new styles onto the market before foreign manufacturers could catch up.

MODERN GOVERNMENT

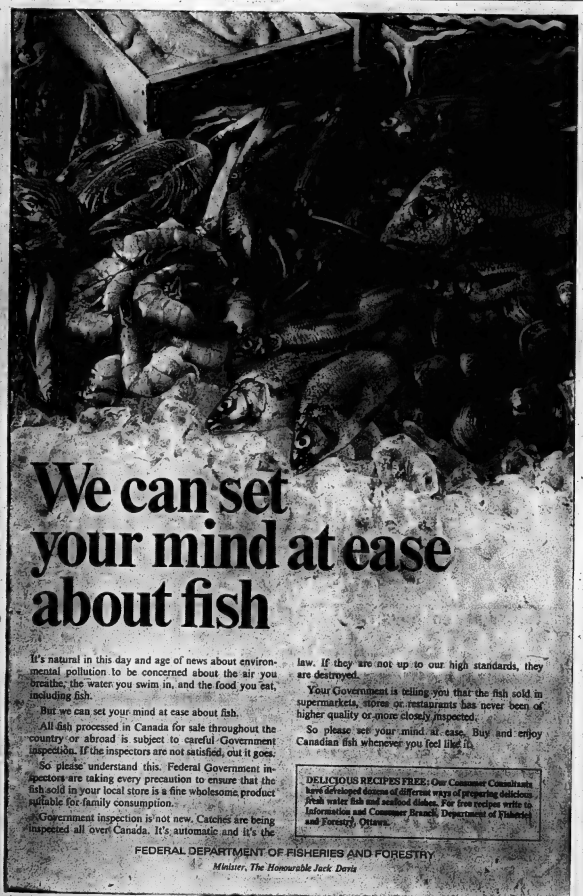
BAHREIN (AP) — Sheik Hamed bin Isa, ruler of this oil-rich sheikdom, announced he will modernize his government by cutting it from 24 departments to a state council of 12. The sheik, in his early 20s, will be defence minister.

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because the boy with a newspaper route — a junior independent merchant — has a year 'round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience — learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.



Your newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by newspaperboy route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

We can set your mind at ease about fish

It's natural in this day and age of news about environmental pollution to be concerned about the air you breathe, the water you swim in, and the food you eat, including fish.

But we can set your mind at ease about fish.

All fish processed in Canada for sale throughout the country or abroad is subject to careful Government inspection. If the inspectors are not satisfied, out it goes.

So please understand this. Federal Government inspectors are taking every precaution to ensure that the fish sold in your local store is a fine wholesome product suitable for family consumption.

Government inspection is not new. Catches are being inspected all over Canada. It's automatic and it's the law. If they are not up to our high standards, they are destroyed.

Your Government is telling you that the fish sold in supermarkets, stores or restaurants has never been of higher quality or more closely inspected.

So please set your mind at ease. Buy and enjoy Canadian fish whenever you feel like it.

An Enticing Dish

A kabob dinner is a conversation feast. The children enjoy stripping the colorful variety of foods from the skewers. Mary Moore gives details of foods that cook in the same length of time and are good companions on a bed of rice.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Kabobs with Savory Rice

By MARY MOORE

Nine-inch stainless steel kabob skewers may be bought on a card of four for 98 cents.

I was indeed into giving this kabob meal by my other friend, Frank Campiotio because he served swordfish and scallop kabobs to our press club annual meeting. He did not have enough swordfish for everybody so he improvised.

That is the fun of kabobs — the variety and color. But you have to choose your items with your mind on cooking times. Each item has to reach the finish line in a dead-heat.

To make my dinner for five totally different I served our kabobs on Savory Rice and I recommend it to you.

KABOBS ON SAVORY RICE

NOTE: These amounts fill eight 8" stainless steel skewers.

8 beef weiners ("all beef franks") each cut into pieces

½ lb. chicken livers, cut in halves

8 thick slices bacon each cut into three pieces

16 small mushrooms (about ½ lb.)

16 little cherry tomatoes

As you impale the ingredients on the skewers remember to start and finish with a piece of doubled over bacon. Centre each piece of food and push each piece as close to the next as possible: bacon, mushroom, wiener, tomato, chicken liver, bacon, mushroom, wiener, tomato, chicken liver, bacon. Place all on broiler pan with rack. Broil in oven at 450 deg. Fahr. until top sides begin to brown — about 3 min. Remove from oven, remove rack and lower and turn over kabobs into bacon fat collected in pan. Broil 5" from burner until other sides are done — about 5 min., but do not overcook.

Serve on bed of SAVORY RICE

1½ cups raw long grain rice
3½ cups boiling water
1 tsp. salt
½ cup chopped onions
2 tbsps. margarine or butter
¼ lb. mushrooms, scrubbed and sliced
¼ tsp. pepper
1 cup grated cheese
½ cup sliced toasted almonds (optional)

In heavy pot add rice and salt to boiling water, cover, bring to boil, turn off heat for 8 min. Do not uncover. Turn heat as low as possible for 25 min., when rice will be done. Saute onion and mushrooms in butter until limp but not brown and gently stir into cooked rice along with all remaining ingredients and heat through over low heat.

Serve plates (warmed) in the kitchen: Lay kabobs on large serving of rice. Allow one kabob for each child and two for each man. These were very popular here and open a new vista of guest menus for you. There are all kinds of additions such as the obvious cubes of steak and slices of onion and green pepper but I would like to hear from some of our imaginative cooks if they discover some oddities for "kabobbing".

What's in Education for Year 2000?

EDMONTON (CP) — What will education be like in the year 2000?

Nobody knows for sure, but an Alberta commission will spend the next couple of years trying to find out. It hopes to predict some of the changes that will take place in the next three decades and what role educational institutions will play.

The commission on educational planning is undertaking one of the most ambitious studies ever done in Canada, said Dr. Walker Worth, chairman of the commission. And it has just started one of its most important phases: public hearings.

Hearings are being held throughout the province and will continue until the middle of June.

But public hearings are only one part of the work of the eight-man commission. It also is reviewing major education studies, planning some of its own and setting up committees to look at specific questions on Alberta's social and economic development.

"We're dealing with the whole range of education," said Dr. Worth. "We're going much further than Dr. Hall-Dennis study on education done in Ontario in 1968.

"We're looking not only at the kindergarten-through-Grade 12 system, but also at the post-secondary education, continuing education and all aspects of technical and vocational education."

The commission is really looking at education for the future, he said. "We want to call for it to predict the social and economic trends in Alberta and the needs of the citizens. It also is asked to make recommendations on the total educational organization and on its financing.

"It is a real job to try to predict what is going to happen and trying to distinguish between what's likely to happen and what people hope will happen," said the 44-year-old commissioner.

"The Human Resources Research Council is acting as our major research arm. It is looking after the studies."

Some of these predictions of what the province is going to be like in the future. For example, how the North will develop or where the major centres of population will be. Others will suggest how automation and technology will affect education patterns in the future.

"Some of the people who are working on the task force on lifelong education are prepared now to advance the argument that the big wave of the future—the expensive wave—will be in the area of adult education, of education even for senior citizens.

"Automation will render some present skills and competencies obsolete. We may have to re-think our whole education-work cycle. Perhaps the days will soon be over when you think of getting educated and then going out to work. You may have to be educated and re-educated several times in your life."

The present system of adult education needs to be examined, the former university professor said.

"So far the adult student has sort of tied on to the existing system. We've generally tried to educate him using the methods that have been developed for children and youth, even to facilities developed for children and youth."

But, he adds, "we haven't treated him as a separate entity with unique needs and unique requirements."

"We've got to learn how to best help adults and the kinds of facilities they require. This could be one of the areas where we are going to have to come up with creative new thinking."

Another area that will get searching study is the downward extension of the education system from Grade 1.

Should all kindergartens and even day care centres come under departments of education? Should all small children have to attend these?

"And assuming we find we need to supply some sort of day care experience for youngsters, how do you do this in rural as opposed to urban areas?" asked Dr. Worth.

Commissioners will also look at the advantages and disadvantages of centralization. Should a large centralized school is economical and efficient and can provide specialized subjects, Dr. Worth said.

On the other hand, children may have to travel many miles by bus from their homes and many communities complain the system provides "frills" in education rather than meeting needs.

"We can't have schools so locally oriented that they provide the kind of education that in fact deprives children of the ability to cope with the problems they will face. This could happen. People in centralized communities could insist on a narrow program with emphasis on rural living, yet we know this kid probably isn't going to stay in that community, but take off for the big city."

He suggested new approaches: "It might not involve bringing the child to education as we do it now, but in taking the education system to him. You might provide short-term intensive residential study classes in trailers moving around the province. Or you can use technology, such as telephones and television or various things of this sort, to take education to the student."

But he also said schools need to be more responsive to the local community needs as well. For example, Indian school boards may want to see the local Indian language taught.

Dr. Worth doesn't want the commission to be bound by traditional approaches. He's prepared to look at any ideas or suggestions, no matter how improbable they may sound.

Ann Landers
Friend Takes Exception To Birthday Gift

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My birthday was Easter Sunday. It was also the anniversary of the day Jerry and I met. For the last three years Jerry and I have celebrated this date as a very important one in our lives.

For months Jerry has been asking me what I want for a gift. I told him I want him to decide. In the meantime we have done plenty of window shopping. He knows my taste in luggage, jewelry and bostons gowns. This morning I became completely undone when a delivery man rang my doorbell and handed me a large box with air holes. I am now the proud mother of two Easter bunnies — one is tinted powder blue, the other is a bluish pink. The card read, "From Jerry — with love. Name the girl after you, and the boy after me."

ANN LANDERS

I don't care for rabbits. I live in an efficiency apartment and have no place for them. What's more I don't want to be bothered. At first I was disappointed, now I am furious. This little "joke" is nothing but a cheap copout. Any advice? — THE HUTCH MISTRESS.

DEAR HUTCH: Call Jerry at once and tell him he is the proud father of two rabbits and he can name them anything he likes. And hurry up before you have ten.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has an older sister who considers herself a mother-substitute. Edmond and I are both past 50 so you know he has not needed a mother in quite some time.

His sister has been writing to him at least twice a week — at his office. The letters are addressed to him. I have two brothers and I always write to them at home — out of respect for their wives.

The problem is that Edmond's sister telephones me every few weeks and asks why she has not heard from us. I must then tell her I have not seen the letters. She always says, "I meant those letters for you, too, dear."

When I ask Edmond about the letters he says, "They are endless accounts of people I can't remember and have no interest in. I wouldn't dream of boring you. I just throw them out." I can't tell his sister the truth. She would feel hurt. What do you suggest I say to her? — POST WOES.

DEAR P.W.: The only way to settle spot in-law trouble is to go to the source. Suggest to your sister-in-law that she address the letters to Mr. and Mrs. and send them to your home since you have nothing to do with his office mail.

*

Confidential to NEED TO KNOW: A wife who has been married long enough to have three children "old enough to read newspapers" is entitled to keep the jewerly her husband gave her — and yes, the family heirlooms, too. That's what heirlooms are for.

Creative Endeavor

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Close to 150 quilts, some of recent manufacture and some of museum vintage, were displayed at a quilt exhibition here in April. Luke Noonbout, director of the Owens Gallery at Mount Allison University, said: "Quilts constitute a whole new area of creative endeavor not ordinarily displayed in public galleries." He added: "We feel that many of the designs in the quilts come curiously close to certain directions in contemporary painting."

Have You Had Your Iron Today?

By DORIS CLARK

4901
SIZES
10½-20½

Your Favorite!
by Anne Adams

Ready for everything — just walk in, button up and go in this crisp coat-dress. Horizontal bodice detail adds fresh news.

Printed Pattern 4901: New Half Sizes, 10½, 12½, 14½, 16½, 18½, 20½. Size 14½ (bust 37) takes 3 yds. 35-in.

Seventy-five cents (75c) in coins (no stamps, please) for each pattern — add 15 cents for each pattern for first-class mailing and special handling. Ontario residents add 4 cents sales tax. Print plainly size, name, address, style number.

Send order to Anne Adams, care of The Intelligencer, Pattern Dept., 60 Front St. W., Toronto 1, Ontario.

How many times have you been told that you need more iron in your diet? How many times have you said, "I'll get around to it one of these days"?

How hard it is to convince people who have full stomachs that they may be undernourished! You may never know hunger, yet be starved for important food elements.

Take bread — usually made from refined wheat flour. With all the wheat germ and bran gone: the part that carries the vitamins and minerals.

Take salads, if you do not take them, your whole diet is of cooked foods, a heap more of good minerals and vitamins have flown out the window.

So you need to know about food. You need Canada's Food Guide, a dandy little leaflet you can get from any public health centre.

What we eat today lives and breathes tomorrow. Check your eating habits. You can get extra vitality and a fresh glow in your skin; shinier, healthier hair, when you begin to toe the line, nutritionally speaking.

* * *

Dear Doris: My husband feels a deep devotion to his parents. They are constantly interfering in our lives and he usually does what they suggest. This makes my hair stand on end.

Soon my husband and I will move to a distant city. Now I have found out in a roundabout way that his parents plan to move there too.

My husband will never be able to stand on his own two feet as long as they keep running after him. At one point his sister stepped in and reminded him that I was his wife and we should be clinging to each other, not to his parents. But he just doesn't see my side of things.

How can I get his parents to stay where they are and out of my hair? — Hating Interference.

Dear Hating: You can't pin them down like a specimen butterfly. But you can talk to your husband — without heat.

Look at it this way: From the day he was born those interfering parents carried a terrific load — the job of raising a son. They gave him love, they helped him over the tough spots.

Now there is a new order of things. But from where Mom and Dad sit, you couldn't possibly know how to make all your own decisions.

Try to remember too, that the very love they have given has made it possible for your husband to be a loving person, the kind of man you wanted to marry.

Talk to him; and when you do, show that you understand his situation. Don't resent it when he does an errand for them. Time will help you work this out.

Dear Doris: Is it possible for a young person to fall in love with more than one of the opposite sex? — Rosena.

Dear Rosena: Teen-age variety? Yes, possible, — but not probable. But more than one person can attract you. When you get enough experience and years to really love, you will narrow it down.

* * *

(Try turning your trouble into triumph by getting help from a trained social worker. Doris can cut you on the right track.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "I won't go to the doctor. He'll hurt me. He always does."

Mother: Stop yelling at me. The doctor just wants to give you a check-up before school starts."

Child: "He'll hurt me. He'll give me a shot."

If you yell at a screaming 5-year-old, it only upsets her more. Whisper and she will be curious and may stop screaming long enough to hear what you have to say.

Stirling Springorama

The Springorama, featuring the pupils of Stirling Senior Public School, was a decided success. The concert was held in the local theatre and performed to a capacity audience. William McArton provided music for the fashion show and also while the crowd was assembling and during the intermissions.

The band, led by Maurice Bell, was seated on the platform when the curtains were drawn. They were arranged in sections as follows: Lida Tuinman, flute; clarinet: Robbie Hatton, Chris Myers, Judy Meeks, Paul Munro, Tammy Lawrence, Pauline Maxwell, Donna Elliott, Linda Rainnie; trumpet: Robin Linn, Marilyn Morton, Sandra Alderson, Louise Williams, Sherilyn Farrell, Margaret Ann Kerby, Doug Coub, Mary Ellen Thompson, Tim Whiteman, David Graf; flugel: Barbara Clarke, Bruce Weatherell; French horn: Marie Kerby, Debbie Montgomery, Mary Alice Bissell, Denise Aide, Denise Morgan; trombone: Beverly Bush, Janice Morton, Les Ann Stapley, Kathy Sharpe, Jim Foresell, John Bush; baritone: Larry Foresell, Wendy Hearns; bass: Philip La Chappelle; drums: Arthur Tuinman, Eddie Thompson, Robert Jones, Doug Bastedo, Stan Myers, Kenneth Sharp, Karen Meeks.

The president of this year's Student Council, David Jeffs, welcomed the large assembly and acted as master of ceremonies for the evening. The Stirling audience showed by their enthusiastic applause that they appreciated the band and the efforts of Mr. Bell in providing such excellent training.

For the fashion show, Miss Wilkes had arranged a garden scene. Connie Rosper and Carol Mirers, seated under a beach umbrella, described the clothes modelled by the girls of grade seven and eight home economics classes. Each girl had made the creation which she wore.

A one-act play, entitled "That Wilbur" was directed by Mrs. G. Morton and Mrs. S. Green.

PRIME CONTACT

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The registered nurse of the future in North America will be the primary health professional contact in the community, predicts Helen K. Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses' Association. She told a recent seminar here that nurses will take on many of the present responsibilities of the doctor in general practice.

Thirty Bills Tabled

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Prince Edward Island Legislature wasted no time getting down to work Tuesday when the Liberal government brought down 30 bills only minutes after the session had formally been opened by Lt.-Gov. J. George MacKay.

The session, the first since the May 11 election in which Premier Alex Campbell's Liberals picked up 27 of the 32 seats, was called to deal with legislation not passed before the house was dissolved March 26.

Legion Promised Action on Veterans' Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — Encouraged by assurances of government action on war veterans' pensions and armed with a new membership scheme, the Royal Canadian Legion's 53rd national convention digs into a huge pile of resolutions today.

Expected to receive special attention are committee recommendations on such contentious matters as draft dodgers, the Vietnam war, the Dominion Day holiday, and hospital programs.

Tuesday the 1,800 delegates heard MP Lloyd Francis (Ottawa West), chairman of the Commons veterans affairs committee, assure them his committee would produce results in its recommendations to the House of Commons.

Mr. Francis also said the report would be "consistent" with pension proposals mentioned Monday by Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube. In that speech, Mr. Dube said the federal government plans to go ahead next year on white paper proposals for revised benefits for war veterans.

Legion President Robert Kelly previously called the white paper was a "watered down" version of the special Woods committee report which proposed benefits that would bring an additional 28,000,000 to veterans.

There was "no way the Legion would accept" the white paper proposals, he said; But after Mr. Francis's assurances the convention tone appeared to soften and delegates gave Mr. Francis a standing ovation.

Later by an unusual secret ballot, delegates and proxies voted 1,307 to 1,236 for a measure which would allow non-veterans into the legion as affiliate members.

Mr. Kelsey said the decision of the vote means the national executive must implement the measure slowly over the next two years.

No Increases This Session

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube told Ibm in the Commons Tuesday that there will be no increases in veterans allowances and disability pensions during the present session of Parliament scheduled to end in September or October.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) continued what has become almost daily opposition prodding over veterans pensions, asking whether interim increases might not be announced this session in areas of unanimity, such as for Canadians who fought at Hong Kong in December, 1941.

Mr. Dube said the Commons veterans affairs committee will begin Thursday to prepare its report on recommendations for the government white paper on disability pensions, scheduled for release in the fall.

By the time the committee finished its report and the cabinet had considered it, it would be too late to implement pension recommendations this session, he said.

Wishart Gives Assurance

Action Is Taken Against Criminals Investing

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has taken action against criminals trying to invest money in Ontario, Attorney-General Arthur Wishart told the legislature Tuesday.

"Where it is determined that there is ownership by persons who are criminals we have taken the action that is indicated," he said.

Mr. Wishart would not say what action had been taken and declined to answer a number of questions.

His comments were prompted by questions in the legislature about a statement by a Metropolitan Toronto police officer Monday.

Insp. Aubrey V. Pottle told a security conference that the Mafia is investigating millions of dollars in Ontario as a cover for illegal activities.

In other legislature business Tuesday:

—Mines Minister Allan Lawrence introduced new safety regulations for the mining industry with the comment that criminal charges should be laid in all mine fatalities.

—Attorney-General Wishart said a recent decision by the Ontario Supreme Court indicates that cigarette prize certificates have the status of enforceable, legal contracts. The court awarded a North Bay man a $10,000 prize after he was disqualified for incorrectly answering a skill-testing question.

—Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall said the building of homes by private builders is still "just as efficient and just as cheap" as the prefabrication of houses in a plant for trucking to a home-site.

—Labor Minister Dalton Bales introduced legislation that will give his department authority to order investigations into any athletic activities when he believes the matter is in the public interest.

—The 1970 schedule for payments by Ontario to mining municipalities was announced. The payments, which will increase the municipalities' revenues by about $2,250,000, are designed to return to them a share of taxes imposed by other governmental levels.

Shulman Says Health Committee Muzzled

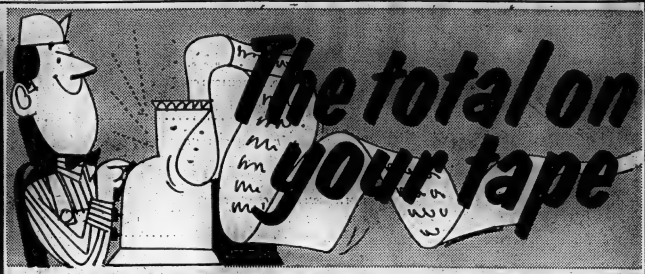
TORONTO (CP) — Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) accused Health Minister Thomas Wells Tuesday of muzzling the Ontario legislature's committee on health.



The committee earlier in the day toured the facilities of the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan and talked to officials of the provincial insurance program.

Dr. Shulman said in a statement that when officials were asked how they check on private insurance companies which act as agents for the plan, Mr. Wells "refused to allow them to answer."

Dr. Shulman also said the Ontario department of health is shutting down mental hospital beds when there are urgent cases awaiting admission.

Dr. Shulman, quoting from what he said was a "confidential memorandum," said a report in December, 1968, showed 27,835 beds in Ontario hospitals and 1,152 in approved homes. A report in March, 1970, showed 16,476 hospital beds and 817 home beds.

Federal Anti-pollution Measure Gets Sharper Set of Teeth

OTTAWA (CP) — The "teeth" which Resources Minister J. J. Greene said were extracted from the proposed Canada water act in committee three weeks ago were replaced with a smoother and sharper set in the Commons Tuesday.

The House passed a series of government amendments allowing the resources department to confiscate cleaning agents or water conditioners imported into or manufactured in Canada if they contain nutrients in excess of government regulations.

Similar amendments were knocked out of the proposed act by the Commons resources committee when Liberal MP-lawyers Hylard Chappell (Peel South) and Walter Deakon (Toronto High Park) led a vote against the section because it was poorly worded. They favored the intention of the section.

At the time Mr. Greene said they had removed the teeth from the legislation. But Tuesday the government re-introduced the amendments, with the wording changed, and made the regulations even tougher. Manufacturers and importers are liable to $5,000-a-day fines as well as confiscation.

Previously they had been eligible for confiscation only, although industries and municipalities were eligible for the fines for polluting waters under the jurisdiction of water quality management agencies in excess of prescribed levels.

Mr. Chappell was seemingly satisfied with the new wording and context of that amendment, but displeased with another government change.

Original wording of the bill would have made an industry responsible in pollution cases even if the employee who allowed pollution to take place could not be identified. The committee agreed with this.

However, a section that would let the company off the hook if the offence was committed without its knowledge and it had exercised diligence to avoid it, was deleted by the committee.

The government re-inserted that exception in an amendment passed Tuesday, and Mr. Chappell was angry. The company's knowledge or lack of knowledge, diligence or lack of diligence, should affect only the penalty, not liability, he said.

If members didn't oppose changes to well-considered alterations by committees "then we were just little boys who should not have been allowed out alone in the committee."

Much of Tuesday's debate dealt with a motion by Grace McInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway), which would make part of the bill a government ban on the manufacture or import of cleaners containing phosphates, by Jan 1, 1971, and a ban on sale of these products by Jan. 1, 1972.

Her amendment was deferred for later vote.

The Commons was to continue consideration of the proposed water act today.

Stanfield Gets No Reply to Query on Greene's Denver Speech

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield tried again Tuesday to find out whether Energy Minister J. J. Greene's nationalistic speech in Denver, Colo., last month was a statement of government policy.

Mr. Stanfield asked Prime Minister Trudeau whether he noticed that, during his 19-day absence on a Pacific tour, Mr. Greene has become "the biggest Canadian of all."

He asked whether Mr. Trudeau has read the Greene speech and whether it represents government policy.

"It seems to me this question was asked of at least one acting prime minister," Speaker Lucien Lamoureux interjected. Both External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, now on a European trip, and Solicitor-General George McIlraith acted in Mr. Trudeau's placed is his absence.

"This is the real thing," shouted a member.

"May I direct a question to the real thing because we couldn't get an answer from the other things," Mr. Stanfield said.

"He didn't get a reply.

Antiques Anyone?

Ted Hennessey (left) and Don Smith, who operate the Brighton Auction Hall, display some of the antique wares that pass through their doors. Here a pair of tall hall vases flank an old brass banquet lamp. The vases, lamp and the hand-made walnut chest of drawers they are sitting on are all slated for sale at one of the upcoming Saturday auctions at the hall.

You Can Get Anything at All From Brighton Auction Hall

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

BRIGHTON — "If you're looking for something you'll find it here sooner or later!" claim Ted Hennessey and Don Smith.

The co-owners of Central Auction Company were, talking about Brighton Auction Hall which they operate in addition to conducting out-side sales.

Some of the unusual things people have found at the auction hall include half a beer door of a horse drawn hearse ($4), an odorless cremetory closet ($15) and an artifical wooden log console table with boot ($1).

A new arrival ranking in this category is a rare bee cupboard, constructed with wooden pegs, which was designed for the storage of honey combs.

At least 40 per cent of the 500 articles sold at a normal weekly Saturday sale are antiques. Special antique-auctions are also held every holiday weekend during the year.

Ted Hennessey estimates that he and Don own only 25 per cent of the goods they sell, with the remainder being consignments from private, individuals or antique dealers.

"We have buyers in England and the maritime provinces and we each travel an average of 5,000 miles a month in search of antiques," Don Smith explained.

"So the auction hall actually serves as a swap house between eastern and western Canada," he added, noting that eastern Canada yields a cross - section of Canadian antiques while western Canada provides firearms, swords and Indian artifacts.

Among the items which might appear at a normal Saturday afternoon sale are: chairs, gilded mirrors, china, brass beds, oil lamps, pottery, butter bowls, cut glass, coins, stamps, books, stuffed animals, clocks, assorted furniture and framed pictures.

The biggest "find" at the Auction Hall was without doubt a framed picture.

Don Smith bought the unsigned oil painting at a Belleville auction for one dollar and sold it at the Auction Hall for seven dollars.

Then the buyer, who wishes to remain anonymous, had the painting officially appreised. The appreisers certified that the oil painting was done by the famous American artist Frederick Remington.

Since that time the man has rejected a $13,000 offer for the Remington painting as well as offers of $18,000 each for two other paintings he purchased at the auction for under $15 apiece. This pair were the work of members of the famous Canadian Group of Seven artists.

Buys like those are scarce anywhere, but Ted and Don make auctioneering, particularly the sale of antiques, their full - time business and they are usually able to describe each item accurately to the crowd.

You describe each item as best you can and call out any damages or defects," Ted emphasized. "You learn something every day but you'll never know it all."

"When it comes to antique furniture, it helps if you associate it to the dress of the era," Ted revealed.

"For instance, the Victorian era was symbolized by flared and bustling clothes, so the legs will be fancy as in a butterfly settee; while Georgian furniture will be square, massive and plain," Ted said.

"It's fun to watch people — you've really missed something if you haven't sat in an auctioneers' chair," Ted claimed.

"The old pros are poker faced when they make a purchase but others express their joy and even bag each other," Don noted.

However, both men agreed that some buyers become bothersome when they adopt cute little signals.

"We need a distinct signal so the ones who wink from behind their glasses or turn their thumbs upward on their braces are just slowing things down," Ted asserted.

Speed is essential to the Brighton Auction operation, so when someone enters the hall he gives his name and address and receives a number which he will use if he makes a purchase.

Prime method of efficiency is the dual auctioneering system. Don and Ted are both graduates of the Nation City, Iowa Auction School and when one completes a sale, the other starts on the next item immediately.

The permanent staff of four is augmented by six others on sale days, so Don and Ted do nothing but sell, at a rate as high as 120 items per hour.

Both co-owners feel that their Auction Hall actually helps other antique dealers in the Quinte region by drawing antique conscious people to the area.

However, they feel their operation — which attracts an average of 250 people every Saturday — and others like it will eventually replace the traditional farmyard auctions.

"This is a specialized field and not something that just happens," Ted stressed.

"The day of the barnyard sale is gone as far as we're concerned," Don emphasized, "people are now bringing their goods where they can be sold properly — anything else is futile."

Auctioneers experienced in household goods, elimination of weather hazards and real estate damage, more buyers and an inspection period Friday from noon to 9 p.m. are advantages of the Auction Hall system cited by the co-owners.

The Brighton Auction Hall is situated in an old canning factory, providing Ted and Don with 80,000 square feet of space which is used to store items (the current stock is enough for four auctions; and allows working space.

"It's a business — a big business," Don and Ted concluded.

Humane Society Aims Outlined

Toni Hughes, general manager of Humane Societies of Canada was speaker at the meeting held last evening at the Sun Valley Motor Inn which introduced the regional members of the Humane Societies of Eastern Ontario.

After the dinner, Mr. Hughes spoke about the humane society and its future.

"The society has a hard time ahead of it — a crisis," he said.

"Last year's task was to get the best legislation possible to protect animals used in research and teaching. Bill 194 was then passed; the best of its kind in North America. As of November, 1969 with the introduction of the pain clause which exempted animals used in research from unnecessary pain or suffering, the society has come far in achieving its goal," he added.

However, Mr. Hughes noted that legislation is needed to control the use of animals in intensive farming practices. For example, cows are put in sweat boxes and when they cease eat cannot walk. They are then slaughtered and although they produce tender meat, this practice cannot be condoned. It is inhumane according to all standards of society.

Animal farms and zoos are growing all over Ontario and some form of control is needed to prevent their spread. It is hoped that in the near future something concrete will be done to suppress these establishments.

He went on to discuss the history of the Ontario Humane Society, which started in 1873. It began as a society of interested individuals determined to prevent cruelty to animals. In 1919 branches were formed, and by 1955 Class A members, affiliated local autonomous societies with no financial responsibilities to the Ontario Humane Society, were given certain rights.

The Ontario Humane Society Quinte Branch derives its funds from donations and a help pound contract with the city of Belleville. Its shelter is one of the best in Ontario, said Mr. Hughes.

He favors the use of animals in research and teaching as long as they are not subjected to pain. Humane societies cannot continue to insist if they do not compromise to a certain extent. However, under no circumstances will they allow any form of cruelty to animals. If people object to a humane society requesting animals for research but do not clarify sufficient whether or not pain will be inflicted, then the animals should not be released.

Animal care panels have been set up by the research foundation involved (including a veterinarian) which determine the pain level threshold of the animals being used. How government appointed inspectors (sevens) have been given the task of checking animal care panels throughout Ontario.

Mr. Hughes praised the work of the people who are endeavoring to gain major changes for the societies which will benefit them in the long run and expressed the hope that their work will continue.

He was thanked by the president of the Quinte branch, Mrs. Harold Crowe and a question period followed.

BCI Students Probe Pollution

The spotlight is on pollution at BCI this week as the grade 13 geography class seeks to make the rest of the school aware of the danger to the environment.

Through interviews and investigations they are putting together as much information on the local scene as possible for presentation at next Monday's assembly.

Pulling together all the scattered information on the county's pollution hazards was the idea of geography teacher Dudley Billiter. Included in the project are interviewers with managers of local industries and with Dr. R. T. Potter, MPP for Quinte, regarding the leaching of arsenic from the Moira, from the Deloro slag heap.

Girls in the class are tackling the high-phosphate detergent question to determine if Canada should be switched their brand since information on phosphorus content has been available in the stores.

New Boat Sunk

TWEED (Special) — Tweed resident Ralph Thompson is minus a new outboard boat this week as a result of a mishap on Stoco Lake over the weekend.

With several children as passengers, Mr. Thompson was rowing his new boat a brief spin on Sunday when, as he neared the shore at the park, it struck what was believed to have been a sunken log.

Two-Day Outing for Queen Victoria Students

By IAN ROBERTSON
(Staff Reporter)

What a perfect way to end a day. Good food, good friends, pleasant surroundings and . . .

"Where's the hamburger?"

"Where's the frying pan . . . well anybody got a stick for the bobdogs?"

"Anybody seen the matach?"

"Bring some bricks, I want to start a fire."

It was suppertime at the Girl Guide camp near Wauopos in Prince Edward County.

But these hearty cries didn't come from girl guides.

The camp was being used last night by pupils from Belleville's Queen Victoria Public School who were staying overnight in the cabins following a busy day touring the county.

Last year, the students camped overnight at Vanderwater Park and returned the next day. This year, an entire day might, and half of the next day was the plan.

To prepare for the event, the pupils raised their own money by washing windows, babysitting, selling candy, making wedding invitations in their art classes, and charging admission for movies. Although sanctioned by the school board, the cost for the trip was undertaken by the students, themselves.

Together with six adults, the 67 boys and girls travelled from Belleville to Trenton, visited Carrying Place, the Ameliasburg museum, Wellington, Quinte Milk Products plant, the sandbanks, the outlet for some cooling wading, the Baxter Canning Company, the Mariner's Museum, and then finally through Wauposn to the guide camp.

And if that wasn't a busy day, there was dinner to cook. One o rtwo of the harder teachers shared supper with the pupils and didn't suffer any ill-effects, but most of the adults had brought their own provisions.

Teacher Murray Workman ran into a bit of trouble with the fires. After arranging the fires with the aid of principal Donald Lockyer, and seeing that they were all going, he had trouble with his own. But all was not lost, and soon everyone had finished a variety of meals.

How does a menu of marshmallows, hamburger, French fries and mushy sandwiches sound.

It's doubtful whether any of the ardent young cooks would accept anything like that from their mothers, but then camping is different.

A thorough cleanup was undertaken and as one teacher explained:

"We were really pleased at the cleanups the kids worked on . . . we mentioned that there should be no mess left anywhere, and even though we didn't stress it all day they were busy cleaning things up."

"Even paper and garbage left by others before them."

she laughed.

While a half dozen boys erected a large campfire, the rest of the group were taken on a nature walk to the shores of Lake Ontario. Approaching the shore was a treat for there was a noticeable drop in temperature brought about by the cool winds from the lake, a welcoming refreshing change after the hot day.

Busily scurrying over the stones, eager fingers searched and found fossils which were then shown to teachers for verification.

One little girl found an unusual stone with the shape of a fish bead embedded in stone.

However, the evening was drawing to a close and the campfire was just about ready. Besides that, the mosquitoes were making their presence known.

At the close of the evening, before a blazing campfire and with the accompaniment of guitars provided by Dorothy LeBaron and Marilee Jones, high school students who took the day off to help out, songs such as Raindrops Falling, Nova Scotia, and Sweet Betsy From Pike were undertaken.

And so to bed. Tomorrow is another day.

To finish up the outing, the students, today visited Glenora Fish Hatchery, Lake-on-the Mountain, the Glenora Ferry, the Memorial Church of St. Alban the Martyr with plaques commemorating UEL families, the UEL Park at Adolphustown, over the Glenora Road, through Picton, to Demorestville and on to Deseronto. Time permitting, it's hoped should be visiting Prinyer's Cove and Indian Point.

Upon their return, the pupils will recount their observations in class and plan ahead for next year's proposed bigger event.

That is, of course, if the teachers can keep up with the lively youngsters.

Campfires-the Perfect End to the Day

Sparks flying from the huge campfire, students of Queen Victoria Public School enjoy an evening's entertainment of song and skits last night at the Girl Guide camp just outside of Waupoos on the shores of Lake Ontario.

Litter Collection Wins Bicycles

CAMPBELLFORD (Special) — Two local youngsters are riding new bicycles thanks to their efforts in fighting litter in this town.

Tom Kent and Janice Bell each won the bikes in a Chamber of Commerce sponsored "litter-day" Saturday — Tom for collecting 39 bags of garbage and Janice for collecting 25 bags.

Runners-up were Robert Lookuzen, Randy Whitton, Judy Lookuzen and Rusty Simpson. The 176 bags of garbage collected by the six children almost filled one packer-type garbage truck with about eight tons of garbage.

Councillor William Carter organized the drive, assisted by Graydon Leigh and William Rothwell.

On the same day, the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority sponsored an "operation clean sweep" in which adults collected 28 truck loads of refuse along the river from Healy Falls to Bradley Bay. William Carter, local representative of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority was captain of the cleanup operation.

Along with clearing the debris from the river and river banks, the volunteers found several previously unknown sources of pollution entering the water. Their information will be directed to the proper authorities for action.

Mr. Carter said a similar cleanup operation is planned for next year.

A Top Producer

An Ayrshire cow owned by R. B. Murray of Stirling, has made a name for herself as a milk producer.

The Stirling area Ayrshire, Grampian Proud Girl has qualified for a gold seal certificate and in her first nine lactations produced 108,211 pounds of milk, 4270 pounds of fat, in 2,782 days.

England Overcomes Fullback Injuries to Beat Romania 1-0

MEXICO CITY (CP) — England recorded an unimpressive 1-0 victory over Romania Tuesday night as it started its bid to retain the World Cup soccer championship it won four years ago. But Peru stole the show with a brilliant comeback from a 2-0 deficit to beat Bulgaria 3-2.

In the third game of the night, Uruguay defeated Israel's all-amateur team 2-0. Uruguay won the Jules Rimet, oldest trophy atic of the world title, in 1930 and 1950, but didn't give much indication of being a threat for the 1970 title on its showing against the underdogs from Israel.

England manager Sir Alf Ramsey said he was well satisfied with his team's performance against Romania, but he may find himself with a full-back problem in future games. Keith Newton of Everton, assisted off the field with an injury to the right knee, is considered a doubtful starter for several days. Terry Cooper of Leeds United also suffered a leg injury.

"We will not know the full extent of the injuries for another 12 hours, but at the moment things do not look too serious," said a spokesman.

The English team failed to show top form for the first hour of play. Then Geoff Hurst, who scored three goals in England's 4-2 victory over West Germany in the 1966 World Cup championships, booked home the goal which earned his team two points in the Group III round robin. The goal came in the 65th minute.

Dinko Dermendjiev and Hristo Bonev put the Bulgarians in the lead. Then, with the crowd cheering them on, the Peruvians began their comeback.

Alberto Gallardo, Hector Chumpitaz and Teofilo Cubillas scored the goals that make their team a favorite to accompany West Germany into the quarter-finals from Group IV.

Uruguay got little comfort from its 2-0 win over unrated Israel and also lost star player Pedro Rocha. He was carried off on a stretcher in the 18th minute after a knee he injured in training gave way.

Uruguay's scorers were Ildo Maneiro and Juan Mujica.

The crowd was hostile to England during much of the game with Romania.

"A crowd will always support the supposed underdog," said Ramsey. "I think the Romanians played better because of this.

"But by the end the crowd appreciated what was going on on the field."

England's back four, inspired by captain Bobby Moore, showed they are masters tactici-ans, but the team appeared to lack penetration on attack. Martin Peters, Bobby Charlton and Francis Lee made no great impact against the Romanians.

Asked whether he expects tougher opposition from Brazil next Sunday, Ramsey said: "Technically they will be much more difficult, but physically the Brazilians will be below Romania."

England's victory puts the host on Brazil and Czechoslovakia, the other teams in Group III, which play each other today. Brazil has twice won the Jules Rimet Cup and hopes to take permanent possession with a third victory.

There are four games on today's schedule—one in each of the four-team groups into which the 16 teams have been divided for round-robin play.

West Germany, cup winner in 1954, meets Morocco in Group IV, which Peru leads as a result of its victory.

Belgium, a strong contender, hopes to pick up two points today from El Salvador, a comparative unknown in the world soccer pond. The game is in Group I, where Mexico and the Soviet Union each has a point from a 0-0 tie in the opening game last Sunday.

Italy, a former world champion, meets the efficient Swedish team in a-Group II game, where Uruguay resides at the top of the standings.

College Ban In Force

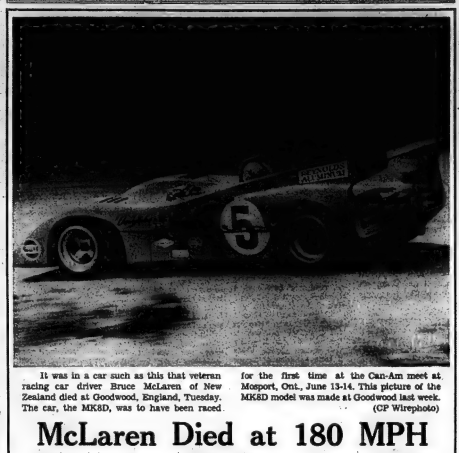
BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union has been told that limited athletic scholarships are coming, but not for a few years.

First will come a study, CIAU president Maurice Van Vliet of Edmonton said Tuesday. It will be conducted by the union and the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

"When the dust settles over the next two or three years," he said in an interview, "we will probably come up with some kind of an agreement giving a university certain leeway relative to scholarships for athletes."

Earlier Tuesday, delegates to the CIAU annual meeting unanimously approved enforcing the union's 1967 ban on athletic scholarships and voted to appoint a committee to police the ban.

Dr. Van Vliet, physical education dean at the University of Alberta, said that CIAU approval might involve a scholarship plan similar to a proposal by the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association.



The WCIAA plan, announced a few years ago, would limit financial aid for athletes to "tuition fees and it should be handled entirely by a regular university admission and awards committee."

Dr. Van Vliet said the 1967 rule, in the CIAU constitution, could mean suspension of a university from union sport if it was found providing athletic scholarships.

The CIAU in 1967 accepted only academic scholarships and opposed any based solely on athletic ability.

He said that athletic scholarships cannot be defended. "It just has so much glamor. People attach the wrong kind of importance to it."

It was in a car such as this that veteran racing car driver Bruce McLaren of New Zealand died at Goodwood, England, Tuesday. The car, the MK8D, was to have been raced for the first time at the Can-Am meet at Mosport, Ont., June 13-14. This picture of the MK8D model was made at Goodwood last week. (CP Wirephoto)

McLaren Died at 180 MPH

GOODWOOD, England (CP) — Bruce McLaren, 32, driver, designer and developer of race cars, died Tuesday in the flaming wreck of a machine he was testing for a race in Canada less than two weeks away.

There were conflicting reports on how the accident happened.

One said his engine blew up and that he then slammed into an earth bank.

Another version had it that McLaren spun out of control, hit the bank and that the new vehicle—the MD8—then exploded.

It was agreed that the Can-Am Group 7 machine built for the Can-Am race series and one of the most powerful cars in the world, was travelling about 180 miles an hour at the time.

He was dragged clear of the wreck but was dead on arrival at hospital.

McLaren was to have raced the car first at Mosport, a sports car track near Toronto, on June 13-14.

McLaren had been at the top of big-time international motor racing for nearly 10 years and had been considering retiring from driving to concentrate on production.

He built Group 7 sports racing cars, Grid Prix cars, Indianapolis 500 machines and Formula A vehicles.

McLaren won the 1967 and 1969 Can-Am series of races in North America. His driving partner—fellow New Zealander Denis Hulme—won it in 1968.

Grand Jury to Hear Sawchuk Case Evidence

MINEOLA, N.Y. (CP) — A Nassau County grand jury will hear evidence Monday in the death of Terry Sawchuk, 40, National Hockey League great who last season was backup goalie for New York Rangers.

Nassau County District Attorney William Cahn said:

"The ends of justice are best served by presenting the entire matter to the grand jury."

Sawchuk died in a New York City hospital Sunday after a series of operations. Since then, detectives have been investigating how the goalkeeper suffered injuries the night of April 29 at a rented house in East Atlantic Beach, Long Island. Sawchuk and team-mate Ron Stewart had shared the house during the hockey season.

Sawchuk is reported to have told police before his death that a blood clot that he was injured during "horseplay" with a team-mate on the lawn.

The Post quotes Benjamin Weiner, 44, a close friend of both players, as saying the injury to Sawchuk was accidental. Weiner is to testify before the grand jury.

Weiner, manager of a restaurant, is reported to have told police that Sawchuk had returned a short time before from Detroit after a futile attempt to reach a reconciliation with his wife.

District Attorney Cahn said he hopes to wrap up the grand jury hearing by a week from Friday. Grand jury activities remain secret unless a true bill is reported out.

Nicholas Castellano, Long Island lawyer hired by the Rangers to represent Stewart, said he had interviewed enough witnesses to come to the conclusion that the accident was "exactly as described" by Sawchuk.

"There is no crime in the entire situation," Castellano said in an interview.

District Attorney Cahn said that Stewart, who arrived in New York Tuesday from Barrie, Ont., would be subpoenaed along with Rangers manager-coach Emile Francis, Weiners and Rosemary Sasso, a nurse identified as a friend of Stewart.

Dr. Denis F. Nicholson of Long Beach, told The Times he had been called to the Sawchuk-Stewart house the night of April 29 by Miss Sasso. Stewart, Weiner and Miss Sasso were there, as well as Sawchuk.

"I found Sawchuk in horrible pain," the doctor said in an interview. "He was in shock."

The autopsy report said Sawchuk's death was caused by a blood clot that travelled from a vein into a pulmonary artery. The report also said there was no injury to the heart. After having his gall bladder removed Sawchuk underwent two operations on his liver.

Oakland Issue Makes Agenda

MONTREAL (CP) — The governors of the National Hockey League had not expected to deal with the problem of the Oakland Seals franchise at the league's annual meeting June 8-11 here, but it now appears the topic will be prominent at the sessions.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday a ruling made by Judge Robert Schnacke of San Francisco Superior Court Monday brought the Seals issue to the forefront.

The judge ruled that Trans-National Communications Ltd., current owners of the Seals, defaulted on terms of its agreement to buy the three-year-old hockey club from Seals Ltd. last year. But he adjourned the ownership dispute until June 9.

"Trans-National has been given a seven-day redemption period to pay outstanding debts or find another purchaser," said Campbell.

If the June 9 date is not met by Trans-National, Seals Ltd., headed by original Oakland owner Barend Van Gerbig—proposes to sell to Charles O. Finley, owner of Oakland A's of baseball's American League, for $3,600,000.

Campbell said only the NHL "can approve sale of the franchise for the purpose of being effective in the NHL."

The NHL meetings open Monday with the rules committee considering several changes, including new fines.

"We hope to double the current $25 automatic fine for a misconduct penalty and make a match penalty $200 instead of $100 and a game misconduct worth $100 instead of $50," said Campbell.

The regular intra-league draft takes place next Tuesday with the 12 existing NHL clubs participating. The inter-league draft will follow immediately, but the new Buffalo Sabres will be the only NHL club participating. All players on the American and Western hockey league reserve lists—except those on the WHL Vancouver and AHL Rochester lists—will be available for draft.

The expansion draft, 24 hours later, allows the existing clubs to protect 15 players, plus two goalkeepers, from Vancouver Canucks and Buffalo, the latest expansion clubs.

Buffalo and Vancouver have the first choice in Thursday's amateur draft. All amateurs in North America whose 20th birthday falls between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31 inclusive, are available to the 14 NHL clubs.

Golf Week Targets 73, 77

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Senior Canadian men golfers will shoot for a one-over-par 73 score in National Golf Week competitions, trying to best that score set Tuesday by Tommy Aaron at the London Hunt and Country Club.

Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, Canadian national women's amateur champion, shot 77, three over the ladies' par, to set the target for senior women.

"She's great, real smooth," said Aaron, last year's Canadian Open champion.

The Canadian junior champions also played. Dale Tallon, also a hockey player for Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, shot an 81 and Lisa King of London shot a 91.

Golfers will match their net scores (gross minus handicap) against the gross scores of Aaron (73) Mrs. Streit (77) and against the net scores of Tallon (79) and Miss King (84).

Golfers who compete pay their club pro $1 and if they beat the champion in their categories, they will qualify for an I Beat The Champ towel.

Billy Casper Says:
HAND POSITION IN SAND
One of the shots in golf that requires the hands to be behind the ball at address is the short one from the sand. Do nearly every other shot, a basic requirement is that the club-head hit the ball first. In the sand, however, the objective is to hit the sand an inch or so behind the ball. That's why the hands must be positioned behind the ball at address (see illustration).
With the ball positioned forward almost off the left toe and the hands behind, it will be natural for the clubhead to dig a layer of sand out from under the ball. This forces the ball into the air so that it floats lazily and stops quickly after it hits the green. It will be valuable if you check your hand position before every greenside sand shot.

Juniors Halve South Hastings Pair

Despite an opening game loss to Read, coach Moe Hunter of the Kinsmen Juniors was highly pleased with the results of last night's South Hastings baseball double - header as his club came on to take a resounding 10-2 decision from Shannonville.

"We made a few mistakes in the first game that cost us," claimed Hunter, "but the guys are starting to get together and play like a team. We had a pretty fair crowd too, I think this doubleheader idea worked pretty well."

Last year's champions from Read continued to look like the class of the league as they stopped the Juniors 6-3 to earn their fifth win in six contests. The game was curfewed after six innings.

Curveballer Frank Farrell went the distance for the winners, walking one batter and striking out four, while giving up eight Belleville hits.

Lefty Leo Baker starts for the Kinsmen and went four innings before giving way to reliever Joe Hastings. The pair allowed seven hits and four walks, while striking out three batters.

The Juniors threatened to tie the score in the bottom of the sixth as they scored twice and had two men on base before Farrell got the final out on a ground ball back to the mound.

Wayne Pascoe had two singles for Read with the other safeties going to Pete Enright, Carm Milligan, Ken Abrams, Greal Brennan an Larry Coffey.

JOHN NOAKES

Steve Moore and Brian Coughlin each had two singles for the Juniors.

John Noakes used a sharp curve an excellent control to set last season's pennant winning Shannonville team down on five hits to record the 10-2 win. "John was keeping the ball low," said coach Hunter, "and he had good control. He didn't walk a man until the last inning."

The Kinsmen righthander had three strikeouts and he used a pair of base - on - balls.

Bob Reid and Glen Barberstock split the pitching duties for Shannonville, allowing nine hits, while walking five and fanning the same number.

Sharp infield play by the Juniors, particularly shortstop Steve Moore, backed Noakes' solid pitching performance. The Juniors played errorless ball behind him.

First baseman Bill Barberstock scored both Shannonville runs, stealing home in the second inning and scoring, in the seventh on a single by Dennis Gandrean.

Glenn Carleton continued to be the top Belleville batter cashing in a double and single, while Coughlin added a pair of safeties for a four-hit night.

Other Kinsmen hits went to Craig Rump, Terry Meagher, Kevin Allen, Scott Reid and John Noakes.

In the other South Hastings game last night, Latta pitcher Terry "Midge" McTaggert had "tripled trouble" as his team dropped a 3-2 decision to Plane's Concrete.

McTaggert carried a one-hitter and a 2-1 lead into the final inning with a wrong field single by Warren Hay ruining his no-hit bid.

An error by McTaggert and a double by Ted Abrams put runners on second and third before the Latta hurler got Hay to pop up for the second out of the inning. Secondbaseman Bob Loffman delivered a clutch two - run triple, however, to give McTaggert his second defeat of the season.

Garney Adams protected the Plane's lead in the bottom of the inning, after relieving Bob Chappell in the fourth. The pair fanned eight and issued four walks an the same number of base hits.

McTaggert fanned 11 batters and walked two in a losing effort.

Bob Smith doubled for Latta, with Scott McLaren, Doug Green and Damon Richardson picking up singles.

Mead Johnson Catches Fire in Fifth

Belleville Fire Department, failed to put out a late-inning Mead Johnson blaze as they came up with nine runs in the fifth and sixth innings to erase a 4-0 lead by the Firemen in Industrial Softball League play Tuesday. Deloro Stellite and Morch Mariners played to an 8-8 tie in the other game scheduled.

Some fine outfielding by Mead Johnson robbed the firemen of extra base hits on a number of occasions to preserve the 8-5 comeback.

Paul Williams started for the winners, getting relief help from Larry Marshall in the fourth inning. They gave up seven hits, while walking six and fanning five batters.

Bob Devereaux went the route for the Fire Department. He was touched for 11 safeties, walking three men and striking out an equal number.

Reg. Bennett had a single and double for the winners, with Ron Redner chipping in two singles and Ken Lessels and Blaine Young a double each.

Jack O'Neil and Don Putnam each tripled in a losing effort.

Morch's and Deloro pounded out a total of 31 hits in their 8-8 slugfest.

Will Bulpit was touched for 17 hits on the Morch mound, walking four and fanning eight. For Deloro, Rick Halsey issued nine walks and struck our four batters.

Bulpit, Larry Ell and Ray Marsh each had three hits for the Mariners, with Cal Gelinas forth and Mike Rollins getting two apiece.

Rick Halsey helped his own cause with three safeties, followed by Ken Kleinsmiber, Carl Geen, Jerry Sinclair and Bob Ferguson with two hits each.

Stinsons Falter After Fast Commercial Start

Stinson's Construction which hadn't lost a Commercial softball game before Monday, made it two losses in as many nights, dropping a 6-2 decision to Rollins Construction.

Wayne McConnell threw three - hit ball for the winners, striking out five batters and issuing three free passes. Harold Workhaven took the loss giving up 10 hits, walking one and failing to strike out a man.

Bob McAlpine's three - run homer in the top of the fourth inning was the big blow for Rollins. Singles by Wayne McConnell and Brian Harder coupled with a Stinson error had accounted for one run before McAlpine unloaded his blast.

Rollins had opened the scoring in the first inning on a single by Harder, Bill Goodfellow's sacrifice, and an RBI double by Ralph Place. Larry Soules tied the game an inning later, singling in Dwight Rashwell, who had reached base on an error.

Harder led the Rollins batters with three singles with McConnell getting a double and single and McAlpine his circuit clout.

The Stinson hits, all singles, went to Soules, Rathwell and Rick Locke.

Steve Gilbey had three home runs for the Wings, while Tim Soule an Bob Hedge each had two circuit clouts.

In the other tyke game, the Bears edged the Leafs 11-8. Andy Rosati threw fourhit, 17 - strikeout balls for the winners, while Len Wigger took the loss.

Led by a homer, triple and double by Bill Arthurs, Fosters Thurlow Peewees came up with a 16-10 win over Trenton last night.

Ted Foster threw six-hit ball to record his second win in a row for the Thurlow team. His batterymate Farley Vader added three singles to the winner's attack.

Losing pitcher E. Wilson had a pair of doubles.

Bay of Quinte Sees First Ace

The Bay of Quinte Country Club's par three 220 - yard tenth was the "hole show" for Belleville golfer Don Moore as he recorded the first hole - in - one at the club this year.

Moore was playing in a twosome with Jerry McQueston and used a three wood to notch his perfect shot.

Howard Makes Contact

Frank Howard, the Washington Senators slugger who leads the American League in home runs, claims that making contact with the ball is his biggest problem. The same might be true of the entire American League when (Sodden) Sam McDowell is on the mound.

Tuesday night neither of these veteran all-star performers had any difficulty.

Howard drilled his 19th homer of the season, a two-run shot, that earned the Senators a 2-2 tie, and his bloop single trigged a two-run eighth-inning rally that brought Washington a 4-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

McDowell, the league strikeout king, had a no-hitter for seven innings and had to settle for a two-hitter in the opener of a doubleheader as Cleveland Indians swept Milwaukee Brewers 4-1 and 9-5.

Allen Brings in Seven Birds

Richie Allen exploded two home runs Tuesday, one of them a grand slam, to lead a display by prominent long-ball hitters in National League action.

Allen drove in seven runs as St. Louis Cardinals thrashed San Francisco Giants 13-1; Hank Aaron backed Phil Niekro's four-hit pitching with his first homer in two weeks as Atlanta Braves downed New York Mets 4-1; Johnny Bench drilled two homers and Tony Perez one as Cincinnati Reds thumped Philadelphia Phillies 7-2; San Diego Padres blasted six Pittsburgh Pirates pitchers for 19 hits in a 14-8 slugfest and Houston Astros tripped Montreal Expos 6-4.

The other scheduled National League game, Los Angeles at Chicago, was rained out.

Allen singled home a run in the first inning, belted a two-run homer in the fifth and capped the rout with his grand slam in the eighth. Backed by a 15-hit attack, Steve Carlton held the Giants to four hits, including Willie McCovey's 16th homer, and posted his first triumph since May 11.

The grand slam was the fifth of Allen's career and home run No. 18 for the season.

The Mets and Braves met for the first time since last year's league playoffs. The Braves broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth on Bob Didier's run-scoring single and Aaron, who hadn't homered since May 17, iced it in the seventh with a two-run shot, his 17th.

Tommie Agee homered for the Mets' run.

Bench slammed two homers, one a three-run wallop, and Perez, the majors' leading slugger, socked No. 19 as the Reds scored a ratio-shortened triumph over the Phillies, their fifth straight win.

Rookie Wayne Simpson, 6-1, yielded six hits and fanned seven before rain halted play with the Phils batting in the top of the eighth.

San Diego got a two-run homer from Clarence Gaston, triples by Chris Cannizzaro, Tommy Dean and Jose Arcia and doubles by Ollie Brown, Steve Hunts and Nate Colbert in routing the Pirates. Willie Stargell homered for Pittsburgh.

The Padres lapped Bob Veale with a six-run first inning and never let up.

Johnny Edwards triggered a three-run second inning with a run-scoring single and—triple-home another run in the fourth as the Astros sent the Expos to their sixth straight setback

Amateur Diagnosticians Can Make Bad Mistakes

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: There is a temptation for us laymen to become amateur diagnosticians. Unless we realize our limitation, we can sometimes get into serious trouble. Take my own case. Rather, my young son's recent illness.

He came in from play one evening complaining of pain in his stomach. He was nauseated. He had a little fever and "didn't look good." Immediately, of course, I thought of acute appendicitis.

I asked him where most of the pain was, and he said, "All over my stomach." As he did not say it was on his right side, I dismissed the possibility of appendicitis. We let him go through the night in pain. We put on a hot water bag, thinking he had some indigestion from something that disagreed with him at dinner.

The next morning the doctor diagnosed acute appendicitis and got it out in time to prevent peritonitis. The point I want to make to your readers is that appendicitis pain is not always "just on the right side." — Mrs. V.

* * *

COMMENT: You make a good point. In fact, usually appendicitis pain begins "all over" the abdomen and does not localize on the right side until some hours later.

Never dismiss the possibility of acute appendicitis because the pain isn't where you think it ought to be. Whatever the type of pain, the doctor should be called to make the differential diagnosis. Otherwise, it may fool you.

For example, here is the man who came complaining of swelling and pain in his knee. "I know it can't be an attack of gout," he said. "Gout attacks only the big toe."

A MISCONCEPTION. Gout can involve other joints, too.

Here is a woman with sudden and increasing pain between her shoulders. She also has nausea and vomiting. "It can't be my gall bladder," she says. "The pain ought to be under my right ribs." Not true. Often gall bladder colic manifests itself first by pain between the shoulder blades.

And so it goes. Pain is a great dissimulator. It may appear right over the organ involved, or may be referred to other parts of the body. Therefore, don't be misled either by its intensity or position. At times it's a job for surgeon of the best diagnostician to comfort, and wonder about until he comes up with the true diagnosis. So don't take on the job yourself.

For Mrs. T.: I think your doctor will tell you not to drink so much "pop" during the day. Anyone who is troubled with hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) should decrease the amount of "sweet" intake and rather increase proteins. The more sweets you take, the more insulin the pancreas puts out and the lower the blood sugar falls.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've told our doctor that my wife suffers from the inability to make decisions. I'm bad enough when it comes to choosing what tie to wear, but she can not decide on anything at all. Is there a scientific name for this? — Mr. S.

COMMENT: "Abulia" is a mental state in which the patient is unable to make decisions.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Variations on A Theme

The word-quizzes I've given before have mostly dealt with difficult or fairly obscure words. Today I'd like to show how many simple words we don't know or use, and I began by opening Ch-e unabridged dictionary at random to the word "cross," and some of its combining forms.

1. What is a "cross-bench," and how is it used?

2. What particular kind of cousin is a "cross cousin"?

3. In calisthenics, what is "cross education"?

4. In accounting, what is computation by "crossfoot"?

5. What is a "cross remainder" in probate law?

6. Why is "cross signalling" forbidden to ship pilots?

7. What is the derivation of the "hot cross bun"?

8. When horses run, how do they make a "cross-fire"?

9. What is a railroad doing when it is "cross-hauling"?

10. How does one transact a "cross order" in the stock market?

11. What is a "cross relation" in music?

12. Do any besides bridge players know what a "cross-ruff" is?

13. What is a "cross-staff," and how does it differ from a "crosier"?

14. Name an animal that is "cross-sterile."

15. Why and where is a "cross-strap" used in training horses?

16. What is the "cross-wind force" on an aircraft's lift and drag?

17. What are you doing when you "cross the cudgels"?

18. Why is the game called "lacrosse"?

19. In operating machinery with a pulley, what does a "crossed belt" do?

20. What is "cross-fingering" on woodwind instruments?

And, not even considering the verb or adjective, the simple noun, "cross," which is the oldest symbol common to all cultures, appears in a score of forms which hardly anyone can identify by name.

Can you distinguish among these different crosses: Latin Calvary, Patriarchal, Papal, Lorraine, Greek, Celtic, Maltese, St. Andrew's, Tau, Crosslet, Quadrate, Potent, and so forth?

Well, neither could I, except for two or three. And, of the possible 20 questions, I know the answers to only 10 before I consulted the dictionary (Webster-Merriam Unabridged, 2nd Edition.)

For those who wrote in previously, suggesting my word-quizzes were unfair because they dwelt mainly on "recondite" words, I hope this specimen proves to them that our language, even at its simplest level, remains an inexhaustible treasure of meaning and knowledge.

Mobile Homes To Be Financed

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Housing Corp. has no objection to providing mortgage financing for mobile homes if municipalities are willing to accept them as residences, the legislature was told Tuesday.

Development Minister Stanley Randall told R. F. Ruston (L—Essex-East) that there are a number of municipalities interested in setting up trailer parks for mobile homes.

"Where they are welcome we would have no objection to the financing," he said.

Most Authors Not Good Screen Writers

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mario Puzo, author of the sensational best-selling novel The Godfather has been here for the last few weeks working on the script for the movie version.

Ordinarily the last person a studio would consult on the adaptation of a book is the author. That has been true through most of the history of Hollywood.

In the early 1930s, Samuel Goldwyn promoted Eminent Authors' Pictures, with noted novelists such as Rex Beach and Mary Roberts Rinehart in his stable. The idea was that the authors would adapt their own works to the screen.

The scheme flopped and Goldwyn went back to hiring screen writers to convert books to scenarios.

Most studios have adhered to that policy. Producers reason that the novelist is too close to his story, that he is not willing to cut or is dramatics for cinematic reasons.

Robert L. Fish, the mystery writer who authored Bullitt, was not consulted in the scripting of The Steve McQueen movie. When he expressed a willingness to adapt another of his novels to the screen, the producer who bought it told him:

"I wouldn't dream of hiring you: you wouldn't have the perspective."

When Joseph Heller sold Catch 22 to Columbia, the deal included his services as script writer. But Columbia sold the rights, and when Mike Nichols prepared the script, he worked with Buck Henry instead.

Some authors prefer not to have anything to do with the studios. David O. Selznick picnicked with Margaret Mitchell as to come to Hollywood and help on the script of Gone with the Wind. She refused.

Harold Robbins, Truman Capote, Irving Stone, Arthur Hailey and Irving Wallace can earn far more by turning out books.

"If Selznick makes a mess of my book, all my friends in the South will blame me," she reasoned. Her only advice to the producer was in casting. A fan of the Marx Brothers, she suggested that Rhett Butler be played by Groucho.

Some best-selling authors eschew film writing largely for economic reasons. Such writers

Nine Tops Minor Lacrosse

Bud Gill's Appliances exploded for nine goals in their bantam division contest with Queen's Motor Hotel to win the scoring honors in Belleville Minor lacrosse last night.

Jim Scott and Jim Hughes each counted three times to pace the 8-1 win. Jeff Gorman, Rick Barbeau and Joe Muldoon added the other markers. Martin Maloney scored the lone goal for Queen's.

The other-bantam game was a much closer affair with Simpson Sears edging Towers Food City 3-2. Chris Kalney, Mark Walmsley and Donald Bruce scored for the winners.

West Beats East In Minor Baseball Meet

East and West met in Belleville Minor Baseball action last night, with the West Hill Bantams coming up with a 9-4 win over their East Hill counterparts.

Ron and Don McTaggert hurled for the winners, giving up only three hits. They allowed three walks and struck out seven batters.

Pat McKenny and Tom Coughlin gave up five hits in a losing effort, while fanning eight batters and walking four.

Terry Madden paced the winners attack with a pair of singles, with the other hits going to the McTaggert brothers and Bob Moore.

Tom Coughlin, Peter Ves and Peter Britt all singled for the East Hill.

A THOUGHT FOR HOME PURCHASERS

Many people spend months and even years in trying to locate a home. When one considers the great number of homes on the market at any one time, and then thinks of the enormous number of various designs, locations and types of homes at various prices that have been available at this time to these purchasers, one wonders why it took them so long to find a home. The reason is based on one word — LOYALTY.

It is human nature to compare prices when making any purchase, but a home is not a staple product. Its value is determined by many factors: its size, condition, location, extras and most important by the urgency the owner has for selling.

In the case of the long term searcher, he has decided to buy a home without enlisting the aid of any one particular salesman. He searches the houses for sale ads, in the local paper and spends hours on the phone talking to many salesmen; he drives in certain districts looking for "sale" signs and calls on these. In short order he is confused and loses hope that he can locate his dream house at the right price.

Buying a home is not a hit and miss affair. How can a great number of salesmen know this man's needs? how can a suitable home be found if no one salesman has spent sufficient time with this person to fully understand his requirements? The only way he can is by seeing homes with the buyer and seeing the buyer's objections or desires. Furthermore, no experienced salesman, when time is valuable, will spend time inspecting homes for a buyer whom he believes will end up buying one of these homes from another salesman.

Consider these points and then choose an experienced salesman. Spend sufficient time with him so that he will know what you want. He will spend hours inspecting homes on your behalf. He will check "For Sale" ads in the paper that appeal to you. Remember! most houses are listed on MLS and he probably knows the salesman who is advertising and can get his co-operation; he can check any "For Sale" signs that catch your eye. He can and will find your "Dream Home" and all he asks is your — LOYALTY.

Benson Refuses to Remove Restrictions on Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson rejected Commons opposition demands Monday night for immediate removal of restrictions on spending and credit, saying the government would wait and watch before charting future economic policy.

He said the government will watch the performance of the newly-freed Canadian dollar on international currency exchanges before deciding on any measures to offset the impact of a higher-value dollar on business activity.

Answering opposition criticism of the dollar move and calls for a shift to economic growth policies in a special debate, Mr. Benson said the government is ready to consider special help for industries hit by this week's dollar revaluation.

He emphasized that applicant industries would have to present "persuasive, factual" evidence of need to get special aid.

He was referring to arguments that dollar revaluation would effectively raise the price of Canadian exports to foreign buyers while the price of imports would become more competitive with domestic products. But he said the opposition had ignored the benefits of revaluation and exaggerated the dangers.

Mr. Benson agreed with questioner John Burton (NDP—Regina East) that the wheat industry would qualify for special-help consideration because wheat-export prices were reduced Monday in the wake of the dollar decision.

The action, yielding to upward pressure on the dollar, freed it from a pegged value since 1962 within fractional margins of $1.5 U.S. cents. Its value in terms of U.S. funds was just over 96.5 cents Tuesday night.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who prompted the 6½-hour debate, said it is urgent now for the government to encourage economic expansion and reduce unemployment.

The Conservative leader said adverse affects of the dollar revaluation could be "quite quick" because it would have immediate influence on business decisions.

Mr. Stanfield said he disagreed with the government's restraint policies previously. After dollar revaluation, there was even less justification for sticking to restrictive spending and credit policies.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, said he welcomed the move to a more flexible exchange rate, but said it should be permanent, not a temporary move as indicated by Mr. Benson.

Creditiste spokesman C. A. Gauthier (Roberval) said a new economic policy is needed urgently "to clear up the chaos and confusion caused" by present programs.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) proposed using the projected budget surplus this year to reduce taxes for industry and make payments to exporters so they could keep their prices at pre-revaluation rates.

Mr. Benson commented later that Mr. Hees had offered the only constructive proposals for action. But both ideas for subsidizing business came from a party which has been asking what the government is going to do about the poor, those hardest hit by inflation.

The finance minister counterattacked Mr. Stanfield as having "no constructive ideas whatever to offer the government."

He said the government action has been "strongly and broadly supported in international comment, editorial comment and by leading economists."

The Canadian dollar has been under-valued for some time, Mr. Benson said. The strong exports performance and heavy investment in Canada that prompted the dollar decision "indicate confidence in Canada."

Mr. Benson said the government was concerned "that we were on the brink of a major speculative influx that would have been disruptive both to the international payments system and to the financial and economic conditions of the country."

Without the weekend action, "we might have had to absorb an inundation of foreign currency, buying it with Canadian dollars."

To meet the cost, the government would have had to borrow heavily...on the Canadian securities market, generating inflation and crowding out other borrowers," Mr. Benson said.

"In the end, our only achievement if we had continued would have been to hand large windfall profits to speculators, profits which would have been paid by the Canadian taxpayers."

The opposition hit hard at potentially disruptive effects of tying the foreign markets by the primary industries—farming, fisheries, pulp and paper, mining—and the danger that cheaper imports would displace domestic production and increase unemployment.

Wallace Wins His Bid For Alabama Office

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George C. Wallace has won his bid to recapture Alabama's governorship—the likely prelude to another United States presidential race in 1972—and Jess Unruh won the Democratic nomination to oppose Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

Wallace, who overcame a narrow first-primary loss, promptly celebrated his victory in Tuesday's democratic runoff over incumbent Albert P. Brewer by demanding that President Nixon "give us back our schools."

Nearly complete returns gave Wallace 542,154 votes, Brewer 510,442.

Primaries in the United States are held to select candidates for general elections. Only registered voters are eligible to vote for candidates for their party's nomination.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 4

Your Birthday today: An active, sometimes confusing year of movement, change, new arrangements opens now. Many choices will have to be made all through the year. In coping with the confusion, it is essential to hold your inner serenity. Today's natives often show strong interest in remote objects, ideas, or highly specialized scientific issues.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This is a day of fresh interest, perhaps impatience, which you must contain. People co-operate if your approach is erasible. Quit early for extra rest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Pay more attention to what people do than what they say. Chance encounters offer odd turns of good fortune. Gambles tend to extremes in deception.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Creative work offers some channel for expression and a link to potentially significant connections. Family affairs are subject to temporary confusion.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Display more than your usual tact. Domestic matters suffer from one undue divulgence. The evening brings the realization of a past shortcoming.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): It is important to follow your own judgment rather than that of your associates. Any activity relating to money becomes quite complicated.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): If your work goes unnoticed, think about changing your approach or redirecting your efforts. Progress in your career now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 —Oct. 22): Useful information comes from all sides, unexpectedly. A more expansive mood prevails — but be careful not to neglect some of the quiet people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your serious studies yield an extra advantage. Information needed on your work may be difficult to locate. Learn to look and to listen despite distractions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The necessity now is to get co-operation. Improve your timing. Things are possible early today, for example, that simply cannot be reached later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): People have all sorts of interesting suggestions which bear hearing. New arrivals offer drastic comment out of unfamiliarity or insecurity. Proceed on an even keel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your money sprouts wings at the slightest invitation. It's almost worth skipping social contacts to avoid getting involved in expensive pastime.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You may differ with your mate or neighbors, but there is a good chance of greatly improving the quality of your home situation. Remain serene while working at it.

Committee Head Speaks Up

Liberal MP Opposes Ban On Cable TV Microwave

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — The chairman of the Commons broadcasting committee disagreed Tuesday with the limitations on microwave relay of cable television imposed by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

The chairman, Liberal MP John Reid of Kenora-Rainy River, said he does not believe the CRTC will be able to withstand the "tremendous" public pressure for increased access to cable TV.

Cable systems should be allowed to bring into Canada all available United States channels, he said. The capacity was there.

Mr. Reid, addressing the annual meeting of the Western Association of Broadcasters, predicted that the Canadian television industry is in for a "miserable, rough and competitive" transitional period.

Radio, which had learned to specialize and to attract the small audience, would have the easiest time in adjusting to the great changes being brought on by cable television.

But for Canadian television, the problems would be as severe as they were for radio when it had to adjust to the advent of TV in the early 1950s.

William McGregor, president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, voiced confidence in the ability and ingenuity of Canadian television to survive. He saw it as a challenge.

But Mr. McGregor, of CKCO-TV Kitchener, said if private broadcasting is to make a continuing and effective contribution in this new competitive climate, it must be given freedom.

And government incentives to broadcasters, program producers and record manufacturers in the form of tax assistance, grants and other supports would be in order.

Battle Nears City

'You should have seen the one that got away!'

PHNOM PENH (AP) — North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces captured a town 10 miles southeast of Phnom Penh today and battled for control of a provincial capital in central Cambodia, the Cambodian military command reported.

The attack on Sat Bo, to the southeast, was the closest major fighting yet to the Cambodian capital. A spokesman said the attack came during the night and the last government resistance was knocked out at 7 a.m. But he said the Cambodian army was launching a counter-offensive.

Eighty miles north of Phnom Penh, fighting was reported still going on in the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, a town of about 25,000 on the highway to Angkor Wat.

The spokesman said Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces had been missing for several days around Kompong Thom, which was cut off from Phnom Penh last week by the capture of a district capital just south of it and destruction of a major highway bridge.

Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky flew to Phnom Penh today with a delegation of South Vietnamese cabinet ministers, and the Cambodian government cut restrictions on Vietnamese refugees who had been herded into camps in Phnom Penh during the early days of the fighting. The refugees were given the run of the city from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Ky headed the first high-level Saigon delegation to visit Cambodia since the two neighbors broke relations in 1963. Last week, during the visit to Saigon of Cambodian foreign minister Yem Sambaur, diplomatic relations were restored.

Nixon Calls Efforts 'Most Successful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, proclaiming that "all our major military objectives" have been accomplished, says United States forces will be completely withdrawn from Cambodia by June 30 and 50,000 more U.S. troops will be pulled out of Vietnam by Oct. 15.

"I can now state that this has been the most successful operation of this long and difficult war," Nixon said Wednesday night in a television speech on the month-old campaign to destroy North Vietnamese bases and war supplies on Cambodian territory.

He pictured his critics—who accused him of widening and prolonging the war when he announced the operation April 30 —as being proved completely wrong.

The president reported that 17,000 of the 31,000 U.S. troops sent into Cambodia have been withdrawn already and the remaining 14,000 will be out by the end of the month. U.S. air and logistics support and military advisers serving with South Vietnam's 43,000-man force also will be removed by the deadline.

After July 1, Nixon said, U.S. planes will strike at North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troop movements and bases in Cambodia if he decides such action is necessary to protect American troops in neighboring South Vietnam. But that will be the only continuing American military activity involving Cambodia, he said.

He left open the question of when South Vietnamese troops will be withdrawn.

"Our discussions with the South Vietnamese government," he said, "indicate that their primary objective remains the security of South Vietnam, and that is achieved in Cambodia in the future—after their withdrawal from the sanctuaries—will be destroyed by the actions of the enemy."

Nixon's critics in the senate won a small measure of success just hours before the president's speech when they beat back an effort to weaken a proposal to ban U.S. military operations in Cambodia after June 30.

By a 54-to-36 vote, the Senate rejected a proposal sponsored by Kansas Republican Robert J. Dole to allow the president to continue use of American units, in Cambodia as long as U.S. troops are held prisoner there.

Dole's proposal was a rider to an amendment by Senators Frank Church, Dem. Idaho and John Sherman Cooper (Rep. Ky.) to cut off all funds for U.S. military activity in Cambodia after Nixon's proclaimed withdrawal deadline.

Also Wednesday, the House of Representatives turned back an attempt by war critics to amend a bill raising the U.S. debt limit to force a quicker withdrawal from Southeast Asia by cutting $6,000,000,000 in defence money.

The effort failed on a procedural vote, 273 to 85.

Nixon's Oct. 15 target date for pulling 50,000 more troops out of Vietnam indicates he plans to follow a slower timetable in withdrawals during the next months that began April 20 than in the six months between mid-October and mid-April next year.

Last April 20 he announced removal of 150,000 troops during the next 12 months. At an even withdrawal rate he would have taken out 75,000 by mid-October. But when the Cambodian operation was started, withdrawals from Vietnam stopped, presumably because of the uncertainties of Communist counter-action.

Nixon announced Wednesday night that Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird has now resumed withdrawals but, contrary to some advance speculation, his figures made clear he is following a cautious slowdown at least until October.

Showing films of material taken from the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese—guns, ammunition, rice—to illustrate his report on achievements of the highly-controversial Cambodian strike, Nixon reported the capture of 22,892 guns, 143,000 rounds of ammunition, 15,000 rifles and machine-guns, 2,000 mortar weapons with 82,000 rounds of ammunition for them, and 11,000,000 pounds of rice.

The result of such captures and the destruction of bases and storage centres, Nixon said, will prolong the time it will take Hanoi to mount a new offensive against South Vietnam.

Let It Grow To Save Dough

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Unitarian Church minister wants all men in North America to stop shaving as a start toward eliminating "unnecessary products."

Rev. Jack Kent, minister of the North Shore Unitarian Church, says North Americans spent $325,000,000 in 1968 on razor blades, plus another $161,000,000 on saving preparations. In the same year, "the total United Nations budget was $153,000,000."

"Each beard would be a clear statement to the world that we intend to repossess ourselves as men and will not continue to be creatures dominated by the latest technological trick or the most recent advertising campaign from Madison Avenue," Mr. Kent said.

He called on women to become proud of their natural appearances, adding that American women in 1968 spent $1,600,000,000 on hair sprays, deodorants, lipsticks, hair coloring, face creams, mouthwash, hair tonic, nail polish, perfumes, makeup bases and hand lotion.

Dozen Countries Send Help to Peru

LIMA (Reuters) — More than a dozen countries and international organizations have offered or sent aid to Peru, where about 40,000 persons are estimated to have died in an earthquake Sunday.

Augusto Zimmerman, government information officer, said the countries include Canada, Argentina, the United States, West Germany, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay, France, Britain, Israel, Venezuela and India, and that offers of aid are continuing to arrive.

Brazil has sent two Hercules transport planes and two helicopters and Chile has sent three ships with food and a portable hospital with 150 beds and support personnel.

Canada has pledged $25,000 and the U.S. $75,000 and the use of three C-130 transports, two helicopters and quantities of supplies from relief warehouses in Panama.

The United Nations, the Organization of American States and the U.S. Agency for International Development have donated $45,000 and sent medical personnel and equipment.

In Geneva, the League of Red Cross societies announced that several national Red Cross societies are sending medicine, clothing, blankets and cash. The Canadian Red Cross plans to send $18,500 in aid.

For Another Story See Page 15

The Paris-based United Nations Education, Social and Cultural Organization announced it is sending five scientific experts to study damage done by the quake.

In Madrid, the Spanish Red Cross announced it is sending medical supplies. The Spanish branch of the International Roman Catholic Caritas relief organization will send four tons of antibiotics and has begun a nationwide appeal for funds.

In New Delhi, the Indian Red Cross said it would send clothing while Oxfam, a British-based relief organization, said it is arranging to send eight tons of clothing and 8,000 blankets to Lima.

In Dublin, the Irish government said it will send £1,000 (about $2,400) through its Red Cross.

The West German government ordered its Lima embassy to contribute 50,000 marks (about $12,800). A Bonn spokesman said further aid is under discussion.

Suez Raids Heavy

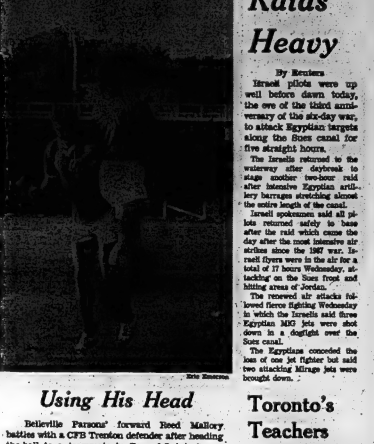
By Reuters



Israeli pilots were up well before dawn today, the eve of the third anniversary of the six-day war, to attack Egyptian targets along the Suez canal for five straight hours.

The Israelis returned to the waterway after daybreak to stage another two-hour raid after intensive Egyptian artillery barrages stretching almost the entire length of the canal.

Israeli spokesmen said all pilots returned safely to base after the raid which came the day after the most intensive air strikes since the 1967 war. Israeli flyers were in the air for a total of 17 hours Wednesday, attacking on the Suez front and hitting areas of Jordan.

The renewed air attacks followed heavier fighting Wednesday in which the Israelis said three Egyptian MIG jets were shot down in a dogfight over the Suez canal.

The Egyptians conceded the loss of one jet fighter but said two attacking Mirage jets were brought down.

Postal Strikes Grow in Scope

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers were off the job today throughout most of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island and in Hamilton, Ont., as the Council of Postal Unions continued to exert pressure on the government through rotating strikes.

Though workers at Saint John, N.B., returned to their jobs following a one-day work stoppage, walkouts were indicated at all other staff offices in the two Maritime provinces.

At Hamilton, about 500 workers are set up pickets in front of the main post office and six sub-stations about 5 a.m. EDT.

Strike pressure by the postal unions council Wednesday appeared to produce little reaction from the government.

National postal union headquarters, orchestrating its rotating strike tactics through a Telex link-up, ordered workers off the job for at least 24 hours in Calgary, Saint John, N.B., Amos, Val d'Or, La Sarre, Malartic and Rouyn-Noranda in Quebec and Prince Rupert, Kitimat and Terrace in British Columbia.

In Ottawa, however, where negotiations with the government were to resume this morning, Treasury Board President C. M. Drury indicated that he wasn't impressed.

"If the dislocations remain no greater than at present," he said in an interview, "they are not an urgent problem for the government."

No special action is planned either to close down the post office entirely or to bow to union terms for a new contract, he said.

Mr. Drury also said that following the departure Tuesday of mediator A. W. R. Carrothers the two sides are back to roughly the same positions on the key issues of wages and job security as were outlined by their representatives in a conciliation report four weeks ago.

Any improved offers the government made through the mediator, Mr. Drury said, have been cancelled by the rejection of the union. The government plans no new wage offers, he said, but will continue in its efforts to persuade the unions that its proposals are satisfactory.

Earlier in the Commons, Mr. Drury told opposition critics that the onus is on the unions to make some concession.

"We naturally hope for this and are looking for further meetings with them to see if further progress can be made in this respect," he said.

Despite the prospect of more drawn-out talks with no sign of an early settlement, there were no indications that the unions will switch tactics and call a national strike.

Toronto's Teachers Vote Again

TORONTO (CP) — The city's 7,500 secondary school teachers, who touched off a series of hiring bans throughout Ontario, will vote again on a new salary contract.

The offer will go to them in the next few days without any recommendation from the provincial executive of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

The new contract is only slightly different from one the teachers rejected a week ago on recommendation from the federation executive. The only difference is a $500 increase for 89 subject co-ordinators.

If the new offer is accepted, the Ontario School Trustees' Council will lift its moratorium on hiring June 8. The council had banned all hiring of secondary teachers across the province in retaliation to a teachers' federation order that all hires stop pending action from applying for jobs in the city.

CNTU Head Tries To Expel Chartrand

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said Wednesday the future of our movement hinges upon the expulsion of Michel Chartrand.

Mr. Pepin told the CNTU's 180-member confederal council that Mr. Chartrand, chairman of the organization's Montreal central council, must be expelled to protect the CNTU from "anarchistic gestures."

The CNTU executive voted unanimously last month to dismiss Mr. Chartrand from the CNTU's central council but last Sunday he won the backing of the Montreal central council and was re-elected as its chairman.

The Montreal council, with 85,000 members, is the largest single group within the 225,000-member CNTU.

Letter Carriers On Standby Basis

Belleville letter carriers remarked on standby in what was described as a "drop-of-the-hat" situation today as rotating postal union strikes spread across Canada yesterday.

Meanwhile, delivery of first class mail was expected to be slightly behind schedule following a temporary wildcat walkout last night of Toronto post office workers.

As a result, said Belleville postmaster, Roy Wainwright, first class mail was late in arriving from Toronto this morning. Only a light volume of parcel mail was received.

Letter carriers might be later than usual on the streets, he said.

All post office workers now are on a standby basis as the union strategy of rotating strikes gathers momentum, said Jim Campbell, president of the Letter Carriers' Union Belleville local.

Up to this morning he had received no word on strike action at Belleville post office.

However, a walkout "could hit anytime," and once ordered by the union, city postal workers could be off the job "at the drop of a hat," he said.

Belleville is one of the largest postal terminals between Toronto and Montreal, its routes serving the entire Quinte region.

Mr. Campbell described it as an "important centre as far as the union is concerned."

If union headquarters ordered a strike, Belleville postal workers could effect a walkout in 10 minutes, he said.

John Gordon Desmond, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. T. Desmond, Belleville, received his Bachelor of Science degree (honors) in electrical engineering from Queen's University, Kingston, at convocation ceremonies on May 22. John who is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville, has accepted a position with Kanata, Ottawa.

Remanded One Week

TRENTON (Staff) — George Albert Ibey, 43, of Ford Street, was remanded here Wednesday in provincial court without plea until June 10 on a charge of non-capital murder.

He is charged in connection with the May 22 death of Doris Elizabeth Wood, who was found at the rear of her Ford Street residence.

A coroner's report revealed that Mrs. Wood died of head injuries suffered when she fell from a second storey window.

The accused is being held in Hastings County jail in Belleville without bail.

Excellent Performance Toast

The cast of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, Helen Porter, Claude Marquis, Lois Summerville and John Shaw, smile happily over a cup of coffee at the Laneway Cafe beside the Pinnacle Playhouse after the opening performance in the playhouse last night.

Theatre Guild's Virginia Woolf Is Called Finest Achievment

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

The Belleville Theatre Guild made its way toward a further milestone last night with its first night of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

Resident artistic director, Roy Higgins, has made this play his finest achievement in Belleville, from every aspect of the production.

Mr. Higgins has directed it in such a way as to instill within it a new sanity, something that even the movie version with Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor lacked.

In affect, Edward Albee's play about the disintegration of two marriages has gained its proper brutality in Belleville's version. The seduction of the young college professor by Martha, the foul language, the reeling and raving are all under control and more pointed and personal.

The acting in Virginia Woolf has set such a competent standard that an outsider would have been suspicious that the production was featuring professional actors.

Lois Summerville is Martha, the tormented wife of a history professor, George, and last night she really became Martha.

She and John Shaw, who plays her husband, perform the "fun and games" of Virginia Woolf so competently together that the hate and love and jealousy and revenge appear completely natural.

The production has no weaknesses. Claude Marquis, a professional working with the guild, plays Nick, the victime of matrimonial games between his host and hostess and the tragic villain in his own shaking marriage. His performance is excellent.

And so, too, is the performance of Helen Porter, who plays Nick's mousy and naive wife.

The set was designed by Michael Egan, although a good percentage of the creative honors go to Belleville's Cathy Wilson. Bonnie Maidment produced Virginia Woolf with Milton McCrystal acting as stage manager.

The play continues tonight through June 7 and from June 10 to June 14. It is recommended for mature audiences.

707 Noise Abatement Steps Announced

TRENTON (Staff) — Col. Harold Carswell announced this morning that as a result of numerous complaints from area residents, "positive steps" have been taken to reduce noise inconvenience caused by the Boeing 707 long-range jets flying out of CFB Trenton.

Meetings were held every day this week to discuss procedures that would allow us to operate with the least inconvenience and interference to the local populace and as a result we've decided to take action," the base commander said.

He then listed policy decisions made by CFB officials:

— to ensure that noise abatement procedures are in effect for all training flights;

— emphasize that the normal circuit pattern is not extended over Belleville;

— shift some training flights to another base (North Bay) to reduce noise in this area.

"The situation this week resulted from the phasing of training cycles which produce several flight courses at the same time," Col. Carswell said.

He stressed that the increased circuit flying this week was because of pilot conversion training explaining that "we are trying to compress the training time to convert as many pilots as possible to the 707 as quickly as possible."

"Pilots being converted to the 707 have to do both day and night flying and to do night training this time of year you can't start until nine or 9:30," he added.

Explaining Tuesday evening flights which continued until after midnight and brought complaints from Quinte residents, he said, "I want to emphasize that there will still be 707s flying in the area — we will take all possible steps to reduce noise — but I will not impose any restrictions on air crew that could bring about an unsafe situation."

He was referring to the reduction of power after takeoff on fully-loaded aircraft.

"We will follow noise abatement procedures, reducing power after takeoff as soon as it is safe, but we need to be much higher for a fully-loaded aircraft," he said.

Landing circuits will not be flown over Belleville, but instrument approaches will be made north of Belleville at a height exceeding 1,500 feet.

"When the 707 is at 1,500 feet the decibel level on the ground is under 100," he said.

"By comparison the decibel level in a normal bustling kitchen will be about 90 and for a rock 'n' roll band with amplifiers the decibel level is about 125."

Col. Carswell admitted that the decibel level for the Yukon at 1,500 feet was the same than that of the 707, but he did not know the exact figure.

In large American international airports such as those at Chicago and New York, airport authorities and civic bodies have reached an agreement that 108 decibels and below was an acceptable figure, he stressed.

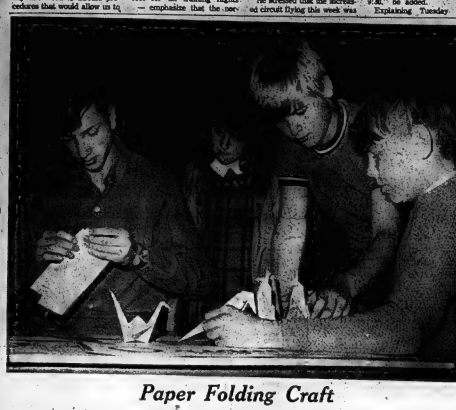
"There is no longer a health hazard below that level and the 707s will not be exceeding 106 decibels even while taking off."

Col. Carswell said that the 707s were making their landing approaches at 1,500 feet — the same level as the Yukons.

With reference to complaints received from Redeerville road residents, the base commander said that the 707s were following the same pattern that the Yukons did.

The specific problem is that we can't turn sharply enough to make our turn completely over the bay, he said. "This is a difficult problem but we are examining it now."

Pollution from the 707 engines was cited as a minor problem by Col. Carswell compared to pollution on the highways from diesel engines.



"At this time I have received no direction concerning air pollution. The number of aircraft here would signify the problem isn't great but further direction may be received by me in the future.

Col. Carswell again emphasized that the 707s would be kept away from built up areas as much as possible.

"There will always be some training here, but the level will reduce by the end of June, then rise and fall in cycles as courses pass through training school and begin flying."

"I feel that the positive steps we have taken will greatly reduce the noise level and significantly decrease any effect or inconvenience on the people of the area," he said.

"This is a new and different noise that is flying over the people and perhaps they're not used to it."

Paper Folding Craft

Edward Attfield of Trenton High School held the attention of Honey Martin, Clyde Routley and John Tyerman, Belleville visitors at Little Japan, as he showed them how to make a menagerie of animals with a few skilful folds of a sheet of paper. His exhibition of origami was part of last night's activities at the week-long display of pupils' work in a school project on Japan.

Fishermen Rescued

TRENTON (Staff) — Two fishermen caught in the rapids below number one dam in the Trent River were rescued early Wednesday evening by Trenton firefighters.

Alerted by Trenton police, the firefighters attempted to reach the stranded fishermen in a rescue boat, but when this proved unsuccessful, they employed a 400-foot rope.

The firemen floated the rope down the river to the men, but the fishermen's boat capsized when they attempted to haul it in.

However, Luigi Oliva and Del Bel Bellus Eorrado, both of Toronto, were able to grasp the rope and land it, walk through the swift water to shore.

The 10-foot boat was retrieved from the river, but the outboard motor and three fishing poles were lost. The men were shaken up but otherwise uninjured.

Seaway's Troubles

The honeymoon period for the St. Lawrence Seaway is long since over. Indeed all down the years since its opening in 1959 we have heard rumblings of discontent, from Canadian employes wanting parity of wages with their U.S. counterparts to the high cost to shipowners using the route.

Now we have the Dominion Marine Association saying that higher Seaway charges could sound its death knell.

In what is a statement of the obvious, the association says "the only sensible transportation policy for Canada is one which will transport the maximum goods the maximum distance at the minimum cost."

It would appear that the Seaway operators, the government or whoever, are pricing themselves right out of business, and in so doing they are playing the same old inflationary game that is being played by business generally across the country.

Imagine the Seaway going the way of the Suez canal and ships being diverted through Panama — maybe even the Northwest Passage — tankers, freighters, the lot, to California, B.C., Alaska, just as ships now go around the Cape instead of through Suez.

Security Needs

Recent break-ins in the Belleville area are disturbing. There have been reports of such incidents from Rossmore and the Cannifton Road. In the former a grocery store was entered and the Cannifton Road affair occured while the homeowner was away. Earlier it was reported that a number of mail boxes had been opened by someone having a key to them.

This kind of thing is happening at a time when Belleville is growing rapidly. All of a sudden the city police have a much bigger security task on their hands. There are new plants and new homes and the plants presumably have their nightwatchmen. Overall, this city growth poses the need for more extensive police patrols. It is all part of the price of progress.

Fire Hazard

We are glad to see that the Fire Department's program of inspections is being resumed, particularly having noted Inspector Paul Stephenson's comparison of property damage in Canada as compared with Europe's 33 cents per person. In Canada it is around $7 per person, making us one of the highest fire loss countries in the world. And that is not counting forest fires.

Faulty wiring and heating units are common causes of fire in this country, particularly in winter time. Accumulations of paper are another. Inspections of course are voluntary once the householder is concerned and will concentrate on basement, areas, garages and yards. Inspection of the home itself will also be done if requested.

Poetic Justice

Jim Worrall of Toronto, Canada's only voting delegate to the International Olympic Committee, has disclosed he voted only for the expulsion of South Africa from Olympic competition. He was speaking at a sportswriters and sportscasters association annual convention in Kitchener on Sunday.

In Sao Paulo, Brazil, the same day, South Africa won an international amateur golf tournament, finishing 19 strokes ahead of second-place Canada. Brazil, which has a partly Negro population, apparently had no qualms about admitting the South African team. As for their golf victory, in the light of their ouster from Olymic competition by Canada and other anti-apartheid voters, the South Africans might call it poetic justice.

N.Z. Ace Dead

For a country of under 3,000,000 New Zealand has always made a strong impact on world sport. One of the country's big names for the last few years was that of racing driver Bruce McLaren and it is sad to see that he has been killed while testing a new sports car. One of the world's leading drivers, McLaren was a past winner at Mosport and a frequent competitor here. His death is a loss not only to New Zealand but to International sport. We are reminded too that car racing is a dangerous game, as past fatalities and many injuries testify.

Civil Service and A $13 Billion Game of Hide-and-Seek

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Look at it this way — what is going on here on Parliament Hill is really a $13 billion game of hide and seek.

The government is doing the hiding.

Parliament is the seeker.

And you never have to wonder who is coming out the ridiculously easy winner.

The game is so completely one-sided it is almost routinely no contest.

Parliament wins, in a sense, when it defeats a government on the floor of the Commons — and then, since former Prime Minister Lester Pearson revised the ground rules, the administration's defeat can be transformed into victory.

The $13 billion stakes are yours, the taxpayer's.

You put them up — on government tax demand — and the administration spends them.

In the spending, there has to be waste and extravagance— Auditor General Maxwell Henderson, in examining 46 cases, discovered that $40,000,000 had gurgled down the drain — and that is where the game of hide and seek begins.

Parliament's job is to supervise the spending, to make sure not a nickel is wasted, to wring every last cent of value out of your $13 billion stake.

If there is waste — and when $13 billion is being spent, some loss there must be — the government, in its embarrassment of being found out not the most perfect of all possible administrations, tries to minimize, or more often, conceal it.

And right there is the game, Hide and seek.

Giving it rest is the size of the loss.

A mere million dollars, the late, great Trade Minister C. D. Howe once said, "Well, shucks, what is it?"

The answer has to be "nothing." really, not when the game is played in billions.

But Parliament's Public Accounts Committee discovers that nine times a "nothing" million was wasted when the cost of refitting the slow junkyard-bound aircraft carrier Bonaventure soared from an initially estimated $9 million to $17 million.

And the Auditor General dug up evidence of another $40 million wasted away.

A mint? No, sad to say, as has been said in Parliament, "just the tip of the wastage iceberg."

The game, this far, looks easy to easy for Parliament to win, finding that millions of your tax dollars have been tossed into the winds of waste.

Ah, but you are forgetting how the government can tinker with the ground rules, making the hiding easy and the finding, well, if not almost impossible, as difficult as it can be made.

Now this is only one of many ways it is done.

The government, under Opposition questioning in the Commons, has disclosed that there are 632 senior bureaucrats on the federal Civil Service payroll doing $19,000 or better.

But, you do not know — and are not going to be told — who they are, or who is getting how much.

This is because last year the government, faced with the ground rules of the great game of hide — and — seek, ruling it would reveal "private salary ranges and not the precise amount paid to senior civil servants."

It was becoming too embarrassing.

For just 10 years ago, when the Privy Council Clerk was making only $21,000 as the highest paid senior civil servant — he now gets $40,000 — the government printed a table by name, salary by salary list of everyone on the payroll.

Then, only five years later, in 1965 when the Privy Council Clerk was up to $27,000, and there were four others in the office at $20,000 or better, the government dropped names from the list, disclosing only how many bureaucrats were in what specific jobs at what salary range.

Now with the Privy Council Clerk at $40,000 — his salary doubled in just 10 years — only the payroll cost of the senior bureaucrats is listed.

So now the only way Parliament can discover how many make how much is to put the question in writing on the Commons Order Paper, where it must be answered. But it is hard hunting indeed, and it will take more questions to find out who makes what.

Having asked the first question, Parliament now knows that 632 bureaucrats get plus $19,000 — just five years ago there were only five and the Deputy Finance Minister who now gets $40,000, was drawing $18,000 — but it must ask more questions to discover who they are.

The hiding gets easier by the year and the hunting more difficult.

To make it a leg step closer to the impossible, the government now is fixing to muzzle Parliament's wise old hound-dog, the Auditor General.

On Loitering And Riot Control

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Concerning the article in The Intelligencer on May 15, "Loitering Teenagers Bother Business", I can see the business men's point.

However, it is not all teenagers who stand in front of their places of business. Older people stand there too, and gossip for quite some time as well.

I think it would be a good idea to put park benches in places where we can go to sit. What do we do when it rains? We do the same thing that the older persons does, we go to the front of the stores where the rain won't hit us.

I think if more parents changed their thoughts about the Drop-In Centre on Front Street and allowed their teenagers to go there, it would cut down on kids standing around on the street. Where else are we supposed to go? We can't sit in a restaurant all day.

What can the businessmen do about it? I think if they gave us a little bit of respect in the first place and came along and nicely asked us to move we would do so. I know I would. Next time I go down-town I'm going to see how many older people are standing around in front of stores just talking, and then I will write you another letter telling what they don't you say something to them, instead of attacking the teenage first.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an editorial on this subject on May 22 we said in part: "Adults too, must realize that middle-of-the sidewalk conversations impede other citizens' progress." The editorial was headed "Liebensraum," which has to do with "living space".

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I would like to take this opportunity to publish my opinion of an article which appeared in your newspaper on Friday, May 15, 1970. It concerned the use of horses by the Toronto Metropolitan Police for the quelling of demonstrations.

I feel that the use of mounted police to quiet demonstrations in Canada will be much more effective than tear gas and weapons. The typical demonstrator would obey a mounted police officer because they represent the most highly - trained group the authorities have today.

Are Postal Workers Pawns In Ottawa's Anti-Inflation Drive?

Windsor Star

The Council of Postal Unions' stand against the Treasury Board warrants sympathy. They have bargained earnestly with the government representatives since October, 1969. Their pay scale under the present contract, $3.05 per hour, for a 40-hour week would return less than $125 in total, and a weekly take-home, before voluntary deductions, of about $100. For the about 20 per cent with less than three years' service, their present rate of pay is starkly less.

These wages are hardly conducive to living in a city with living costs what they are.

The postal employees also hold to the view that they are being used as cannon fodder for the government's anti-inflationary policies. The Prices and Incomes Commission (PIC) through its vice-chairman Paul Gerin-Lajoie, believes wage increases should not exceed four per cent per year. When tied to the five per cent offered to the postal employees by the Treasury Board it is understandable why the union representatives make their charge.

The unfairness of using the postal workers as the juggernaut for the PIC wage restraints is readily apparent. They represent those in the lower income brackets who can least afford the government's unreasonably application of a four per cent per year ceiling on wage increases. The postal workers cannot expect to be forced to bear the brunt of Trudeau government's determined effort to control wage increases while other unions in the private sector are getting far more.

Rather than use underpaid government workers as the scapegoat for anti-inflationary policies the federal government should press the healthy and wealthy to the task. The unfortunate part for the postal workers is that they fall within the jurisdiction of federal labor law while strong unions fall under that of the provinces. The postes therefore make ideal targets for Prime Minister Trudeau and Treasury Board President C. M. Drury's highly publicized "war-on-inflation" economic policy.

However infuriating a postal strike may be, the anger should be directed at the government, not the postles.

Racist Violence In U. S. Schools

Christian Science Monitor

"Beaten black and blue with bob-wire swollen jaw." Thus a Washington Post writer sadly describes the way her 13-year-old came home from a Washington, D.C., junior high. The boy was one of 12 whites in a school of 900.

Of course, one must admit there has long been a measure of violence among young people. Schoolboy fights, they've been called. It must be said, too, that there has been fighting between nationality group youths in America, Poles against Italians, Irish against Yankees. During World War II there were also brutal fights between offspring of white Southerners who went north to work in city factories and the Northern youths who lived there.

But, in the case of the generic school fight, maturity and the responsibilities of adulthood as a natural course eventually end the resort to violence. And in the case of white nationality and regional youths, the process of assimilation into established society has all but ended the fights.

Not so the racial violence in today's schools. It appears more severe than ever before in the past, especially in the cities where the concentration of blacks is large. The likelihood of lessening schoolboy rapport—compounded by extortion and thievery — seems slight. As the Kerner commission pointed out, however, increasing concentration of blacks in urban areas makes such violence, in the long run, less rare, seems more not less likely. Indeed, the stationing of more and more police in school halls as security guards points to a worsening trend.

The Post writer tells how her attitude toward sending children to school in Washington was changing. The good intentions of "someone has to take a stand somewhere" was yielding to the realization that youngsters cannot be made pawns in the cause of social betterment. No doubt, the same thought of self-defense from a black minority in the hearts of black parents whose children are the first to integrate white schools. Likewise, the inward holding back of white parents, such as in Detroit, when mass evictions of students are made for the sake of racial balance.

Some point out that the educational, job, and other aspects of racism, which has characteristic of a social class, not a racial group. This is true also of violence in the years ahead, youth's life. But there is no denying that the process of assimilation, which has obviated the physical antagonism between immigrant and regional white groups, is retarded by the obvious racial factor. This is a case of outmoded racial thinking must be clearly seen.

Pleasure Craft Tests

Picton harbor this week is the scene of power boat tests for speed and manoeuvreability as the Allied Boating Association, Toronto and the Boat Industry Association, Chicago, run yachting trials. Purpose of the tests is to promote better boating in both Canadian and American waters.

Picton Harbor Scene Of Power Boat Trials

PICTON (Staff) — A mini - fleet of 35 power boats brought here by the Allied Boating Association, Toronto, and the Boat Industry Association, Chicago, this week has dropped anchor in Picton harbor to undergo tests.

Piloted over stability courses designed to test their speed and manoeuvrability, these pleasure craft range from 12 feet to 20 feet in length.

In horsepower they vary from 10 hp to 220 hp with corresponding speeds of 29 to 55 m.p.h.

All boats making the test runs are of fiberglass or aluminium construction. More than 45 men including drivers, mechanics, and boat builders are eagerly participating in the speed trials.

A spokesman for the Allied Boating Association, Jerry Thompson, said yesterday that all tests are being conducted to promote better boating. He explained that the associations are now certifying their boats and would like to certify American craft for Canadian waters. Similarly, Canadian boats would carry certification for waters in the United States.

Mr. Thompson added that each boat is equipped with an electronic device for recording speeds and variations in the yaw and roll plane before it runs the course marked in Picton harbor.

The performance of each boat is carefully observed and recorded in the pit at Picton Bay Marina. This is the sixth consecutive year that these trials have been run in Picton harbor.

"We chose this site because the harbor is sheltered from the wind and is located near accommodation facilities," noted Mr. Thompson.

Keeping a watchful eye on all test runs is the Canadian coast guard cutter, Spindrift. Canadian and American customs officials also are observing all trials. Cameras set up at several locations near the course record the performance of all boats.

Sailing in the seventies has the earmarks of a high fashion sport since most of the boats tested reflect a trend to bright colors. Tied to the dock is a deep mauve pleasure craft with matching upholstery, dubbed by its crew as "the purple people eater". For the more conservative sailor there are boats painted in soft shades of yellow, green and turquoise.

The tests, which began on Tuesday, will be completed tomorrow according to Mr. Thompson.

Weekend Reunion Begins Tomorrow

By GEORGE H. CARVER

The time has come, the gunners say,
To talk of other things,
Like FSI and navy types
And people wearing wings.
Let's chat of guns, like 25s
Of ammo and breach wipers,
And of the heroes who were dubbed
The 85-mile snipers.

The "time" for the gunners of the 34th Field Brigade RCA, comes on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week when they gather here for reunion.

The boat battery is the well-known 34th Battery RCA of Belleville who will join comrades of the 69th Battery, Montreal and the 81st Battery of Shawinigan Falls.

Upwards of 300 gunners and their ladies are expected to attend the three-day observances.

The roster of the 34th contains the names of many well-known Belleville veterans. It is their proud boast the 34th is the only complete unit to leave for overseas in two world wars.

The 34th also claims to own the cartridge case of the last artillery shell fired in World War Two.

Pat Boyle, president of the 34th Battery Association, his secretary Charles Sagar and committee members George Johnston, Vic Halsey, Otis Silk and Jim "Solpe" Matthews are in charge of the reunion program.

The Duke of Edinburgh AN and AF Branch here, has placed the facilities of the club at the visitors' disposal.

The 14th Brigade mobilized at Petawawa, got its baptism of fire on the bloody beaches of Normandy in 1940. Among the battle honors are Dekkerwald and Nijmegen "the liberation of Holland".

The Brigade claims a farflung membership. Ex - gunners from Nova Scotia, British Columbia and as far south as Florida will rejoin former comrades here.

Reunion plans call for a general get-together and social evening on Friday evening, June 5th in the ANAF Aarian Lounge. Registration will take place at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium Saturday morning.

The reunion banquet and dance will take place at Ben Bleecker Auditorium on Saturday evening, starting seven o'clock.

The guest speaker is Brigadier P. A. S. Todd (retired) of Hamilton, Ontario. The brigadier is a former gunner.

Two members of the original 34th Battery World War One, Bill McKenna and Hank Feno will be honored guests.

Tribute to the memory of fallen comrades will be paid at a special memorial service scheduled for the Hasty Pees Memorial in front of the armories on Sunday morning. Ensign Padre Bram Humphries will be in charge. Ex-gunners will fall in and parade from the Market Square. The ANAF Pipe Band will be in attendance.

"Breathes there a 'sweat' with soul so dead
Who never to himself has said,
'We never could have won the day
Without the guns of the RCA'."

Incentive Programs Said Way to Save Money in Hospitals

EDMONTON (CP) — Incentive programs in hospitals work — and provide better care for patients and re society, says P. R. Carruthers, executive director of the Greater Niagara Hospital in Niagara Falls, Ont.

Incentive programs are those in which hospital employees are returned a portion of the savings they create.

At the Greater Niagara Hospital the system has been used in two departments so far—the x-ray department and the laundry —and will likely be extended to others, Mr. Carruthers said during a panel discussion at the annual convention of the Canadian Hospital Association Wednesday.

Under the incentives program workers are given back 50 cents for every dollar saved over an amount based on an average year before the system went into effect.

"Our savings have been significant and I think the returns to employees will be considered significant, too," Mr. Carruthers told delegates.

Panel member Robert Edgecumbe of Los Angeles, executive vice-president of the United States-based Commission for Administrative Services in hospitals, said there are several different types of incentive plans.

He did not agree with the principle of paying financial rewards to hospital employees for improving their productivity level and controlling costs.

Strong management is necessary for such a scheme or they may have trouble with unions, he said.

Tax on Wage Increases Said Studied in Ottawa

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says the federal government plans to ask provincial finance ministers for their co-operation in imposing some form of wage control.

In an Ottawa story Wednesday, the newspaper quotes sources as saying the main wage control would be a tax on wage gains in excess of the federal prices and incomes commission's guideline of between five and six per cent.

The Star says the tax, which could be as high as 100 per cent of the increase above the recommended six-per cent maximum, will be discussed this weekend when provincial finance ministers meet in Winnipeg.

The sources said that if the 100 per cent tax plan was implemented, it would mean that a worker earning $150 a week could get a raise of $8 a week without the tax affecting him. But if he got a $15-a-week raise, the government would take $7 in extra taxes.

The sources said some form of wage control is needed because of the refusal of organized labor to co-operate with the prices and incomes commission guidelines.

Without some form of wage control the government's anti-inflation policies and the commission's guidelines are virtually ineffective, the sources said.

Ross Wary

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Murray Ross, retiring president of York University, warned Wednesday that certain extensions of both student and faculty power would hurt universities.

In a special report on York University's first decade, Dr. Ross said he opposed proposals for single-tier government at universities and student-faculty parity on university decision-making bodies.

Marrow Transplants May Reduce Rejection

KINGSTON (CP) — Some rejection symptoms in human transplant cases may be eliminated if bone marrow transplants can be performed," a conference of medical specialists from North America, Europe and Australia was told Wednesday.

Dr. D. W. VanBekkum, who came to Holland to attend the three-day conference which ended Wednesday, said some doctors in the United States believe marrow transplants should precede transplants of human organs.

He predicted that in 10 years there will be marrow banks similar to present blood banks.

Major Mining Conglomerate Protests White Paper Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Rio Tinto-Zinc Corp., British-owned mining giant with world-wide holdings, protested today that government tax-change proposals would weigh unfairly on the group and strike at its major Canadian interests.

The group's Canadian interests include ownership of Rio Algom Mines Ltd. and a 45-per-cent interest in British Newfoundland Corp.—Brinco—and their subsidiaries.

In addition, profits from subsidiaries in the United States, Africa and other regions are channelled through a Canadian private company, Tinto Holdings.

Both London-based Rio Tinto-Zinc and Brinco of Montreal lodged complaints about the government's tax white paper in separate submissions to the Senate banking committee.

Brinco said proposed tax treatment would make its planned development of a hydro plant at Gull Island on the lower Churchill River in Labrador unlikely.

Brinco owns Churchill Falls Labrador Corp., which is developing North America's biggest hydro-electric project.

Rio Tinto-Zinc said it would be hit mainly by proposals for integrating tax on corporations and their owners, planned distinctions between widely-held and private companies and treatment of profits passing between corporations.

"The effect of the white paper proposals on the existing RTZ Canadian corporate organization is to impose very substantial additional taxes on distributions to shareholders. . . .

"It is estimated that the combination of various proposals will increase the effective rate of Canadian tax on earnings distributed to RTZ from its Canadian investments to rates of between 65 per cent and 79 per cent," Rio Tinto said.

One reason is that no tax credits could be passed on because some of the subsidiary companies would be paying no tax due to various allowances for utilities, mines and foreign subsidiaries of Canadian-incorporated companies.

Another is that company income passing to a private corporation such as Tinto Holdings would carry no credit for tax already paid.

"The proposals impose a heavy and inequitable tax penalty on foreign investors who have for good reasons chosen corporate structures under which investments in widely-held corporations are held through Canadian holding companies."

Pill May Be Cause Of Suicide Jump

TORONTO (CP) — Depression, a common side effect in some women taking birth control pills, may figure in a 100-per-cent increase in the suicide rate of Ontario females between 1961 and 1968, a researcher says.

Dr. T. W. Anderson of the University of Toronto, writing in the current edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal says the increase "is unlikely to be simply the result of increasing public acceptance of suicide as a death certificate diagnosis," because during the same period the males suicide rate for Ontario increased only 11 per cent.

The Ontario suicide rate between 1959 and 1961 was 3.6 in 100,000 for females and 14.3 for males. By 1968 it had doubled to 7.2 for females, while the male rate increased to 15.5.

Dr. Anderson, assistant professor of epidemiology and biometrics, studied suicide rates as part of a study on oral contraceptives and female mortality trends.

He said in his report the suicide figures "are not necessarily related to the use or oral contraceptives and may be due to a combination of factors."

However, the increase was disquieting and the "possibility that it may be related to the use of oral contraceptives emphasizes the importance of regular supervision of patients who are taking these drugs."

Muscles Strong Through Exercise

By DORIS CLARK

RehabilitAtion — wonderful new medical specialty! Giving people back what they have lost through no fault of their own. Their health; their functioning ability. Their will to carry on.

At a rehab centre I saw a woman who had lost her right arm in an accident, and whose left arm was injured, gradually regaining the full strength of the left one through systematic exercise.

In a specially designed kitchen, she was learning how to manage with one hand instead of two.

The director told me if often happens that a limb given such special attention will become stronger than it has ever been before.

Doesn't this underline for all of us how vital it is to keep our muscles strong and elastic through regular exercise?

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a young man of 20. Until I married I was one of the happiest persons, as I had lots of friends and enjoyed taking part in community efforts, giving a helping hand to neighbors or friends.

I admire my parents. With their help I have acquired a section of land and a herd of cattle. The trouble is my wife. She shuns my whole family, never invites them over and is cold towards them when they do call.

This is killing the love and admiration I had for her. She is this way with some of the people I like for friends. Although my parents can't help but see this, they ignore her actions for my sake. She is just the opposite when it comes to her family and thinks I should be too.

What should I do? I can't expect my family to take this forever. I feel I am not being myself to my wife or family. — Tense and Confused.

Dear Tense: What gives here? Have you unwittingly made the girl you married feel out of things by the way you share familiar topics, even old - hone jokes, with your family?

This adjustment to in - laws turns up in every marriage. It takes some pretty loving intelligence to make these new relationships lasting and precious.

When her family comes, reach out to them: and ask her for the same friendship in your folks.

Now is the time to lay the foundation for a better lifetime; otherwise, as you say, love has a good chance of being killed.

* * *

Dear Doris: Some weeks ago a friend went to the doctor. During the course of conversation, she told him about a personal family problem.

Now she is afraid that he may repeat it. I told her I am sure it is the last thing any doctor would dare do. Do you agree? — Worried For Friend.

Dear Worried: Don't panic. Doctors are the traditional repositories of personal confidences and family skeletons. And not a one escapes them.

Because the family doctor knows the close connection between physical health and peace of mind, he listens and helps when he can. But it is part of his time - honored, ethics to respect confidences.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope for private reply.)

MONTREAL (CP) — Fred Laubl, recently - appointed general manager of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Montreal, keeps secret files on every guest with personal comment ranging from "best" to "not to be taken any more." Ann Landers

Homosexual Incident Should Be Revealed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was 13 (11 years ago) my uncle started a homosexual relationship with me. It lasted until I was nearly 15. One day we were discovered by my father. The fight that followed nearly killed himself. This caused such an upheaval in our family that I was placed in a foster home.

My foster parents were the finest people God ever put on this earth. Out of their own modest funds they paid for my psychotherapy and put me through college.

I recently became engaged to a wonderful girl. We plan to marry in August. My real parents demand that I tell the girl and her family the whole sordid story of my past. I do not feel it is necessary for them to know. I'm not the same person I was eleven years ago and I see no purpose that could be served by digging up old bones. My fiancee is very naive and her parents are ultra-conservative. They would be shocked to death. My foster parents have begged my folks to stay out of it but they are adamant. What should be done? — ERIC.

DEAR ERIC: Your foster parents may be "the nicest people God ever put on this earth" but they are not very realistic. Your fiancee and her folks should be told and you are the one who should tell them — with your foster parents at your side.

If there had been only the homosexual incident, I would say "keep quiet." But the suicide makes the story spectacular — one which is sure to be remembered by people who know you and your family. Someone would surely pass the word to your girl and her parents. Then where would you be?

If they cannot accept you after they learn of your background it is best that you know it now.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is one of the greatest guys in the world — but he is becoming an insufferable bore. Reason: We are building a new home and that's all Freddie talks about. He has memorized the dimensions of all the rooms, knows the technical names for mortar mix, wood treatment and termite protection. He draws diagrams and gives lectures of the windows, the air conditioning and the lighting. In brief, he monopolizes every conversation and our friends are sick of it. Last night he hauled the blueprints out of his pocket and spread them on the dinner table. We had six guests and I thought I'd die.

I hate to deflate his ego because this house means a great deal to him. But he's becoming a pain in the ankle. What should I do? — FED UP.

DEAR FED: I can think of few things in this world less interesting than other people's blueprints — unless perhaps it is slides of their trip or movies of their child's birthday party. There are times when a wife must be brutally frank to save a husband from himself. Tell Freddie he is imposing on people and to cut it out. Warn him that if he starts talking about the house again you'll promptly change the subject as an act of mercy. Then do it.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "John has his heart set on our son becoming a doctor. There's always been a doctor in the family. Johnny isn't enthusiastic about it, but he's smart enough to handle the work and has agreed to go to medical school."

The high school student may need some guidance in choosing a career, but a parent with his heart set on a definite profession, may not be the best person to give the guidance.

Mother: "Let's talk to Johnny's counselor at school and see what his aptitude tests show. I think he's planning to study medicine to please us, but he seems more interested in English and journalism."

Front Street, Bermuda Is Shoppers' Delight

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP) — Front Street in this pastel-colored capital is a shopper's delight. These long blocks of shops face the harbor where each week the New York-Bermuda cruise ships dock partly to the street with their loads of tourists. The elegant and spacious shops themselves are set back on an arcaded sidewalk.

Two shops provide the tourist with extremes. The daffodil-yellow Calypso features only international merchandise, from more than 30 countries. Bermuda Crafts confines itself entirely to local crafts and products.

The Calypso is owned by Polly Hornburg, whose English family came to Bermuda in 1638. She was studying in New York when she married John Hornburg from Minnesota, and they decided to start a business in Bermuda.

"To get an exclusive print Polly had to gamble on a bale of 22,000 yards—of cotton. With their home stacked high with yardage, the Hornburgs hired island seamstresses and made up whatever they thought would sell. Today there are also Calypso shops in Jamaica and Barbados.

These international purchases have resulted in ready-to-wear—and definitely different—merchandise.

Crushed velvet pants from Poland can be worn with sweaters from Portugal. From Naples came stunning hand-made leather belts with hand-cast brass buckles. A popular fabric is chappe, a type of silk from India, hand-screened in beautiful colors and made into scarves, suits, etc. Another unusual fabric made up into skirts and shirts comes from Madagascar.

LOCAL CRAFTS ONLY — Denny Richardson, co-owner of the Bermuda Crafts shop in Hamilton, Bermuda, admires some hand-screened wall hangings and head scarves created by Marlene (right). Hand-screened items are popular in the shop which sells only local crafts and products. (CP Photo)

Swimwear is mostly from France and Denmark, but with a large collection from well-known Altmann of Vienna. Polly also designs a swimwear in a Bermudian motif, labelled Miss Calypso. Here is a skimpy bikini called Tan Through—and it means it —made in West Germany.

Upstairs is a more expensive boutique and what Polly calls "the biggest sale of paintings from Haiti in the world."

Bermuda Crafts is run by two native Bermudians, Stanley Thomas and Denny Richardson. It's a cooperative newcomer, having started four years ago in the old capital, St. George. Last November they opened the Hamilton shop.

The idea actually developed in Canada. Stanley attended Ottawa's Carleton University and then taught in that city. However he wasn't happy as a school teacher and decided to return home.

In the meantime he'd met German-born artist Susan Harlander, also a designer and creator, who has lived in Brookln, Ont., for the last 18 years. Susan, a frequent visitor to Bermuda, had noted that there was no shop entirely devoted to Bermuda crafts. So when Stanley visited her studio she suggested this as a possibility.

Susan also designed several screened items, such as sailboats and Bermuda flowers, including the well-known pansies flower and Easter lily. Now you can buy these motifs on handy towels, cocktail napkins, luncheon sets and barbecue aprons, hand-screened on the premises in interesting color combinations.

Susan also created a series of famous-person designs. Three have been hand-screened on a long wall hanging.

Stanley scoured the island for local craft workers. Now the shop includes pottery items as well as articles from Bermuda's famous cedar trees, which have been tragically destroyed by blight. Also popular are the long necklaces of colored berries from local Pride of India trees. There are also straw dolls and the usual Bermuda-designed straw bags, and local-made flat candle in odd shapes.

Besides the other shops on Front Street, there are some delightful boutiques on the main roads throughout this charming, quiet and historic island.

Miss Lorraine Janet Brown, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown of Glenora Road, Picton, formerly of RR 1, Belleville received her Bachelor of Arts (general) degree, at the Queen's University convocation on May 30, 1970. Miss Brown was an Ontario scholar and a 1967 graduate of Nicholson Catholic College. She has accepted a position with the International Scientific of Canada, Co., of Ottawa.

Tasty Fruit Loaf Keeps Well in Freezer

By MARY MOORE

Barbara J. M. certainly is a good and generous cook.

Again she has come to the aid of our program with a Fruit Loaf — one that you would be proud to serve and which freezes excellently. She says it may be doubled and comes "some place between the usual tea bread and a light Christmas cake." That describes it accurately. Directly from the freezer it slices water-thin for dainty toasting, but my brother wasted two thick slices.

FRUIT LOAF (will freeze; may be doubled; courtesy Barbara J. M.)

2 eggs
1 cup light brown sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ cup shortening (room temperature)
1 cup milk
1 cup glace cherries
1 cup mixed peel
3 cups sifted all - purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
1/2c beater bowl measure the eggs, sugar, salt and shortening, and beat until light. Remove beaters. Add milk, cherries, peel, flour and baking powder and beat by hand until thoroughly blended. Turn into buttered loaf pan 9 x 5 x 3" and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. 1 hr.

NOTE: If you double this recipe (and I think it is a good idea for freezer stockers) you should bake the batter in two loaf pans — not in one outsize pan.

This loaf is beautiful — it will remind you of cherry pound cake for the cherries remain suspended in the batter and slice perfectly.

Running Household Big Business Today

EDMONTON (CP) — Running a household is a fairly big business today and to be effective it's a good idea to adopt business-like practices, says Pat Macaluk, home management specialist for the Alberta department of agriculture.

"Every home should have a business centre," she said in an interview. "It doesn't have to be large or expensive or elaborate, as long as it's organized and functional."

The average family handles roughly 1,000 bills each year as well as cheques, receipts, letters and other documents, Miss Macaluk said. Many of these, such as mortgage or car payments, should be carefully checked and recorded promptly in a record book.

"We've all spent frustrating hours hunting for a receipt to confirm payment—checking kitchen drawers, an old desk in the spare room, our purses and wallets," she said. "It's more logical to be organized."

The "business centre" can be anywhere in the house—the kitchen, den, basement or even the bedroom. It only needs a surface for writing, the equipment and a place for storage.

Miss Macaluk, who often travels around the province helping farm women organize themselves so they can help in farm management, recommends a desk-sized space where you can sit and write with all the "ins"—pens, pencils, stationery, calendar and so on—at hand.

There also should be a drawer or storage cabinet for files, records, papers, cheque books and the like.

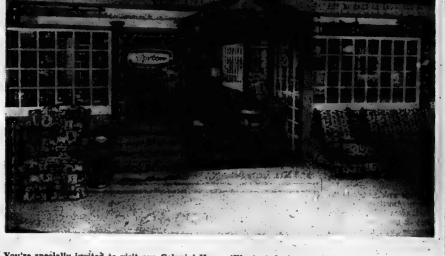
The whole family should know what the business centre is for; they can help keep the business things there. As well, the whole family may find they can use the area, too.

"Give the kids one of the drawers of your work desk for school business and they'll find it a convenient study area."

The tall, slender management expert looked over the slightly cluttered desk and loaded in-basket in her office and laughed. "I'm not particularly organized myself, but I've learned it pays to keep my disorganization at a workable level."

She uses an 811 second-hand desk—"I repainted it myself"—for her business centre at home.

The attractive redhead said many of the women she has helped to set up home business centres have said it has helped them to look at much more of their housemaking in a business-like way.



"They find they keep more and better household budgets, for instance. Over a period of time, the business centre saves money and time."

Music 'Dictated' by Dead Musicians

LONDON (CP) — A middle-aged south London widow, who has been playing the piano for most of her life, claims that some of the world's greatest musicians, long dead, have been "dictating" music to her.

The result has so impressed a music publishing company that it made a record of Rosemary Brown's music, accompanied by statements by prominent British musicians, composers and teachers, expressing amazement at Mrs. Brown's achievements.

Sir George Trevelyan, warden of the Shropshire Adult College in Shrewsbury, says that it is clear that for any valid investigation "we must approach a thing of this kind without preconception or prejudice."

"The phenomenon presents a challenge and is so unusual that it must not be quickly dismissed by some facile explanation."

Trevelyan says that Mrs. Brown, mother of two children, had a few piano lessons before the Second World War "and could play the piano tolerably well."

Things really began to happen in 1965. She had discovered, as she said, that she had unusual powers and had become aware of an "elderly gentleman" from the spirit world. She gradually realized that her guide was Franz Liszt, and she found she could converse with him, Trevelyan says.

Then Liszt began to introduce other distinguished composers into the circle.

The long-playing record containing piano pieces played by Mrs. Brown herself. She insists that they were written "through" her not only by Liszt, but Chopin, Beethoven, Debussy, Brahms, Grieg and Schuman.

Richard Rodney Benett, one of Britain's leading young composers, says of Mrs. Brown's claim:

Jolene M. Weese, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. John P. Weese, Frankford, received her BA with honors at Lauretian University convocation held on May 30, 1970 at Sudbury. Jolene plans to attend Toronto Teachers' College in the fall and take the primary specialist course.

"We can all imitate Debussy at the piano if we want to, but to create a piece of music—which is coherent as a piece—which seems to go very much to the roots of the composer's style by recreating it instantly, is much more complicated. . . . A lot of people can improvise but you couldn't fake music like this without years of training."

Mary Fricker, a music teacher, says she found that normally Mrs. Brown hasn't even a basic music ability.

"I could play a simple melody which she simply couldn't take down. When I played two simple parts, those were simply beyond her."

Mrs. Brown, whose husband died in 1961, lives in a row of houses in the South London district of Balham. She helped raise her two children, Geoffrey, 17, and Thomas, 13, by working as a waitress.

She says that sometimes when she is shopping at the local supermarket, "Liszt will appear . . . and stop me buying something."

She claims that she can joke with Liszt—who likes to watch her color television set —but she cannot joke with Beethoven.

"I'm awed by Beethoven. He's sort of exalted."

One day, she was playing the piano and lost control of her hands. Liszt appeared and guided her fingers over the keys.

"I don't mind if I'm laughed at," she says. "I can only say what I have seen."

For the reception held at the Park Dale Community Centre, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a light blue crepe ensemble with jewelled collar, white accessories and a corsage of dark pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dark blue double-knit ensemble, black accessories and a corsage of dark pink roses.

For the wedding trip to the eastern American seaboard and Niagara Falls, the bride chose a turquoise two-piece ensemble with a sleeveless dress and boxer jacket. She wore dark brown accessories and a corsage of dark pink roses and feathered carnations.

The couple will reside at 71 Lewis St., Apt. 6, Belleville.

Taking A Break!

Mrs. Ena Corke, president of the women's section of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club and Miss Elizabeth Black, convener, are served coffee and dessert at the luncheon bridge held yesterday afternoon at the Country Club. Serving them are, from left to right, Mrs. Anne Acton, co-convener and Mrs. Irene Belanger.

Women members of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club started off the summer season with a luncheon bridge held Wednesday afternoon at the club. The tables were attractively decorated with bouquets of spring flowers as the guests sat down to luncheon. There are 150 women members of the club.

Conveners for the bridge were Mrs. Anne Acton and Miss Elizabeth Black while the social convener was Florence Lennox.

Guests were received at the door by Mrs. Ena Corke, president of the women's section and Mrs. Irene Belanger, wife of the president of the men's section.

After the luncheon consisting of a beautifully arranged salad plate and as one looked out on the bay, the guests played bridge. Prizes consisted of gentlemens given to the lowest score at the tables having an odd number, and a centre table prize given to the highest score at the even numbered tables.

Door prizes were donated by members of the club and were awarded to the following: Jean Elliott, Nora Morey, Vicki Ritchie, Ruth Lomas, Peggie Hammel, Win Bowler, Bernice Hales, Rose Tatham, Marion Lowry, Ethel Townsend, Peggy Cameron, Emma Empson, Grace Carruthers, Betty Brown, Leonore Yealland, Laura Alford, Miriam Bishop and Lillian Poole.

Manor Auxiliary Holds Meeting

Mrs. Maclean, president of the Hastings Manor Auxiliary welcomed the members and opened with reading a poem at the recent meeting held in the home library.

Regular reports were read including a report on films and bingos which the residents had enjoyed. Members had also made hospital calls and flower bowls were sent to patients there. Mrs. Davidson expressed thanks to those who had helped in the coffee shop, while Mrs. McLaren reported on visitation by a number of church groups to the Manor.

The usual birthday party was held with one of the residents marking a 102nd birthday. Pouring tea at this time were Mrs. J. Dowling and Mrs. G. Evans.

Recently 40 residents enjoyed a trip around the bay to view the blossoms and on Saturday evening a number attended the Don Messer show at the Belleville Arena, courtesy of a local organization.

Water Quality Management Bill Receives Commons Approval

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian water bill cleared the last hurdle Wednesday on the way to final Commons approval as the government defeated 11 opposition amendments.

The bill, which provides for water quality management agencies throughout Canada, is slated to receive third reading today. It has all party support.

Voting was on party lines with the Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes supporting all amendments and the Liberals opposing.

Also Wednesday, Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien told the House he hopes to visit Russia this summer to examine Soviet Arctic technology.

Speaking in debate on the government bill designed to prevent pollution of Arctic waters, Mr. Chretien said Russia seems anxious to exchange information on the Arctic.

As voting ended on the water bill, amendments, Resources Minister J. J. Greene moved third reading. But the final step was postponed when Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin said the government "should have a night to think about the errors of their ways."

The voting lasted 41 minutes prompting James McGrath (PC — St. John's East) to ask the government to introduce electronic voting systems.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said the question should have been aimed at him. He would consider Mr. McGrath's idea.

The defeated amendments would have:

—Included national water quality standards in the bill rather than permitting water quality management agencies to set their own standards;

—Required new industry to build treatment systems to prevent pollution in areas under the jurisdiction of the proposed act rather than permitting payment of effluent fees to cover the cost of cleaning the polluted water bodies;

—Prohibited export of Canadian waters except with Parliament's approval.

—Placed residual pollution abatement authority in the hands of the federal resources minister where provinces or other federal departments do not already have legal jurisdiction.

—Forced detergent manufacturers to label cleaning agents with the percentage of phosphates or other nutrients contained;

—Required the resources minister to consult provinces and industry before banning any nutrients for cleaning agents.

—Banned manufacture of cleaning agents containing phosphates in Canada by Jan. 1, 1971, and ended their sale by Jan. 1, 1972.

The water quality management agencies would, under the legislation, include federal, provincial and local representatives.

The agencies would establish quality standards and set fees for industries and municipalities depositing waste in local waters. Industry would be open to $5,000-a-day fines if it exceeds waste deposit limits.

Mr. Chretien, speaking on an amendment to the Arctic waters bill, said findings of the voyage of the American ship Manhattan through the Northwest Passage will be available free of charge to the Canadian government.

Northern Ontario Floods Continue

ELLIOT RIVER, Ont. (CP) — A dozen boy scouts from Ohio were among persons rescued Wednesday from a lowland area north of here where they were stranded when roads were washed out by heavy rains this week.

Of an estimated 300 persons stranded along the Missinaibi and Little White rivers, about 25 were brought out of the area by helicopter and planes before darkness Wednesday night.

The rescue operations were to resume early today, as the weatherman called for more of Wednesday's sunshine and no rain.

The scouts were on camping trip in the lowland region, where more than 10 inches of rain fell between Saturday and early Wednesday morning, carsing river floods which washed out all accessible roads north of here.

The boys were reported undisturbed by their situation and happy with the ideal fishing conditions. They and the others rescued were brought here where the Emergency Measures Organization provided temporary accommodation and food.

The flooding, which covered an area from north of this town, about 70 miles southeast of Sault Ste.-Marie, to as far east as Dowling, 30 miles west of Sudbury, has caused damage expected to total hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Rene Brunelle, Ontario minister of lands and forests, made an aerial inspection of the flooded areas Wednesday to determine the extent of provincial assistance needed.

Residential areas through much of the Blezard Valley were flooded when the Vermilion and Onaping rivers overran their banks.

Police said that late Wednesday night the Vermilion River was still rising and Highway 144 was under four feet of water at Dowling.

Fire Chief Pat Arthur of Dowling said many families left today in boats. Firemen used canoes to help evacuate more families. Other families stayed put, using canoes and boats to move about on what had been mainly dry land.

Hundreds of nickel miners were stranded at Levack, 20 miles west of Sudbury, as flood waters washed out roads, while in Espanola a pulp and paper mill suspended production because of power failure due to heavy flooding.

Legionnaires Want Border Closed to Draft Dodgers

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the six-day Royal Canadian Legion convention here prepared to pick a new president today after spirited Wednesday sessions during which they sought to close the border to American draft-dodgers and deserters.

Unless there is a last-minute nomination, Judge J. Redmond Roche of Montreal will succeed Robert Kehaty of Estevan, Sask., as president-by-acclamation. He is the only candidate.

Wednesday, Saskatchewan delegates nominated Mr. Kehaty for another two-year term but the lawyer declined.

Robert Smellie of Winnipeg and Mike Adams of Toronto are nominees for vice-president.

Judge Redmond, 63, had been first vice-president of the war veterans' organization for the past two years and was elected president of the Quebec command in 1963.

Delegates cheered a resolution calling for amendment of Canada's immigration laws to keep draft dodgers and deserters out of this country.

Delegates applauded vigorously when George Percold of Don Mills, Ont., said, "Comrades, this group contains every shade of red, from 'pinko' to Trotskyites to Maoist."

Several delegates referred to American draft-dodgers as "young bums who haven't the courage" to support their country.

The prohibition resolution had been sponsored by seven commands across Canada.

Delegates also voted to send Prime Minister Trudeau a loyalty resolution with the view that "Canada should retain the monarchy."

Gordon Sinclair Day Observed in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Sinclair celebrated his 70th birthday Wednesday. For once, he was at a loss for words even though he knew it was a planned, well-organized Happy Birthday.

Officially, it was Gordon Sinclair Day in Toronto and the hometown boy who has made his name a household word—sometimes a nasty word—across the country was accorded a greeting seldom given to a newspaper man or broadcaster. Usually such receptions are given to a Stanley Cup winner parading up Bay Street.

More than 2,000 persons turned up in city hall square to sing Happy Birthday—a head of cue—to the happy warrior of 47 years in the news game, on the Toronto Star, on radio station CFRB and on television, when he appeared on stage. They repeated it on command when the cameras were turned on and the ceremony was televised nationally by the CBC. Then they ate a four-tier, 3½-foot-high birthday cake. The mayor presented him with a set of City of Toronto cuff links.

After that came what was billed as a "modest" luncheon. Some 200 names in the newspaper, radio and entertainment world attended.

Sinclair—he doesn't like the prefix "mister"—has said that there is no God, so grace was not said before the luncheon.

He doesn't like fluoridated water, so the toast to the Queen was drunk in Vichy water.

He also likes wine, so champagne only was served.

Prime Minister Trudeau sent greetings. So did former prime minister Lester Pearson and Ontario Premier John Robarts.

Gregory Clark, himself a fixture in any journalistic hall of fame, recalled his days on The Star with Mr. Sinclair during the Depression days of the 1930s.

ART NOUVEAU by Martin Battersby

Art Nouveau is a term which has become widely used in the last few years but, as the author shows, it should only be applied to the decorative style which was fashionable in France at the end of the nineteenth century. The name 'Art Nouveau' was not applied to the new movement until the opening in 1895 of L'Art Nouveau, a shop specializing in modern design at 22 Rue de Provence. This book shows exquisite color plates from this period.

THE TECHNIQUES OF GRAPHIC ART by H. van Kruisinga

The word "graphic" is derived from the Greek word meaning "to write". Graphic art means the art that can be reproduced by hand printing may be used. In these articles the author surveys graphic techniques past and present, writing both for those who wish to appreciate the history of the subject and those who wish to practise graphic art in one or other of its forms.

HISTORY OF COLOR IN PAINTING by Faber Birren

This book is concerned with color expression in the art of painting, rather than with the mechanics of painting or how to paint. The first part of the book traces the development of color theory, presenting the views of such thinkers as Leonardo da Vinci, Goethe, Hering, Chevreul and Munsell. The palettes used by many great painters are described and listed in detail. A unique chart of artist's color samples, duplicated visually the palettes of da Vinci, El Greco, Turner and the Impressionists, enabling the painter of today to match the color effects of these painters.

SCULPTURE by Donald J. Irving

This book contains the essential information about what new materials are available and how best to use them. Emphasis is on metals and metal processes — the technological discoveries that have made the greatest impact on contemporary sculpture. This is an invaluable reference for sculptors who wish to learn the ways and means of modern sculpture.

TWENTIETH CENTURY ART by Michael Battersby

Traditional art historians often look upon modern artists as old-fashioned adults look upon modern youth, with dismay or with a lack of understanding. One of the most appealing characteristics of Twentieth Century Art is its analysis of major styles, schools, movements and individual artists' works, accompanied by several large, full color illustrations. Readers are bound to enjoy his accounts of the lives of rebellious, impatient and talented young people. Also interesting is the fact that, these rebellious, often misunderstood youngsters bore such names as Picasso and Modigliani.

POTTERY: The techniques OF THROWING by John Colbeck

Throwing is the process of shaping clay by hand on a potter's wheel. It is only part of the larger process of pottery making. A thrown form to be 'finished' must at least be fired. In his book, John Colbeck discusses clay and its preparation by mixing, wedging and kneading, as well as the process and cons of the various kinds of wheels.

New Governing Body Planned for U. of T.

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto committee recommended Wednesday a new governing structure.

The new body would consist of three academic administrators, 21 faculty members, 11 students, three support staff, 10 alumni, 14 lay members, the president of the university and three presidential appointees.

The committee, which had met for three days, was composed of 40 academic faculty, 40 administrators and support staff, and 30 others, including alumni.

Student spokesman Fred Hacker said students deplored the recommendations, but would accept them.

New Methods Urged To Re-use Waste Goods

OTTAWA (CP) — The quality of the environment can be improved with new methods of recovering and re-using waste materials, a United States engineering technologist said Wednesday.

William J. Morse, director of the centre for environment studies at Pennsylvania State University, said such means would conserve natural resources in North America.

He told the North American West Technology Conference that effective environmental control cannot be achieved merely by increasing the efficiency of collection devices or in improving industrial processes.

"Despite significant reductions in emissions of all types, our gains on individual sources of air pollution are more than offset by an increasing population and demand for goods, energy and services.

"We must rely more heavily on recovering what we now consider to be wastes and on total energy utilization."

Mr. Morse said a recent survey of the engineering faculty at Pennsylvania State indicated that, provided sufficient funds and manpower are available, 80 per cent of pollution problems could be controlled within five years.

"But there is little expectation that this level of control activity will actually come about, for it is doubtful the public could accept the associated social changes as rapidly as they would have to be made."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We are planning a trip to Atlantic City, N. J., in early June and down along the coast to Myrtle Beach, S.C. Please give us a direct route down and a few attraction s on the way.

ANSWER: Atlantic City is one of the most popular seaside resorts in the United States. The famous boardwalk 60 feet wide and 8 miles long, along the Atlantic Ocean is a wonderful place for a brisk walk and the air is so invigorating. All along the board walk there are beautiful shops which are excellent for shopping, there is a lovely white sandy beach for swimming. This is a very popular place for conventions and tourists, so it is wise to make reservations well in advance. Get a room overlooking the ocean if you can. Ocean City and Wildwood Beaches, a little farther south along the ocean front, are very good also, but much smaller and quieter.

About 200 miles farther south along the coast is a good spot to stop for a few days. This is Virginia Beach, Virginia, a resort city with an ocean coastline of 29 miles. One of the largest and most famous resorts along the Atlantic Ocean. Virginia Beach offers an excellent sand beach and 2 miles of boardwalk.

About 50 miles west of Virginia Beach on route 60 is the historical town of Williamsburg which you should not miss. "That the future may learn from the past" is the theme for Colonial Williamsburg, a restoration wiho u t equal.

The colonial area of the city has 83 18th-century buildings restored to their original appearance. This project was made possible by the generous provisions of the late John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Visit the information centre first. There you will see a beautiful free color film which will take you back in history to the 18th century and will explain the past of Willamsburg. You can take a bus to all the historical buildings from the information centre.

Carter's Grove, a famous old plantation, 6 miles east of town, is open daily to the public. This mansion, built in 1756, was once owned by the famous Robert Carter, one of Virginia Colony's wealthiest and most influential men. He owned more than 300,000 acres of land and had 1,000 slaves. It is filled with beautiful antiques and is restored to its original grandeur. Here George Washington and Thomas Jefferson and many famous people were frequent guests. In Williamsburg you will find many excellent motels, interesting shops, ancient taverns and restaurants.

On U.S. 60, just east of here, is a museum that contains a wealth of maritime and nautical interest. Among the hundreds of exhibits are the world's largest collection of ship models, guns, cannons, nautical instruments and, an extensive library. Open daily.

From Virginia Beach you can continue south along the coast about 300 miles to Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. This has one of the finest beaches on the coast, excellent golfing and deep-sea fishing and many lovely motels.

We have reviewed Myrtle Beach recently in this column so it won't be necessary to enlarge on this further.

Fast Route Down— Take interstate 81 from Ivy Lea Bridge to Scranton, Pa. northeast Pennsylvania Turnpike to Philadelphia, Schuylkill Expressway to Atlantic City Expressway. This will take you into Atlantic City. From Atlantic City take the Garden State Parkway to the Cape May Ferry, route 13 to Chesapeake Bay Bridge - Tunnel, route 13 and 17 to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Direct Route Home — Take route 501 west to 301 and 95 and continue on this route to Baltimore, by-pass the city on 695 and take route 83 to Harrisburg, Pa., and Interstate 81 to Ivy Lea Bridge.

Students at Niagara College's Welland campus operate equipment in a combined radio - television studio, one of many college broadcast operations across Canada. Annual operating expenses for college stations run from a few hundred dollars to the $32,000 spent by the Saskatoon campus of the University of Saskatchewan. (CP Photo)

Battle to Cut Drug Prices On

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is preparing to turn the heat on the provinces to lower the cost of prescription drugs to the consumer, reliable sources say.

The federal action is to come at a closed meeting with provincial representatives June 10.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford has assembled considerable ammunition to convince the provincial governments of the need for action, especially at the level of druggists who are provincially-licensed.

His department has been keeping close watch on retail drug prices in recent months.

An even closer look is in prospect in the wake of a sudden breaking up of the legal log-jam that held up applications for compulsory licences to import into Canada drugs protected by Canadian patents.

Parliament last year amended the Patent Act in line with recommendations of the Harley committee that protection given to drug manufacturers be weakened to bring about lower consumer drug prices.

The Harley committee, a Commons body, was so called for its chairman, Dr. Harry Harley, former Liberal MP.

Under the Patent Act amendment, reputable drug importers or manufacturers could apply to the federal patent commissioner for a "compulsory licence" on a patent-protected drug of a rival firm. The commissioner would set a royalty and the licence could then import the drug and sell it, provided he complied with food and drugs laws.

The first such license was challenged in the courts by American Home Products which attempted unsuccessfully to block the granting of a licence to Inglis Pharmaceuticals Ltd., on a form of penicillin.

The litigation held up granting of licences to more than a dozen other applicants in other cases until a few days ago.

With the court having upheld the licensing, 30 more were issued mainly for the biggest selling drugs—tranquilizers and antibiotics. One application was refused and another four decisions were appealed to the Exchequer Court of Canada.

As of Wednesday, 32 applications remained to be dealt with.

The federal government is expected to argue that it now is up to provincial governments to ensure that the druggists pass on to the consumer any savings that may result from cheaper imported drugs.

PEI Girl New Miss Dominion

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Norma Hickey, 19, a raven-haired, blue-eyed Prince Edward Islander, was selected Miss Dominion of Canada Wednesday night.

Runners-up were Shayn Dion, 19, of Calgary, who will replace Miss Hickey if she is unable to fulfill her functions as the titleholder, and Susan Flavell, 20, of Kingston.

Miss Hickey, one of 10 children, is the daughter of a school bus driver in Darnley, P.E.I., about 45 miles from Charlottetown.

The only other title she ever won was Miss Community Garden at Darnley. She entered the Miss Prince Edward Island contest earlier this year but did not place.

She said her steady boyfriend persuaded her to enter the Miss Dominion of Canada pageant.

Following her graduation from the secretarial arts course at Charlottetown's Holland College where she has completed one year, she hopes to work as a secretary, take further courses, and become a teacher.

Majestic Pass

This section of the Trans-Canada Highway carries traffic through Glacier National Park, B.C., in the Rocky Mountains. The opening of the highway resulted in large numbers of British Columbians motoring to other parts of Canada — and Dr. D. Y. # Lima Is Once Again Shaken By Earth Tremor Wednesday

LIMA (Reuters) — Lima was shaken by a strong earth tremor Wednesday night for the second time this week following a devastating earthquake Sunday which killed an estimated 40,000 persons in northern Peru.

The tremor indicated further destruction in the ravaged interior.

The latest tremor came as the government tried desperately to fly food and medicine to about 600,000 persons made homeless by the earthquake Sunday.

Troops managed Wednesday to clear a 1,000-foot landing strip in the central Huaylas Corridor in the rugged Andes, and reactie planes and helicopters started bringing in supplies in a race against time to reach the injured and homeless.

Roads in the stricken region were left impassable by landslides and mounds of rubble. Government officials said Wednesday night it might take days to clear them for convoys of trucks.

The disaster is of unimaginable proportions, and it is beyond human power to estimate the real number of victims," presidential spokesman Augusto Zimmerman told reporters.

"The first thing we have to do is to save the lives of those who survived," he said. "Nothing can be done for the dead."

As he spoke, paratroops were dropped with supplies near Yungay in the hard-hit Central Valley to rescue 2,500 homeless and injured, the only survivors of the town's 20,000 inhabitants. Yungay was first shattered by the quake and then floodwaters from a lake wiped it off the map.

The homeless, mainly Indians, are living without shelter, food or clothes in sub-zero temperatures on the mountain slopes at heights of up to 13,000 feet.

The United States sent two giant Hercules transport planes loaded with food and medical supplies and three helicopters after a Peruvian appeal for help. More planes were to arrive today from the U.S. Air Force base in Panama.

When troops cleared the landing strip in the corridor near the ruins of Huaraz, rescue planes and helicopters were able to bring in more than 100 tons of supplies.

Huaraz, a picturesque mountain town, was almost entirely levelled when the earthquake struck. So far, 856 bodies have been dug out of the rubble.

But it will take days for the makeshift runway to be lengthened enough to handle twin-engined planes.

Reconnaissance aircraft have been sweeping low over the devastated corridor, trying to assess the damage.

Communications with much of the area were practically nonexistent, but unconfirmed reports of more villages destroyed trickle into Lima.

Two policemen radioed that buildings in the villages of Aija and Sucho, with a combined population of 11,000, collapsed and buried their inhabitants.

A Reuters correspondent who visited the northern port of Chimbote reported that hundreds of thousands of homeless people—their clothes torn, and covered with dirt—were living in tiny shacks made of cardboard and pieces of plastic.

Life of Mentally Retarded Shown in Film Board Movie

WASHINGTON (CP) — The film Danny and Nicky, a sensitive but at times harshly penetrating view of the lives of two mentally retarded boys, made its American debut Wednesday night at a special Canadian embassy presentation.

Although already acclaimed by a dozen or more selected audiences of people working with the retarded, the 55-minute National Film Board of Canada production will make its first major public appearance in a CBC television presentation in September.

The hope is that it might later be sold for U.S. TV presentation.

Director-producer Doug Jackson, 31, also says he is considering editing the film to a 20- to 30-minute version suitable for movie theatre presentation.

Jackson filmed Danny and Nicky in 16 days — eight days with each boy.

He ended up with 44,000 feet of film — "about 20 hours running time."

"In six months," he said in an interview, "working night and day, I cut it to its present 2,000 feet."

Guests at the embassy showing included officials of the U.S. president's committee on mental retardation.

The film, which makes a comparison of institutional and home treatment of the retarded child, comes as the president's committee issued a report saying many retarded persons in U.S. institutions receive treatment comparable to that of prisoners-of-war. The four-year study described as "dehumanizing custodial care" that received in some tax-supported institutions.

The film, says Jackson, is not intended to dictate whether mass treatment in an institution or home care is best.

But the candid studies of the two lives makes the point in favor of Danny, 8, in the warm, affectionate middle-class home of his parents in Pointe Claire, Que.

With an intelligence quotient of 47, Danny attends a modern school for the retarded, swims, plays sports, has the prospect of eventually learning a trade and at least partially supporting himself.

Nicky, 14, with an IQ of 54, is probably trapped forever in an unnamed, 100-year-old Ontario institution where only 500 of the 2,000 all-ages patients receive formal training.

Killers Merely Changed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

To suggest that something called "science" is conquering something called "disease" is more illusion than fact. What has happened is that the diseases of deprivation have been replaced by the diseases of affluence: especially our biggest killer of men in their best years, coronary thrombosis, which is hardly known in more primitive societies.

How can "democracy" be said to operate at the local level when only eight per cent of voters in New York City in the week after election, could recall correctly the name of even one of the several judges for whom they had voted the previous Tuesday?

I haven't seen the new Bible yet, but I hope it's changed the words that needed to be changed in order to sharpen their meaning for modern people. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" is a religious statement some may doubt; but "It is more gratifying to give than to receive" is a psychological truth no mature person can deny.

Perhaps the chief difference between the romanticist and the realist was most tersely expressed by David Wilkerson: "Love is not only something you feel — it is something you do." By treating love as an "emotion," the romanticist depletes it; by treating it as a "process," the realist spreads and strengthens it.

Wildcat Strike Staged

TORONTO (CP) — A wildcat strike Wednesday night by about 100 inside postal workers at the main Toronto post office ended after about three hours following talks with union representatives.

The strikers, all dispatchers and mailers, stopped about 10 trucks from entering the building during their short-lived walkout.

John Potts, vice-president of Local 1, Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said the men had "jumped the gun" and their strike was not supported by the union.

He said union members should stick together and present a common front while negotiations continue in Ottawa over a new contract for post office employees.

COFFEE DAY SUCCESS

SASKATOON (CP) — A coffee day sponsored by the Saskatchewan Restaurant Association brought in $8,000 for the Easter Seal fund. William L. Booth of the Council for Crippled Children and Adults said the funds were raised by selling buttons which entitled the holder to a free cup of coffee at all participating restaurants on a chosen day.

Nuclear Plants Need to Cool Waste Water

DETROIT (AP) — Nuclear power plants should be required to cool hot water discharges into the Great Lakes if valuable fish species are to be saved, the United States Federal Water Quality Control Administration told a federal-state conference on pollution Wednesday.

The administration report said: "It is possible for the artificial heat input to contribute measurably to lake water temperature." The higher temperatures increase the algae in the lake, thereby depriving fish of the oxygen they need.

The report said Lake Erie temperatures "are nearing the critical level for support of walleye and yellow perch" and "it is doubtful with existing Lake Erie temperatures that the lake can support Coho salmon."

Western Lake Erie "already has algae problems . . . and the remaining valuable fish species are in distress," the report said.

It said 14 electric power plants between Port Huron, Mich., and Toledo, Ohio, now are pumping water with the equivalent of 34,000,000,000 British thermal units of heat an hour.

Three large plants are scheduled to be built on the western shores of Lake Erie within the next five years and they would raise the heat discharge to 97,000,000,000 BTUs an hour, the report said.

The federal agency said there now are no plans to install cooling facilities for existing power plants or for those planned for the future.

The administration's field investigations centre reported that mercury had been found in bottom sediments of Lake Erie at Erie, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio, and in New York's Buffalo River and Ohio's Black and Ashtabula rivers, as well as in the St. Clair and western Lake Erie.

The agency recommended that discharges of mercury to surface or ground waters, including that from federal installations, "be ordered to cease and desist" and called for a widespread sampling to be undertaken by industries, municipalities, states and the federal government to "locate and identify all sources or potential sources of mercury pollution."

Restrictions on fishing were imposed, then modified after some fish were found to contain more than .5 parts per 1,000,000 of mercury. A catch and release requirement was placed on sports fishermen in the Detroit and St. Clair rivers and in Lake St. Clair, while commercial fishing was banned completely by both Canadian and Michigan officials. The mercury pollution was traced to discharges from two chemical plants, one in Michigan and the other in Ontario.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan called at the conference for vigorous new national efforts to protect environmental quality.

Milliken said the mercury pollution crisis in Lakes St. Clair and Erie and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers requires that "other than ad hoc mechanisms be established" to fight the United States' pollution problems.

The governor called for a stronger communication and co-ordination link between the states and the Canadian provinces bordering on the Great Lakes, and between the U.S. federal and state governments.

A Number of Activities Planned For Final Graduating Class Of Belleville General Hospital

The School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital will graduate its final class this year.

When, on June 6, 1970 the graduation of the 25 students of the 64th class takes place, the School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital will have produced a total of 1,032 graduate nurses.

The school will now be phased into the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing.

Saturday, June 6 graduation exercises will be held at the BCIVS auditorium at 2 p.m. with a reception following in Ethelston Hall at 4 p.m. At the Sun Valley Motor Inn a graduation dinner and dance will commence at 9.30 p.m. A formal introduction of the class of 1970 will take place at 11 p.m. with Dr. J. S. Loynes introducing the class.

Thus it goes back to 1886 when a hospital was built, owned and operated entirely by women. It was known as the Belleville General Hospital. The history of Belleville's School of Nursing begins with the establishment of this hospital.

In 1879 Belleville had "no hospital, no home for the aged," nor any organized society for looking after the poor," and on November 18 of that year the Women's Christian Association was formed, a band of women who undertook to visit the poor of the city, those staying in the jails and to plan for a hospital not only to care for the sick but to look after the aged as well.

For five years itley labored to raise funds. Finally a sum of over $15,000 was procured and the building was started. On July 20, 1886 the formal opening of the combined hospital and home for the aged took place. Miss Linche was the first supervisor of the hospital.

By 1888 the hospital and home were entirely free from debt having cost $20,000. Hospital charges were $1 per week for a public ward accommodation; $3 per week for semi-private and $5 per week for a private ward. During the first year of operation 95 patients were admitted.

In 1890 Miss Linche's position was taken over by Miss Eliza Campbell Gordon who held it until 1898.

It was she who organized the training school for nurses in the year 1893. In February, 1895 the first class of five nurses graduated. Miss Clara Greene was appointed superintendent in 1904 and with her name is coupled that of Miss Morrison, head of nurses. They are both remembered as tireless and conscientious workers.

The records show that in 1899 three nurses had been added to the staff making a total of nine. In 1922 the fourth graduating class was held. In 1922 there were 25 nurses in training.

The increased population in the city and county necessitated a new addition, so in 1920 the east wing was built and used for elderly patients.

In 1930 these patients were moved to another residence in the city and this wing was remodelled for hospital purposes.

In 1911 the south wing was completed. The third floor of the main building was renovated for patients and the School of Nursing moved into the east wing.

In 1930 the women comprising the hospital board found their work of operating the hospital a very heavy one. After much deliberation and consultation with the Advisory Board, the Board of Governors was reorganized in 1923 and gentlemen came into the picture for the first time. The Board was made up of nine women, two men chosen by the Women's Christian Association, two by city council, one by county council and two members of the medical staff.

Through the generosity of the late Thomas Riffole the WCA was left $40,000 for the purpose of building the "Riffole Memorial Home for Nurses" built in 1928. Subsequently the building, formerly used as a children's shelter, was purchased and became the "Mary Riffole Residence" to accommodate junior students.

Ethelston Hall was added in 1930 providing classrooms, auditorium and additional residence quarters for intermediate students.

Now that the final class is leaving all the school buildings except Ethelston Hall will be razed to permit construction of the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing. It will completely replace the School of Nursing of the Belleville General Hospital. It is a co-operative venture in that the Belleville hospital will be joined by the Trenton Memorial Hospital, The Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital and the Campbellford Memorial Hospital.

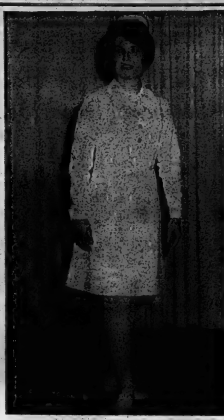
Up until the year 1967 the Director of Nursing was also the head of the School of Nursing. Responsibilities are now separated and Mrs. Shirley Haggarty is the Director of Nursing Education while Mrs. Madge Flindall is the Principal of the new Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing.

In 1948 the WCA donated the hospital to the city of Belleville together with a government grant they had received of $100,000.

They retained only the right to appoint two members to the Board.

In 1963 the general management, operation and maintenance of the hospital was passed over to a corporation known as the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital.

The years 1939 and 1958 saw an addition and extension of the west wing and on February 23, 1969 the ten million dollar ultra-modern wing accommodating 312 patients was opened. The old hospital has since been renovated and is for the obstetrical and gynecology patients together with an extended care unit. The hospital's present bed capacity is 403. Further construction is planned which will eventually require the demolition of the original buildings erected in 1886.



It is interesting to compare the expenditures at the end of the first year of operation of the hospital — $2,281 with the sum of $6,377,941.86 which constituted expenditures in 1969.

The work of the women of the WCA will live on in the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing.

An Interesting Anecdote

During the time Miss Eliza Gordon was Superintendent of the Belleville General Hospital (1890-1898), the Governor - General, his Excellency, Lord Aberdeen, visited.

There was no patient in the public ward and the ladies felt that there should be at least one to impress the Governor - General. The visit to this ward passed off very nicely with the distinguished visitor pausing to give a few words of cheer to the "sufferer". Upon leaving the room His Excellency asked if not the patient's trouble was dropsy on account of her size. The superintendent nodded. However, immediately on the departure of the Governor - General, the "patient" calmly resumed her duties in the kitchen. It was the cook who had kindly consented to act as a patient for the time being.

Pele-inspired Brazilians Pose Biggest World Cup Worry

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Brazil swept to a brilliant 4-1 soccer victory over Czechoslovakia Wednesday and its 15 rivals in the World Cup championships here immediately were faced with this problem: "How do we stop Brazil?"

The Brazilians, winners of the Jules Rimet Trophy in 1958 and 1962, are gunning for a third victory and permanent possession of the bauble which indicates world soccer supremacy.

Inspired by Pele, at 29 still rated the world's greatest player, Brazil swept back from a one-goal deficit to beat the Czechoslovaks.

The three other contests on the Wednesday schedule ended this way: Italy 1, Sweden 0; West Germany 2, Morocco 1; Belgium 3, El Salvador 0.

Now the soccer circus takes a break until Saturday, when a full schedule of four games will be played in the round-robin competition to whittle the teams down to eight quarter-finalists.

England, Italy, Belgium and Brazil all have injuries to key players, and the days off will give some of them time to mend.

England, defending champion, has both first-string fullbacks on the limp—Keith Newton with a damaged right knee and Terry Cooper with a bruised toe. England next takes the field Sunday against Brazil in the key match of Group III.

Ladislav Petras scored for Czechoslovakia in the 12th minute before the Brazilians settled into a coherent pattern. Rivelino tied the score before half time on a free kick.

Then Pele put Brazil ahead and right-winger Jairzinho cemented the 4-1 victory with a pair of goals.

Melowhile powerful Italy and West Germany were giving their fans a ball-biting time.

Italy just held on to edge Sweden in a Group II game after dominating the first half. The only goal was scored by Angelo Domenghini in the 11th minute, his shot from 30 yards taking Ronnie Hellstrom, Sweden's long-haired goalkeeper, by surprise.

West Germany, the losing finalist when England won the cup in 1966, trailed underdog Morocco 1-0 at halftime.

'All Like A Bad Dream' Stewart Describes Tragedy

NEW YORK (CP) — Ron Stewart conferred Wednesday with Nassau County District Attorney William Cahn and agreed to sign a waiver of immunity from prosecution before going before a grand jury Monday to tell what he knows about the death of goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk.

Cahn said Stewart, a 37-year-old penalty-killing specialist with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, was "very co-operative" during the meeting at Mineola, N.Y.

Also at the meeting with Cahn were Rosemary Sause, a blonde nurse, and Nicholas Castellano, a lawyer representing Stewart.

Castellano, hired by the Rangers, fended off reporters seeking to interview Stewart. But The Post printed what it described as Stewart's first published statement about the April 29 incident which put Sawchuk, 40, in hospital for a series of operations. The goalkeeper died of a pulmonary embolism—a blood clot—in hospital here Sunday.

The newspaper quotes Stewart as describing an argument which began in a bar at Long Beach, on Long Island, and continued on the lawn of a rented home the two men shared during the hockey season.

Stewart expressed bewilderment that Sawchuk could have suffered serious injury in a fall while the two tussled.

"He fell on me, that's for sure.

"But all his lifetime Terry took much worse falls on the ice and he always bounced back . . . and then he trips on top of me and suddenly his life is ended.

"It doesn't make sense.

"A fall like that, just like a thousand he's taken on that hard ice and nothing ever happened to him. And this thing happened, and Terry is gone. It's all like a bad dream when I look back now."

Stewart said Sawchuk kept coming after him during the lawn altercation.

"I backed away and tripped over a metal barbecue pit . . .

"Terry . . . caught his foot in my leg and fell on top of me . . . but I think he hit himself against one of the protrusions on the cooker—or possibly against my knee."

Castellano, declaring Stewart would co-operate fully with the grand jury, said that Sawchuk's death was "purely and simply an accident."

Castellano, asked why Stewart had returned to Canada on May 1, only two days after Sawchuk was taken to hospital, replied that a member of Stewart's family had been taken ill.

"Stewart saw Sawchuk and told him he had to go home but he'd be back," said Castellano. "A few days later Stewart returned and visited Sawchuk in the hospital again."

Cahn said he expects to call seven witnesses, but did not list them. They are expected, however, to include Sam Kash, described as a Canadian-born divorcee and friend of Stewart's who was at the house April 29; Ben Weiner, a restaurant operator who has said he intervened between Sawchuk and Stewart during their altercation; Ranger coach Emile Francis; Dr. Denis Nicholson, who was summoned when Sawchuk collapsed, and detective Matthew Bonora, who investigated.

Cahn said he believed the grand jury would be able to decide by Monday night whether to return an indictment.

In the account in The Post, Stewart said he and Sawchuk had argued about rental money and cleaning up the house before turning it back to the owner.

Stewart said that only after Sawchuk had gone to hospital did he learn about some of the things that had been "bugging" his team-mate.

"I can't tell you how sorry I am that I didn't turn away. The guy had real problems. When I think of it I'm ready to go out of my mind."

Stewart said Sawchuk had just returned here from Detroit, where he had visited his 72-year-old father, critically injured in a car crash. He had also tried unsuccessfully to reach a reconciliation with his former wife, the mother of his seven children, from whom he was divorced last year.

Who's Going?

DUNNVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs will protect newly-acquired goalie Jacques Plante in next week's National Hockey League draft but coach Johnny McLellan won't say which of his other netminders may be dropped.

At a high school athletic banquet Wednesday McLellan admitted the Leafs could lose one of their other two goalies, Bruce Gamble and Marv Edwards, but declined to say which would be protected along with Plante in the draft to stock Vancouver Canucks and Buffalo Sabres, the two new NHL teams.

Leafs general manager Jim Gregory said the 41-year-old Plante was acquired from St. Louis Blues "to look after our immediate needs."

Buffey Doffs Striped Sweater

TORONTO (CP) — Vern Buffey, a National Hockey League referee for the last 11 years, Wednesday announced his retirement as a league official.

Buffey, 41 and a Toronto native, refereed two games of the 1970 Stanley Cup playoffs before he suffered a gastritis attack at Bloomington, Minn. At first it was feared he had suffered a heart attack.

Buffey said the recent illness was not the reason for his retirement.

"My retirement has nothing to do with my health. I underwent a complete medical checkup following my illness and the doctors assured me I'm in perfect health."

Buffey said the fact he appears to be injury-prone is one of the reasons for his resignation.

"It gets more difficult as the years go on to get yourself up for the games. On top of that I found myself worrying about possible injuries.

"In the last few seasons I suffered several bothersome injuries which forced me to miss games."

Buffey said that while he will miss the on-ice action he hopes to continue in hockey.

His hopes were to join an NHL club either at the major league level or in the minor league system in an administrative or scouting capacity.

Buffey played goal for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series and then turned to officiating in the Toronto Hockey League.

He worked in the OHA as a linesman for junior games and referee in senior, intermediate and junior B ranks. At the same time he worked as a part-time linesman in Toronto NHL games.

After three seasons as an official in the eastern Hockey League, Buffey joined the NHL in 1958-59 as a full-time referee.

During his NHL stay he worked 467 regular season games and 44 Stanley Cup playoff contests as a referee.

Bunning Past 2,700 Fans

Philadelphia Phillies trounced Cincinnati Reds 11-4 Wednesday night to cut the National League West Division leaders' win string at five games as winning pitcher Jim Bunning passed a career strikeout milestone.

Bunning fanned seven Reds to move his career strikeout total past 2,700. Walter Johnson leads all righthanders with a 20-year record of 3,497.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Houston Astros clipped Montreal Expos 5-0, St. Louis Cardinals edged San Francisco Giants 6-5 and Chicago Cubs beat Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5 in 11 innings.

San Diego Padres were rained out at Pittsburgh, as were New York Mets at Atlanta.

Larry Hisle cracked a two-run single in the Philadelphia seventh at Cincinnati to break a 4-4 tie. Hisle's winning shot came with two out after Cincinnati reliever Clay Carroll entered the game with none out and the bases loaded.

The Phillies flattened their lead with a five-run outburst in the ninth. Tony Taylor, who tagged the game's first pitch for a home run off loser Pedro Borbon, struck the key blow in the ninth with a bases-loaded single for two runs.

At Houston, the Expos went down to their 32nd defeat. Righthander Jack Billingham, a former team-mate, beat them.

Billingham, a relief specialist, was making his first start of the season. He scattered eight Montreal hits and struck out 10 for his third victory in as many decisions.

Balor Moore, in his major league starting debut for the Expos, gave up two Houston runs in the third inning and three in the sixth before reliever John Strohmayer came in to finish the game.

Billingham, who left the Expos last year for Houston as part of the Rusty Staub deal, ignited his own victory with a single in the third.

No Love Lost Between Casanova, John

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Catcher Paul Casanova continued his personal hitting vendetta on Chicago lefthander Tommy John Wednesday night as Washington Senators edged the White Sox 5-4 in one of five American League games.

The Washington receiver collected three hits in three official at bats for the third time in succession against John. Casanova's success against the Chicago starter lifted the Senators, holders of third place in the East Division, to a .500 record with 24 wins in 48 games.

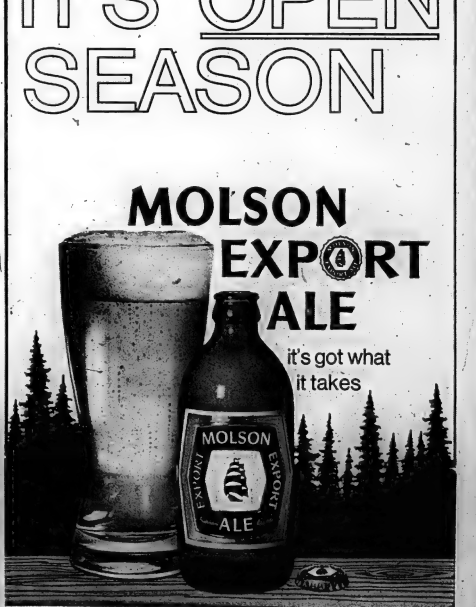
In other American League action, Oakland Athletics tripped Baltimore Orioles 4-1, Detroit Tigers beat California Angels 5-4 in 11 innings Cleveland Indians outscored Milwaukee Brewers 7-6, New York Yankees defeated Kansas City Royals 5-3, Minnesota Twins were rained out at Boston in the only other scheduled game.

Casanova's streak against John, which started last season, includes 18 runs-batted-in.

Wednesday, he doubled for two scores in a four-run fourth inning and singled twice.

"I don't know why it happens," the Washington catcher said. "but I can hit the ball against them (the White Sox). I won a game with a homer in the ninth off Wilbur Wood last year and three years ago I won the game that went 22 innings.

"I just wish every ball club had 'Chicago' on the front of their uniform."



Duke Sims slammed two home runs for the second game in a row to power the Indians past Milwaukee. He hit a three-run homer in the first inning and connected again, with the bases empty, in the third to snap a 4-4 tie.

The Brewers, trailing 7-4, loaded the bases with one out in the ninth. But Dennis Higgins fanned Steve Hovley. Then Dick Ellsworth, relieving with a 3-0 count on Tommy Harper, won the game on a force out.

Athletic Union Told to Co-operate

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union was told Wednesday to co-operate in a proposed federal government athletic scholarship program on which the CIAU was not consulted.

Lou LeFaive, director of the federal fitness and amateur sports program, told the CIAU annual meeting about the proposed plan.

"It is time we attacked the problems of sport in a co-ordinated, co-operative way," LeFaive told the meeting.

At the same time, he said university athletic personnel were not consulted in the planning of the athletic scholarships and "for this I make no apology."

"We looked on it as a matter between the athletes as potential recipients, the federal government as the donor and the sports governing bodies concerned, who have considerable say on eligible athletes.

"As far as we are concerned, the intercollegiate athletic program has no real significance in this particular matter."

LeFaive said a committee of eight to 10 persons including representatives of the Canadian Olympic Association, the CIAU and the federal government would be named to an athletic scholarships selection committee.

"Initial plans call for 45 grants to be presented every year with each athlete receiving awards from $3,000 to $5,000," he said in an interview.

"Total cost would be approximately $90,000."

He said the selection committee likely would be formed by June 15.

The CIAU, realizing government scholarships would be implemented, passed a motion Tuesday commending Health Minister John Munro for his recent statement of policy concerning scholarships and grants-in-aid to outstanding Canadian athletes.

They supported the initial guidelines of the paper—that assistance will not be tied to performance, that competition will not take precedence over education and that there will be complete freedom of choice of school by athletes.

LeFaive said Mr. Munro "raised a real hornets' nest" in his mention of grants-in-aid to Canadian athletes.

"The immediate assumption seems to have been here we go again on a government-sponsored program of athletic scholarships."

Elaborating on the scholarships, LeFaive said "those are not athletic scholarships as we know them."

"We shall not be subsidizing any athlete simply to play for a particular college or university."

He said the fitness program is concerned with athletes who represent Canada in international competition.

"Many are now attending post-secondary courses and because of their long training and competitive schedules have little opportunity to raise needed funds for educational purposes."

University athletic directors earlier recommended the CIAU appoint an individual to investigate athletic scholarships at Canadian universities and also recommended the union enforce its 1967 ruling against such scholarships. The recommendation was approved by delegates.

Carl Totzke, president of the athletic directors association, said the rules in the CIAU constitute say no scholarships should be offered in Canadian universities.

Canadians Not Qualified for Own Open?

TORONTO (CP) — Touring professional Al Balding of Toronto heads a list of five Canadians who could face qualifying rounds for the Canadian Open golf tournament unless the United States Professional Golfers' Association steps in to exempt the top 25 from last year's tournament.

The 1969 Canadian Open was not rated as a co-sponsored tournament by the PGA so the usual automatic exemption for the top 25 finishers does not extend to this year's event.

Bill Hamilton, executive director of the Canadian PGA, said he is not sure whether the Royal Canadian Golf Association will give Balding one of its four remaining spots in the Open.

The other Canadians who finished in the top 25 last year were George Knudson of Toronto, Ken Fulton of Trail, B.C., Phil Giroux of Montreal, Vaughan Trapp of Victoria and Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont.

Knudson is exempt through his U.S. tour record, but three other Canadians now on the tour face qualifying tests: Will Hominuk of Winnipeg, Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver and Gary Bowerman of Toronto.

The U.S. PGA assigned the RCGA 28 free berths for the Canadian Open and the RCGA in turn left 12 of these to the CPGA which will hold qualifying rounds to fill them.

The RCGA has handed out four of its eight spots to CPGA champion Bob Cox of Vancouver and amateurs Nick Weslock of Burlington, Wayne Macdonald of Fort Credit and Gary Cowan of Kitchener.

Lindsay Not Impressed With Eagleson Talents

DETROIT (CP-AP) — Ted Lindsay, longtime forward star with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, confirmed Wednesday that he does not think Alan Eagleson of Toronto, executive director of the National Hockey League Players Association, is the best choice to represent the players.

"I don't believe Eagleson is the man for the players' association," Lindsay said in a telephone interview.

"I don't believe the betterment of hockey can be something just for the players. It has to be something for the league as well.

"I think he's using this (job) for his own personal gain."

Lindsay said he made remarks to this effect at a Gordie Howe Day dinner in Windsor, Ont., last week.

Lindsay added that he thinks more hockey players should negotiate their own contracts.

"If he (the hockey player) is not smart enough to negotiate his own contract, I don't think he's smart enough for me to go to see play."

Lindsay said he thinks a former NHL player would make a better player representative. One name he suggested was Thomas (Windy) O'Neill, who became a lawyer.

Wylie Surviving

NEWCASTLE, Northern Ireland (CP-AP) — Bob Wylie of Calgary advanced to the fourth round of the 1970 British amateur golf championships by winning two matches Wednesday.

Wylie defeated Don Brews of England 3 and 2 in the second round and Reg Gladding of England 2 and 1 in the third.

Tuesday, in the first round, he had eliminated R. E. Hannan, an American, on the 19th hole.

By surviving the strenuous match-play battles, Wylie reached the round of 32 survivors, along with such well-known competitors as Michael Bonallack, the defending champion from England, and Bill Hyndman of the United States.

Hyndman, 54, had a tough struggle in beating Mass Lygate of Scotland on the 21st hole in the second round. In the third round he eliminated Ian Moser, an English youngster, 6 and 5.

Bonallack, 35, looking for his fifth British amateur title, moved into the fourth round with a 2 and 1 victory over Oliver Gough of Ireland. With three rounds completed, the original field of 256 has been pared to tolerable size. The matches are being played on the 6,928-yard par-71 Royal County Down links.

Parsons Blank CFB Kickers

Parsons' Don Fletcher beats three CFB Trenton players to the ball in their Bay of Quinte league game. Fletcher's return after missing several games due to illness, helped spark the Belleville team to a 3-0 win as local clubs won two of the three contests played last night.

Belleville teams went two-for - three in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association contests last night. Belleville Parson's blanked CFB Trenton 3-0 and United stopped Batawa 2-1. In the other game, the Eagles Juniors lost a close 2-1 decision to Trenton Travellers.

Despite Parson's three-goal margin, play was evenly divided throughout most of the contest. The winners got their first goal at the mid-point of the first half with Lloyd Rose cashing in a penalty kick.

Captain John O'Neill switched to centre forward in the second half and the move paid off when he scored on a high drive after only one minute of play.

Lloyd Rose scored a second goal in the game's dying minutes as he beat three defenders to the ball and slipped it past CFB goalie Dave Simpson.

United won a wild contest with Batawa that saw two players ejected for fighting.

Chris Johnson opened the scoring for United in the first half as he headed in a pass from Joe Romano. Batawa tied the score, for the first mark against United this season, but Romano came back to give the Belleville team a 2-1 lead.

The second half was scoreless although United maintained possession of the ball for most of the period.

The Eagles a close 2-1 Trenton's Centennial Park.

Charles Desterowski opened the scoring for Belleville as he stole the ball from the Trenton goalie and drove it in the open net.

The defending league champions dominated play in the mid die of the contest, scoring play in the middle of the contest, scoring twice and holding off a late surger by the Eagles for their win.

Not So Cosy

The Dairy Queen continued their winning ways in Women's Softball League play last night as they handed Cosy Grill a 16-5 setback.

Barb Breadner and Barb McCracken looked after the pitching chores for the winners while Marianne Sills and Sandra Claus toiled for Cosy.

Leading the Dairy Queen's 12-hit attack was Judy Fultz with three singles and Kathy Brown with a homer and single. Norris Lockwood tripled and singled, while Barb Breadner had a double included in her two hits.

Suzanne Fobert singled twice for the losers, while Marianne Sills added a home run.

Steelworkers Need One

Steelworkers mosquitos edged Golden Mile 3-0 in the tightest contest of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association last night.

T. Coulson scored the only goal of the game for the Steelworkers.

In the same division Uptown - Billiards came up with an 8-3 win over Belleville United.

Chris Lachman, Tony Doroyan, Dario Danna, Jamie Mason and Seymour Gianopoulos were the goalscorers for Uptown.

Mike Evans scored three goals for the losers.

Ponton Park won the final mosquito contest by blanking Station Street Food Market, 3-0.

Moletta, Hipkin and Thompson scored the goals for Ponton.

Kinsmen Jrs. Blow 8-0 Lead, Forfeit Game on Disputed Call

The Belleville Kinsmen Juniors were caught shorthanded on two counts last night as they were forced to forfeit their South Hastings baseball contest against Latta in the eighth inning. In the other games scheduled, Read stopped the Reserve 6-4, while Plane's Concrete edged Shannonville 3-1.

Belleville had built up an 8-0 lead after six innings and appeared to be on their way to an easy victory as starting pitcher Terry Meagher was breezing along with a one-hitter.

Wildness by Meagher and relief pitcher Lee Baker opened the gates for Latta to score eight times in the final three innings as the two Belleville hurlers issued 11 walks. Belleville's only other pitcher Glenn Carleton, was forced to handle the catching duties.

Meagher was ejected from the game in the final frame for protesting a call that walked in Latta's tying run. Meagher's ejection left the Kinsmen with only eight players and they were forced to forfeit the game.

Lorne Cronkwright, pitching in relief of starter Doug Green, was credited with the win. The pair allowed 10 hits, while walking four and fanning eight.

Meagher and Baker gave up five safeties, while striking out nine batters.

Steve Moore and Glenn Carleton each had a double and single for the Kinsmen, with Moe Hunter and midget replacement Barry Collin each getting two singles.

Scott McLaren, Bob Smith and Terry Casselman each had a double for Latta, while Gean and Keith Dickey chipped in singles.

Read came up with four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to erase a 3-2 lead by the Reserve.

Wayne Farrell pitched the win for first-place Read, allowing seven hits. He struck out nine batters and issued five bases on balls.

Glen Maracle and George Hill took the loss. They gave up 10 hits, walking two and fanning five.

Paul Hanley cracked a double and single for the winners, with Gerry Brennan adding two singles.

Bob Sanders, Ron Maracle, Glen Maracle and Wayne Read each had two hits for the Reserve.

Plane's Concrete came through with two runs in the bottom of the seventh to edge Shannonville 3-1.

Ted Abrams pitched a fine three-hitter to beat Shannonville's Bill Barberstock in a pitcher's duel.

The winning runs scored on a walk, an error and centre-fielder Ron Urch's single.

Abrams struck out nine batters and walked a pair. Barberstock gave up six hits, walking two and blowing third strikes past eight batters.

Ron Urch, Bob Luffman, Warren Hay, Larry Adams, Bruce Mallett and Howard Meeks all singled for the winners.

Carl Bonnhower and Larry Lewis had a double each for Shannonville with the other hit going to Dennis Gendreau.

Stinson's, City Hit Skids

Stinson Construction and City Hotel continued strings that both clubs are hoping to snap, in commercial softball action last night. Stinson's dropped their third game in as many nights as they lost 6-1 to the Elks Juniors, while City lost their fifth game in as many starts.

Rollins Construction got a three - run homer from Ralph Plane in the top of the sixth inning to erase a 1-0 City lead and hand Bob Ebbler his third defeat of the season.

Plane's shot backed the outstanding hurling of Wayne McConnell who spun a three-hitter against last year's league finalists. He struck out nine and walked five.

Ebbler also pitched three-hit ball, allowing three walks and fanning eight Rollins batters.

Plane with his homer and Wes May and Jerry Hill with singles were the only batters to hit safely against Ebbler.

Pug Kellar and Ed Lemon added base hits to Potter's last inning triple.

Shortstop Brian Harder wasted the win for McConnell in the last of the seventh with a spectacular grab of Cliff Bleaman's line shot with two men on base. Larry Potter had swiped to start the inning with McConnell fanning two batters and issuing a walk to Gary Gow before Harder's fielding gem.

The Richard Ellis Juniors notched their first - place lead to four points as they got two runs on a first-inning homer by Craig Bump and never looked back.

Ted Waite held Stinson to only two hits throughout the contest. He fanned four and walked a pair of batters.

Bob Seran was bombed for 11 hits on the loser's mound, walking one and failing to strike out a man.

Stinson's lone run came on a walk, a fielders choice and Martin Walsh's RBI double. A first - inning safety by Lyle Thompson was the only other hit off Waite.

Ramp led the Juniors onslaught with a six-r. double and home run. Wayne McTaggart had a pair of singles.

Bantam Lions Eaten Alive

The Gilbert Hotel team walloped Trenton Lions Club 26-2 in the only minor baseball bantam game last night.

Don Armstrong paced the attack with two homers, a triple and a single. Curtis McLean had a homer, triple and double while John Desormeaux homered and tripled.

Jim Baker and Jim Conley fired two-hit ball for the winners striking out 16 batters. Jim McGeachy and S. Gare were the only Lions Club members to hit safely.

Peter Yates and David Van Fleet were victims of the winners' 21-hit attack. Crawford Mckels Tadpoles downed Moreland Chrysler 19-8.

Curtis LeBelle homered to back the winning pitching of Tim Turner and Mark Pearson. Other top hitters were Brian Green with a double and single and Tim Turner with two singles.

Waterworkers Exes won their tyke division game 14-7 over Albemvre 199. Chris Hipwell the win, while Gary Stapley and Billy Sills took the loss.

Hutchinson had a homer and single for the winners, with Bruce Hamilton doubling and singling and Ken Hewey hitting a homer.

Tony Reed had a homer and triple for Albemvre.

In the other tyke contest, Harvey's Hamburgers downed the Lions Club 18-4.

Andy Lapenette and Mike Burke batted the win, while Howie Coons and Gary Ridout took the loss.

Tony Simard had two singles for the winners with Mike Burke, Bernie Thompson and Tim Palmer hitting doubles.

Gordon Taylor, Gary Ridout and Allen Konetsky were the Lions Club hitters.

Printers Make Hay

Established Industrial Softball entries Union Carbide and The Intelligencer needed the last - inning heroics to earn wins over two of the league's "expansion" teams Wednesday night.

A bases - loaded strikeout by Intelligencer pitcher Ron Colledge cemented a 9-8 verdict for the printers over Moreh Mariners, while Bill Barberstock's pinch - hit blooddrive gave Union Carbide a 7-6 edge over American Optical.

Home runs by Ricky Hay and Merv Thompson, and two hits each by Bill Moreton and Maurice Switzer helped give the Intelligencer their fourth win in five starts.

Will Bulpit walked four and fanned six in his 13-hitter, helping his own cause by hitting one of three fifth-inning Moreh homers that accounted for a five-run rally. Clint Halliday and Wayne Bowers hit the other circuit shots.

Union Carbide's Ken Osborne gave his club a 7-6 margin by tripling, then scampering home when pinch - hitter Bill Blanchard's liner was too hot for the American Optical infield to handle.

Israelis Thought Holy City Of Tiberias Safe from Raids

Canadian Press reporter Cy Fox, who has been visiting the Middle East, made stops at two Israeli towns hit by war Wednesday—Beit Shean and Tiberias.

By CY FOX

TEL AVIV (CP) — Beit Shean is a bustling rural Israeli centre where war and all the horrors that go with it are hardly strangers.

The killing of one school girl and the wounding of other children in a rocket attack early this week were taken in stride by a population long accustomed to bearing up under bombardment.

But the deaths of two more children in a similar assault on Beit Shean Wednesday may push Israeli anger to the boiling point.

Taking it past that furious stage will be the Jordanian attack on the Sea of Galilee town of Tiberias in retaliation for what Jordan called an Israeli attack on an Arab community where a number of civilians were killed.

An ancient centre deemed holy by the devout of many faiths, Tiberias was assumed by the Israelis to be safe from Arab assault.

Two of the town's adult residents died in the shelling Wednesday.

Only three days ago, this reporter sat in a lakeside restaurant there listening to an Israeli official reiterate that Tiberias —a gathering place for resort fanciers as well as pious travellers—was secure. Others considered it sacrosanct.

From Tiberias, gazing far down the Jordan River Valley towards the general area of Beit Shean, visitors were able to spot smoke rising from Jordanian targets attacked that morning by Israel following the rocket assault in which 16-year-old Miriam Kadosh died Monday.

An English-speaking classmate of Miriam told a Canadian interviewer how Grade 4 students at Ma'ayanot elementary school were assembled in their classroom when they heard a roar. Then everything shook.

Miriam, daughter of a 1949 immigrant to Israel from Morocco, was fatally wounded by splinters from the exploding Soviet-made rocket.

The Miracle was that more children were not killed by the Kayusha rockets, usually unleashed by raging Arab commandos who seek to cause Israeli installations the maximum damage while evading Israel's ground and air forces.

For their part, the Arabs say Israeli fire has killed children and other civilians on the opposite—or east—bank of the Jordan as well as in Egypt and Lebanon.

The commandos insist that Israel has little basis for indignation about such war tragedies suffered within its own borders.

But the shrapnel holes across a wall of the Beit Shean schoolhouse and in a nearby candy kiosk are authentic symbols of the grief now afflicting the community 50 miles northeast of Tel Aviv.

For many months, and particularly since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, Beit Shean has lived dangerously.

Bombardments have been commonplace up and down the neighboring Jordan Valley and alarms are always out for the commandos—the Israelis call them terrorists.

All around Beit Shean are searchlights emplacements, Israeli troops, barbed-wire barricades and mobile patrols, with jets droning high above.

Beit Shean is dotted with big, sand-bagged bunkers, the shelters used by residents living, in effect, on the front line.

The town's children think of this pall of energy.

Usually normal. Yet the deaths have caused bitter sadness among adult residents.

More Handicapped Will Be Admitted

TORONTO (CP) — Revisions to the Immigration Act now being prepared will permit more physically and mentally handicapped persons to enter Canada, Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen said Wednesday night.

He told the Toronto and District Israel Association these persons would be allowed to immigrate if it was proven their disabilities were not contagious or incurable with present medical knowledge.

"We are moving to bring our policy in line with the best medical thinking of the day," he said.

A THOUGHT FOR HOME PURCHASERS

Many people spend months and even years in trying to locate a home. When one considers the great number of homes on the market at any one time, and then thinks of the enormous number of various designs, locations and types of homes at various prices that have been available in this time to these purchasers, one wonders why it took them so long to find a home. The reason is based on one word — LOYALTY.

It is human nature to compare prices when making any purchase, but a home is not a staple product. Its value is determined by many factors: its size, condition, location, extras and most important by the urgency the owner has for selling.

In the case of the long term searcher, he has decided to buy a home without enlisting the aid of any one particular salesman. He searches the homes for sale ads. In the local paper and spends hours on the phone talking to many salesmen: he drives in certain districts looking for "sale" signs and calls on these. In short order he is confused and loses hope that he can locate his dream house at the right price.

Buying a home is not a hit and miss affair. How can a great number of salesmen know the multitude of needs? how can a suitable home be found if no one salesman has spent sufficient time with this person to fully understand his requirements? The only way he can is by seeing homes with the buyer and seeing the buyer's objections or desires. Furthermore, no experienced salesman, whose time is valuable, will spend time inspecting homes for a buyer whom he believes will end up buying one of these homes from another salesman.

Consider these points and then choose an experienced salesman. Spend sufficient time with him so that he will know what you want. He will spend hours inspecting homes on your behalf. He will check "For Sale" ads in the paper that appeal to you. Remember! most houses are listed on MLS and he probably knows the salesman who is advertising and can get his co-operation; he can check any "For Sale" signs that catch your eye. He can and will find your "Dream Home" and all he asks in your — LOYALTY.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

After Effects of Hysterectomy

These days, when there is so much unfortunate misunderstanding about the after effects of hysterectomy, I welcome letters from readers who have reacted so well after the removal of a uterus.

It is not inevitable — in fact, the exception rather than the rule — for a woman to go into a depression after such an operation. And, important too, is the fact that most understanding husbands are helpful to their wives after a hysterectomy.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have read with interest the varied reactions to hysterectomies which have been expressed by readers in your column. At the age of 33, as the mother of three children (7, 8 and 9) I underwent a total hysterectomy. As a registered nurse I viewed the doctor's decision as confirmation of my fears — I just "knew" I had a malignancy.

Following the hysterectomy, I learned that I had suffered only from endometriosis which had spread to the ovarian tissue as well. Within three months I was completely recovered — no pain nor aching, no sweats or hot flashes, no backaches, no emotional problems such as depression.

My only moment of regret came before the surgery when I knew I would definitely have no more children. But my understanding husband kindly and firmly pointed out that we intended to have no more children anyway; and that having the surgery would certainly improve me as a wife and mother rather than "de-sex"-ize.

I suggest that perhaps some of your readers, Dr. Steincrohn, are overlooking their greatest source of comfort and understanding—their husband. Most men accept the facts of hysterectomy with very matter - of - fact attitudes, and are often themselves relieved. The difference in relationships after such surgery can be remarkable.

It appears to me to be foolish not to discuss these things with the person most closely involved — besides yourself. With marriage being a partnership it's unfair to deprive yourself of your strongest ally — your husband. — Mrs. N.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 27 years old, a wife and mother. Recently a nodule on the left side of my nose was excised. The biopsy revealed "basal cell carcinoma."

My doctor called it locally malignant and he assured me that it is of no threat to my life. However all the cancer cases I have known were terminal and hopeless. What is the outlook for me. — Mrs. C.

Comment: It is net true that cancer is cancer is cancer — the same for everyone. Treated early enough, cancer, wherever it may be, is curable, but especially so when it is a localized tumor of the face.

According to some statistics, such cancers are practically 100 per cent curable if treated early and efficiently. Therefore, I go along with your doctor that such a cancer is usually not a threat to life. Rest easy. Be thankful you took care of it early.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: One morning I awoke finding myself saying "I'm coming. I'm coming." It was about 6 a.m. I thought I heard my baby calling me. Five hours later I learned from a telephone call that my sister died about the time I heard myself saying: "I'm coming." Is there any significance to this? — Mrs. C.

Comment: Some will say it's coincidence; others, that it is but another example of extrasensory perception (ESP). My mind is open to either explanation.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For June 5

Your birthday today: You must take a fresh look at your life and your enterprises, the sooner the better, since rather abrupt changes are promised. The main temptation this year is to move prematurely, for mostly emotional reasons. Line up the feasible alternate course so that change does not find you unprepared. Those natives are generally endowed with lively imaginations and are adaptable.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Finances tend to be favorable; what seems in short supply is forbearance. The better you know somebody the more apt you are to disagree. Leave on loose ends of the work week.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Nothing moves fast enough for you today. Double-check as you go along to avoid error. Somebody from a past and gone situation may return.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Buying or borrowing anything expensive turns out to be a larger - than - planned enterprise with some complex repercussions. Prudent money management may achieve long wished objectives.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Important decisions are better given another day or so before being made. Romantic impulses are favored and lucky in the midst of the general confusion.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The temptation is to over-react to the frustrations of having to wait longer than expected. If you see many things that others don't. Critical attitudes do not work out well. You can manage unusually good deals once you master your own impatience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Expect the day too be full of possible conflicts or odd quirks of circumstance. Allow time for people to change their minds. Avoid forcing issues.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You needn't rush into involvement with newly arrived strangers. You should have enough contacts already going. Count your blessings this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Business matters are somewhat sensitive, particularly if you are a little late in your work. Emotional ties deepen with shared experience and even unhappy events offer constructive details.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 —Jan. 19): Co-operation and considerations make this unsettled day reasonably successful. Those eligible may make definite progress toward changing marital situations.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): There is no room for casual experimenting since associates jump to conclusions. Quit as early as you can, then enjoy the comforts of home.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your emotions are on the surface, ready to react to whatever happens. Be tolerant toward other people and avoid squabbles.

Cyclists Pay $3,975 In Fines

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Fines totalling $3,975 were levied Wednesday when 69 persons, many of them members of two motorcycle clubs, appeared in provincial court on liquor charges.

John Poole, 20, of nearby Kemble, president of the Saddle Tramps motorcycle club, was fined a total of $575, or 80 days in jail, on four charges. He had pleaded not guilty.

The charges were laid May 17 when 82 police officers raided the Saddle Tramps clubhouse 12 miles west of here. Arrested on liquor charges were 48 members and friends of the Wild Ones motorcycle club from Windsor, invited up for a party. The rest were Saddle Tramps.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Daddy, you're starting off on the wrong foot. That's the way all my troubles began."

Government Eyeing Mafia-controlled Business

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts told the Ontario legislature Wednesday all government departments and all police forces, including the RCMP, are co-operating to detect and control the investment of money from illegal sources in Ontario businesses.

He told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that: "I am not completely free to reveal all that is being done."

However, Mr. Robarts did say that all efforts are co-ordinated through the attorney-general's office with help from Interpol, the international organization of police departments.

(Walter Lee, an investigator for the Ontario Police Commission, said in an interview Wednesday that about 40 businesses in Ontario are believed to be assisted by Mafia money.)

The attorney-general's intelligence forces "are working well, and we are well aware of the problems," Mr. Robarts said.

"I can assure you the extension of co-operation goes far beyond this government," he said. "I am not at liberty to say what is being done, but it is a little more sophisticated operation than you perhaps understand."

Health Minister Thomas Wells told the legislature mercury residues in samples of hair from residents in the Dryden area of northwestern Ontario have shown up to 106 parts per million in a few cases.

He said urine samples from persons in the Great Lakes and the Dryden areas showed mercury deposits well within normal safe levels.

Mr. Wells said 30 hair samples were tested in Toronto, all from the Dryden area where the setting of fish caught in the English River system has been prohibited because of high mercury readings found in fish tested.

Nine samples showed residues of between two and 14 parts per million, all from persons who did not eat fish. Of 21 persons who ate fish in varying amounts, five showed less than 19 parts per million, nine showed from 19 to 23 parts, three from 25 to 99 parts and four from 99 to 100 parts per million.

Mr. Wells said mercury residue levels show a correlation to the number of meals in which fish is eaten.

In other business:

—Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough introduced legislation to make the regional area of Ottawa-Carleton a judicial district.

—An advisory committee to Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said there should be no change in Ontario's legal aid plan that would deny assistance to a person charged with a crime if he has been convicted of a similar crime in the past.

—Bert Lawrence, financial and commercial affairs minister, told the legislature an insect-killing strip produced for household use by a major oil company is under study by federal agencies, but added that there is no danger to humans if it is used as directed.

Animal Waste Disposal Guidelines Prepared

INCLUDES CORRECTIVE

TORONTO (CP) — A code of practice for disposal of animal waste prepared by the department of energy and resources management is not a regulation but only a guide to good farm management, the Ontario legislature was told Wednesday.

The Canadian Press reported May 28 that a code of practice for animal waste control would be imposed by regulation to limit air pollution.

George Kerr, minister of energy and resources management, said in reply to a question Wednesday that there are no regulations but the code will be a guide to management so that air pollution in rural areas can be reduced.

Separate Briefs For Two Provinces

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said Wednesday no attempt has been made by the province to achieve a unified approach with Quebec on briefs to be presented at a weekend meeting of provincial treasurers in Winnipeg.

Liberal Opposition Leader Robert Nixon raised the possibility in the legislature when he questioned the premier on Mr. Robarts' meetings this week with Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa.

'Hesitant' On Car Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr hinted this week-end today when asked in the Ontario legislature if he knew of any "technological breakthrough" that could produce a no-pollution automobile by 1975.

Mr. Kerr was questioned by Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) about the minister's remarks to a conference Monday in Ottawa in which he envisaged the end of auto pollution in five years.

In a hesitant reply, Mr. Kerr told of a visit he made to the Ford car plant in Dearborn, Mich. where he was impressed by research there on turbine, steam and battery-powered engines to replace the pollution-causing internal combustion engine.

He said the company is convinced it can meet stringent pollution control measures required by California by 1975.

Mr. Kerr also said industry is prepared to produce exhaust systems for automobiles that will meet Ontario requirements —a reduction in carbon monoxide emissions of 30 per cent by 1971.

To Protect Historic Buildings

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will accept a bill within the next few weeks on behalf of the City of Kingston to permit the protection of buildings of significant historic or esthetic value, the legislature was told Wednesday.

There would be general legislation at a later date to provide the same protection in any municipality which wants it.

Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, replying to a question from Syl Apps (PC—Kingston-The Islands), said studies are under way on what will be included in the general legislation.

The government cannot accept a private bill, moved in the name of Mr. Apps, because it is not a practice of the legislature to vote on private members' bills. But the government would receive and allow a bill with a similar effect in the name of the City of Kingston.

$32-Million Hydro HQ

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro has delayed construction of a new head office in Toronto because of economic conditions and instead has rented 14 floors of office space at a cost of $1,503,000 a year for 10 years, the legislature was told Wednesday.

R. J. Boyer (PC—Muskoka), deputy chairman of Hydro, told New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald Hydro cannot afford to damage its borrowing position at this time by seeking the $32,000,000 it will need to build a head office.

The head office will be built, starting in 1976 or 1977, but occupancy cannot be expected until 1980-81, he said.

Hydro expects to save between $50,000 and $200,000 a year by renting offices in a single building because it will give up offices it now leases in four different locations.

Ontario and Quebec Present Tax Plans

Ontario Plan Assists Poor

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Conservative government Thursday unveiled proposals for reform of Canada's tax structure to include a system of tax relief or direct payments to millions of low-income Canadians.

The proposals, in opposition to major aspects of the federal government white paper on tax reform, are to be presented today to the federal-provincial tax structure committee meeting in Winnipeg.

Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, who tabled the province's brief in the legislature before leaving for Winnipeg, described it as "tax reform for the people and not for governments."

He criticized the federal proposals for what he called their negative effects as they relate to low- and middle-income persons, small business and resource industries.

Ontario's studies also had shown the increased tax revenues would be $840,000,000 more than the $630,000,000 estimated by Ottawa, he said. The difference was the result of "errors of omission" on the part of Ottawa.

Highlights of the Ontario proposals:

—Refundable tax credits averaging $100 for the 2,500,000 Canadians who pay no income taxes. The credits would help offset federal, provincial and municipal taxes such as property and sales taxes and health insurance premiums.

—Low-income allowances to eliminate or reduce income tax for persons earning less than $3,000, while retaining the present exemptions for those earning more than that. This

Quebec Has Plan To Aid Jobless

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa proposes a new system of cash aid for provinces and radical revision of federal tax-change proposals in a submission prepared for the federal-provincial finance conference opening today.

Mr. Bourassa, appearing for the first time at such a meeting since his Liberal administration was elected April 29, calls at the same time for "harmony and concerted action" between federal and provincial governments in the taxation field.

At the outset of a wide-ranging, 10,000-word document, Mr. Bourassa says improved financial relations between federal and provincial governments is basic to restoration of "goodwill and understanding" and constitutional reform in Canada.

He calls on the federal government for swift improvement of revenue-sharing systems, including establishment of a new stabilization fund to help provinces hit by high unemployment.

At present, he observes, 4½ per cent of the labour force is jobless and the province accounts for more than 40 per cent of Canada's total unemployed.

Mr. Bourassa, an accountant who also is Quebec's finance minister, distributed his statement on arrival in Winnipeg late Thursday.

Like Ontario, although differing in detail, Quebec takes issue with basic features of the federal proposals for tax reform issued last Nov. 7. Ontario's sweeping alternative proposals were issued several hours earlier Thursday in Toronto.

Mr. Bourassa concludes that the federal tax proposals would fail to promote economic growth. He proposes tax credits for low-income Canadians, retention of low tax rates for small businesses and radical changes in the federal proposals for capital gains and mining.

The stabilization fund he proposes would be built up to at least $300,000,000 by setting aside a portion of federal corporation tax.

Provinces with an unemployment rate above a yet-to-be-set figure would qualify for unconditional grants and low-interest loans, he suggests.

Mr. Bourassa also calls for special federal-provincial studies, to be completed this year, aimed at better systems of redistributing wealth throughout Canada and improved co-ordination of taxation, borrowing and spending between Ottawa and the provinces.

"The whole country's economic growth must be at the service of all provinces," he says, in reference to wealth distribution through equalization payments—the present system whereby provinces with below-average revenue get special payments.

Mr. Bourassa says the idea of equal growth is a basis of his election theme of federalism with asymmetry—profitable federalism.

Thus, the present equalization system—calculated on comparisons of tax revenues collected in the provinces — should be revised to take account of revenue available to municipalities in the provinces, he says.

Further, the formula should include a calculation of how much revenue Ottawa collects in each province compared with how much it spends there.

Union Hits CN Policy On Pensions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons transport committee was urged by the United Transport Union and other workers' groups Thursday to investigate claims that the Canadian National Railways has invested $371,000,000 of its workers' pension fund.

The UTU and spokesmen for CNR employees and pensioners in Edmonton Sarnia and Quebec said the CN pension fund now pays benefits as low as $11 a month and in all cases much lower than those paid retired government workers.

The company-dominated pension board has resisted all efforts to have benefits improved on grounds that the $1,043,731,186 fund cannot afford the step the spokesmen said.

But they said the board recently wrote off additional assets of $371,000,000, more than one-half the sum CN was required to pay into the fund over the next 65 years but now considered surplus because of the improved return on the invested portion of the pension fund assets.

Edward Kean, representing an Ottawa UTU local said CN workers are calling the write-off an embezzlement and feel that they "have been had" by management.

He said the committee should investigate the transaction and the government's role in agreeing to it.

Pay Restraint Will Be Sought

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ontario and Quebec tossed a joint cat among the pigeons at the opening today of the federal-provincial finance conference with similar, detailed criticism of federal tax-change proposals.

Both Ontario Treasurer Charles McNaughton and Robert Bourassa, Quebec's new premier and finance minister, tassled bulky documents on the eve of the conference that took issue with fundamental features on the federal tax white paper.

Meanwhile, John Young chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, was preparing to ask the provinces today for support for a formal program of wage restraint.

Aim of the anti-inflation proposals would be to limit any pay increases—taking into account fringe benefits—to a maximum range of six per cent annually, an informant said.

Enforcement methods would be left flexible so chosen pressures could be adapted to different political jurisdictions and situations.

The ideas, designed to moderate the price-inflating cost push generated by pay increases, were to be presented at the afternoon session today.

Although federal Finance Minister E. J. Benson had conferred privately in Montreal earlier this week with Mr. Bourassa and Ontario Premier John Robarts, some federal officials said they were caught by surprise by the provinces' papers.

The two provinces, whose views conferred in Montreal and Toronto before the conference, represent 60 per cent of Canada's population.

The federal department had prepared a publishable response to expected criticism from Ontario. But the reply was withheld while officials work on a detailed study of points raised by the provinces.

While the Ontario and Quebec documents differed in some details and in tone, the two governments presented a common front in criticism of the basics of the federal proposals first issued last Nov. 7.

Ontario characterized its document as a total alternative to the federal white paper. Mr. Bourassa said his paper constituted suggestions for a change in methods.

Both criticized the federal proposals on the ground that they would fail to stimulate enough economic growth.

Both also propose much milder alternatives to such key federal proposals as a capital gains tax. They advocate retention in effect of such present tax features as special concessions to small businesses and mining companies, which the federal paper proposes removing or reducing them.

The two provinces also advocate a system of tax credits to assist low-income Canadians instead of the higher personal tax exemptions proposed by Ottawa.

The two-day conference also is scheduled to deal with Canada's economic prospects in the wake of dollar revaluation and other issues.

The federal proposals for positive action on pay restraints follow 11 months of vain efforts by the commission to work out a voluntary restraint program with organized labor.

OTTAWA (CP) — Peru has asked Canada for aircraft including helicopters to help its earthquake-ravaged areas, an external affairs spokesman said Thursday.

Shulman Says Policemen Visit Man Who Has Mafia Friends

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart Thursday rejected a request for a public investigation into relationships between senior officers of the Ontario Provincial Police and persons known to have criminal connections.

Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—Toronto High Park) told the legislature's committee examining at least three senior OPP officers had relationships with Clifton Duke, a wealthy Oakville, Ont., contractor, and that Duke had relationships with members of the Mafia.

Mr. Wishart, however, promised to investigate Duke's association with the OPP and report in about two weeks to the legal and municipal committee.

Dr. Shulman said OPP Commissioner Eric Silk and Superintendent Al Wilson were at the Duke house the same day it was visited by Johnny Papalia, whom Dr. Shulman described as an enforcer of the Mafia in Canada.

Randall Dick, deputy attorney-general, told the committee Commissioner Silk had described the visit to him last fall in case it should be misconstrued. Mr. Dick said he was satisfied the visit, resulting from an invitation issued to Mr. and Mrs. Silk at a wedding, had been casual and innocent.

Dr. Shulman said later he accepted the deputy's word on this without question. He insisted, however, there should be an inquiry into Mr. Dick's relations with Supt. Wilson and Supt. Archie Rogers, who Dr. Shulman said had intervened in a court case in which Duke was involved.

He told the committee Duke had been tried in Hamilton in 1929 on a charge of armed robbery with violence that was dismissed. He had served six months the previous year in the Erik County jail in Buffalo, N.Y., for carrying a concealed weapon. Later in 1929 Mr. Duke was arrested as leader of a gang that raided a private party on New York state and stripped guests of $400,000 in jewels. He was given 30 years to life in prison and was deported to Canada in 1942.

He said Papalia and bodyguard Reed LeBarr, recently attended garden parties at the Duke house. He described Mr. Papalia as head of the heroin branch of a Mafia family.

Mr. Duke uses the alias Clinton Jones for apartment he shares with Mr. Papalia in Hamilton, Dr. Shulman said.

The building is owned by Terrace Creek Development Co. Ltd. of Hamilton. The directors are Dan Gasparrini, his wife, and Muriell Palermo, wife of a Gasparrini employee.

Dr. Shulman described Gasparrini to the committee as "the kingpin of the Mafia in this country," who had been cited both in U.S. Senate crime committee hearings and in an investigation by the Ontario Provincial Police Commission in 1964.

Irate Taxpayer Hijacks Plane, Demands Fortune

WASHINGTON (AP) — A frustrated taxpayer with a $471 grudge hijacked a jet airliner with 81 passengers and demanded $100,000,000 ransom before two pilots captured him in a cockpit gun battle.

Bags stuffed with paper tricked the hijacker into a second landing. Marksmen shot out the plane's tires and passengers fled to safety through window exits minutes before the cockpit gunfire began.

The pilot, Capt. Dale C. Rupe, was wounded in the stomach when he tackled the gunman as FBI agents stormed the Trans-World Airlines 727 jet.

Arthur G. Barkley, 49, Phoenix, Ariz., whose tax appeal was rejected by the U.S. Supreme Court only a few weeks ago, was arrested — bare-chested and bloody — for air piracy.

City's Industrial Commissioner To Take Position in Industry

Industrial Commissioner for the city of Belleville for the past three years, Ray Brown, has submitted his resignation to accept a position with a British firm locating in Canada.

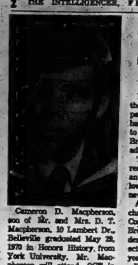
The effective date of the resignation is December 31 or an earlier suitable time following the city's hiring of a new commissioner.

Alderman Gerald Joyce, chairman of the Industrial Commission, said Mr. Brown's resignation was tendered to the commission directors at a special meeting yesterday.

He said the City Manager, J. R. Reynolds and the personnel officer were being advised to advertise for a new industrial commissioner to take Mr. Brown's place.

"I feel we are losing a very dedicated and enthusiastic city employee, and one who will be hard to replace," said Ald. Joyce.

RAY BROWN



The alderman said Mr. Brown had agreed to stay in office until a suitable replacement was hired.

In the meantime, Mr. Brown will complete general reports on three industrial surveys now under way in his office and will also guide directors in the choice of a replacement.

In his letter of resignation Mr. Brown said he had accepted a position with an English firm and would be involved in the promotion and management of a model community in this region of the province. He said, however, he was not a t liberty to reveal the name of the company.

"I have enjoyed my business association with you, His Worship Mayor Ireland, members of the Board and the business community at large," Mr. Brown said.

Mr. Brown came to Belleville from Brampton where he was assistant industrial commissioner. Prior to coming to Brampton he had been with the Industrial Development Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Cameron D. Macpherson, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Macpherson, 10 Lambert Dr., Belleville graduated May 29, 1970 in Honors History, from York University. Mr. Macpherson will attend OCE in Toronto this fall.

Dundas Street Final Phase Contract Let

Lightfoot Construction Ltd. of Belleville is the low bidder on phase three of the city's Dundas Street project which will see the entirety completely reconstructed from the new river bridge to its intersection with the CPR-Bay Bridge Road overpass.

The low bid was for $586,800 or approximately $15,000 below estimated costs.

Two other tenders were received from the R. J. McFarland Construction Company at $632,940 and Rideau Valley Construction at $666,063.

"We are extremely pleased with the tender," City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said today.

A recommendation will go to city council for acceptance of the Lightfoot tender and with department of highways approval construction is expected to commence early in July.

The city's share of the overall cost of the road reconstruction project is estimated at $285,000.

As a connecting link highway, the city will receive 75 per cent subsidy on the roadway cost including installation of storm sewers up to 27-inch diameter.

However area drainage will also have to be provided for and the cost for storm sewers is estimated at $90,000.

The three phases of the Dundas Street project are the Bay Bridge Road — CPR crossing completed two years ago, the new Dundas Street bridge now nearing completion and reconstruction of Dundas Street between the bridge and the top of Devil's Elbow HIll.

Acquisition of property to allow for the reconstruction is in its final stages with the purchase of four houses on the south side of the roadway at the top of Devil's Elbow Hill to have been purchased for some time.

Demolition of the four houses will commence shortly and are to be out of the way by July 1.

A completion date of 150 working days from the commencement of work is called for in the roadway reconstruction contract.

The work will see the grade on the Devil's Elbow Hill reduced to a five per cent incline and will call for "dead-ending" of Highland Ave., where it now intersects with Dundas Street.

Lightfoot Construction two years ago built the CPR—Bay Bridge Road overpass phase of the over-all project.

Gaffney Construction is now nearing completion of the new river bridge with cleaning up operations now under way on both sides of the river. Archetsed lights for the new structure are already in place, while railings will soon be installed.

Mr. Purcell said he expected the structure will be completed by the middle of June.

The approaches for the new bridge will go to tender or contract for the reconstruction of Dundas Street.

Book Store To Move

The Christian Book Store, 301½ Front Street has changed hands and will move to it new location.

Edith Malnprize, a minister in the Belleville area for 11 years, will look a leave of absence from her church and has been operating the store since she purchased it in 1963 from Mrs. Edith Wilson, will return to the ministry.

The new owners, William Denison of Ramsayville, has been working in intercollegiate affairs in the Ottawa area. Miss Malnprize explained that Mr. Denison had, in the past, been associated with OSD and his wife had, at one time, taught at Albert College.

The store will be moved to its new location at 28 Bridge Street East and will open July 1. The purchase took place on May 20.

Board's Release States Position On 'Secret' Meets

PICTON (Staff) — A press release issued yesterday by Prince Edward County Board of Education sought to clarify board policy surrounding closed meetings.

It was noted that during a recent public meeting the Prince Edward County Board of Education was pictured as "a sinister group meeting behind closed doors to conceal information from the public".

Contradicting this image projected by its critics, trustees stated that the Public Administration Act provides that all records of a school board must be open to inspection by any person. It also states that all school board meetings "except meetings of a committee of the board including a committee of the whole board" are open to the public.

The press release explained that closed meetings are authorized by the same legislation for three important reasons. Discussion of problems of a personal nature involving either staff or students must remain confidential to protect the individual's right to privacy. Similarly information forwarded to the board on the basis that it remain confidential cannot be discussed during an open meeting. When trustees have not verified the facts relating to a matter under consideration a closed meeting is necessary to prevent the premature release of incomplete and unsubstantial information possibly detrimental to the project being discussed.

Board members note that closed meetings are the exception, not the rule and the regular meeting of trustees held each month in Bloomfield is open to press and public. Although the board refuses to release personal information regarding staff members or students, confidential information received in trust and incomplete information, they are willing to answer all questions on board activities at any time to the public.

In concluding the press release board members noted, "The next time you hear someone picture the board as a sinister group concealing information, ask what it is the board is supposed to be hiding and then question a trustee or the board office."

Chamber of Commerce Works with Teachers

While students are preparing for the end of school, many teachers are preparing to take courses during the summer.

The Ontario Department of Education, in co-operation with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce is again this year planning special courses for guidance teachers.

This program was designed to enable guidance teachers to meet with all aspects of local industry as they can advise students seeking advice about future employment.

Terry Hawkins, co-ordinator of guidance for Northumberland and Durham Counties, is helping the Department of Education with this special program. Over the years, the program has involved more than 280 companies and several thousand people. Mr. Hawkins met yesterday with representatives from participating local industry and business.

The program which will run between June 29 and July 31 inclusive, involves the following local companies:

Ontario Hydro, Mead Johnson Canada Ltd., International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd., Deacon Brothers Sportswear Ltd., The Intelligencer, CJBQ Radio, Canada Manpower Centre, Northern Electric Co. Ltd., Bell Canada, Union Carbide Canada Ltd., Stephens - Adamson Mfg. Co. of Canada Ltd., AOCO Limited, Belleville General Hospital, Wilson Concrete Products Ltd., Canadian National Railways, Allied Chemical Canada Ltd., and American Superior Electric Co. Ltd.

A total of five teachers involved are university graduates with one year of teaching experience. They have previously gone through at least two or three years of regular training and this year marks their fourth summer of upgrading their guidance program. All five have been participating in guidance programs at their schools.

The teachers are Orville Mathews of Belleville, Charles Bowering of Madoc, John Murphy of Marmora, Allan Kay of Cloyne, and Barbara Lindsay of Odessa.

With today's increasing demands on education, educational facilities are constantly improving. As a result, the Department of Education considers it important that business be fully aware of where education is going today and what the graduates have to offer.

"It's like a two-way street," explained Mr. Hawkins.

"Industry can find out where education is going and guidance advisers can discover what industry has to offer and the new changes which have been developed."

The teachers will be visiting the various industries to view a cross section of the business world. They will make their visits at regular plant or office hours and will possibly be put through the process that a new employee undergoes. They will be able to talk with the foreman, the worker, and take part in field trips where applicable.

Throughout the five weeks, conferences will allow the teachers to meet further with Mr. Hawkins and their fellow guidance teachers to compare notes, ask questions and offer suggestions.

The idea is to expose them to exactly what the students can expect to see and what they will be asking about the details.

At yesterday's meeting, one representative proposed a meeting between the industries and the teachers.

It was decided that the meeting would be held at the end of the five-week period on Thursday, July 30 at 5.30 p.m. and location to be later specified.

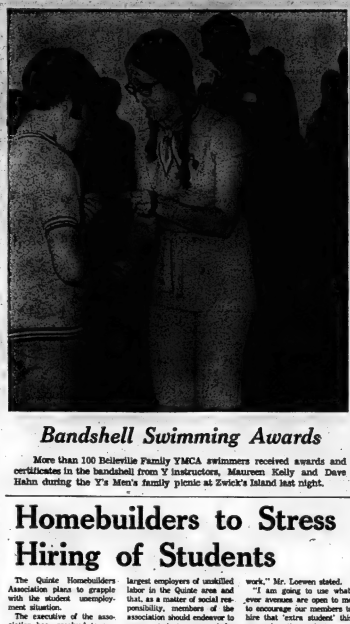
English Square Dancers To Visit Quinte Area

The Quinte district will play host next week to a group of 115 English square dancers on a tour of eastern Canada.

The square dancers on the tour will arrive in Belleville late Tuesday afternoon from Ottawa and remain until Thursday noon.

While here, they will be billeted with fellow square dancers from the Quinte area in Picton, Belleville and Trenton homes. The hosts for the visit are the dozen square organizations in this area, banding together for their first district project.



Highlight of the visit will be a tree-planting ceremony on Zwick's Island Wednesday at 2.30 p.m.

A three-nation event, it will see Canadian and American school children and the English square dancers join together to leave a living memento of their visits to the Quinte district.

Tuesday night a mammoth square dance will be held at CFB Trenton and Wednesday night Ben Bleecker auditorium will be the scene of a buffet supper and entertainment for the visitors.

Following their Belleville visit the British guests will travel to Toronto by bus to attend the annual convention of Canadian square dancers, an event that draws 8,000 dancers from as far away as the southern United States.

The remainder of their two-week stay in Canada will be spent in Niagara Falls, Stratford and Montreal.

County's White Chapel To Mark Anniversary

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward county's "church in the wildwood," the historic White Chapel, will celebrate its 81st anniversary this Sunday.

Leading the service will be the Rev. R. F. Sherwin, minister of Picton United Church. Guest speaker will be Rev. Guy H. Case, minister of Grace United Church, Napanee and chairman of the Belleville Presbytery.

Music will be under the direction of A. A. Bowie organist for Picton United Church.

Built in 1800 on land donated by Stephen Cosger, a Loyalist from New Jersey who settled here in 1786, the chapel was the first Methodist church in the county.

The interior of the chapel has been preserved in its original state and during the summer months becomes a popular tourist attraction.

An anniversary service conducted at the chapel on the first Sunday in June, has become traditional among county residents of all faiths. Some worshippers can claim a family connection with the Cosger chapel, as it is sometimes called.

Many attend the service through an interest in its historical significance. Directly behind the chapel is the well-kept cemetery, and it is here that many members of the original congregation rest.

Fire Alarm System For Rink and Hall

Installation of a fire alarm system will be necessary in the city's proposed new covered rink to be erected on school property on Harder Drive.

And the same type of alarm system will probably have to be installed at the Ben Bleecker Auditorium at the Belleville fairgrounds.

Members of the city recreation and arena committee were told yesterday that public buildings having accommodation for 300 or more people must have a fire alarm system for safety purposes.

Board member Joe Cox wondered why an arena with a seating capacity of only 300 people required such a system. He was told however, that summer use of the rink might see as many as 2,000 people in attendance at functions and without the alarm system, permission for its use would not be granted.

Members were told that the matter was being investigated for its effect on insurance and that the cost of an alarm system was also being investigated for the Bleecker Auditorium.

Plans for the new covered rink as prepared by Wilson Concrete engineers were viewed by committee members. Site plans for location of the rink on school property were also discussed.

Board member Joe Cox noted that the rink plans had cost Wilson Concrete $12,000 to produce although the company was receiving only $950 for the drawings. If Wilson received the contract for supplying the materials, he said, the company would donate the $950 toward the cost of a time clock or some other rink equipment.

Man Killed In Collision

CAMPBELLFORD (Staff) — A midnight car-truck collision west of here took the life of Raymond Campbell, 58, of RR 2, Warkworth, Thursday morning.

Mr. Campbell was proceeding north on County Road 22, between Hastings and Warkworth when his car went out of control, crossed the road and collided with a stake truck, driven by Donald Philip Moran, 30, of RR2, Codrington.

Mr. Moran was not injured but damage to his 1956 truck was estimated at $1,000. Damage to the 1954 Campbell vehicle totalled $100.

Bridge Repairs

Annual maintenance check of Trenton's swing bridge, constructed in 1916, was conducted Wednesday afternoon when downtown businesses were closed. Two twisted overhead trusses were removed from the stationary section of the bridge by workmen of the Trenton Machine Tool Company. Replacement will go in next Wednesday.

50-mile Bikeathon For Two Churches

PICTON (Staff) — Pedalling for project Golden Roof, about 100 bikeathoners from Picton and Deseronto will assemble tomorrow morning at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton.

Proceeds from this walkathon on wheels will be donated for a new roof for St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton, and additional Sunday School rooms for the sister congregation of the Church of the Redeemer, Deseronto.

Rev. Robert Jones, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, said today that cyclists will leave Picton at 8 a.m., following a circuitous 50 mile route mapped out to bring them home at about 5 p.m.

First cyclist to arrive back in Picton will be the winner of a new bicycle. It will be presented at a party in St. Andrew's Church Hall, June 20.

Convinced that tomorrow's bikeathon isn't just a spectator sport, Mr. Jones has purchased a bicycle and plans to ride the route with the other entrants.

Bandshell Swimming Awards

More than 100 Belleville Family YMCA swimmers received awards and certificates in the bandshell from Y instructors, Maureen Kelly and Dave Hahn during the Y's Men's family picnic at Zwick's Island last night.

Homebuilders to Stress Hiring of Students

The Quinte Homebuilders Association plans to grapple with the student unemployment situation.

The executive of the association has resolved to embark upon a program of "Hire a Student if you can".

In an association press release, Randy Loewen, President of the Builders' Association pointed out that the builders collectively are one of the largest employers of unskilled labor in the Quinte area and that, as a matter of social responsibility, members of the association should endeavor to employ student summer help.

"On a preliminary survey we find that many of our members hired a good number of university students already and have agreed to hire secondary school students as soon as they are available for work," Mr. Loewen stated.

"I am going to use whatever avenues are open to me to encourage our members to hire that 'extra student' this year when the student unemployment situation is so grim," he asserted, adding that "with each member hiring one or two students it could have a real impact."

The Subversives

Earlier this year Senator Grattan O'Leary told the Senate committee on mass media, "If you want to be frightened by superficiality and ignorance listen to CBC Viewpoint; listen to some underpaid university professor coming on TV to tell you in eight minutes what is wrong with the universe."

Senator O'Leary is not the only one to have noticed the radicalism and superficiality of CBC programming. One sees it also in a newspaper like The Globe and Mail. Scarcely a day goes by that the Letters to the Editor column of that newspaper does not have one or more university professors sounding off on real or imagined issues. That they are full of verbiage and lacking in any real message possibly accounted for a recent letter to the Toronto newspaper that went something like this: "Re your Letters to the Editor column — so many words, so little said."

What does emerge from university faculty spokesmen, whether speaking over the CBC or through the columns of newspapers, is the fact that their political sympathies are often with the left-wing — with the Maoists, the Black Panthers, and campus radicals who seek violent revolution for its own sake rather than the betterment of society through peaceful evolution.

While we are on the subject, we would draw attention to a former RCMP deputy commissioner's warning that Canada's immigration procedures are allowing European criminals and agents of the intelligence services of the Soviet bloc into the country.

The former Mountie, W. H. Kelly, said foreign Communists can enter the country without a security check in connivance by relatives, or by an organization like the CBC or a university. They may be engaged say for a lecture tour and are free to indulge in whatever political activity they please.

Consider also that the Mafia is reported to be investing millions of dollars in Ontario as a cover for illegal activities. Inspector Potter of the Metro Toronto police says the force needs new communications gear and equipment to cope with the influx of criminals into the city, coupled with subversive groups seeking to restrict police use of such equipment.

In the jargon of the day Canada presents a "ripe scene" which has all the potential for getting worse. When we have the CBC, the campus radicals, the Black Panthers, university faculty members, the Mafia and sundry Communist agents from abroad all working their subversive way through our relatively small 20,000,000 population, it is time for the government to take stock and start tightening up immigration policies as well as weeding out undesirables already living here.

Disaster in Peru

Once again the world has witnessed natural disaster, this time in Peru, and we are glad to see that the Canadian government and Red Cross have both moved to send money and supplies for relief of the earthquake victims there.

Floods meanwhile have beset Romania and Canada has offered up to $7,500,000 worth of wheat and flour to assist that country.

The death toll in Peru has been appalling. Some 40,000 are believed to have died, including half that number in the tourist resort of Yungay in the Andes which was simply swept away.

What can be done in the face of such devastation? Such help as can be given is never wanting, but nature as ever has exacted its toll and those of us who are safe and well in our relatively secure part of the world can only be thankful for this continued good fortune.

Children's TV

German Features of Hamburg reports that the world's only contest for children's and young people's TV takes place for the fourth time this year in Munich.

Television stations from around the world compete bi-annually for the best program of information, education, games or entertainment. The aim is to promote youth television and program exchanges.

It sounds like a good plan, for television has the power to influence children immeasurably. With children the avid viewers that they are, it is important that programming is of high quality.

Politics Involved

Prairie Recession—the Story of the Great Wheat Glut

The problem of what to do with Canada's unsold wheat is the major underlying factor in the Ottawa provinces, Joseph MacSween of the Montreal staff of The Canadian Press reports in a report on the grain trade on its cause and effects. This is another in a series of articles on Western Canada, part of a round-to-east study on attitudes in Confederation.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Saskatchewan wheat official who spends his days and nights puzzling the problems of Western Canada's agricultural pre-ed over his spectacles and declared:

"You have to look at the world, Canada, the Prairies — and you have to look at people, because the people problem underlies everything."

The story of wheat—a strange one—unfolds on an immense screen on which global forces move with profound meaning for mankind. Myth and misconception cloud the march of events. A lesson comes through on the inability of Canada and other countries to solve the dilemmas raised by their own technological advance.

Just as Canada grows the best hockey players but can't win an Olympic contest under international rules, so Canada produces the best wheat but finds itself with a billion-bushel grain glut.

"Wheat is politics and politics is wheat in Canada and the rest of the world," said a Winnipeg authority, supporting a raw nerve that causes persons big and small in the grain game to jump.

Before the federal government announced a $180,000,000 program—"That's a lot of bread," said Prime Minister Trudeau—to cut Western wheat production almost in all in 1970, a Saskatchewan expert made this comment:

"Everybody finally got excited in 1969 simply because what had been happening for some time was dramatically demonstrated.

"The situation is that for 50 or 60 years Canada assumed that wheat demand was unlimited—as exemplified by the slogan 'Use more bushels and we'll sell it'—but this has not been so for a while and now we have to admit it."

Canada, before the Ottawa announcement, was on a production march that would have landed Canadians figuratively up to their necks in 1,500,000,000 bushels of wheat by next fall, by one estimate.

"In other words, Canada has and will have enough wheat on hand to just about fill total world trade needs for a year," said A. M. Runciman, president of the 24,000-member United Grain Growers Ltd., in a speech last November.

But Canada's percentage of the world trade, meanwhile, has been on a downward slide.

"The big four exporters—Canada, the United States, Argentina and Australia—this group have one-third more wheat stocks than they had a year ago," said Mr. Runciman. "Canada has as much export stocks as the other three put together."

The population explosion?

"North America might have to feed the world in 1980 but not in the next 10 years—unless we're talking about 25-cents-a-bushel wheat. The capacity to produce is still expanding faster than effective demand."

Changeover of wheat plant to other crops and livestock, already in motion to a degree, appears almost as ponderous a task as changing the direction of an iceberg. It's not possible, on some of the prairie land. When a Saskatoon clothing merchant asked farmer Jim Bannister why he didn't go to cattle, the reply came fast:

"Why don't you sell lawnmowers?"

A Regina source said 1969 marked the vanishing point for operating profit for many farmers:

"The farmer got to the point where cash revenue was less than cash expenditure in some line. He didn't make enough cash to operate. The year before, he did get enough cash to stay in the black but had no return on his investment. Mind you, this isn't true of all farmers. That is the nature of the thing. . . .

"Dramatic changes are taking place in farm size, in kinds of operation. But no matter how dramatic, some people are a little behind they're at the rear of change.

"So we're facing two things today—first, a matter of primary significance to the West as a region; second, a matter of people, and governments are being pressed to do something about this second aspect."

Officials, incidentally, are doubtful about the chances of Canada again encountering the combination of export and price levels of 1966-67 when a drought across most of the southern hemisphere and Asia boosted North American sales.

That combination postponed the day of reckoning and perhaps, fostered a heads-in-the-grain, something-will-turn-up attitude in some quarters.

"Wheat, of course, is very important to the over-all Canadian economy and it may be that the effect of reduced sales is starting to reach into other segments," said Mr. Runciman in a Winnipeg interview.

"I think in the first year or two of this reduction of sales and whatever farm income it was easy for the rest of the country to ride along and protend it hadn't happened. I do believe the after-effects are starting to reach further afield now and can be noticed in Eastern Canada."

That, in a way, is the story of Canada's ills. For years wheat was the country's biggest export money earner and, indeed, impelled expansion westward after the 1867 Confederation of the first four provinces.

Today, the world's booming wheat bins have wrecked the minimum prices set up by the new International Grains Arrangement, supposedly effective July 1, 1968.

Canadian farmers suffer a direct hit from the cutbacks because most other wheat exporting countries have "substantial" subsidies for their growers, says the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool. Those countries chop prices to sell wheat.

The U.S. can subsidize with a population of 200,000,000—but look at our handful of 20,000,000," said one farmer.

More on Communism and Christianity

Has Man Forsaken the Ways of God?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

There is some truth in Mr. Snowdon's statement in answer to my letter, that both capitalistic and communistic systems have little concern for basic needs and that they are geared mainly to make profit.

The topic in my former letter dealt mostly with the attitude of Communism toward religion, freedom of speech, and the freedom to propogate according to ones conviction and conscience. In the Soviet state, as we know, everything is geared to serve that state. Science, literature, culture, and religion are supervised by ideological experts. No one dares to deviate from the party line.

Whether Karl Marx would approve of this type of Marxism, we don't know. We do know that the men in the Kremlin have tried hard to create a pure Marxist State and it was their hope that by 1948 all citizens would live under "real communism" and that other countries would follow. They had their ten to 15-year plans to achieve this. It did not work. Religion and bourgeois ideology were blamed. Then came the program of "Elimination of the Survival of Capitalism in the minds of the people"—"Religion must go." The persecution of the church went on with new vigor.

That Karl Marx would "dissociate himself from the Communist System as it is today" as Mr. Snowdon claims, that could be so, although we cannot be sure. There are several types of communistic systems in existence in Europe, but none of them measures up to the theory on paper.

Mr. Snowdon is correct in saying that the trouble is mainly human greed. Here we are close to the truth. Our problem is a moral and spiritual one. Human nature cannot be changed by political means or by a man-made system. Material wealth on which the world is concentrating will not bring about the desired Utopia. Happiness does not necessarily depend on material gain. There are statistics to show more discontent, more suicides among wealthy people than among the poor. Ecologists and pollution experts tell us that the wealth we have produced is slowly killing us.

It is a fact and is widely proclaimed by the churches that the church we are all around us is due to our refusal to obey God's commandment to seek ye first and to meet the Creator.

We have churches in Belleville where help is gladly given to any person sincerely wishing to know more of such matter. But until we are ready for a revolution against our selves, against our own nature, and be willing to accept a new life from above, we will continue drifting in the wrong direction, not only morally but politically and economically as well. Success or failure, this life or death is up to us. It is up to every individual.

Student Protests

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The students won't give up. They have to have their say in the running of the country. I don't see why they don't just leave the adults who know how to run the country to do so. I realize that some of the university students are adults' age but they don't seem to act that way.

President Nixon was elected as president. I can't understand why the students don't let him do his job.

The Very Young And Neglected

Christian Science Monitor

While we are all so rightly occupied with older youth, let us not forget the great needs of younger youth. For there are untold millions of these who can find life just as hard, as challenging, as perplexing, and as bewildering as do those in high school and college.

We were reminded of this need for universal attention when looking at two remarkable and heart-touching pictures in the United National Press Photographers Association's yearly competition. One was of a lad, no more than eight years old, at a Christmas party for underprivileged children. He stood alone wearing his new present, a hat and clutching a napkin full of potato chips. The other showed a white boy and black boy, hardly more than 10 years old, sitting huddled against a basement wall in a juvenile detention home, their faces full of bewilderment, and despair.

Need any of us be reminded that these three boys, and so many others, are the real wealth of America's dearest possession — its coming hope? What is it comforting to know that in many ways there is a steady improvement in the treatment of children, yet there is a vast amount of neglect, callousness and cruelty. Hard-working adolescence, where the helpless and ineffective young are concerned.

And while the law and public agencies can do much — and much more — the greatest improvement will come through a softening and broadening of the human heart. As each of us sees greater worth in all mankind, untold ways will be open to make youth the joyous, rich, meaningful period it should be. And those to whom love is given when they are young will, in turn, have more of it in later years, and afford the only permanent guaranties of true progress.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 5, 1970 . . .

A force of about 3,000 American troops were taken by surprise in an attack by the British soldiers at the Battle of Stoney Creek and routed in confusion 157 years ago today—in 1813. The invaders were camped near Burlington Bay on the Canadian side of Lake Ontario when the redcoats attacked in the early morning.

1812—Seamer Frontenac, first known steamship to ply the Great Lakes, first sailed length of Lake Ontario.

1863—French troops entered Mexico City.

Youth Meeting Place Decision to Council

Investigations into the possible provision of a downtown outdoor meeting place for young people now congregating along Front Street, are right back where they started a few months ago.

Several Front Street merchants had complained that youths congregating in front of stores were interfering with customers' entrance to places of business.

The Parks and Recreation Committee voted to try to establish an alternate off-street meeting place and a special committee was set up.

Yesterday, Alderman Robin Jeffrey said that two or three possible sites had been viewed but no definite arrangements had been made and discussions were "right back where they started."

The general feeling was that it was a city council responsibility and the committee decision was to refer the matter to council at its next regular meeting.

Education Board Salaries Are Increased by $11,260

Hastings county board of education at a caucus session early this week voted salary increases totalling $11,260 a year to top administrative staff.

It also approved hiring of a school psychologist, a psychometrist (junior psychologist who administers tests) and an electronic repair technician whose combined salaries at the minimum level will be $19,000 a year.

The director of education's salary has been raised from $32,000 a year to $30,000.

Other positions and their accompanying salaries this year are: business administrator, $17,000; associate superintendents (five), $23,000; superintendents, (three), $34,500.

The salary range for the educational resource technician is $5,000 to $6,500, with the present incumbent earning $5,360. Teachers aides at William R. Kirk School will received from $2,000 to $3,000 annually. The minimum and maximum salaries for school nurses (three) were set at $4,000 to $4,999.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market fell sharply in light mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials were down 1.20 to 122.75, golds 16.16 to 142.31, base metals 1.58 to 90.93 and western oils 4.15 to 122.11.

Stocks fell under pressure from Wall Street, which began a steep decline in late trading Thursday.

Analysts said the sudden weakening was caused by longer-due profit-taking.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 629,000 shares, compared to 600,000 at the same time Thursday.

Losses outran gains 209 to 37 with 114 issues unchanged.

Among declining stocks, Chemcell was down 1 to 5¾, White Pass and Yukon ¾ to 16, Canadian Imperial Bank ¾ to 35, Alcan ¾ to 21¼, Canadian Industrial Gas ¾ to 8 and Dofasco ¾ to 18¾.

A sharp rally lost momentum in late trading Thursday, but industrial issues clung to large gains.

On index, industrials were up 1.89 to 123.94, and base metals 1.09 to 92.51. Golds were down 1.99 to 142.47 and western oils 4.87 to 126.26.

Observers said the upward movement eased up because of profit-taking.

Downward pressure was also exerted by Wall Street, which entered a sharp nosedive late Thursday after several hours of steep ascent.

Committee Debates Bandshell Use

The Quinte area Youth for Christ movement will be denied regular Sunday evening use of the Lake's Island bandshell to hold religious services.

This was the decision yesterday at a joint meeting of the city parks board and recreation - arena committee.

Requests from the Youth for Christ movement and also the Salvation Army had been received earlier by the parks board for regular Sunday evening use of the shell but decision was deferred as board members were reluctant to commit the park for each Sunday throughout the summer.

At that time, it was suggested that permission might be granted for park use on a one Sunday in four basis.

Since the original approach, the Salvation Army has withdrawn its request for Sunday evening park use.

Yesterday Marvin Mountney appeared before the joint parks and recreation meeting stating that there was room for use of the Zwicks Island Park would not be satisfactory due to programming and other problems.

A motion by Robert Phillips that the organization be granted park use for four consecutive Sundays was defeated.

Then, although Mr. Mountney had stated earlier that staggered Sundays would not be satisfactory, a motion by Don Templeman that one Sunday in four use be permitted, was carried.

No decision was reached, however, on the request of two Toronto men, Henry Taylor and John Kehoe for use of the former exhibition park to hold a Black Cultural Workshop.

This request had also been received earlier by the board but was laid on the table to allow the sponsors to appear in person to provide more information.

Yesterday, Mr. Kehoe, who in the past has operated teen dances at the arena, said the proposed workshop for the advancement of black culture would take the form or musical entertainment and speakers.

But board members want still more information and have deferred their decision until June 18th.

Iowa Students Arrive

Hastings county's school system will be involved in another bands-across-the-border exercise next week as a grade 6 class from Webster City, Iowa, arrives to visit a similar class at Queen Victoria School.

Madoc Public School instituted what seems to be turning into a Hastings county tradition when it played host to a grade 6 class from Washington DC in March.

The Webster City group will arrive at Queen Victoria School Sunday morning at 10 for a neighborhood greeting from the adults and children of the school community. The arrival will climax a 22-hour bus trip that will begin in Webster City with an official civic send-off and a mile-long motor cavalcade out of town.

The visit had its beginning when the 18 pupils in the grade 6 class in Webster City wanted to correspond with pen-pals in Canada. Mrs. William Carroll, wife of the director of elementary education in the Iowa city, has family connections here and read about the Washington-Madoc exchange.

She arranged for teacher Mrs. Dorothy Lutkens and her pupils to correspond with Murray Workman and his combined grade 5 and 6 class at Queen Vic.

The letter exchange inspired thoughts of a visit, and the Webster City youngsters began a fund raising drive to carry them to Canada.

The $1,500 required was raised by bake sales, doing odd jobs and a benefit concert put on by the Webster City Men's Chorus.

The Queen Vic class similarly raised the $300 they required to entertain their visitor during their week in Belleville.

The American children will be billeted with their Belleville pen pals until they leave for home June 13.

During their stay they will be guests at a cookout Monday night, sponsored by the local Kiwanis club, share in a three - nation tree planting at Zwick's Island Wednesday afternoon with English square dancers and local school children, and visit Ontario Sheep Farm.

Accompanying the pupils and their teacher will be the principal of their school and the director of elementary education and Mrs. Carroll.

The school year in Iowa ends this week, so the pupils will be devoting the first week of their summer holidays to an extra week of schooling at Canada. They will spend a large share of their time here sitting in on classes with their Canadian hosts.

Odessa Woman Shot, Killed

NAPANEE (Staff) — An inspector from the provincial police Criminal Investigation Branch was called in by Belleville district OPP today to assist investigation into the fatal shooting of a woman at Odessa 13 miles east of here on Highway 2.

Details on the incident were sketchy and an OPP official in Belleville said no information would be made available until more thorough investigation had been made.

The shooting occurred late last night. The victim's name also was being withheld pending further investigation, said the OPP spokesman.

Alemite Diamond May Be Renamed

If a recommendation from the Belleville Parks Board and Recreation and Arena Committee is approved by council, the Alemite ball park will be renamed in honor of the late Richard Ellis, former city alderman and local sports benefactor.

At a joint meeting of the two bodies yesterday, it was recommended the Alemite ball park be named the Richard Ellis Field.

The suggestion that consideration be given to naming a suitable recreation facility in honor of Mr. Ellis for his contributions to minor sports, was made in March by the Belleville Minor Sports Association Executive Council.

Mr. Ellis for many years promoted sports of all kinds in the city and teams under his sponsorship competed in softball, baseball and hockey.

An Alderman for two years, Mr. Ellis died early this year.

Gamma Mu Holds Birthday Party

The annual birthday party of Gamma Mu Group, Beta Sigma Phi, was held on Tuesday, June 2, at the home of Mrs. G. Withers.

Prior to the party, a regular business meeting was conducted by the president Mrs. J. Sherry.

The social committee head, Mrs. R. Owen, announced that the Girl of the Year Party will be held at the home of Mrs. R. Vaughan on Wednesday, June 10. Artificial yellow roses and two kneeling cushions embroidered Beta Sigma Phi and Gamma Mu, to be used at Ritual of Jewels, were received by Mrs. J. Sherry on behalf of the chapter from Mrs. L. Schnell, on behalf of members leaving the chapter.

After the conclusion of the business meeting a program on home building and planning was presented by Mrs. R. Vaughan and Mrs. T. Rowland. They outlined briefly the steps involved in choosing a lot and a home style to suit one's way of life. Then they went on to describe in more detail the various materials available to cover floors; how to choose and utilize various lighting effects; how the washroom can be a luxury area in your home and finally, how to use a decorator wheel properly. The highlights of their program were greatly emphasized by their use of many large and colorful illustrations.

The women were thanked for their presentation by Mrs. A. Gray.

Following the program, the birthday party began. Sherry was served by the hostess and the past year's new members. Gamma Mu was toasted on its 15th birthday by all members present. A birthday cake made of ice cream was served with tea and coffee. Gifts were exchanged and each member learned the name of her secret sister for the past year. A welcome guest was past member Mrs. S. Milfred, who now resides in Montreal.

Newsletter Provides Interesting Facts

A newsletter from the Kingston branch of Cansave read at the May meeting of the Women's Study Guild provided some surprising and interesting information. The newsletter reported highlights from the National annual meeting which had been held in Waterloo earlier in May.

Mr. Clyde Sanger of the editorial staff of the Globe and Mail, author of the book "Half a Loaf", and an executive member of CUSO, stated in his address "Canada is both a developed and a developing country. Six billion dollars is spent annually on Indians, Eskimos and the underprivileged in Canada, 1.4 billion dollars is invested annually in Canada, making it the greatest recipient of aid in the world.

"Points made by other speakers mentioned lack of employment in developing countries, the role of youth in setting up programs, lack of educational opportunities, malnutrition, and health problems. The letter also announced that Father Cousineau who has been working in a development worker in Lesotho (formerly Basutoland) will be speaking to the Kingston branch of Cansave in McCallum Hall, Chalmers Church at 8 p.m. on Sunday, June 7.

The Women's Study Guild met at the home of Mrs. E. Seldon prior to her departure on a trip of Japan and other Pacific countries.

Mr. K. Daley, president, conducted a short business, followed by a devotional presented by Mrs. J. A. Buchanan. She pointed out that it is hard for people to live in the present. No one has the right to turn his back on the world as it is, and live in the idealistic past. This is a world of social justice, and one should seek to remove the causes of social problems.

Due to the speaker not being available for this meeting, several topics were brought up for discussion by Mrs. R. Roulet and Mrs. H. G. Wylie.

Mrs. Roulet corrected some of the impressions left by the executive member of CUSO, stated in his address "Canada is both a developed and a developing country. Six billion dollars is spent annually on Indians, Eskimos and the underprivileged in Canada, 1.4 billion dollars is invested annually in Canada, making it the greatest recipient of aid in the world.

No One Wants to Think Herself A Drag

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I'm not much of a talker. Anyway, this guy Bob told his pal about me: "She's a drag - but I have nothing better to do so I take her out". I was really shocked and hurt when another friend told me this.

After I heard this Bob asked what was wrong with me but I didn't tell him. Should I? I don't want to get the girl who told me into trouble.

I wish I knew what to say to a guy. I've always been quiet like this and I think Bob thinks I don't like him when I'm so quiet. — No Name Letter.

Dear No Talker: Horrible thought! No one want to think of herself as a drag. This is a time for honesty. Get up on your high horse, tell Bob what you heard, and say you can't see any point in dating each other if this is the way he feels. You could be dating more sincere boys.

A person need not be a talking machine to have something worthwhile to say. Do you read the newspaper; do you know what is going on in the world, in fashion, movies and books? To be interesting, get interested. I'll send you my 10 - cent leaflet, "Tips on Talking", to get you started.

Ann Landers

Reader Questions Columnist's Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: On occasion you have admitted you made a mistake and changed your advice. I hope you will do so again. I refer to your counsel to the woman who didn't want children and married a man who said he didn't want children either. Seven years later he changed his mind. She was furious and signed her letter "Betrayed." You advised counseling, called her "immature and selfish" — and said she would probably lose the guy if she didn't grow up.

ANN LANDERS

Well, she might be immature and selfish, but she is also honest enough to admit the mother role is not for her. And what's so terrible about that? I see many women who would be better off if they had made the same decision — and so would their unwanted, ignored children.

The most pressing problems in the world today are overpopulation and pollution. And the second problem is linked to the first. It is a known fact that people are the greatest polluters. The last thing the world needs is more people. So I pick up the paper and see where Ann Landers tells a gal to get counseling so she will be able to tolerate kids she doesn't even want !!! I say — eat those words. — SIDING WITH HER.

* * *

DEAR SIDING: Gulp, gulp, gulp. Consider the decision reversed. I would not, however, go so far as to agree with Faul Ehrlich's statement the "the mother of the year should be a sterilized woman — with two adopted children."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have started quite a campaign. Several of my friends who have never given it a thought are now seriously considering donating their bodies to medical schools. Since you seem so fond of Harvard Medical School, I've decided it's the one for me.

But what if they don't rush my remains to Cambridge in time? I've been told medical schools will not accept a body if more than twelve hours have elapsed. What if I can't get into Harvard? — TEARS IN LORRAIN, OHIO.

* * *

DEAR LORRAIN: Stop crying. Harvard will take you. They turn down only live people. Tell your lawyer, your doctor and the members of your family, now.

There are new laws based on the Uniform Anatomical Gift Act which has simplified donating organs — as well as the entire body. The donation card system is considered a legal instrument. The card is witnessed, signed and carried at all times. It designates which organs the carrier wishes to donate. Although this is not an easy topic for most people to dwell on, a great many individuals are overcoming their squeamishness and putting the welfare on humanity first. The gift of sight to a blind person or additional years of life to someone with kidney failure is an endowment beyond compare.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 15-year-old girl who is worried about my 17-year-old brother. A girl in my class is crazy about him and he won't let him alone. To look at his sex bomb you'd think she was 29. Her parents are divorced and she lives with her dad in a nifty apartment. Her dad is never in town. She drives his car all over and has a perfect setup — including a well stocked liquor cabinet.

This tramp chases my brother night and day and he seems to enjoy it. His attitude is "What do I have to lose?" I worry about him. What can I do? — LITTLE SIS.

* * *

DEAR SIS: You can tell him what he has to lose: A paternity suit, a bout with V.D., chances for a good education and marrying the girl of his choice — when he wants to get married.

I do not have a driver's license (I don't drive), and I do not work (no social security number). I find it quite difficult trying to cash a cheque without proper identification. — Newly-Married.

Dear Married: A girl who has taken on a new name may find it tricky to prove who she is.

Did you know that a Canadian-born citizen can get a certificate of citizenship? This is like the one the immigrants get when they become citizens of Canada.

You have to present your birth certificate at an office of the Canadian Citizenship Branch, or in the case of a married woman, your marriage certificate. For the wallet - size card you also need two passport photos.

For many purposes, this kind of identification helps — even for cashing a cheque. But the bank does not know either the person who signed the cheque or he one who is cashing it. they still need assurance that things do meet the cheque are on deposit somewhere.

* * *

Confidential to Sabre: Your poems show insight, and ability with words and rhythm. Further than that, you would have to leave the verdict to an expert on poetry. I'd say keep trying.

Need I point out that your spelling is not of the best? If you are serious about poetry writing, devote some serious time to a night course in English grammar and spelling. Then keep on putting down your thoughtful words on paper. Revise, correct, perfect every line before you send it out.

Ontario and Quebec Offer Ottawa Federal Tax Blueprints

Ontario

would cost the treasury about $300,000,000, compared with the $1,800,000,000 cost of the universal increase in exemptions proposed by Ottawa.

—Elimination of the present three-per-cent surcharge on income tax, thereby lowering slightly the rate for the middle income group — those earning between $10,000 and $25,000.

—A tax rate ceiling of 25 per cent of income to be reached at $100,000, compared with Ottawa's proposed ceiling of 30 per cent reached at $34,000. The upper limit now is 82 per cent at $400,000.

—A flat $50 tax credit for working mothers and single parents, plus another $100 if there are pre-school children. This would be more generous than Ottawa's proposal for an additional $500 tax deduction for each child under 14.

—Reduced rates of taxation on earnings gained from overtime work or second jobs.

—To encourage payroll savings, a tax credit of $25 for every $100 of annual savings up to $200. The savings would have to be locked in to an approved plan for at least five years to qualify.

Mr. MacNaughton said most of the tax relief provided by the Ontario plan would be recouped from capital gains taxes, the higher rates on middle and upper incomes, and higher taxes from corporations and resource industries.

The Ontario proposals also would include unemployment insurance benefits, strike pay, health insurance premiums paid by employers, scholarships and adult training allowances as taxable income, thereby increasing revenues.

The proposals would reduce taxes for low-income persons by a total of $200,000,000, Mr. MacNaughton said.

The Ontario brief advocates more selective incentives for small business, farmers and resource industries, rejecting the federal proposal to integrate corporate taxation with shareholder income as unfair.

The province calls for a separate capital gains tax at a flat rate of 25 per cent collected only on realization of gain. Incentives for small business should take the form of limited tax credits or deferments related to increased investment in real business assets. The incentives would be determined by a parliamentary committee.

Mr. MacNaughton made two proposals to gain more revenue from mining industries without discouraging processing and exploration.

Benefits available under the three-year exemption for resource industries should be restricted for highly-profitable operations, and an unconditional 15-per-cent-depletion allowance, plus an additional 10-per-cent allowance to domestic processors, should be provided.

tribute in taxes, suggests that without such contributions "we run the risk of taking back with one hand what is given with the other."

On tax reform, the new Quebec premier says he favors the federal objective of fairness, "but only if economic growth is assured will it be possible to reach that objective successfully."

While characterizing his ideas as suggestions rather than "a wholesale criticism of the federal proposals," Mr. Bourassa nevertheless takes issue with Ottawa's key ideas on personal income, capital gains, corporate and mining taxes.

With Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, Mr. Bourassa suggests a system of tax credits instead of increased personal exemptions to help the poor.

He says capital gains should be taxed at a lower rate than Ottawa proposes and then only when assets are cashed or upon the death or emigration of the holder. The federal proposals would tax paper gains on assets on the basis of a valuation every five years.

Instead of the federally-proposed system of taking corporate and shareholder dividend income for tax purposes, with credit to the shareholders only for corporate taxes actually paid, Quebec proposes a plan that is basically the same as present law, but modified.

Income passed between companies would be tax free, there would be a flat tax exemption on dividend income of 25 per cent instead of the present 30 per cent and only half of capital gains would be taxed, regardless of source.

Finally, tax incentives would be retained for small businesses with special, low rates at corporate tax, but on the first $25,000 of net income instead of the first $35,000 as at present.

Mining companies should retain special tax allowances, Mr. Bourassa says. While not necessarily in the present form of three-year tax holidays and hefty depreciation allowances, there should be more liberal concessions than those proposed by Ottawa.

Pay Restraints Advocated

and the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions have flatly rejected any wage controls.

Mr. Young whose commission was set up last July as part of the federal campaign against inflation, has scored a measure of success in restraining price increases.

Some increases have been rolled back voluntarily and the commission has enlisted help of various federal departments in putting "muscle" behind its persuasion on other occasions the informant said.

The six-per-cent maximum is a suggestion based upon a combination of two other percentages—an estimated three-per-cent inflation factor in national production increases plus a national average rate of advance in productivity of about 2½ per cent.

Pay settlements have been running at a rate of nine per cent or more.

As with examination of price increases the commission would take account of any special circumstances in examination of an individual pay settlement before concluding whether it was within the pay-restraint guide or beyond it.

Examination of a pay settlement would take into account features other than cash—various fringe benefits—in determining whether it complied with restraint guide.

Princesses Seek to Repeat

Last year's dairy princesses in Hasting and Prince Edward Counties will be out to repeat their 1969 success at the annual dairy princess competition to be held this year at the Ontario School for the Deaf grounds in Belleville.

The dairy princess competition is the main feature of the annual Dairy Day program.

The current dairy princess for Hastings is Dianne Gunning of Tweed, while in Prince Edward Dorothy Parks holds the honor. Competitions are held jointly although princesses are named for both counties.

Competing in this year's Hastings competition will be Miss Gunning and Susan Ray of R.R. 2, Roslin. Last year Miss Gunning was runner-up in the all-Ontario finals.

Entries are now closed for Hastings but in Prince Edward the closing date for entries is June 8, so it is not known how many entries there will be.

A feature of this year's Dairy Day program at OSD will be the marching band from Belleville, New Jersey. Hot beef buns and dairy products will be available at the grounds.

J. Robertson Collins and Ronald B. Collins, sons of Mr. and Mrs. B. Robertson Collins received degrees at recent spring convocations. Robertson received his degree with honours from the Faculty of Law at Ottawa University, May 31. After graduating from Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville, he attended the University of Toronto where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree. Ronald received his Bachelor of Arts degree at the recent convocation of Carleton University. He also attended Nicholson Catholic College and St. Patrick's College, Ottawa.

KILLING YOURSELF

STOP

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Heart Said Sound But Pains Persist

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: If a person has had an ECG and has been examined by a doctor for pains in his left chest over his heart, is there any need to be concerned that the pains may be due to heart trouble? My husband officiates during the football and basketball season, besides being a government worker full time.

These pains seem to come on when work needs to be done or when he is tired. I've no idea what or whom to believe. During his examination in the hospital the family doctor said the electrocardiograms were all right and the pain was due to muscle spasm and to the food he ate, like pizza, etc. He takes digitalis pills when the pain gets bad. — Mrs. C.

Comment: Making a diagnosis is like solving a mystery. When symptoms (clues) don't seem to fit into the puzzle, the medical detective begins to wonder whether or not he is on the right track. For example, consider your husband's case. Pieces don't seem to fit. If, as your doctor says, your husband's heart is normal, why is he taking digitalis? Either it is or isn't heart disease.

If it isn't, most doctors do not prescribe a heart medicine for a patient with a normal heart. If it is, then either the doctor or your husband is withholding the true condition.

I think that when heart disease, or any other, is present, that the patient and his family should know the truth. Otherwise it is impossible to have full cooperation by the patient.

I suggest that you ask your doctor why he has prescribed digitalis for a "heart that is all right." Tell him you are entitled to know the truth. If you still are uncertain, then ask for a consultation with a heart specialist.

The fact that the ECGs were normal does not entirely rule out the possibility of heart disease (for example, angina can be present without changes in the heart tracing).

Here's another clue that doesn't fit into the puzzle: your husband having pains over his left chest. In my experience, most left-sided chest pains are not due to heart disease.

As I suggested, better have a heart specialist try to put the puzzle together

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What can be done about the unsightly clusters and lines of dilated superficial veins on thighs and calves? I am much disturbed by them. Shall I have them injected? — Miss H.

Comment: Whether or not injection may help will depend upon your doctor's decision. Such treatment often ends in failure because it is difficult to successfully inject the tiny veins without getting seepage of the fluid into the surrounding tissues.

In most patients the most sensible (and easiest) treatment is to use a cosmetic cover — up! We don't know what causes these clusters of "spider veins." Some people seem just more susceptible than others.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Every morning I have for breakfast a large plate of oatmeal with sugar and milk. Is this bad for the blood circulation? I am 67.— Mr. D.

Comment: No problem.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 51 - year - old bachelor. Lately, I urinate very frequently. When I get a warning I have to go. I have to go, quickly. I wake up every two or three hours at night to relieve myself. Can it be prostate trouble? — Mr. D.

Comment: Possible, although you ought to check on it. May be due to a prostatitis, cystitis (bladder inflammation), kidney involvement, etc. But why guess! Have a urologist tell you.

Not even Rod Fisher had an explanation for the Expos.

"I can't figure it out," he was telling curious fellow sportswriters. "They can go out and beat around the ball and lose 8-0 and you'll hear the fans talking about the tough breaks they got, and the papers will say 'mother had bounce.' "

Fisher finds the baseball bug has even bitten his Montreal Star staff. "A while back I decided to assign each of my staff a feature a week for more variety in our sport pages.

"So at the end of the first week, guess what I got — half a dozen stories about the Expos! And nobody knocks them."

Montreal's rabid sport fraternity has taken the Expos under its wing like a mother hen adopting an orphaned ugly duckling.

Because, Lord knows, the Expos are not the prettiest exponents of baseball that ever crossed a lingo.

From their first-ever home game on a sunny, April 14, 1969 afternoon, Montrealers knew Canada's national baseball team was going to be different.

Not content to enjoy a 4-0 lead, the Expos managed to trail the defending World Series champion Cardinals 7-6 before pulling an 8-7 verdict out of the fire.

Five errors in the fourth inning were the Expos contribution toward keeping the score close, while pitcher Dan McGinn had to hit a single to drive in the winning run. It was the first at a five-hit season at the plate for McGinn.

That win put the Expos as close to the top of the National League race as they may be for some time. They finished a mere 61 games out of first place in the league's east division and are maintaining their basement image into their sophomore season.

Any similarity between the Expos as baseball players and the Expos as gate attraction has been purely coincidental. More than 1,200,000 people paid to watch Canada's first major league team lose 110 games last year. If everyone was bothered to show on the field, not too many teams were beating them at the box office.

An economic study revealed the Expos generated $5 million dollars in spending in the city of Montreal last year, and that 30 per cent of the club's fellowers came from out-of-town, one-third of them travelling farther than 300 miles.

Which brings us to Belleville.

Radio CJBQ is a member of the 79-station Expo network (including eight U.S. stations) carrying the Montreal baseball movement on the airwaves.

Delighted with response to Expo broadcasts, CJBQ manager Frank Murray has laid on a four-bus safari to give Expo listeners the chance to see what makes those Jayvy Park spectators so gleeful in the face of adversity.

Less than $10 entitles the safarer a return bus seat (leaving Belleville approximately 7.30 a.m., Sunday, June 22), and a bleacher view of a 2.15 Expos-New York Mets game. Tickets should go on sale next week.

The occasion will be recognized at the park and on the broadcast circuit as "Belleville Day," and a number of this city's civic dignitaries are expected to make the trip.

A May visit by the Mets brought the Expos their biggest-ever home crowd — over 30,000 — and tickets for their Montreal visits are about as common as Mohicans.

Ironically, it is the Mets who are partially responsible for the success of Montreal's baseball venture.

Their Cinderella story — from very tattered National League rags to last fall's World Series riches — has struck hope in the hearts of every major league team and their supporters.

"If the Mets can start from scratch and win a Series in eight years, so can we," the logic goes, and not without some justification.

By comparison to the early-sixties Mets, the Expos look like magicians afield. They have no-one to hold a candle to, the Mets' Marvelous Mary Throneberry, who had to tie a string around his flap or to remind him where his glove was.

At the plate, the Expos boast their only .300 hitter, Rusty Staub, as a genuine bleacher-pleaser.

The Expos can never be accused of being dull. If they don't win, well, Mack Jones can hit a long fair ball with the best of them. Between Bobby Wine's arm, and the umbrella's legs, Jurry Park holds something for everyone.

And, being in Quebec, Expo fans can enjoy privileges that, in Ontario, are strictly "Never on Sunday."

Hotelmen Break Commercial Softball Ice

Three deuces were good enough to get City Hotel off the line to win their first Commercial Softball League contest last night as the Hotelmen rallied a pair of runs in each of the first three innings to hand Corby's a 7-3 defeat.

In the other contest, Rollins Construction won their third game of the season to move past Point Anne into second place with an 8-3 win over the Ox Pointers.

Bob Tabor threw five-hit ball to notch City's first win after consecutive losses. The hefty southpaw fanned six batters and walked a single man.

Gerry Genereaux gave way to Pat Scollard on the Corby mound after 1 2/3 innings. The pitching tandem allowed nine hits, walking three batters and fanning six.

Pug Keller cracked a two-run homer in the second inning to right-centre field, while Ken Genereaux in the first and Don Gardiner in the third each singled to drive in two runs.

Doug Murray and Ken Genereaux paced the winners' attack with a double and single each.

Gary Goyer and Larry Mavety were tops at the plate for Corby's with two singles each.

Three walks, two Point Anne errors and Bob McAlpine's two-run double gave Rollins a 4-1 first-inning lead they never gave up.

Don Holeway pitched five-hit ball for the losers, but was hurt by five bases-on-ball, five Point Anne errors and an equal number of wild pitches. He struck out seven batters.

Brian Harder started for Rollins, giving way to Wayne McConnell in the third inning. They allowed four hits, walking six and striking out six batters.

McAlpine and Ralph Place doubled for the winners while Wes May added a single.

Vern Whale poled a long home run to centre field for Point Anne with Rick Rosebush, Dennis Maher and Mike Cook picking up the other hits. Rosebush pulled off the best defensive play of the game with a fine leaping grab of Jerry Hill's second-inning liner.

Power Squadron Not 'Newfie' Joke

By ERIC EMERSON

Staff Reporter

Perhaps the highest compliment you could pay Reg Morry, born and raised on the Avalon Peninsula of Newfoundland, is that he's the kind of person who can laugh at "Newfie" jokes.

In fact, the earthy Easterner isn't above spinning a few yarns, with none of his boating pals about the folks down home; such as the wee time tale of a German sub that sank three ships because the shore battery couldn't fire without specific orders from a pub-entrenched captain; or an old-timer who was "ignorant as a bag of hammers."

His ability to give and take a jibe with the best of them, coupled with a genuine liking for people has earned him numerous friends in the Belleville boating fraternity.

Says one acquaintance, "He is quite a guy — a real character, but the kind of person that if you're ever in trouble or you need some help with your boat, you know you can count on him."

If there is one thing that he is really serious about, however, it's boating in general and the Power Squadron in particular. "It's almost like a boat's a person," he claims. "They're all got a different personality. Boating is a big part of my life — I don't know what I'd do without it."

The Bay of Quinte Power Squadron of which he is a member, is a national group with about 125 different branches across Canada. "It's a main aim of the group," according to outgoing Belleville commander Jack Devine, "is to promote water safety by teaching newcomers the rules of the road."

Branches are grouped into various districts of about five squadrons each. The Bay of Quinte squadron currently has an enrolment of some 68 members.

"It's the way motorists used to be," says Morry, "if you see someone in trouble — you go and help them. With more and more people on the water courtesy and knowledge of the boating rules will become more and more important."

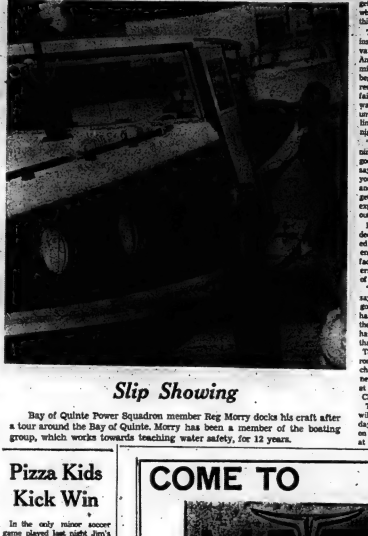
Despite the name the Power Squadron is open to all boaters, including sailors and canoe enthusiasts. Newcomers are taught how to charter a course, the use of nautical instruments, buoy recognition, and general safety procedures when operating a boat.

Tests of up to 120 questions are given at the end of the course and competitions involving plotting a pre-determined course are also held.

Boaters passing the test earn the rank of pilot and may graduate upwards to advanced pilot, seaman, junior navigator and navigator, with each step involving more complicated procedures.

Morry has been a member of the local squadron about 12 years. "I was a fisherman from the time I was 12 years old, and some of those old timers could scrail a Southwester 20 miles away. They navigated almost on instinct, but things are different for most of us. I joined the power squadron because I enjoy boating and found that I was picking up some pointers I didn't know about, and getting the reasons behind why I was doing some of the things I'd been taught to do."

The local squadron has five instructors who lecture on various facets of boating. Among the most common mistakes made by uneducated beginners are leaving children unattended on the decks, failing to yield the right of way to sailboats and large unwieldy vessels and travelling at excessive speeds at night time.



"Even if you're just planning on getting a boat, it's a good idea to take the course," says the veteran salt. "Then you won't be turning the wife and kids against boating by getting in trouble, through inexperience, your first time out."

His own craft is a high-decked Cape Islander powered by a four-cylinder inboard engine. Fully equipped with facilities and sleeping quarters the boat has a top speed of about 12 knots.

"She isn't built for speed," says the owner, "but she's a good stable boat that can handle rough water. I like the old boats. To me they have a feeling and character that the newer ones don't."

The Belleville Power Squadron will be holding their change of watch (election of new officers) this Saturday at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

The first local rendezvous will be held the following Sunday with the winners going on to the district competition at CFB Trenton.

Slip Showing

Bay of Quinte Power Squadron member Reg Morry docks his craft after a tour around the Bay of Quinte. Morry has been a member of the boating group, which works towards teaching water safety, for 12 years.

Pollock Protects Beliveau

MONTREAL (CP) Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, said Thursday the National Hockey League club is almost certain to protect veteran centre Jean Beliveau in next week's NHL player draft.

"The decision is 99 per cent that we'll protect him, but we simply depends what happens when he hits the ice in September," said Pollock who has made it clear he will not try to hold next season's team around Beliveau.

Arbour Blues' Coach

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues today named defenceman Al Arbour as coach of the National Hockey League team, replacing Scotty Bowman.

Bowman, 37, who has served in dual capacities as coach and general manager the last three seasons, will remain as general manager.

Pizza Kids Kick Win

In the only minor soccer game played last night Jim's Pizzeria shoupdate came up with a 5-2 win over the National Billiards storm.

Peter Barriage kicked three goals for the winners with other pair.

Cox scored twice for the losers.

McCreary Plays Ace

Aces seem to come in pairs or better at the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

The second hole-in-one of the year — and week — on the Highway 2 layout was dropped Thursday by Jim McCreary.

McCreary, semi-finalist in last year's men's club championship, sank his nine-iron tee shot on the 135-yard, par-three sixth hole while playing with Spence Wonnacott and Tom Lorrie.

The ace helped McCreary come in with a round of 75 on the lengthy par-71 links.

World Cup Competitors Buy High Heels to Avoid Sinking

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The managers and coaches strove to bring their soccer teams up to a full pitch of precision and desire, doctors and trainers sweated over injured players, chemists reported all doping tests negative so far—and the grass grew greener and higher.

It was that kind of a day at the world soccer championships, in the lull between the conclusion Wednesday of the first stage of round-robin play and the beginning of the second round Saturday.

The International Federation of Football Associations—FIFA records did that 16 players, picked for doping examinations during the first round had been given clean bills of health.

Dr. Helmut Kaeser, FIFA secretary-general, said Thursday that no doping problems are expected, but that the system of tests now used by most sports federations is being employed here.

"Players from Mexico Russia, England, Rumania, Uruguay, Israel, Peru and Bulgaria all have been cleared. There was no sign of doping."

Some reporters took note of the fact that the deep, green, grass of the Mexican soccer fields has caused a sinking feeling among some players. To counter this situation and enable the squads to rise to the occasion, some teams have ordered higher heels for their soccer shoes.

In another development, a Colombian spokesman said his government believes there will be no further action in the case of Bobby Moore, England captain.

Moore was detained in Bogota Colombia, on May 25 during an English tour prior to arrival in Mexico City. He was questioned by police in connection with the disappearance of a bracelet valued at $1300 from a jewelry store.

"It was an accusation that needed proof," said Dr. Arturo Capurron, Colombian embassy counsellor here. "It was never proved."

After eight games here Belgium leads Group 1 with two points. Russia and Mexico have a point each and El Salvador none.

Uruguay and Italy have two points each in Group II. Sweden and Israel have none.

Brazil and England lead Group III with two points each. Romania and Czechoslovakia have no points.

Peru and West Germany are the leaders in Group IV, each with two points, and Morocco and Bulgaria have no points.

Matches Saturday: Russia vs. Belgium; Uruguay vs. Italy; Romania vs. Czechoslovakia; Peru vs. Morocco.

Sunday's games: Mexico vs. El Salvador; Israel vs. Sweden; England vs. Brazil; Bulgaria vs. West Germany.

Osteen Robs Pirates With 8th Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last three weeks have been happy ones for Claude Osteen, something less than hilarious for Tom Seaver and a nightmare for Steve Blass.

The three veteran National League pitchers worked Thursday night and each kept his streak alive.

Yanks Ruin Gem

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Yankees were three outs away from losing an American League no-hitter Thursday night, but recovered to beat Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 12 innings.

Baltimore Orioles were beaten 4-2 by Oakland Athletics and their East Division lead over the Yankees was reduced to 5½ games.

Kansas City left-hander Jim Rooker, with a 1-0 lead, held the Yankees hitless going into the last half of the ninth inning, when Horace Clarke banged a leadoff single and scored the tying run for New York.

In other games, Boston Red Sox dropped Minnesota Twins 5-1, Cleveland Indians clipped Milwaukee Brewers 8-4, Chicago White Sox whipped Washington Senators 7-3 and Detroit Tigers defeated California Angels 4-2.

After Clarke wrecked Rooker's no-hitter try, Bobby Murcer drilled a double to score Clarke and force extra innings.

Ron Woods opened the New York 12th with a single, but was forced out on John Ellis' grounder. Gene Michael singled and pinch-hitter Pete Ward walked to load the bases. Moe Drabowsky relieved Rooker and Clarke hit his second pitch to centre field, scoring Jerry Kenney, pinch-running for Ellis, with the winning run.

Buffalo Loses Ball Charter

NEW YORK (AP) — The International League took away Buffalo's baseball franchise Thursday after rejecting a bid by the Bisons to keep the financially-plagued team in the city.

The action was taken at a league meeting. IL President George Sisler said.

Sisler said a provisional franchise was awarded to the Montreal Expos, "subject to league approval of a suitable city to be named within 10 days."

The Bisons had been in red ink recently and offered to move their playing site from War Memorial Stadium to All High Stadium in an effort to help attendance problems.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of baseball's National League are currently examining several sites in Canada in a search for a suitable home for their provincial franchise in the Class AAA International League.

"We prefer to go to a Canadian city as our first choice if we can find adequate facilities," an Expos spokesman said in an interview.

The spokesman said the club hopes to be able to make an announcement "in a couple of days."

Osteen, the stylish Los Angeles Dodgers southpaw, captured his fifth consecutive triumph, a five-hit masterpiece over Pittsburgh while Pirates starter Blass lost his eighth game in a row. Meanwhile, Seaver, the New York Mets ace, dropped his fourth straight, 3-1 to Atlanta Braves.

In the only other game, Houston Astros romped over Montreal 8-0, sending the skidding Expos to their 11th consecutive loss.

Osteen, 8-4, tossed only 96 pitches and didn't go to a three-ball count during the entire game in limiting the hard-hitting Pirates to six hits.

"It's a lot of fun when you pitch like that," Osteen said after winning his eighth decision in nine starts and lowering his earned-run average to 2.48.

Osteen, who was 20-15 last year, started his streak on May 17 with a four-hit shutout over San Francisco Giants.

Tuesday night Osteen got all the support he needed from Wes Parker, who drove in three runs with a double and a sacrifice fly.

Seaver, who had a 25-7 record last year, rolled to six straight victories this season before dropping a 2-0 decision to Montreal. He then beat Philadelphia Phillies on a one-hitter on May 15 but hasn't won since. He now is 7-5.

In the four losses, Seaver has been supported by only two runs. He gave the Braves five hits and all three runs while running his league strikeout lead to 138, fanning four Atlanta hitters.

Seaver was reached for a run-scoring single by Orlando Cepeda, another tally came in on a passed ball and Rico Carty slugged his 15th homer of the season.

Blass, a 16-10 hurler last season, sank to 2-8 and hasn't tasted victory since April 22 when the right-hander beat Houston 6-1 on a three hitter.

The Astros rode the six-hit pitching of Tom Griffin, who was backed by Doug Rader's first-inning grand-slam homer off loser Dan McGinn and a two-run shot by Joe Pepitone in the eighth. It was No. 11 for each this season.

Not Playing Tag

Los Angeles Dodgers' Manny Mota slides safely across home as Cubs' pitcher Bill Hands is late with the tag during first inning of Monday's game in Chicago. Dodgers' Wes Parker (28), the hitter, watches the play as umpire Shag Crawford makes the call. Mota scored from third on a wild pitch by Hands. (AP Wirephoto)

Royals Were After Flood

NEW YORK (AP) — If Curt Flood had been freed to negotiate for himself after he was traded by St. Louis Cardinals, it is possible he might be in the Kansas City outfield today playing for the Royals at a salary in excess of $125,000 a year.

The man who would have paid Flood that much is Ewing Kauffman, multi-millionaire owner of the Royals dedicated to bringing Kansas City a pennant on more than how high the cost.

Kauffman stirred the courtroom of Judge Irving Ben Cooper as he testified for the defence Thursday in the suit brought by Flood that challenges the legality of baseball's reserve system.

Kauffman estimated that if he could have negotiated with Flood, he would have paid him in the $100,000-to-$125,000 range for one year and might have increased that figure on a long-term contract.

His statements about what he would pay Flood came under cross-examination by attorney Jay Topkis. It was considered significant in light of Flood's contention that baseball operates in restraint of trade through the reserve system.

Questioning along those lines, according to Topkis in remarks made to Judge Cooper, also was a "way to prove damages" in the $3,000,000 anti-trust suit brought by Flood after he was traded by St. Louis to Philadelphia Phillies.

Kauffman's estimate of what he would pay Flood was significantly higher than the $90,000 Flood was paid by the Cardinals in 1969, or the package of "a little more" than $80,000 plus $8,000 expenses offered by the Phillies for him.

Kauffman, however, was and is barred from negotiating with Flood by baseball's reserve clause, which ties a player to the club that originally signed him until he is either traded, sold or released. Flood, became Philadelphia property when traded.

At that time, Flood asked baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn for permission to negotiate for himself as a free agent with any club in baseball. Kuhn said he could not give such permission, and Flood instituted suit.

Sawchuk Reported Ill Weeks Before 'Horse-play' Incident

NEW YORK (CP) — Ron Stewart and 19 New York Ranger team-mates were to attend funeral services at Berkley, Mich., today for Terry Sawchuk, the 40-year-old goalkeeper who died here Sunday.

Stewart, right winger with the Ranger team on which Sawchuk ended a long and spectacular National Hockey League career as reserve goaltender, is to return here to tell a Nassau County grand jury Monday about an altercation with Sawchuk April 29, the day in which the goalkeeper was taken to hospital suffering excruciating pain. He died of a blood clot following a series of operations.

Stories pieced together from acquaintances picture Sawchuk as having been unhappy and perhaps ailing prior to the April 29 clash with Stewart, with whom he shared a rented house on Long Island during the hockey season.

Rosemary Sasso, a friend of Stewart, and Ben Wehner, a restaurant manager described as Sawchuk's closest friend here, both reported the goalkeeping ace had spit up blood two weeks before the altercation with Stewart over household chores and expenses. Both are expected to testify before the grand jury, which may decide by Monday night whether any indictment is warranted.

Miss Sasso, a nurse described as a Canadian-born divorcee, told The Post Thursday that Sawchuk had been "spitting up blood and I had pleaded with him to see a doctor, but he just refused."

Wehner said Sawchuk had mentioned to him that "he spat up blood a few times . . ."

"He didn't know what was causing it."

The possibility that Sawchuk may have been ailing prior to the altercation with Stewart on April 29—variously described as pushing bouts, wrestling or punching—put a new light on the incident.

There was no immediate word from the Rangers about the possibility that Sawchuk might have been hurt in hockey action.

A club spokesman said he knew of no recent hockey injuries in Sawchuk, although "he had an awful lot of injuries during his career."

Sawchuk had played his last complete NHL game on April 9 in the second Stanley Cup quarter-final contest between Boston Bruins and the Rangers.

The unhappiness of Sawchuk, a moody man through much of his career, was described by Stewart this week in an interview.

"The guy had real problems," said Stewart, enumerating the goalkeeper's divorce last year, from his wife, Pat, mother of his seven children, and the car accident which put his father, Louis, 71, into a Detroit area hospital, encased in casts.

Pat Sawchuk, the divorced wife, reached Thursday to an inference that failure of a reconciliation attempt had left her ex-husband in a foul mood. She said they had parted on the best of terms after an April meeting at Detroit.

Second Fiddles Could Play Crucial Tune

WINNIPEG (CP) — The way Richard Russell sees it, victory in the Davis Cup section play between the Commonwealth Caribbean and Canada starting Saturday probably will be decided by the number two players for each team.

"Belkin should win two singles and we should win the doubles," said Russell, the 24-year-old veteran playing-captain of the Caribbean entity in the tennis showdown.

"I should beat their number two player so then it would come down to Lumsden and Sharpe. We could be in for an exciting three days."

Russell, in his analysis, concedes two singles victories to Canada's established international star, Mike Belkin. But he feels the Caribbean doubles team of himself and Lance Lumsden can polish off the Canadian doubles team.

Canada's non-playing captain, Lawrie Strong, hasn't said so yet, but it is believed he will go with Belkin and John Sharpe. The third member of the team is Peter Burwash.

The draw for the best-of-five contest will be made today with two singles matches being played Saturday beginning at 2:30 p.m. EDT. The doubles match will be played Sunday at the same time with the last two singles matches beginning at 8 p.m. Monday.

The winner of the north section of the American Zone will advance against New Zealand here the following weekend.

Canada Loses Hope

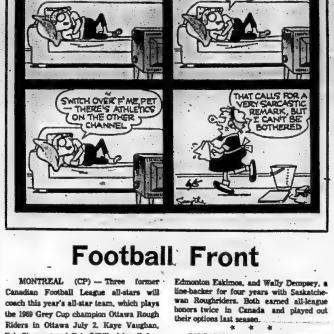
NEWCASTLE, Northern Ireland (AP) — Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia surged from behind and defeated Scotland's Murray Rae on the 20th hole Thursday to gain the quarter-finals of the British Amateur Golf Championship.



Rae had eliminated Bob Wylie of Calgary 3 and 2 in the fourth round. Wylie was the only Canadian in, the match play marathon.

Hyndman, who needed an eagle on the 19th hole to beat Bill McRae of Ireland in his first match Thursday, went two extra holes to eliminate Rae. Down by two strokes at the 15th hole, the veteran American battled back in the 18th and 19th to force it to extra holes.

Michael Bonallack, Britain's four-time winner of this tournament, who defeated Hyndman in the finals last year, also gained the quarter-final round with two victories Thursday.

Dale Morey of High Point, N.C., was eliminated by Scotland's Charlie Green 4 and 3.

Football Front

MONTREAL (CP) — Three former Canadian Football League all-stars will coach this year's all-star team, which plays the 1969 Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders in Ottawa July 2. Kaye Vaughan, Bob Simpson and Bob O'Billovich, all former Ottawa stars, will assist head coach Eagle Keys of Saskatchewan Roughriders against their old team.

* * *

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Rams announced they have signed two former Canadian professional football players as free agents. They are Jim Thomas, a running back who played six season with Edmonton Eskimos, and Wally Dempsey, a line-backer for four years with Saskatchewan Roughriders. Both earned all-league honors twice in Canada and played out their options last season.

* * *

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders announced Thursday the signing of two new players for the 1970 Western Football Conference season. Mike Becklund, 6-2 and 240 pounds, is a defensive tackle from Utah State University. Don Lumb of Coquitlam, B.C., 6-3 and 255 pounds, was Calgary's second-round choice in the 1970 Canadian college draft.

Burns Too Valuable to Coach

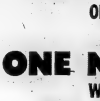
MINNEAPOLIS (A P) — Charlie Burns will not be re-hired as Milwaukee North Stars' coach for the 1970-71 National Hockey League season, general manager Wren Blair announced Thursday.



Burns, 34, who took over the coaching job from Blair on an interim basis early last season, has been signed to a two-year playing contract, Blair said.

The North Stars "probably will name a new coach in the near future, perhaps within the next few days."

"We felt that Charlie is too valuable as a player for us to retire him," Blair said. "And that's what we would have to do if he was to become bench coach."

Raimey Declared Fit

TORONTO (CP) — Halfback Dave Raimey of Toronto Argonauts, out since late last season by serious ligament damage to his left knee, has been declared fit to play again by his doctors and the Canadian Football League coaching staff, although Raimey himself is complaining of pain.

Raimey, 29, a University of Michigan graduate, joined Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the CFL in 1965 after a brief stint with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League. He came to Argonauts last year in the deal that sent former Michigan quarterback Wally Gabler to Winnipeg.

Thursday, Raimey exhibited his old running form during a voluntary practice.

"Sure the knee is okay on a (practice) run like that," Raimey said Thursday, "but it might be a bit different with guys waiting to hammer me. My knee still hurts. I can do about everything I used to, but it still hurts. It even rattles."

Boys' Coach Out of Work

TORONTO (CP) — Don Webb, who coached Beverley Boys of Oshawa to a fourth-place finish in the 1968 Olympic Games, is out of a job and may be unable to accompany her to the British Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh next month.

Webb, who worked for an electronics company here, said he lost his job about a month ago but had been busy coaching Bev to the BCG trials in Winnipeg and getting her ready for the Games themselves to look for another position.

"I have no funds to go to Edinburgh," he said Thursday. "But I'm not giving up. I have talked to a few businessmen in Oshawa and they may help."

Beverley, Canada's woman athlete of the year in the Canadian Press poll last year, is a favorite for a gold medal next month.

A THOUGHT FOR HOME PURCHASERS

Many people spend months and even years in trying to locate a home. When one considers the great number of homes on the market at any one time, and then thinks of the enormous number of various designs, locations and types of homes at various prices that have been available in this time to these purchasers, one wonders why it took them so long to find a home. The reason is based on one word — LOYALTY.

It is human nature to compare prices when making any purchase, but a home is not a staple product. Its value is determined by many factors: its size, condition, location, extras and most important by the urgency the owner has to sell.

In the case of the long term searcher, he has decided to buy a home without enlisting the aid of any one particular salesman. He searches the houses for sale ads, in the local paper and spends hours on the phone talking to many salesmen; he drives in certain districts looking for "sale" signs and calls on these. In short order he is confused and loses hope that he can locate his dream house at the right price.

Buying a home is not a hit and miss affair. How can a great number of salesmen know this man's needs? how can a suitable home be found if no one salesman has spent sufficient time with this person to fully understand his requirements? The only way he can is by seeing homes with the buyer and meeting the buyer's objections or desires. Furthermore, no experienced salesman, whose time is valuable, will spend time inspecting homes for a buyer whom he believes will end up buying one of these homes from another salesman.

Consider these points and then choose an experienced salesman. Spend sufficient time with him so that he will know what you want. He will spend hours inspecting homes on your behalf. He will check "For Sale" ads in the paper that appeal to you. Remember! most houses are listed on MLS and he probably knows the salesman who is advertising and can get his co-operation; he can check any "For Sale" signs that catch your eye. He can and will find your "Dream Home" and all he asks is your — LOYALTY.

Consolation For Bowerman

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (CP-Staff) — Garry Bowerman is getting some satisfaction out of the Kemper Open, despite carding a 74 in Thursday's opening round of the $150,000 PGA tournament.

Co-leader of the event after the first round with holes won Orville Gilbert, a personal friend of Belleville's representative on the U.S. pro golf tour, Gilbert, who shot a blistering 66 on the rain-drenched, 7,015 yard Quail Hollow course, was a club pro near Bowerman's Florida winter quarters before joining the pro tour this summer.

Gilbert, 29, shared the lead with 42-year-old PGA veteran Lionel Hebert, one stroke ahead of Lou Graham, 72, ahead of Art Wall, Tom Weiskopf, Mike Hill, and Bob Lunn, and three up on 68-shooters Arnold Palmer, Sam Snead and Gene Littler.

Bowerman's 36-36 on the par-72 layout was only one shot worse than Gilbert's last '73. Al Balding led the Canadian contingent with a one-under 71, while George Knudson matched Bowerman's 36-36-74 figures.

Farmers May Be Organized To Withhold Education Taxes

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture says farmers in the province may be organized next fall to withhold the portion of their property tax that is used to finance education.

Gordon Hill said in a statement Thursday it isn't possible to get a well-organized campaign under way across the province by mid-June and that many townships collect taxes on an annual basis and do not collect in June.

"The campaign is planned in this way so we can be better organized, have more farmers informed, and more farmers ready to withhold in the fall," he said.

Mr. Hill said the OFA hopes it wouldn't be necessary to take such drastic action as urging the farmers to sign petitions and send them in to the federation.

"Farmers have paid more than their share for too many years, It is time for a change and if the government doesn't know it now they will by fall."

Mr. Hill also said the freezing of the Canadian dollar will cost Ontario farmers $8,000,000 in the next year. He said the change will mean a 28-per-cent loss in net income.

"This sorry state of affairs could be partially offset by lower prices for farm machinery and other imported goods required by farmers.

"However, there is no sign that interest rates on farm loans will be lower as a result of a reduction in the Bank of Canada rate to seven per cent."

Bibles No Help in Biafra

I almost lost control of my car on the expressway the other day. I was driving along, listening to the radio and waiting for the weather report...when an announcer delivered a "public service" message.

It was sponsored by a group called — are you ready? — "Bibles for Biafra." It seems that during the recent Nigeria - Biafra hostilities, dozens of the Bibles had been bombed into oblivion, and there is a pressing need for the Lord's Word in that part of the world.

How can the human race possibly hope to survive when we are so full of absurd and fatal contradictions?

Here is the end of a bloody war, in which hundreds of thousands of people were killed, maimed, starved and rendered homeless — and the call goes out for more Bibles to replace the ones that were blown to bits!

What about the human beings who were blown to bits, through no fault of their own? What about a bitter, nationalistic rivalry that ignored and flouted every lesson in the Bible?

If religion means anything, it means trusting our neighbor (and enemy) better than he deserves. Nowhere in the Bible are we commanded to turn the other howitzer.

Nothing has done organized religion more damage — in the eyes of thinking people and especially of youth — than its acquiescence in the act of war.

Nothing violates the whole spirit of Christianity more than the way in which we preach the Bible when it is convenient, and slide it into the drawer when we pick up our guns at regularly recurring intervals.

What have we learned from it? Only to mouth pious platitudes that make us feel comfortable and "religious" — until we are ready to turn on our neighbor and transform him into our enemy.

If the Bible were really understood — in the fullness of its eschatology — then the idolatry of nationalism would be abolished, the false god of the state would no longer be worshipped. And though people might continue to remain "aggressive" as individuals, this aggressiveness would no longer be commandeered by political leaders seeking their own power and glory under the guise of "patriotism."

Bibles are the last thing needed in Biafra and Nigeria, or anywhere else, if they continue to be used as they have been in the past — to give religious sanction to the flagrantly irreligious act of war, to render unto Caesar the life that belongs only to God.

We are not good enough for the Bible yet, I doubt if we are good enough for any religion yet, except as a mask to hide our malefactions.

Government Agrees to Set Guidelines for Water Standards

OTTAWA (CP) — The government produced a concession for proponents of national water quality standards Thursday as the Canada Water Act received third and final reading in the Commons.

Also passed was an amendment to the Territorial Seas and Fishing Zones Act extending Canada's territorial limits to 12 miles from three and authorizing cabinet to establish fishing zones for exclusive Canadian use. The bills now go to the Senate.

Bud Orange (L—Northwest Territories), who guided the water bill through Commons debate, announced that the government will provide a set of "guidelines" within regulations for water standards, to be used by federal-provincial water quality management agencies to be set up under the act.

Before Thursday the government had made no mention of the possibility of such federal regulations.

The bill itself, designed to fight water pollution through federal-provincial co-operation, says the local joint agencies to be set up under the act will set quality standards.

Opposition attempts to include provision for national water standards, to be categorized by the federal government on the basis of the nature and use of particular water bodies, had been rejected by the government.

But Thursday Mr. Orange said that each management agency should ensure "optional standards" for waters under its jurisdiction, based upon the "mix of uses and physical nature of the waters."

"We would expect that identical rivers with the same mix of uses would have equal standards."

The government's regulatory "guidelines" would help ensure that.

The bill will subject industries and municipalities found guilty of water pollution in excess of designated standards to $5,000-a-day fines.

The bill to amend the Territorial Seas and Fishing Zones Act, as well as increasing Canada's territorial limits to 12 miles from three, would also empower the government to designate exclusive Canadian fishing zones in waters considered to be in need of conservation protection.

Waters considered most likely to be so designated include the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Bay of Fundy on the East Coast and the West Coast fishing grounds in Hecate Straight, Queen Charlotte Sound and Dixon Strait.

Under the bill the government could ban foreign fleets from such waters.

The amendment received its stiffest opposition from Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova), who said Canada can't even enforce its current fishing area regulations.

Any such legislation, he said, should be preceded by international agreement.

Another proposed anti-pollution bill made headway in addition to the water bill.

The proposed Arctic waters act, which would give Canada jurisdiction over pollution control within 100 nautical miles of the Canadian Arctic coast, was concurred in at report stage—the last step before third reading.

The two bills, combined with the proposed northern inland waters act plus upcoming amendments to the Fisheries Act and the Canada Shipping Act, constitute the federal government's current initiative against water pollution.

Mr. Orange indicated that legislative efforts will begin next session against air and soil pollution, but suggested those efforts will be more difficult.

The government had not extended the water bill to other forms of pollution because of the "doubtful constitutional validity" of attempting to do so.

The water bill itself has been declared unconstitutional by the Ontario government, but Prime Minister John Roberts has said he isn't looking for a fight over the issue.

Today in the House the NDP was scheduled to move a motion criticizing the government's agricultural policies.

The sitting will be spent debating the motion which, under House rules, does not come to a vote.

Robarts Says Floating Dollar Harms Farming

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's farming and lumber industries will suffer because the Canadian government this week let the dollar float freely on the world market, Premier Robarts told the legislature Thursday.

Removal of the fixed exchange rate on the dollar could be anti-inflationary, the premier said, but farming and lumbering will be hard hit because of competition in world markets.

Paul Yakabuski (PC—Renfrew South) said when the dollar was pegged at 92.5 cents in 1962, it saved the lumber industry in eastern Ontario.

The premier said farmers will be especially affected by the floating dollar as they both buy and sell on the world market.

Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay) asked the premier if he was aware that Lakeshore Gold Mines at Geraldton, had announced it will close at the end of June because of a reduction in United States gold prices due to the Canadian dollar revaluation.

"This is the type of thing that can happen," Mr. Robarts said.

These gold mines were depleting their resources rapidly and the freed Canadian dollar might "just be the straw that breaks the camel's back."

He was asked by NDP Leader Donald MacDonald for his government's reaction to suggestions that wage increases beyond five per cent be taxed or confiscated.

"I'd find that a bit repugnant," the premier said.

Mr. Robarts said he met this week with John Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, during which "we discussed certain proposals."

He declined to elaborate except to say some proposals probably would be presented as federal policy at a weekend meeting of the provincial treasurers in Winnipeg.

In other business:

—The premier and two cabinet ministers assured the house that provincial aid is available to victims of floods this week in Northern Ontario. Provincial legislation provides for formation of a committee to assess damage and report to the government and local fund-raising projects. The province matches sums raised for relief by the municipality.

—While the legislature discussed a bill to amend the Mining Act, Mines Minister Allan Lawrence said he has no faith that management or labor can be trusted to set up minimum safety standards in the province's mining industry.

The act—a total rewrite of safety regulations for the industry—sets out clearly that management is to be held solely responsible for safety on the job. Too often in the past, the minister said, management has blamed accidents on the fact a worker was new on the job.

—In a report tabled by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart, a committee responsible for the Ontario legal aid plan suggested the government take a second look at the expense of providing divorce lawyers for needy people.

The legal aid plan finances almost half the divorce actions in Ontario, the committee said. If all cases went to trial this could cost $2,250,000 a year, now third of the total cost of the plan which is paid for by taxes.

New Legion President Not Worried About Future

OTTAWA (CP) — Armed with a Canadian president, the Royal Canadian Legion ends its 23rd national convention today with some of the old soldiers warily eyeing the future for the 300,000-strong veterans' organization.

The new president, Montreal Judge J. Edmond Roche said after his acclamation election that he is not preoccupied with the long-term Legion future placed in doubt by membership deaths.

But others among the 1,800 delegates were not of the same mind. Some found that prospect unacceptable and believe the Legion should be kept alive even after the last war veteran is gone.

"In 10 years time, the picture will be clearer and then perhaps some action will be indicated," the judge said.

Judge Roche, the Ottawa-born son of an Irish-extraction father and a French-Canadian mother will preside over the Legion until the next convention, in 1972 likely in St. John's, Nfld.

He is the 19th Legion president and the third from Quebec.

His vice-president—there's only one under the new system—and possible successor in 1972 is Robert Sinellie of Winnipeg, who defeated Mike Adams of Toronto for the job.

Executive officers are Dave Hunter of Vancouver, Ed Coley of Edmonton, Robert McChesney of Kirkland Lake, Ont., and James Pagan of St. John's, Nfld.

The convention passed resolutions demanding the deportation of "any so-called students" from other countries "found guilty of rioting or any other type of violence" in Canada and refusal of admission to Canada of any known agitators planning to "foment riots and violence."

Trudeau Says Indian Policy May Be Naive But Is Honest

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau conceded Thursday that the government might have been naive in some of the proposals in its new Indian policy placed before Parliament a year ago.

But the government had made an honest attempt to solve the problems that were at least 100 years old and which the entire Canadian public wants solved he said.

Mr. Trudeau was replying to a brief from the Alberta Indian Association that rejects the government policy outright and sets out alternative proposals.

About 200 Indians gathered in the railway committee room of the Parliament Buildings where Mr. Trudeau and 14 members of his cabinet were presented with the Alberta counter-proposals.

Mr. Trudeau took sharp exception to parts of the brief that accuse the government of bad faith or attempting to mislead the Indian people.

"You can say we are ignorant, dumb or stupid but don't say we're dishonest or trying to mislead," said the prime minister.

There was no way negotiations between the government and Indians would have a chance to succeed without mutual trust he said.

Mr. Trudeau obviously won friends from his Indian audience. Several times in a speech lasting about 15 minutes he was interrupted by applause.

But an Indian spokesman, David Courchene of Manitoba said later before the Commons Indian affairs committee he would wait for government action. That would mean more than words.

Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien told the delegation that the government policy paper was merely a series of proposals. He welcomed the Alberta suggestions and said he looked to receiving other briefs from Indians in the other provinces.

The government white paper proposed among other things, to turn over control of Indian lands to the Indians and have Indians receive education and other services from the provinces the same as other Canadians. The Indian Act would be repealed and the Indian affairs branch closed in stages.

Cigarette Advertising Will Eventually Cease

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is committed to the control and eventual elimination of cigarette advertising and promotion, Informants said Thursday.

But sharp differences are emerging among cabinet ministers over proposals that legal limits be set on the tar and nicotine content of each cigarette.

The extent of the government commitment to act against advertising and promotion is measured by Canada's vote last month in favor of such a step at the assembly of the World Health Organization.

The Canadian vote was decided well ahead of the W.H.O. meeting.

Mr. Munro said in the Commons Thursday that legislation, if any, on advertising controls will not be placed before Parliament until the fall.

Postmen Claim Ottawa Tries to Force Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's postmen complained Friday night that the federal government is trying to force them into a national strike they don't want.

"They want to get us onto the street and keep us there," Roger Decarie and William Houle, co-chairmen of the Council of Postal Unions, said in a statement sent by telex to all 27,000 postal workers.

"They figure they can starve our men and our families into capitulating. . . . The government has calculated such a national strike would turn the people against their postmen."

The council which has been conducting 24-hour rotating mail strikes across the country since early last week in an attempt to force a contract settlement, said union negotiators "are doing their utmost not to close down the entire post office."

Earlier Friday, Cecil Harper chief negotiator for the Treasury Board, the government paymaster, called a temporary halt to bargaining, telling the postal leaders to return next week with a new package proposal on the key wage and job security issues.

Mr. Harper said he wants "to come to grips in a meaningful and realistic way" with the main issues. He suggested the unions make up their package demand for next Tuesday.

Late Friday union leaders also said they had not yet decided how to respond to Mr. Harper's demand. The unions do not want to make up a package proposal, preferring to deal with the items one-by-one.

Communists Retreat Toward Famous Ruins

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian tanks and infantry blunted a heavy Communist attack today on the provincial capital of Siem Reap, four miles south of the ancient Cambodian capital of Angkor Wat.

A military source said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were withdrawing toward Angkor Wat, the site of historic ruins from the ancient Cambodian empire.

The fighting centred around the provincial airport two miles northwest of Siem Reap. The infantry said Communist forces had been cleared from the airport, but that he did not know whether it had been reopened. It was closed down after sporadic fighting Friday.

Some sources said Siem Reap is defended by a large Cambodian force and that the attack apparently was aimed partly at embarrassing the Phnom Penh government than at capturing the territory.

Provinces Pledge Aid

Pay Restraint Plan Based on Pressure

No New Legislation Proposed by Benson

By CARL MOLLINS

WINNIPEG (CP) — An official program of pay restraint, introduced by Ottawa against strenuous protests from organized labor, has received initial promises of enforcement help from most provinces.

Most provinces, on the other hand, have pledges of additional cash from a federal government which has been stingy about sharing its tax wealth for the last two years.

Both agreements emerged Friday from a federal-provincial finance conference that turned today to discussion of setting agreed limits on costs of programs whose expenses are shared by Ottawa and the provinces—medical and hospital care and post-secondary education.

The federally-backed pay-restraint program which aims to hold most pay increases to an upper limit of six per cent initially, was presented in the name of John Young, chairman of the 11-month-old prices and incomes commission.

The commission, an instrument of the Trudeau government against inflation, has achieved a measure of success in restraining price increases.

Efforts to win the co-operation of labor in a program of voluntary pay restraint were spurned.

Federal Finance Minister E. J. Benson said the negative attitude towards voluntary pay restraints expressed at the annual meeting of the Canadian Labor Congress last month in Edmonton made it clear there was no hope of co-operation.

So the federal government would go ahead with a plan to try to limit pay increases as a measure to reduce the cost push behind price inflation.

No back-up legislation is planned immediately, Mr. Benson said.

Compliance pressures will range from published admonitions about violations from the prices commission through direct toughness in pay talks with governmental employees to arm-twisting and the threat of sanctions against employers.

Mr. Benson observed that the governments wield hefty purchasing powers. But orders could be withdrawn from a company that settled with its employees for increases above the guide limit.

While the response of provincial ministers was generally favorable labor's reaction was immediately hostile.

"Guidelines have never worked and never will work" said Jean Beaudry executive vice-president of the CLC who came to the Manitoba legislative building, the conference site, from a meeting of the Manitoba Labor Federation.

"It is evident that the government has declared open war against labor. . . . Our people don't take it lying down."

The target limit of six per cent for pay-increase settlements effective in the first year could be scaled down for increases coming into force in the next two years.

The guide limit could be dropped to five per cent, then four per cent if a slowdown in price inflation takes place as Ottawa hopes.

The initial six-per-cent limit is based on a combination of an annual national rate of increase in productive efficiency of between 3½ and three per cent plus a projected inflation rate of three to 3½ per cent.

Negotiated advances in fringe benefits would be considered as part of a pay increase generally but improvements in sickness and accidents benefits would not be counted in measuring pay raises against the guide.

Also exempt would be increases awarded workers whose present pay is less than $2 an hour or $350 a month.

Other exceptions could include an employer who could meet limit without bigger pay increases he would be unable to attract or maintain an adequate workforce.

Unions could win approval for settlements above the guide limit by agreeing to abandon any contracted work patterns that tend to limit productive efficiency. They would have to show the result would bring higher-than-usual increases in productivity to win commission approval.

Responsibility for the success or failure of the program—as with the price-restraint plan arranged with business last February—was left with Dr. Young rather than the Trudeau administration.

However Dr. Young said his commission "has no power" and compliance would depend on willingness of governments to back up the plan with pressure.

In some recent price reviews, federal government officials have been called in to put muscle behind commission requests for restraint.

Provincial reactions ranged from enthusiastic to the part of Saskatchewan and Quebec to

No Spy Vessel Sunk

'...and so we have decided to further release the brakes on the economy!'

TOKYO — North Korea claims it sank a "heavily-armed" United States spy ship in the Yellow Sea, but the U.S. Navy has denied it had any ships operating in the area.

South Korea announced Friday that one of its vessels, on a routine mission to prevent South Korean fishing boats from straying north of the border was attacked by two North Korean patrol boats and towed off toward the north. North Korea issued its claim later in the day and there was speculation the same incident was involved.

North Korea's official Korean Central news agency said an American spy ship "intruded deep into the coastal waters" about 11:30 p.m. Friday. "Officers and men of the navy of the Korean People's army . . . instantly sent to the bottom of the sea the enemy's armed spy ship."

The U.S. Navy said in a statement issued in Washington: "The U.S. Navy had no ships of any kind operating in that area."

The North Korean dispatch said the ship was sunk off Haeju about 50 miles south of Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

The South Korean defence ministry said its ship was accosted by two North Korean vessels just south of the seaward extension of the demilitarized zone about 70 miles west of the South Korean capital of Seoul.

A South Korean military spokesman called the seizure a "premeditated attack." There was no word on the condition of the crew.

But the English-language Korea Times reported without attribution that it was believed the South Korean craft had heavy damage and that there were casualties among the crew.

Dief Hits Recognition Of Peking

TAIPEI (Reuters) — Officials of the Asian Anti-Communist League quoted former prime minister John Diefenbaker today as saying most Canadians do not favor recognizing Communist China.

Diefenbaker arrived in Taipei Friday for a week-long visit as the guest of the Nationalist Chinese government to collect first-hand information on Taiwan for a report to the House of Commons.

The 75-year-old former Conservative leader did not elaborate on the kind of information he was seeking.

Diefenbaker called today on Formosan Defence Minister Huang Chieh and Ku Kheng-kang, president of the Asian Anti-Communist League.

League officials said he told Ku that "Canadians as a whole are not in favor of recognition of Peking."

44 Stranded Canadians Receive Tickets Home

HONG KONG (AP) — Forty-four Canadians stranded in Hong Kong when their group travel plans collapsed this week breathed sighs of relief today after all received tickets to fly home Tuesday.

The Canadians, who are all from Quebec and include French-language television personalities Gerard Vermette and Serge Laprade are on a tour which was scheduled to take them from Montreal to Paris, Cairo, Bangkok, Tokyo Hong Kong, Cairo, then Paris again and back to Montreal.

Vermette said a group of 61 Canadians left Montreal May 13 and split into two groups of 44 and 17 in Cairo a few days later. The tour of the bigger group went smoothly until they arrived at Kai Tak airport last Tuesday to leave Hong Kong for Cairo.

Vermette said: "The representative of United Arab Airlines, with whom we were flying on all legs except between Montreal and Paris, said he had received instructions from his office in Paris not to let us continue the flight until he got money for our trip. They wanted $5,000 U.S.

"Everybody in the group already had paid the full fare of $1,500 Canadian."

Vermette said they had difficulty finding hotel accommodation for their prolonged stay here and had to accept rooms in a low-priced hotel in Kowloon, on the mainland opposite Hong Kong island. He said the hotel was infested with rats but the group has since moved into a cleaner guest house.

The group sought assistance from the Canadian government trade commission here and from Canadian Pacific Airlines. The airline sent cables to relatives and friends in Canada who arranged for tickets for all members of the group.

Belleville Calling

City Now Has Its Own BBC

Unlike the BBC which comes to mind, Belleville's BBC is a new committee recently formed by the chamber of commerce.

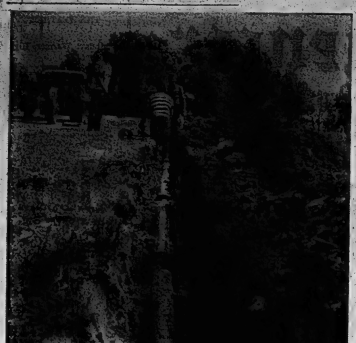
At a luncheon meeting yesterday, Jonathan Brewster's representative, Jack Trembley took over the chairmanship of the new committee.

Called the Belleville booster committee, its aims and objectives will be the promotion of the city and its people.

The wheels of progress for the new committee were put into motion as plans of action were proposed. Last year's Belleville Week booster buttons will be used as the symbol for the committee and plans are being made to distribute these to visitors throughout the summer.

One of this summer's greatest boosters, which the committee is hoping to make full use of is the Tommy Hunter radio program to be broadcast for seven weeks from the Belleville Arena.

Frank C. Murray, president of the chamber, and manager of radio station CJBQ, explained that following a talk the other day with the TV-Radio personality, Mr. Hunter expressed a desire to promote Belleville on every program.



"He asked us for little pieces of information about the city and expressed the hope that Mayor J. Russell Scott could be with him on the first show while he will be a great opportunity to make the name of Belleville heard all across Canada," he explained.

Among the many proposals discussed by members, was one to distribute a package containing information about Belleville, samples from local industry and business, city maps, and lists of upcoming events.

With the many special events planned for the summer, it was proposed that a list of these events and places of interest be distributed to all the hotels and motels throughout the district to enable visitors to pass a pleasant time in Belleville.

As yet in its early stages, the BBC has nothing firm planned, but at meetings to be held in the near future, they will have a large number of suggestions to act upon.

In the meantime the chamber urges all community organizations, clubs and businesses to inform it of special events which could possibly be included in the proposed special events bulletins.

strongly reserved from Manitoba and no comment from British Columbia.

In addition, Ottawa announced it would make available the $150,000,000 left in the kitty of an abolished federal program to pay construction costs of technical and vocational schools.

The money could be used for other purposes immediately, as long as the provinces pledged to spend an equal amount on schools sometime in the next five years.

Quebec's Robert Bourassa, provincial finance minister, welcomed his new administration would be richer by about $150,000,000 including a specially-negotiated $20,000,000 for "training young delinquents."

Mr. Benson did some subtractions and sums that came out to a federal budget, surplus of $150,000,000 for the fiscal year instead of the $250,000,000 projected in March.

Behind all the unusual air of eager co-operation, there were harsh feelings about provincial responses to the federal tax change proposals first published last November.

Federal officials were shaken by Ontario's surprise release of what amounted to a rival white paper on tax reform. Despite regular consultations with Ontario counterparts about taxes, federal officials said they had not expected such a sweeping counter-flow.

Alberta condemned the federal proposals outright in a document three of four times the length of the original federal paper.

Quebec also entered a series of "suggestions" for radical changes in basic features of the federal white paper.

The provincial governments were clearly alarmed at the idea that Ottawa's white paper is a way of reserving to itself most future growth in total tax revenue.

With dominant spending power the federal government thus would guarantee its constitutional supremacy in Confederation.

NOISE CAN SERIOUSLY AFFECT YOUR HEARING
The decibel measures the smallest amount of sound which the human ear can distinguish. According to the American Medical Association, anyone subjected to more than a couple of hours per day of noise which is in excess of 84 decibels should use an ear protection device.
But, even a lawn mower can cause a temporary loss of earing, as well as the electric amplifier used by so many teen-age musical groups. Recent studies show that 120 decibels or more are common with amplified rock music. The first sign of hearing loss is the high pitched sounds. The next telltale sign is complaining about the loss of hearing of TV or a stereo. If you suspect a loss of hearing have your doctor give you a hearing test.

Mosquitoes, Beetles Lead Sheltered Life

No one knows better than the farmer the damage caused yearly by insects.

Insects annually reduce the crop potentials by devouring the foliage and raising their young on the plants who in turn destroy valuable food.

In a constant fight, scientists and researchers are attempting to discover proper means of controlling pests.

Laboratories and field study stations have been set up in various centres.

Belleville's Government of Canada Research Branch of the Research Institute is constantly developing and researching methods of pest control that are not hazardous, to man and the environment.

By confining studies to the laboratory, the researchers can isolate species and make detailed tests on both wild and cultivated insects. These specimens are carefully subjected to tests to determine the ecology and behavior patterns of both beneficial and harmful species. When tests are completed at the institute, the researchers transfer their studies to the field.

In November of 1943, the 83-acre Sydney Field Station was established following the purchase of the land from James Holt of Tweed. The station is located in a heavily wooded section of land on the seventh concession.

Over the years, more than 20 acres have been cultivated for the study of soil and garden crop insects. Reforestation and the introduction of special crops was undertaken to both induce insects to approach the area for collection and introduce species to help control certain pests.

One important item stressed by Bernard C. Smith whose department is concerned with the control of insects directly related to crop improvement studies, is that before control-ling pests it must be determined whether the insect should be controlled.

"That is, by removing a certain insect, will that affect the ecology in the area adversely or will it be beneficial?" he said.

"The answer is very important, for by making the wrong decision you could upset the whole balance of nature."

Synthetic foods and non-persistent non-toxic chemicals are used to manipulate pests and insect predators of pests.

The Institute sends out teams even before the snows are gone and into the late fall. Specimens are gathered, placed in special cages and returned to the labratory for study.

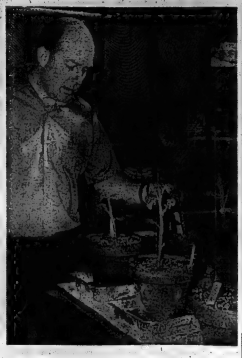
One such study is being undertaken by Dr. Charles Doon-team of summer students, gathers spiders from a special field planted with a variety of crops. By a combination of automatic trap traps and hand collection he can determine the population trends and the movements of the more than 100 species taken from the field.

A current problem under study is the reduction of potato beetle damage and the discovery of chemicals that act as attractants, repellents, feeding arrestants, and insecticides.

This year, formulations including silica and non-persistent chemical additives will be tested t control the potato beetle in experimental plots at the field station. The idea behind the study is to repel or kill the pest or to make the foliage of the potato unsuitable as food.

One of the most successful attractants which has been tested is an extract from the dandelion plant. Also on the same basis, extracts of juniper, cherry, have been tested on the cabbage looper and the lady bug. The attractant of dandelion extract has been found to be 100 per cent successful in inducing the lady bug female to lay her eggs on specially treated surfaces.

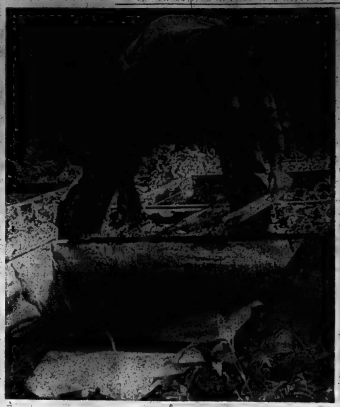
With these successes, work is in progress to determine if this method can be used on corn to concentrate predators of the corn leaf aphid and reduce the damage it causes.



One study being conducted at the station on this same basis, is the use of capric acid as an attractant for mosquitoes.

When the capric acid was introduced to the artificial or natural pools, the mosquito larvae died within three days after treatment and the pools acted as a repellent. After this period, the pools gradually lost their repellency and were successful receptacles for mosquito eggs.

Following treatment with acid, the pods were found to either not attract the females or did so only after a relatively long time. It was found that a certain bacteria was lacking but after introducing a small quantity of water from an attractive pool, the treated pools became exceptionally attractive.



One method of controlling the insect, found to be better in some cases than insecticides, is sterilization. By sterilizing and releasing the mosquitoes back into their environment and constantly collecting more specimens, active control can result.

But researcher Murray Mave explained that "an isolated case of control will have very little effect on the insect population and it would be effective only if widespread control was enforced."

Successful Results

Bernard C. Smith of the Research Institute indicates a potato plant which has been ravaged by potato beetles in the institute's green house. The plant in the foreground has a large amount of foliage, indicating a successful repellent dust. The next stage will be tests in the field.

He Raises Mosquitoes

Russ Kempster of the Research Institute, Belleville, prepares one of the artificial mosquito pools used at the institute's Sydney Field Station. Additives to the water will act first as a repellent, and later as fertile matter for the raising of mosquitoes for laboratory studies. More cultures can be gathered from these pools than in the nature pools located at the station.

Closer to Solving the Problem

Jennifer Black, a Queen's University student working for her second year at the Research Institute and Reg. R. Williams, a researcher, examine potato beetle egg clusters at the Sydney Field Station. Mr. Williams is conducting experiments to determine the best possible substance to use to repel the beetle from destroying a certain percentage of the annual crops.

Hercules and Five Caribous Leave Trenton for Peru

TRENTON — A Hercules transport lifted out from CFB Trenton today — wrapping up the despatch of Canada's mercy mission commitment to Peru's earthquake disaster victims.

The big transport flew in the wake of a fleet of Caribou aircraft placed at the disposal of Peruvian authorities by the Canadian government.

The first Caribou left the base here at 6 p.m. last night.

The other four left at one-hour intervals from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. today.

Base commander Col. H. A. Carswell said the Caribou had been chosen for the mission because of their short take-off and landing capabilities.

Their unique features will give relief teams access to remote areas in the stricken Peruvian countryside.

In all, a total of 70 armed forces personnel are involved in the Canadian air mission, under the command of LI-Col. W. I. Butchart, commander of 424 Transport and Rescue squadron here.

The Caribous will take two or three days to complete the flight, the last arriving in Lima late Monday.

The Hercules will be the supply ship for the fleet, carrying ground crew and spare parts.

Our dollar and our economy face challenging times. How we respond now as Canadians can make an important difference to our future. Support Canadian manufacturers and Canadian workers by shopping for the products they make and the services they offer. Help create new and better jobs.

Be label conscious; when price and quality compare shop Canadian. You have an investment in Canada and every dollar you spend shopping Canadian helps protect it... and pays big dividends. Many of these dividends are already obvious here in Ontario. Our wages have doubled since 1957 and our Gross Provincial Product, now $32.3 billion, has doubled in only a decade.

To keep Ontario and Canada growing and to keep 100,000 new jobs coming each year we need a strong economy. Every dollar you spend on Canadian products makes us a little stronger. When you shop Canadian your money keeps working.

And so do you.

Put your money where your job is.

Shop Canadian.

The Noise Thing

You know how it is with noise — in the city one gets accustomed to it, can even tolerate it. Cars, sirens, pneumatic drills, the ceaseless hum of traffic, you may become hard deaf but it is all relatively painless. Take a city dweller out to the poet's pebbles woods or lonely shore, to the "society where none intruder" and the poor chap would feel uneasy.

Get them early though, like the youngsters of Queen Victoria School in their recent rounds of Prince Edward County and they acquire an appreciation of quietness that will last them all their lives and make them at home either in town or country.

But even in the country things are not what they were, and that same Prince Edward County is currently suffering noisy intrusions into what once was a region of almost complete peace and quiet.

For one thing there are the big jets from CFB Trenton, the subject recently of complaints by Bay-ares residents. Steps are being taken, according to the base commander, to reduce engine noise and this is all to the good.

Another source of irritation from the country resident's standpoint is noise on the ground, and it is now a year-round business with snowmobiles in winter and motorcycles in summer. Recently we drew attention to an invasion of The Outlet provincial park area by close to two dozen motorcyclists. We noticed a police patrol the following week and that, together with the increased number of visitors, clearly discouraged a repetition of the obstruction and speeding that took place on the earlier occasion.

Now we find something of the same sort of atmosphere on the Old Picton Road. Near where children play on the roadside, and with animals grazing (we were going to say "contentedly," but we wonder, for they are sensitive to noise too), evenings find motorcyclists roaring along the straight stretches across the marsh and up the hill and beyond, occasionally stopping to circle in the middle of the road and rev their throttles.

As with The Outlet, public thoroughfares and areas of population are not drag strips and it should be the responsibility of the county authorities and the provincial police to ensure that they do not get that way.

Need for Balance

The pattern of anti-war protests in these days of public demonstrations and dissent reflects a dangerous degree of one-sidedness — of anti-Americanism on the one hand, while on the other ignoring the fact that under Soviet imperialism millions of people do not even have the right to express their views openly let alone criticize the political system.

We have been reminded of this by a resolution of the Czechoslovak National Association of Canada passed at its recent meeting in Winnipeg. Noting that the Soviet occupation forces have unrestricted power over the people of Czechoslovakia, that the Brezhnev doctrine legalizes Soviet intervention in the internal affairs of socialist countries, and referring to communist pressure in other parts of the world, the resolution continues:

"We notice that part of the public reacts with the same slogans and accusations of U.S. imperialism while the occupation of Czechoslovakia by the Soviets does not draw similar accusations or reactions. This seems to indicate that these repeated protests are not a spontaneous reaction to endangered democratic principles or ideals but planned actions on the part of several groups whose real aim is the disruption of democratic society."

This initiative of the Czech association, which has represented Czechs, Slovaks and Ruthenians in Canada for more than 30 years is eloquent of the fact there are thousands of exiles in this country from lands under Soviet domination. These people are not fooled by demonstrations led in many instances by young people with no personal memories of the horrors of the last war, and which completely ignore the subjugation of freedom in the Soviet satellite countries.

Living Space

The German word for "living space," which we managed to spell the other day in such a way as to mean "loving space," is lebensraum. We had been talking about loitering by both teenagers and adults on Front Street, and the need for living space, because store owners were concerned, and there was a letter from a teenager on the subject. Anyway, come to think of it, and without meaning to compound our error or be facetious if not unwillingly hilarious, what the world needs now — as the song says — "is love sweet love." A need for recognition, concern, love, communication, call it what you will, is what leads to these downtown get-togethers.

Manitoba MP Blasts 'Agents of Social Destruction'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Immigration Minister MacEachen, one of the groups and pillars of permissiveness in the liberal Trudeau Cabinet, never in the world intended to do it.

But like a match to a cannon-cracker, he has touched off an explosion in one of the unlikeliest corners of the Commons.

It came with a loud and scary oratorical blast from the back-bench where quietly and unobtrusively slouches Dr. Gordon Ritchie, Conservative MP for Manitoba's Dauphin, scrunched down, almost uncoiled in his leather-padded chair.

The Parliamentary Guide, that "Who's Who of the House of Commons," gives you as good a clue as any what to expect of Dr. Ritchie.

A few MPs use a whole page, some fill a half page, and most go at least a third of a page in telling who they are and what they have done.

Gordon Ritchie uses two lines, 39 words — most of them abbreviated — in one sentence to tell his political life story.

Here it is:

"Ritchie, Gordon (Dauphin), First elected 8 H. of C. g. e. 1958. Party pol: P. C. Address: PO Box 70, Dauphin, Man."

Biographies in the Parliamentary guide just do not come any shorter than that.

The cataloguing of his Commons speeches in the running nine-month index of Hansard is just about as succinct.

It lists some less wordage on such Manitoba interests as Flax and Rapeseed, Agricultural Situation, Acreage Reduction, Lift Program, and a four-page entry on Grain.

Then Allan MacEachen, in rejecting Edmonton Conservative MP Steve Paproski's protests against the government allowing such known revolutionaries as Danny (The Red) Cohn-Carmichael, Abbey Hoffman, Black Panthers and assorted American campus Communists free run of the country, said this:

"As Immigration Minister I do not intend taking the description of 'troublemaker' as a basis for preventing admission to Canada."

That was it, the match to the cannon-cracker.

Gordon Ritchie exploded with as hot a blast as this House has ever heard against radicals and revolutionaries, both domestic and imported.

"Somebody up there high in the power structure must love them," he cried. "to coddle and pamper them the way they do."

Then, hidden from the top, he brought in a bill of complaint, accusing the government of "feeding another 2 million to that Trojan Horse of violence, subversion and anarchy, the Company of Young Canadians."

He appended the indictment with charges against the CBC, the National Film Board, the Justice Department, the Immigration Service and many other federal agencies.

He skewered them all on the point of being "not on the agents of social destruction," and pronouncement that the laws by which the taxpayers live have work no longer should apply to what he defined as "the hardcore band of world revolutionaries."

The CBC, charged Dr. Ritchie "takes pride in its anti-order-and-justice attitudes, and its wildly one-sided anti-American propaganda."

And the Film Board, he almost laughed in outrage, had committed the "ultimate irony of making Canadian taxpayers pay the shot for making a motion picture here out of Abbey Hoffman, the professional revolutionary."

As a blazingly angry speech, the Commons has heard nothing like it. And it was hot enough to scorch some members of the Cabinet who went around pleading in their guilt, "don't look at me. I'm not one of them."

Prime Minister Trudeau and his technocratic aide, Immerist Dr. Ritchie, are "so occupied in their last round of task forces and white Papers they are hopelessly out of sight of reality.

"Wandering around in an administrative wasteland they have left us all with more poverty, more inflation, more extravagant spending and less real national development than ever before."

Unconcerned with reality, spending and pampering career radicals" the government, he warned, "has left over-taxed and over-governed Canadians unprotected against the winds of revolution."

Dr. Gordon Ritchie, with his sparse two lines in the Parliamentary Guide, may be a man of few words, but he can make every one count.

Focus on Footwear

It looks air-cooled — maybe for summer wear — this natty piece of footwear, seen along with the comely young woman, at the 29th European shoe exhibition in Dusseldorf. Shoes made of creased patent leather were reported in high demand and other favored materials were imitation crocodile, snake and lizard skin. German exhibitors claimed a breakthrough with home-designed products influencing international trends for the first time.

A Warning for Canada

Black Panther Loud Mouths

Letter to Toronto Telegram

No, Canadians are not being cuckolded by Americans on the issue of Black Panther literature, as Ron Haggart wrote May 28. On the contrary, I think we are being well educated by their response.

Mr. Haggart stated: "Treason and sedition in the Black Panther newspaper is not reason or sedition in Canada." I disagree, for I think that in this case, it is.

A few months ago, visiting Black Panther headquarters in your newspaper as having expressed the threat to burn Malton Airport installations because their baggage was delayed by Customs and Immigration.

A few months later, at the Black Writers conference in Montreal, I think it was Stokely Carmichael who openly warned Canadians to expect the same violence his decrines will inflict upon Americans, should his revolution prevail.

I cannot remember any comment from Mr. Haggart on either of these incidents, which I consider open threats, not only against my family but also against the social structure of this country. In one word, sedition.

It is obvious to me and I am sure to many others, that the Black Panther philosophy is just as hostile to and contemptuous of the Canadian society as it is to the Americans.

Americans have taken steps to protect their society. Their methods are their concern. We have our quota of violent local lunatics to contend with. So if our lawmakers see fit to protect our society by denying the entry of certain literature that encourages or incites these violent elements to further treason-like movements, then it is our duty as responsible men to respect and apply such lawful methods.

South Africa's Olympic Ouster

Christian Science Monitor

Expulsion of South Africa from the International Olympic Committee was a sobering event. IOC members had to weigh in the balance several major factors.

First, there was the matter of IOC rules. The Olympic charter states that "no discrimination is allowed against any country or person on grounds of race, religion, or political affiliation." South Africa does not allow its black and whites to mix in sports competition. Thus it was in violation of the IOC race provision.

There were those who may have asked why the charter clause should have been invoked on the race issue, against South Africa, but not the lack of political discrimination — say against those nations, chiefly Communist, which allow but one political party. Thus, like the old reasoning goes, It was not to protect the integrity of IOC rules, but the specific issue of race which prompted the expulsion.

Of course, this is a moment in which racial issues, with the issue of equality and freedom of movements among the races is foremost in the day. What may appear to South Africans as their being picked out for special sanctions, at a moment when they want very much to join the world's close ranks, is not this at all. Governments and other institutions within many of the nations which voted to oust South Africa are meeting analogous pressures at home.

Nonetheless the result of being singled out raises a second issue. With the sports sanctions that began with the expulsion of South Africa from Davis Cup competition last March, and which will likely continue in the areas of international tennis, field and swimming, they now serve to stiffen the backs (and strengthen the political handy) of those against interjection of South Africa's races?

It is a clear danger. This is all the more so because it was the threats of black Africa and other African nations to boycott the upcoming Olympics which tipped the IOC action against South Africa. The thought that this "success" might presage similar pressures from blacks within their own country must be unsettling.

Ideally international sports, like music, should be above and beyond the political and political tensions. But evidently, as the IOC decision reveals to South Africa's discomfort, sports are being made to reflect the reigning passion of world conscience and progress.

The "All Stars" defeated the "Pirates" in a fast game of baseball on St. Michael's school grounds. The "All Stars" showed plainly that they are the better team in the Midget League. With the star battery, Maranka and Scott, in form the "All Stars" are invincible. For the "Pirates", Saunders made the best hit of the game, a triple over centre field.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 6, 1970 . . .

The first military force ever assembled in history launched the invasion of Europe on a Normandy landings 26 years ago today — in 1944. Allied armies smashed their way onto the beaches as paratroopers secured a grip Further inland. The Allied foothold was assured by the second day of the invasion, giving them the necessary purchase to begin fighting through Nazi-occupied Europe to the eventual destruction of the German armies.

Second World War.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1945—six persons were arrested including a U.S. Navy reserve lieutenant on charges of conspiring to violate espionage statutes through theft of highly confidential documents; Syria welcomed French proposal for discussion of Middle East problems.

Canadian Move May Spur IMF to Greater Flexibility

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The floating Canadian dollar has set tongues wagging about the possibility that Canada may be setting a trend.

After all, if the dollar continue to maintain strength without an official exchange rate, would not other countries in similar positions be enticed to follow similar policies? .

Among central bankers, the thought brings a shiver of apprehension. The whole idea of Bretton Woods and the post-Second World War financial structure was to ensure currency stability with governments pledged to adhere to fixed exchange rates.

If all countries suddenly allowed their currencies to float free, world trade and investments would be in turmoil—a feast for the speculators.

Nevertheless, opinion also seems to be growing that fixed rates have their problems, especially when a leading country suddenly chops its rate to get a better competitive grips on world trade. A major devaluation can cause excessive damage in exchange inequilibria.

That is why consultation with the International Monetary Fund is considered so vital before major changes are undertaken. But sometimes a country considers its sovereignty challenged and decides its own course, no matter what the IMF may advise.

With the realization that a major devaluation can have a shattering impact on other countries, the IMF is considering whether there should be increased flexibility in rate revisions without the buildup of a crescendo of expectations on which speculaters tend to force revisions by exerting pressure on a country's currency.

A quick move to free a currency, such as the Canadian action, may have avoided the speculators' trap without causing any major upset in world markets. Some commentators suggested that Switzerland may have been persuaded to follow Canada's example but Switzerland has made no such move.

But freeing a currency is no simple matter. Competing countries tend to worry and sometimes threaten counter-action if they get no co-operation from partners. A government taking such a move must have great confidence in its ability to protect the currency should it get into trouble.

The Canadian action has caused some international concern but it also may help quicken IMF studies to find some way of making the existing exchange system more flexible.

Each year there is talk of possible revision, such as to widen the permissible margins of rate exchange fluctuations as a possible alternative to the need for frequent official rate changes.

The reasoning for change is strong but action, such as that taken by Canada, may convince more of the fund members that some revision is essential.

Indian Left-wingers Attempt To Reform Ancient Religion

BOMBAY (CP) — An Indian left-wing group has sparked a sectional controversy by trying to reform the ancient Hindu religion.

The Dravidian Progressive League, which swept to power in Tamil Nadu province in the 1967 general election, has ruled that Hindu temple cannot refuse entry to the followers of other religions like Christianity and Islam.

The order has not aside a ban which has been in force for more than 2,000 years.

Tamil Nadu in the far south of India is an area known for its exquisitely ornate temples, the dances of some of which are studded with gold coins and precious stones.

The province is also generally considered to be the citadel of Hindu orthodoxy.

Provincial Chief Minister Muthuvel Karunanidhi, a strong advocate of democratic socialism, says the Hindu religion must be "modernized and made to conform to the needs of an egalitarian society."

Though an atheist, Karunanidhi said he is not trying to undermine Hinduism. "All I am trying to do," he said, "is to end the dominance of the priestly castes which have acquired a vested interest in keeping the temples closed to outsiders."

Tamil Nadu officials say the move is also intended partly to enable Western tourists, who are mainly Christians, to study temple paintings and sculpture without any difficulty.

A leading British archeologist recently was refused entry into the famous Hindu temple at Srirangam.

Officials of UNESCO have also experienced similar problems in the past.

Hindu religious leaders have reacted sharply to the reformation drive. Pandit Vedaita Chari, a leading Hindu scholar, said the Dravidian party "is trying to destroy Hinduism under the guise of modernizing it."

Chari also said Hindu temples were not meant for attracting foreign tourists and "earning some quick foreign exchange."

Ex-priests Prefer Social Work, Teaching

LONDON (Reuters) — A dropout Roman Catholic priest in Britain now is working as a bread deliveryman. Two priests in Brazil resigned to marry nuns. A former bishop in Lima, Peru, married a policewoman.

More and more Roman Catholic priests are leaving the ministry, to marry or because of doctrinal disagreements.

Most take jobs in social service — because basically that is some, without diplomas or other qualifications, must be content with menial work and employment, says Pat Mundi Vitae, a semi-official Catholic information center in Brussels.

The biggest single reason priests resign seems to be discontent with the Vatican's policy on celibacy.

A study carried out on Pope Paul's instructions in October disclosed that at least 7,137 priests had asked for dispensation from the vows of celibacy during the previous six years. Latin America had the highest number of applicants for dispensation with 681, followed by France, 553, and North America, 455.

On the basis of past information, Pro Mundi Vitae estimated that on a global basis about one in 100 parish priests had to be freed from their celibacy vows.

For priests belonging to religious orders, the figure averages more than two in 100. The Dominican order is most susceptible, with nearly four in 100 applying.

About 71 per cent of the dispensations requested are granted.

Pat Mundi Vitae estimated that 145 Dutch priests have left the ministry since 1965, out of a total of 8,000. In Spain, the number was 259 out of 25,000 priests. In the United States, 1,171 out of 59,000 resigned over a 2½-year period. In Italy, 500 priests out of 42,000 have left since 1964.

The Brussels centre says priests are leaving the ministry at all ages, but particularly in the first five years after ordination.

Increasing numbers of churchmen are pressing for a reassessment of Catholic policy on celibacy, but Pope Paul has consistently maintained that priestly celibacy is an essential part of the faith.

Religion Attracts, Regardless of Age

TORONTO (CP) — While young people are not attending church as much as in the past, it is not because they have lost interest in religion, a leading United Church minister says.

"It's just that they have an impatience with denominational expressions," says Rev. Harold Bailey, secretary of the church's Board of Home Missions.

"Religion attracts, regardless of age. I find this. People want to talk about religion, but they'll clam up if they think you are selling them a bill of goods. You have to be honest."

Mr. Bailey says young people do not want to be tied to traditional lines; they do not want to be organized, and few want spiritual comfort.

This is why young people's groups in many churches have become passe, he says, adding that churches successful in getting to young people have used drop-in centres, coffee-house atmospheres and dances to attract teen-agers.

Mr. Bailey says he bases his beliefs on talks with students and the increasing enrolment of students in religious courses.

He says 15,000 took religious courses in 1968 and the number has grown to between 20,000 and 25,000 now. However, however the emphasis was not on doctrine.

"They are not taking the classical studies in theology, but rather the meaning of life. And they are not just interested in the Christian religion. They want to know about behavior motivation generally."

Ten Commandments Deal with Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada has drawn up a modern list of 10 commandments, concerning pollution instead of morality.

Published in The Canadian Churchman, the publication of the Anglican Church, they are:

I. When you accumulate too many coat hangers, don't throw them away but return them to the cleaners. Boycott a cleaner who will not accept them.

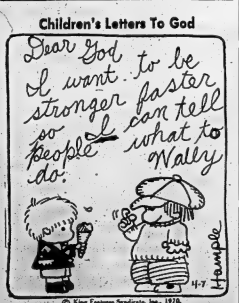
II. Don't buy non-returnable bottles. Hold aluminum can purchases to a minimum.

III. Do not use pesticides or DDT. If you must spray, use botanicals, natural poisons extracted from plants.

IV. If you don't need a car, don't buy one. Over half the pollution in Canada is caused by cars.

V. Harass gasoline manufacturers into removing lead additives from gas. Lead can build up to lethal levels in your body.

VI. Never flush away what you can put in the garbage. Birds can feed on fat and coffee grounds and tea leaves make excellent garden compost.



VII. Take a reusable tote bag shopping to cut down on the number of paper bags used.

VIII. Patronize the untreated, pesticideless food in health food stores.

IX. Take a noisy neighbor to court. Or, if the problem is industrial or a neighborly anti-pollution official, band with others to file a mass-action suit.

X. If you want more than two children, adopt them.

A Gift of China

Her Excellency, Mrs. Michener, receives dinnerware presentation from Mrs. W. L. S. Trivett, (left), wife of executive board chairman of the United Nations Association of Canada, while His Excellency, Mr. Roland Michener, looks on.

Presentation of Peace Rose China Opens UN Association Campaign

OTTAWA—Her Excellency, Mrs. Michener, received a set of Peace Rose Paragon dinnerware from Mrs. W. L. S. Trivett, wife of the executive board chairman of the United Nations Association of Canada at Government House in Ottawa this week, the event marked the official inauguration of a most unusual fund-raising campaign. A perfect symbol, the Peace Rose, had been chosen to enlist public interest and support in the cause of peace and the purpose of the United Nations.

The Ottawa ceremony coincided with activities of association branches across Canada. In Montreal a Peace Rose garden was officially opened in the lobby of Place Ville Marie by the President of the United Nations Association. In Winnipeg, Calgary and in other Canadian cities, peace rose bushes were planted and other activities centering around the Peace Rose were held.

It is likely, however, that most of the funds that will accrue to the United Nations Association and through it, to the Canadian UNICEF Committee and the UNESCO gift coupon program for children's services and education in developing countries, will come from the royalties contributed by chinaware merchants, giftware shops and department stores across Canada where the Peace Rose Paragon chinaware will be on sale. These royalties will be collected by Cassidy's Limited, distributors of Paragon china, and will be forwarded by Cassidy's to the United Nations Association on behalf of these merchants.

The connection of the Peace Rose with the United Nations is not accidental. When the first meeting of 49 delegations of the United Nations took place in San Francisco in 1945, the heads of these delegations received, each in his own apartment, a small vase with a single rose, accompanied by this message:

"This is the Peace Rose which was christened at the Pacific Rose Society Exhibition in Pasedena on the day Berlin fell. We hope this Peace Rose will influence men's thoughts for everlasting world peace."

The origin of the Peace Rose actually goes back to June, 1939, when the blooms on a rose plant developed at the Meilland Rose Plantation in France and known only as No. 3-33-40, proved the great revelation of the season and attracted the most attention among visitors. The Duke of Windsor was one of these visitors, and he remarked:

"I have never seen another rose like it. It is certainly the most beautiful rose in the whole world."

Buds were sent to Germany, Italy and the United States. The outbreak of World War II broke off communications with Germany and then Italy, and it was not until after the war that it was learned that these roses had been put on sale, in Germany under the name, "Gloria Dei" and in Italy as "Gloria". In France, the hybridizer, Francoise Meilland, and her father decided to dedicate it to the memory of her mother, Mme. A. Meilland. When it was christened "Peace" in the United States, Francoise Meilland wrote:

"If circumstances have decided that it should be known by different names in different countries, this at least is true that each of these names remind men of goodwill that the love of flowers, and in particular the admiration of this rose will forever provide them the occasion to praise God with "Gloria Dei" to face life with a smile "Gioia"; to wish for peace with "Peace", and as far as ourselves are concerned, to perpetuate a loving memory with "Mme. A. Meilland".

The rose executed on the chinaware by Paragon's chief designer and artist, Reginald Johnson, is a beautifully accurate rendition of the flower itself, and for those who are not able to plant a Peace Rose bush in commemoration of the event, it permits an even more tangible recognition of the cause of peace and the work of the United Nations Association of Canada by the purchase of the wide range of dinnerware service, some 49 different pieces, in which the design is available.

Linda Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fleming of Rt. 1, Frankford, received her general BA in French and Psychology at convocation exercises held Saturday, May 30, 1970 in Grant Hall, Queen's University. In the fall she plans to attend College of Education.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "The doctor won't like it if you don't take your medicine. He'll be very cross when he comes to see you."

Child: "I don't like that old doctor."

Don't pass the discipline policeman, etc., by threatening a child with their disapproval. Instead, put the emphasis where it belongs — on the benefits many people resent innovation. It took Mr. McCormick 14 years to sell his first reaper. Human nature resisted even a beneficial change.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Belch of Belleville. Marriage will take place on June 27, 1970 at 2 p.m. at Bancroft Bible Chapel, Bancroft, Ontario.

Annual Bridge Tournament Concludes

The Belleville Chapter of Hadassah annual bridge tournament was brought to a successful conclusion at a social evening which took place at the Sons of Jacob Synagogue on Wednesday evening, May 20 with the convenors, Mrs. A. K. Black and Mrs. L. C. Rose, as hostesses.

The guests were received by the hostesses and proceeded to a social bridge game which was enjoyed by all.

During the luncheon which followed, Mr. Joseph Barer, president of the Belleville Chapter, extended a warm welcome to the guests and gave an interesting and informative outline of the work of Hadassah. Mrs. Barke also expressed sincere thanks to participating members of the tournament for their assistance in this worthwhile work.

Following a delicious lunch, prizes for the annual tournament were awarded as follows: 1st: Sue Black and Sadie Rose, 2nd: Margaret Fairbairn and Thelma Fitzgibbon, 3rd: Dorothy McGlashon and Isabel White, 1st section: Ella Trepanier and Theo Miller, 2nd section: Hazel Pugh and Virginia Lewis. Prizes for the evening were won by Patsy Wandolat, Wyn Kelly, Lennie Clancy, Barbara Graham, Monica MacDonald and Hazel Pugh.

On behalf of the members and the tournament, Margaret Fairbairn expressed thanks to the hostesses for a most enjoyable evening.

This brought another bridge to a pleasant end with the members looking forward to a resumption of the tournament in the fall.

Engagement Notice

Mrs. Catherine Huzio, 94 First Avenue, Schumacher, Ontario, announces the engagement of her elder daughter, Joan Elizabeth Fox, to Peter John Halloran, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick F. Halloran, RR 5 Belleville. The marriage will take place Saturday, July 4, 1970 at 1 p.m. at St. Michael's Church, Belleville.

Queen's Alumni Holds A Spring Dinner

Guest speaker at the spring dinner of the Belleville and district Branch of the Queen's Alumni was Dean Hand of the Department of Business Administration. The dinner was held at the Sun Luck Gardens Wednesday, June 3.

Elizabeth Smith, the president introduced Dean Herb Hamilton's new assistant Murray Gill. As Queen's graduates increase in number, Herb will no longer able to visit all the branches himself.

Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Grant Sloss of Bermuda, who again have donated a substantial amount to the scholarship they initiated last year and Mr. Follwell, president of the Alma Mater Society who gave a short talk on the new university centre and some of the activities of the students.

Dean Hand spoke on our changing world. He stated that science is changing the world as it reaches out into every category of human endeavor. What is relatively new is the fact that the universities are also responding to change in an important way. Their duty is to integrate these new developments so they can be used to prepare the young for their rapidly changing future.

There are basic changes in scientific knowledge and its application. This brings up the point of the obsolescence of parts of the university curriculum.

The impact of the computer is felt by men in all walks of life. "We live in an age when every year some job or skill becomes obsolete," said Dean Hand. Who should be responsible for people who have lost their jobs? Should there be a lax in the manufacturer of machinery?

Again innovators are up against human nature since

Women's Institutes

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE WI

The final meeting of Canniton-Corbyville WI until fall was held in the hall recently with 11 members and two visitors present.

During the business session the operating of bingo for ball games held at Canniton was discussed.

Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. Milton reported for standing committees. A report of the district annual held at Empey Hill was reported by Mrs. G. Moore and Mrs. D. Ellsworth. Mrs. G. Moore and Mrs. P. Meale gave a report of the directors' meeting held at the home of the district president, Mrs. F. Wellman.

Convener for the evening Mrs. C. Avery introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. C. Holmes of Belleville who spoke on "Women's Franchise". With all the modern day gadgets women should be very happy but sad, but in many cases this is not so. One should think positively, be satisfied with what one has and accept responsibility. Be reaching out to others you concerns oneself with the problems of others and can possibly help them. She urged members to participate in WI meetings, church organizations and all groups reaching out to help others. She urged women also to look for divine guidance.

Mrs. Holmes was thanked by Mrs. Avery and Mrs. Meale presented her with a gift.

THE MAGIC OF CARPETS

"Magic carpets were a feature of my childhood. I remember sitting for hours on a Persian carpet and willing it to move." — Mrs. Gillies.

* * *

"Of all the stories of my childhood, the one which intrigued me the most was The Flying Carpet," confesses a Belleville lady, and admits, "when I wakened up one morning years later to find myself flying on a small Spanish plane for a short visit to the Spanish Sahara in West Africa, standing behind the pilot as we approached its coast, that enthralled sensation as if flying a magic carpet came over me — exactly as I had imagined it as a child.

"Later we were guests of Bedouin hosts whose home was a large tent in the desert, where we were invited to enter, after removing our shoes, and sit in a circle on the floor covered with the most magnificent oriental carpets imaginable. "For a moment it seemed these were indeed the magic carpets of childhood which had flown us all where we had dreamed of visiting — right here!

"Since then, I've made a little study of oriental carpets, learning as you perhaps know, they are made from the Caucasus in the west on across Asia to Turkestan and China in the east, with the most important centres being Turkey, Persia and the Caucasus. Turkish carpets favor fairly bright colors rather subdued, with bold, bright abstract designs distinguish the Caucasian rugs which mesh with high favor todays informal modern decor.

"Made from sheep's wool, silk, even camel or goat's wool, the manufacture of rugs is a fine art, done by weaving or knotting the colored threads. The more knots say to the square yard, (some have a million knots per square yard) the more expensive. This is understandable, since it takes a man with skilled hands a week, to make only 40,000 knots.

I'm told the first Persian carpet bought for more than three figures was in 1888, when the Louvre bought a silver threaded carpet for well oger a thousand pounds.

"I learned from reading and speaking with rug dealers that anyone wishing to buy an oriental carpet should buy it through a reliable, knowledgeable dealer. A modern carpet, depreciates greatly as soon as it is put down; an Oriental carpet, while initially expensive holds its value. Many have risen in value over the past ten years.

"In fact, one advised that if is better to pay say $1,000 for one carpet, than buy four carpets at $1,000 apiece.

"The interest in Oriental rugs has revealed to me for the first time, what a refining influence they have had on civilizations of the world."

No one is meant to live in poverty

Some feel they are "doomed" to poverty, even that it is the will of God.

But the Bible tells us that God is good, and that He is the only real cause.

In fact, the Bible is full of instances of people who were lifted out of desperate need solely through an understanding of God's loving provision for every individual.

Many today are using this understanding faith to find their way out of poverty.

The Christian Science Bible Lesson this week can give you some practical and helpful ideas on this subject.

Anxiety Tends to Make One Rigid, Inflexible

By DOREE CLARK

"People with a high level of anxiety tend to be rigid and hidebound and to approach new problems in a stereotyped way," he says Dr. James O. Coleman, in his book, Abnormal Psychology. . . .

Or in words of one syllable (more or less), you'd better relax before you take on Junior's latest poser. You can't be fair if most of you is in the dark — of your own hang-up.

Suppose you've just had an argument with the boss, or lost a sum of money, or been told that that mysterious pain calls for an X ray. Then Junior wants to discuss his choice of career with you.

Isn't it highly likely that in your divided state of mind you'll put him off, or send him back to his counsellor; actually denying him the right to your full attention?

There are limits to energy, and when your burden involves problems, then your couple is already heavy. Imagine thinking — the kind that creates new ways of tackling problems — writes books, paints pictures — just won't happen.

Then is when a break for rela xation or a chance to unburden to someone who cares is worth a million dollars.

Dear Doris: Please explain in teen - agers over and over again how they should have respect for themselves and their bodies. Today it is sex, sex, sex over and over. My girl is 14, stays home, only week ends she can go out.

This boy she knew has a baby face but can lie and cheat to his parents like a veteran! He is poor in school, looks good, but what he doesn't know about sex would fill a book. What he does, wow! His mom and pop laugh it off. In fact his dad has boxes of contraceptives lying around for his boys' use.

There are girls in school who throw themselves at the boys and ask the boys to go the limit with them. It is a losing battle. How do you explain to your boy or girl these values that they question so much? — In Protest.

Dear In Protest: This know. it - all attitude is sez on the part of very youthful teenagers is the bunk. As you say, what they don't know would fill a book. The fact that the stork no longer brings the babies is only a fraction of the story.

The part about self-worth, dignity, emotional overtones, and long term penalties for sex indulgence — this has all been left out of the early biological education.

Sex as a straight physical act is short lived, disappointing, and self - destructing.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a great fan of your column. I take your advice and about nine times out of 10 you are right.

My girl friend is having her second baby soon. Is it proper to have a shower for her? I was told it is not proper.

What kind of games (if any) do you play at baby showers?

I sure would like to help her have more for the baby as they cannot afford it. — Worried.

Dear Worried: Can't think of a reason in the world why a shower for a second baby would be taboo. Won't the new little one be just as important as the first one — and just as deserving of a special occasion and something to wear or play with?

I'm sending you my 18-card, leaflet "Welcome Baby With A Shower". Suggests decorations, entertainment, food and so on.

Pottery Works Opened In England in 1751

The Worcester pottery and porcelain works opened in Worcestershire, England, in 1751. It first produced soft - paste porcelain which is made with soapstone. Soft paste has a glassy appearance with an imperfect, often pitted glaze disclosing small imperfections. It is translucent and quicker to bring glaze than porcelain or pottery.

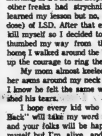
In 1756 Worcester began transfer printing of patterns, eventually developing, under Robert Hancock, an underglaze transfer print in blue. Underglaze patterns do not wear off and are the usual type of decoration found today. In the early 1760's a clock employed Thomas Turner. In 1774 both men left Worcester.

Turner established a pottery at Caughley, (pronounced cahfee), Shropshire to clay beds that had been worked since Roman times. With Hancock's help Turner improved the transfer technique and began to turn out a fine ware product. He was assisted by Josiah Wedgwood, who produced a hard white ware with a body known as pearl ware, which formed an ideal base for transfer printing. Turner copied original designs, printing them in blue.

The earliest and best blues were produced from "smalt" a grade name for cobalt oxide, less effective blues were made from "zaffre" a less refined smalt. In 1802 an artificial ultramarine was produced in France and most underglaze blue after that date is made with "bleu de Thenard", named after the inventor.

Artificial ultramarine was used in England under the names: "Caughley Blue", "Turkey Blue", "Bamboo Blue" "Willow Blue", and other names which sometimes appear on articles. A few potters continued to use cobalt, advertising it as "Genuine zaffre" up to mid-19th century.

By the time Thenard had invented artificial ultramarine the Caughley works were no longer operated by Turner. Josiah Spode hired a printer and engraver away from Turner and began manufacturing underglaze blue. Thomas Minton had already designed the still popular Willow pattern for Turner. Eventually Minton designed a willow pattern for Spode, and, in fact moved to Staffordshire to be able to work near Spode.



The introduction of bone china destroyed the demand for soft paste and put Turner out of business in 1799. Caughley was taken over by Coalport and eventually became associated with Worcester. It was abandoned in 1814.

The dish is a "pickle-leaf", reined on the reverse to resemble burdock. Caughley made many in this style. Spode copied it and added a Spode pattern, "Man Riding a Buffalo". The right hand plate resembles Blue Willow and is in fact a Caughley design produced in 1790 from a Chinese original. It was first called "Pagoda", copied in 1815 by Spode and issued as "Temple".

Both pieces are interesting and valuable, though not in perfect condition. They are still be found at church bazaars, white elephant tables and rummage sales. In perfect shape the plate would bring $5, and the leaf dish at least $25.

Back from Hell After Taking Drugs

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from the hippie signed "Ashamed To Go Back." I was in her shoes — if she had shoes, that is. I didn't.

When I split it was because home was a drag and my mind was really spaced from drugs. I thought San Francisco, L.A. and Mexico had a lot in store for me. Well, I was right. It had acid, pot, 13 people in a three-room apartment and V.D., and thrift stores where you could buy someone's beat-up Jeans (pt $1.

I dug being "free." I thought loving and sharing was beautiful — until I woke up one morning in a Phoenix hospital. The speed I had shared with two other freaks had strychnine in it. You never forget the learned my lesson but no, it happened again — an O.D. (overdose) of LSD. After that experience I knew the next time I'd kill myself so I decided to go home. I didn't have a cent so I thumbed my way from the West Coast to Ohio. When I got home I walked around the block four times before I could work up the courage to ring the bell.

My mom almost keeled over when she saw me. She threw her arms around my neck and cried. Dad didn't say much but I know he felt the same way. He went into the other room to shed his tears.

I hope every kid who reads this and is "Ashamed To Go Back" will take my word for it. Home is the best place to be and your folks will be happy to see you. I still haven't found myself but I'm alive and looking — and thankful for small favors. — BACK FROM HELL.

* *

DEAR BACK: A good way to "find yourself" is to offer your services to your local drug treatment centre and help rehabilitate others who are spaced out and have split.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been going with a man who is truly wonderful in a great many ways. When my husband passed away last year we started to keep company and Ben has made me smile again. He has one little fault. He drinks a little too much.

The two of us often have dinner out — always in a very nice place. When the dinner cheque is presented he puts on his bifocals and adds it up two or three times, checking every item against the charge. He frequently questions the waiter, which I find embarrassing.

He asks why there was an extra charge for the dessert. (He was under the impression it came with the dinner.) If there is a charge for a second vegetable, he says he ordered it instead of the salad. When he finds an error in the bill he gloats. Usually it is just poor arithmetic, but he points out that the mistakes are invariably in the house's favor, which I cannot deny.

I wish he would just pay the bill when it is presented as my husband used to do. Should I tell him? — RIVERSIDE.

* *

DEAR RIV. No one should pay any kind of a bill without looking at it and adding it up. Waiters make mistakes and so do machines because people operate them. You should not be embarrassed because your friend is cautious. It shows he has good sense.

A Request for Cloud 9 Pie

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have heard of a new Cloud 9 Pie — meringue crust, cream filling containing orange flavor and pineapple fruit . . . Dorothea H.

ANSWER: I do not have the recipe for Cloud 9 Pie but hope readers will respond to your request if they recognize it.

Meanwhile I will give you Angel Pie and a suggestion to convert it into a reasonable facsimile of the Cloud 9 Pie you describe.

ANGEL PIE

(Repeated from September 1966)

MERINGUE CRUST:

Add 1 cup sugar, ½ tsp. each cream of tartar and salt to 4 egg whites and beat until very stiff. Butter a deep 9" pie plate and spread meringue in it, making edges high. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. about ¾ hr., then turn off heat and let crust remain in oven 15 min to dry. Remove and cool in pie plate. For a change I put into this shell a layer of washed and dried blueberries. (You could use slices of peaches or berries or pineapple if you like.) I covered it with one 8-oz. jar of Lemon Butter, but first I added the rind of 1 lemon grated and juice of half lemon for I like it extra lemony. Then I covered that with ¼ pint heavy cream whipped stiff (see below) and chilled it until serving time. An Angel Pie improves if refrigerated overnight.

REGULAR LEMON FILLING for Angel Pie

Mix together in heavy saucepan, 3 tbsps. flour, 1 cup sugar, ¼ tsp. salt and when blended add ¼ cup water and ¼ cup lemon juice. Stir until smooth, then beat in 4 egg yolks and cook over low heat, stirring, until thick. Remove from heat and add ¼ tsp. almond extract. Chill if desired

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Homemade Cream of Mushroom Soup with Croutons; Spanish Omelette; Hot Tea Biscuits; Shred Slaw and Raisin Pudding with Rum Sauce; Tea.

whip ½ pint heavy cream until stiff. Fold half into this filling. Pour into meringue shell. Top with remainder of whipped cream. Chill overnight if possible.

NOTES: Dorothea for your Cloud 9 Pie try this: Follow Regular Lemon Filling above but use ¼ cup fresh orange juice instead of ¼ cup each water and lemon juice and put layer of cubed, dried, canned pineapple or cooked pineapple before covering with orange filling.

Mother Still on Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The strike of Constance Milks against housework entered its third day today, no clear to resolution than the postal dispute.

Mrs. Milks walked out Thursday when sons John 20, and Danny, 19, failed to wash the windows after much goading.

The flash point may have been Wednesday however, when her seven children disappeared when it came time to do the dishes after "I cooked a beautiful supper for them."

Mrs. Milks is separated. Besides John and Danny the children are Joanne, 18 Sandra, 17, Diane, 13, Kate, 12 and Stefan, 5.

"I got a rent rebate and me and the two young ones are going to eat out as long as the money holds up," Mrs. Milks said Friday.

West Liberals Stage Parley

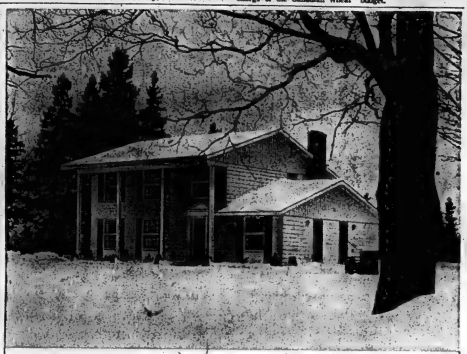
EDMONTON (CP) — Discussions of national issues from a Western Canada viewpoint will be held by delegates to the western Liberal party conference which opens today.

The three-day conference, to be attended by an estimated 300 to 350 western party members, is the second phase of the policy formulation plan established by the Liberal Federation of Canada. The views and recommendations that emerge will be considered at the party's national policy convention at Ottawa in November.

L. C. Jolliffe of Vancouver, immediate past president of the British Columbia Liberal Party, and David McDonald of Edmonton are co-chairmen of the conference which will discuss subjects including Western Canada and Confederation. Others are: regional disparities; economic expansion; the quality of Canadian life; transportation and communication; and agriculture.

Several cabinet ministers will attend:

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson; the consumer and corporate affairs minister, Ron Basford; Otto Lang, minister in charge of the Canadian Wheat Board; Supply Minister James Richardson, who last month unveiled his "Canada West" concept at the One Prairie Province conference in Lethbridge; Works Minister Arthur Laing, and Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.



Western Canada's most outspoken Liberal, Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, had been scheduled to speak at a noon luncheon Sunday, but said he will not be able to attend because of heavy commitments.

The Saskatchewan government, the only Liberal government in the West, will be represented by Deputy Premier D. G. Steuart and a contingent of cabinet ministers and MLAs.

Anglicans Cut Their Spending

TORONTO (CP) — Lower contributions by parishes have forced a second cutback in the Anglican Church of Canada's 1971 spending program, John said Friday.

He said $176,000 will have to be taken from a reserve fund set up in more affluent times and used to meet the 1971 budget.

How does a farmer's wife cope with a 14-room house and 6 lively children?

"By choosing electric heating," says Mrs. G. Lalonde of Riceville.

You'd think Maureen Lalonde had enough on her hands with six young children. Yet she was overjoyed when the family moved into a new house twice as large as their old one — because, thanks to electric heating, it meant less housework. "Even the walls and drapes are an easy task now. I don't have to clean them as often. There's not so much dust, I'm sure. I have more time for other activities now."

"We looked at other heating methods when we planned the house," says Gerard Lalonde. "Apart from being clean, the best feature of electric heating is that you can set your room at any temperature you want. In the younger children's bedroom we set it higher. We like it a little cooler, ourselves. The office here,I keep on the cool side because I'm in and out all day."

Since moving to the new home, the Lalondes find winter mornings a little less forbidding. "The air isn't so dry, we sleep much better, and we feel real fresh when we wake up."

Electric heating helps the Lalondes enjoy the kind of life they like to live. It gives them extra space (without a furnace, the children have all of the basement as a rec-room), extra comfort, extra safety — and extra time to enjoy it all. Your Hydro will show you how easy it is for you to enjoy the living warmth of electric heating in your home.

Sawchuk Will Be Best Remembered for 40 Brilliant Minutes

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Show me a hero and I will write you a tragedy," wrote F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Terrance Gordon Sawchuk was a hero for more than 21 years, who is best remembered for 40 nerve-tingling minutes April 8, 1967.

Tier on tier of humanity piled up into the yawning maw of Chicago Stadium sucked foamy beer from wax-paper cups and wiped buttered-popcorn fingers.

From the highest seats, cramped under the rafters, the ice below was a postage stamp of light at the bottom of a funnel, the bird's-eye view through the wrong end of a telescope.

Sawchuk, slope-shouldered and hunched, sat at the far end of Toronto Maple Leafs' bench. Eighteen star-studded National Hockey League scorers were behind him, as he watched goaltender Johnny Bower attempt to pick up his timing.

"Bower didn't feel right," coach Punch Imlach said afterwards. "He came to me and asked if Sawchuk could go in. Said he felt shaky."

The Maple Leafs, third-place Habbers, were trailing 1-0 in goals and games after 20 minutes of the second game in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final.

Chicago Black Hawks, league champions and odds-on favorites to win the playoffs, had beaten Sawchuk 3-2 in the opening game three days earlier.

Sawchuk, four-time Vezina Trophy winner as the league's outstanding goaltender, came out to replace Bower at the start of the second period. More than 16,000 knowing fans assessed it as the final gasp of a dying team.

Sawchuk, left unprotected by Detroit Red Wings in 1964 and picked up by Toronto, had supposedly reached the end of the road.

The whistle chirped, the puck was thrown, the players wheeled. Scoring ace Bobby Hull drove past his check and smashed at the puck just from the right of Sawchuk.

A 18,000-strong voice burst, sudden as the thunderclap that must have exploded in Sawchuk's head, strangled into terrifying stillness that finally responded with fingers full of soggy popcorn half way to gaping mouths

Brazil Favored to Wrest Soccer Crown from England

MEXICO CITY (CP-AP) — An eight-game weekend which will clearly define the prospects of many of the 16 teams seeking World Cup soccer honors begins today, with Brazil a clear favorite to defeat defending champion England in a key battle Sunday.

While Brazilian and English officials and players waged a mild verbal war of nerves here, the world press appeared to be swinging to the opinion that Brazil will best or at least tie England Sunday at Guadalajara Stadium.

Even some English writers were wavering in their previously-strong support of the team which won the Jules Rimet Trophy four years ago in the final game at Wembley.

Frank Clough of the London Sun wrote: "I've a hunch that England will get a draw in what should be the classic match of the competition."

Brian Glanville of the London Sunday Times wrote: "The Brazilian attack is one of the finest in the game. Pele still is in form and that counts considerably. I pick Brazil and England for the final."

Since two teams qualify for the quarter-finals from each of the four groups into which the 16 teams have been divided, both Brazil and England are likely to advance from Group III. But the winner Sunday will achieve a tremendous psychological lift. Brazil was disappointing in 1966 after winning the World Cup 1958 and 1962.

Two rival brands of soccer will be on display—Brazilian flair and attacking brilliance against England's solid defensive system. England shut out Romania 1-0 last Tuesday and Brazil trounced Czechoslovakia 4-1 Wednesday. Pele turned in a great performance against the Czechs, and winger Jairzinho looked like a world-beater with two goals.

England's strategy will be to give the Brazilian aces no room to manoeuvre. Since 1966, England manager Sir Alf Ramsey has sought to produce a team that can hold the ball in midfield, seeking to draw the opposing defence forward so that strikers Geoff Hurst and Francis Lee can pounce.

The efficiency of his 4-4-2 system depends largely on the form of Martin Peters, who probes to the left to make the scoring chances for Hurst.

Brazil's midfield powerhouse, Gerson, is having trouble with an old back injury but the English players think he'll be in action against here.

Keith Newton, England right back, has an injured knee, and may be replaced by the less experienced Tommy Wright. Even without Newton, the England defence looks much more solid than that of Brazil.

England captain Bobby Moore announced: "The Mexican fans will see the real English team Sunday."

Carrying the verbal ball for the other side was Abilio de Almeida, president of Brazil's federation, who recalls the battles of the 1966 championships.

"We will meet violence with violence," he said. "I don't think England plans a rough game, but if it does, we are prepared."

In the other three matches Sunday, Mexico meets El Salvador in Group I, Israel clashes with Sweden in Group II and Bulgaria goes against West Germany in Group IV.

But before then, the eight other teams will give clear indications of their eventual fate in a quartet of second-round games today.

Russia, which managed a scoreless tie with Mexico in its opener, will be looking for a decisive victory over Belgium in Group I. The Belgians beat El Salvador 3-0 earlier this week.

Uruguay and Italy, each with a victory in Group II, faces each other, and the teams appear so closely matched that a draw would not be surprising.

The two winless teams in Group III, Romania and Czechoslovakia, meet each other.

In Group IV, West will be looking for a victory over Morocco, an underdog squad which lost by only a 2-1 score to West Germany. Peru has a 3-2 victory over Bulgaria.

Twins Try Dutch Treat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bert Blyleven made his American League debut with Minnesota Twins Friday and made an immediate impression on Washington Senators.

"He's everything people said he was," said Washington slugger Frank Howard after the Senators lost 2-1.

Blyleven, a 19-year-old right-hander called up from the American Association earlier this week to replace the injured Lois Tiant, hurled seven innings and allowed five hits. The only run came on Lee Maye's leadoff homer.

Elsewhere in the AL, Baltimore Orioles edged Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, New York Yankees ripped Chicago White Sox 10-1, California Angels nipped Cleveland Indians 2-1, Oakland Athletics downed Detroit Tigers 4-3 and Boston Red Sox beat Kansas City Royals 4-2.

The road to the majors for Blyleven began in Zeist, Holland, where he was born. The family moved to Saskatoon in 1953 and to southern California in 1957.

"I didn't know anything about baseball until some friends asked me when I was 10 if I was going out for Little League," Blyleven said. "I asked what was that?"

Blyleven was the Twins' third choice in the free-agent draft last June and went on to post a 7-3 record in two rookie leagues and a sensational 8-0 mark in the Florida Instructional League.

"He's the best looking prospect I've seen," raved manager Billy Rigney.

"It's hard to base it on one game," said Howard, who grounded out, flied out and struck out against the youngster, "but it looks like somebody taught him a whole lot."

The Twins scored in the first off loser Casey Cox when Cesar Tovar walked, stole second and came home on Tony Oliva's single. They loaded the bases in the fifth on Frank Quilici's infield hit. Blyleven's sacrifice and a single by Tovar. Ron Fernandel pitchered Blyleven's victory.

Laboy's 9th-inning Homer Snaps 11-game Expo Slump

Gene Mauch has finally tested victory after two long weeks of bitter losses and now the optimistic manager of the lowly Montreal Expos is filled with thoughts of winning.

The Expos did it the hard way Friday night, coming from behind with a pair of runs in the seventh and tallying a ninth inning homer from Coco Laboy, to beat Atlanta Braves 3-2.

The triumph stopped Montreal's losing streak at 11 games —the longest in the majors this season—but still let the two-year-old expansion club at the bottom of the National League Eastern Division, 11½ games behind Chicago.

In other games, Chicago Cubs routed San Francisco Giants 12-5, Cincinnati Reds downed New York Mets 5-4 in an eight-inning rain-shortened contest, Pittsburgh Pirates blanked Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0, San Diego Padres nipped St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 and Houston Astros stopped Philadelphia Phillies in 11 innings, 8-7.

"When you're losing, you wonder if you'll ever win one," Mauch said afterward. "When you do win one, you don't think you'll lose anymore."

Montreal's last victory was on May 22 when the Expos stopped Pittsburgh 8-2.

Four Expos hurlers stopped the major league's hottest hitter, Rico Carety. The Braves' left fielder went 0-for-3 and dropped seven points to .328.

"Yep, we held him to a .375-foot fly ball and two ground balls," Mauch said. On Carty's fly, Montreal rightfielder Rusty Staub caught the ball with his back against the fence.

The Braves jumped to a 2-0 lead but the Expos tied it off starter George Stone in the seventh on three consecutive hits after two were out. John Boccabella doubled, a single by Bobby Wine followed and Bob Bailey's double tied it at 2-2.

Laboy then stroked his game winner off veteran reliever Hoyt Wilhelm in the ninth.

"I didn't know it was gone because I'm not a power hitter," said Laboy, after hitting his second homer of the year. "It feels good, great, to break the losing streak."

The Cubs bombed Juan Marichal and three successors for 16 hits, four by Jim Hickman, increasing their lead over the Mets to four games. Ron Santo cracked a two-run homer for the Cubs while Ken Henderson and Willie McCovey slammed homers for the Giants.

Willie Mays was injured slightly when he collided in the outfield with Bob Taylor. The Giants' centre fielder suffered bruised ribs and a slightly cut finger.

Tony Perez drilled his 20th homer of the season, a three-run shot, and Lee May lashed a tie-breaking single in the sixth as the Reds downed the Mets in a rain-marred game. The Mets fell to their third straight defeat despite solo homers by Joe Foy and Tommie Agee.

Bob Moose blanked the Dodgers on six hits and the Pirates right-hander got run-scoring singles from Roberto Clemente, Matty Alou and Gene Alley.

Clarence Gaston drove in a pair of runs with a double and single to back the eight-hit pitching of winner Pat Dobson and reliever Roberto Rodriguez in the Padres' victory over the Cards.

Denis Menke stroked a run-scoring single in the 11th with one out as the Astros won their fourth straight. Norm Miller's sacrifice fly in the ninth had tied it for the Astros after Don Sione's three-run double had given the Phils a 7-4 edge in the eighth.

Dodgers Pick Gridder

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball completed its annual summer free-agent draft Friday with a total of 1,638 selections, including the surprising pick of Mike Garrett, Kansas City Football star, by Los Angeles Dodgers' organization. Garrett said he plans to quit football after the 1970 season.

The total fell short of the record 1,189 in June, 1967, and was also below the 1969 figure of 1,147. Apparently the big leaguers felt the 1970 crop was a little below par.

Baltimore was the most-active team with 67 selections, including 57 in the regular phase covering high school and college graduates and 10 in the secondary phase, involving those previously drafted but not signed.

Al Campana, general manager of the Dodgers, sent a buzz through the meeting hall when he announced that the Dodgers, on behalf of their Bakersfield, Calif., team in the California League, were drafting Garrett.

In Los Angeles, the Dodgers' public relations office said Garrett "came to the Dodgers about a week ago and told Campanis he was not interested in playing football after his current five-year contract with Kansas City expires."

Garrett, a 5-foot-9, 200-pound running back, said in New York he will announce his plans to quit football Monday and will negotiate with the baseball Dodgers when free.

"KICK THE HABIT" MONTH
JUNE 1 - 30, 1970

It is becoming more evident from day to day that the habit of cigarette smoking has in many disastrous effects in the human body. Through research, the link between cancer and cigarette smoking has been indicated clearly for years by statistical evidence. Similary, the association between smoking and Emphysema and other Respiratory Diseases has been suggested for some time.

During the month of June 1 - 30, 1970, Christmas Seal Associations across Canada are making a united effort to urge people to "kick the habit." They will be conducting a Campaign against smoking with a view to getting adults, and in particular persons, to kick the habit. In the case of students, they are hoping they will be impressed with the fact that they should not start the habit.

THEREFORE, by the virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I hereby proclaim the month of June, 1970

"KICK THE HABIT" MONTH

DATED AT THE MAYOR'S OFFICE June 2, 1970.

Belkin Duo Keen For Cup

WINNIPEG (CP) — Both sides exude confidence as they prepare for the first round of the North American zone Davis Cup competition.

Non-playing captain of the Canadian team, Lawrie Strong of Toronto, says his team of Mike Belkin and John Sharpe is capable of taking the best-of-five tennis series.

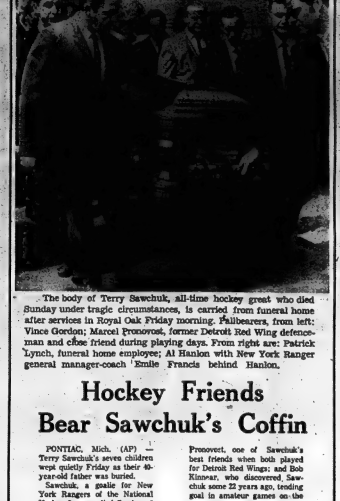
The playing captain of the Commonwealth Caribbean team, Richard Russell, is equally optimistic that his team can pull out a victory.

"In Davis Cup, every match is important and we'll be going in with the attitude that we can win every one of them", said Strong.

"That's the way we're thinking."

Russell, on the other hand, feels he can take one singles match and Belkin looks to him himself and Lance Lumsden can capture a match. That would leave the deciding game in the hands of Lumsden and Canada's No. 1 player, Sharpe.

Sharpe, of Toronto, and Russell will play the first singles match at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Winnipeg Canoe Club. In the second singles match that day, Lumsden meets Vancouver's Belkin.



The only action Sunday is the doubles competition. Teams in that confrontation are yet to be named, although it is expected both teams will name their top players.

In the first singles match Monday, the two giants meet. Belkin has to be given the edge in that meeting over Russell, if only on the fact that he represents the Caribbean captain in four sets in a previous encounter.

But if Russell's prediction comes true, the deciding game could come in the final match when Lumsden meets Sharpe.

Strong rated his players in an interview.

John's (Sharpe's) main weapon is his wicked forehand with a lot of topspin," he said. "He moves it around and can hit almost any shot.

The body of Terry Sawchuk, all-time hockey great who died Sunday under tragic circumstances, is carried from funeral home after services in Royal Oak Friday morning. Pallbearers, from left: Vince Gordon; Marcel Pronovost, former Detroit Red Wing defenceman and close friend during playing days. From right are: Patrick Lynch, funeral home employee; Al Hanlon with New York Ranger general manager-coach Emile Francis behind Hanlon.

Hockey Friends Bear Sawchuk's Coffin

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Terry Sawchuk's seven children wept quietly Friday as their 40-year-old father was buried.

Sawchuk, a goalie for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, died Sunday of complications following surgery for removal of his gall bladder. He was sent to hospital after a scuffle with team-mate and room-mate Ron Stewart, who was an honorary pallbearer at the funeral.

The Roman Catholic funeral mass for Sawchuk was said at suburban Berkley, home parish of Sawchuk's brother Gerald and father Louis.

Burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery at Pontiac, near where his former wife, Pat, and the children live.

Among the pallbearers were Ranger general manager and coach Emile Francis; Marcel Pronovost, one of Sawchuk's best friends when both played for Detroit Red Wings; and Bob Kinnear, who discovered, Sawchuk some 22 years ago, tending goal in amateur games on the frozen ponds of Winnipeg.

His glory years in the NHL came in the early 1950s when he won the Calder Memorial Trophy and was named a league All-Star. He broke in with the Red Wings in 1949 and played with Detroit—except for the 1957-58-59 seasons at Boston—until 1964 when he was traded to Toronto.

Los Angeles acquired Sawchuk in the league expansion in 1967 and he returned to Detroit for the 1968-69 season. New York traded for the veteran goalie a year ago and used him as a backup goalie behind Ed Giacomin.

Expansion Draft No Bargain

MONTREAL (CP) — Vancouver Canucks and Buffalo Sabres likely will come away from next Wednesday's National Hockey League expansion draft with considerably less quality for considerably more money than did their 1967 predecessors.

The expansion draft is expected to be one of the highlights of the league's annual four-day meeting.

The Vancouver and Buffalo entries will bring the NHL to a 14-team, two-division league for next season.

It will cost each of the new clubs $6,000,000 for the privilege, three times what it cost St. Louis, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Oakland and Los Angeles for membership three seasons ago.

For the original expansion each of the six existing clubs was allowed to protect 11 skaters and one goaltender. This time round, the 13 existing clubs will be allowed to protect 18 skaters, plus two goaltenders.

In addition, first-year professionals and all amateurs under 22 years of age at Dec. 31, 1970, are exempt from the draft.

Order of selection by Vancouver and Buffalo will be decided by lot. They will each draft until they have obtained 18 skaters and then the order of choice is reversed until each has two goalies.

However, the maximum loss by each of the existing club to the newcomers will be three players and one goalie.

Poile Looking for Leader

VANCOUVER (CP) — General Manager Bud Poile of Vancouver Canucks gets a chance to pick up the 20th-best player in the National Hockey League in next week's expansion draft. He isn't too excited about it.

"The draft is there and there's no point in complaining about the ground rules", said Poile who ushered Philadelphia Flyers into the big league when the NHL doubled its size in 1967.

"I only hope we got lucky enough to get half a dozen guys who can play with the big club. We have a lot of openings."

"In the expansion draft, I think we'll go for a leader on our first pick," said Poile.

"Leadership is tremendously important on a team where you're thin on talent. When I drafted for Philadelphia that aspect didn't occur to me.

"Look what happened in St. Louis. In their first season, they were fifth place at Christmas then Lynn Patrick traded to get Red Berenson from New York.

"He knew Berenson liked to wear the big hat and take charge and that he'd never had a chance with either the Rangers or the Canadiens.

"Patrick got a leader and the Blues never looked back."

Sources of inspiration who may become available to Vancouver include defenceman Ted Harris of Montreal and Harry Howell of the Seals Dean Prentice of the Penguins and centre Orland Kurtenbach.

Briere Still Unconscious on Wedding Day

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Briere, rookie centre with Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League, was to have married Michele Beaudoin in Malartic, Que., today.

Instead, Briere remained in a coma in the intensive care unit of a Montreal hospital. He has been unconscious for three weeks.

Briere, 20, underwent brain surgery following a May 15 automobile accident in Malartic. He had a second operation to remove another blood clot from the brain one week ago.

A hospital spokesman said Friday Briere's respiration, heartbeat and blood pressure remain normal, but that long periods of unconsciousness following a brain injury are not unusual or harmful to eventual recovery when other vital organs continue to function normally.

The hospital spokesman explained that brain cells located at the base of the brain stem, which control breathing, remained compressed.

"It takes time, and nobody knows how long, for these cells to begin to act properly again," the spokesman said. "As they do, the patient gradually regains consciousness."

Yank Makes British Final

NEWCASTLE, Northern Ireland (AP) — Bill Hyndman of Philadelphia continued his clifthanging play Friday with a final-hole, 2-up victory in the British Amateur Golf Championship to gain a rematch in the final against defending champion Michael Bonallack of England.

After earlier victories on the 19th, 20th and 21st holes and then a 3-and-2 win over Scottish Walker Cupper Charlie Green in Friday's quarter-finals, Hyndman, 34, birdied the final hole to beat Ireland's Brian Hoey in the semi-finals.

Bonallack, who beat Hyndman 3 and 2 in last year's title round, reached the final by beating Ron Napier of South Africa and a 2-and-1 victory over Bruce Critchley of Britain.

The 36-hole final ending the gruelling one-week test over the Royal County Down, 6,828-yard, par-71 course, will be played today.

Lindy's Pride Pulls Up Lame

CHICAGO (AP) — Lindy's Pride, the champion three-year-old trotter of 1969, has been retired because of a hoof injury and will be sent to stud, it was announced here Friday.

Driver-trainer Howard Beissinger said the four-year-old winner of the trotting triple crown and big five classics suffered a recurrence of a quarter-crack—a painful hoof ailment.

The colt, purchased for $15,000, won $323,997 last year, and has a career total of $396,201.

Lindy's Pride is touring Europe with Canadian-owned Fresh Yankee when it pulled up sore in the final qualifying mile for the Elite Championship in Sweden last Sunday. The decision to retire him was made Wednesday, following his return to the United States.

Lindy's Pride is owned by Lindy Farms of Linderhurst, N.Y.

Belmont Lustre Dimmed By Lack of Personality

NEW YORK (AP) — The Belmont Stakes had no Personality today, a fact that considerably dimmed the glamor of the race called "the test of the champion."

Personality, owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs and trained by her son, John, was declared out of the 1¼-mile classic Friday because of a slight cough and nasal discharge.

This cut the size of the field to 10 three-year-olds and left the 102nd running of the final jewel of racing's Triple Crown without the winners of the first two—the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

Derby winner Dust Commander was sent to owner Robert E. Lehmann's farm with a sore ankle after finishing ninth in the Preakness won by Personality.

Personality's withdrawal threw the early favorite's role to Raymond M. Curtis' My Dad George, second in the Derby and Preakness. The Belmont is scheduled to go off at approximately 5:30 p.m., EDT. CBC television coverage was set for 5-6 p.m.

The Jacobses were represented by High Echelon, who closed fast for a third in the Kentucky Derby and fourths in the Preakness and Jersey Derby. Others entered were Aggressively, Top Time, Naskra, Delaware Chief, Soft Excellence, Hark The Lark, Climber and Needles N Pens.

With 10 starters, the race was worth a gross value of $158,750, with $118,000 to the winner.

Personality's regular jockey, Eddie Belmonte, grabbed a Belmont ride on Her-Jac Stable's Naskra.

"As a trainer, my first obligation is to the horse," Jacobs said in announcing Personality's withdrawal.

TORONTO (CP) — Vincent Taylor of Toronto sank a 20-foot putt on the third extra hole Friday to win the 1970 Ontario best-ball golf championship. Taylor, who also excels in cricket and squash racquets, was teamed with Leo Bradshaw of the Toronto Golf Club.

Bradshaw had missed an 18-inch putt on the 18th hole of regulation play to leave the Bradshaw-Taylor combination tied at six-under-par 66 with two other pairs. Also involved in the playoff were Burlington's Nick Weslock and Paul Williams along with the team of Terry Parker of Oakville Lido and Tony Eversbed.

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa athletes captured two of seven field events held Friday in the 1970 Ontario high school track and field championships. Jim Buchanan of Ottawa Brookfield won the midget age group hop, step and jump with a leap of 44 feet, 6¼ inches and Doug Vine of Ottawa Nepean won the senior long jump with a distance of 22 feet, 10½ inches. The two-day meet concludes today with finals in 14 field events and all the track events. The entry list includes 1,017 athletes representing 320 Ontario high schools. Other winners included Ed Bilunak of Riverside, who cleared six feet, 3½ inches to take the junior high jump and Harvi Barkauskas of Kilchener Forest Heights in senior discus, with a throw of 156 feet, four inches.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders' halfback Vic Washington faces suspension unless he plays this season for the Canadian Football League team, general manager Frank Clair said Friday. Washington recently stated he planned to return home to Plainfield, N.J., and sit out the 1970 season unless Riders came up with a salary increase. Clair replied that if the all-star back leaves he will be put on the suspended list and no other club could sign him. Washington suffered torn knee ligaments last year and missed the latter part of the season.

A dollar still goes a long way.

A dollar may buy a lot less these days—but it doesn't buy less Volkswagen.

Border Watch Tightens

DETROIT (CP) — It is a bit slower this week traveling from Canada to the United States because of increased border inspections on the American side of the Ambassador Bridge and Windsor-Detroit Tunnel.

U.S. customs inspectors some armed with police revolvers, have intensified checks of persons entering the U.S. from Canada.

As many as 10 cars have waited at a time while customs officers search or inspect luggage of persons travelling on commercial buses. Some have been detained more than 20 minutes.

Sunday U.S. customs officials began a crackdown against hard drugs such as heroin and cocaine being smuggled into the U.S. from Canada according t American customs officials.

Marijuana Is Seized At Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Federal, state and local narcotics agents said they seized 50 pounds of marijuana worth $50,000 on the Black drug market and arrested three men Friday night after trailing their car for three hours.

John L. Anglais, 35, and Mark S. Godfrey, 28, both of Toronto, and Joseph M. Dailey, 21, of Boulder, Colo., were arrested.

U.S. Customs Inspectors became suspicious when Anglais and Godfrey showed nervousness as their rented car was undergoing a customs check at the Peace Bridge inBig Buffalo with Fort Erie, Ont.

The car was detained at the bridge about 30 minutes while RCMP were checked and arrangements were made to "tail" the vehicle, Murphy said.

The car first went to the Greater Buffalo International Airport, where Dailey arrived from Denver, Colo., and joined the Canadians.

The three, followed by six unmarked police cars drove around and stopped near the Grand Island Bridge in Tonawanda,N.Y., investigators said.

Detective Vernon Schack said he crept through bushes and, using binoculars, saw the men remove small plastic bags from two suitcases Dailey had brought along. Den stuff them in the car trunk, under seats and behind upholstery in the car.

Olson and Lang Hit Back at Critics of Federal Farm Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Rebounding from heavy attacks on government agriculture policy in the Commons Friday, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, accused the opposition of downgrading farming and farm programs.

"They want to paint the whole agricultural scene and everything in it black," said Mr. Olson.

Mr. Lang expressed concern that opposition spokesmen would continue their "negative and fear-sowing approach" as the government offers new schemes.

They were speaking on a motion by Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) calling on the government to "reverse its present policies which have deliberately depressed the agricultural economy."

Mr. Gleave said the government should institute a broad price-support program for farm products and introduce more definite trade policies.

The government was quick to protect the textile industry but nothing had been done for the farmer after unpegging the dollar.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent-Essex) slammed the government for lowering tariffs on farm products, "bribing" western farmers not to grow wheat and encouraging imports of poultry, beef and pork.

Adrien Lambert (Creditiste—Bellechasse) called on the government to pay eastern dairy farmers not to produce just as it pays western wheat farmers are paid to reduce acreage.

Mr. Olson said agriculture is still one of the most important parts of the Canadian economy. He hoped opposition members would not continue to speak in "disparaging tones" about farming.

Listing government policies from research to crop insurance, he asked which policies the opposition wanted reversed.

If wheat was left out of the picture, over-all cash receipts had gone up between 1968 and 1969 in Canadian agriculture.

The agriculture minister said the opposition is delaying passage of a government bill designed to set up a national farm products marketing board and marketing agencies.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) said the charges were as "hollow and insincere" as the government's agriculture policy.

The government had allowed only 17 hours for debate on second reading, a short time for the most important agricultural bill to come before the House in recent history.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) said the wheat inventory reduction program is a disaster. There were many other examples of "administrative bungling" in the government's approach to agriculture in the last two years.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) claimed the government is not giving producers a direct voice in its farm policies.

John Skoberg (NDP—Moose Jaw) said the Canadian wheat board has the complete confidence of the opposition but the government has failed to give the board the tools to sell wheat abroad.

"Canada is the only exporting country in the world that doesn't look after its producers," he said.

A. B. Douglas (L—Assiniboia) said the Canada grain bill is necessary but additional safeguards should be included giving producers control over their own marketing agencies.

He said he is concerned that western farmers will be hurt by the unpegging of the Canadian dollar.

Bruce Howard (L—Okanagan-Boundary) said the NDP should face facts and realize that the market for wheat in underdeveloped countries is shrinking. A smaller population was needed to produce the food needed in Canada.

Richard R. Southam (PC—Qu'appelle-Moose Mountain) said the government's wheat acreage reduction program was thrown on the farmers without their consultation.

Charles-Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste—Roberval) said the government agriculture policy is backward, throwing farmers into the cities.

Labor Chiefs Insist Profits Cause Inflation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Labor leaders insisted Friday that profits, not wage increases, are causing inflation.

They were asked to comment on a federal proposal, introduced Friday at a Winnipeg federal-provincial finance ministers' conference, that profit increases this year should be no bigger than six per cent.

Marcel Pepin, president of the 225,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions, based mainly in Quebec, described the proposal as unrealistic.

"Nobody believes that the people who earn $100, a week are real causes of inflation," he said in a Montreal interview.

Federal and provincial governments should establish price controls before trying to regulate wage increases, he said. Otherwise would only hit "the small man."

Russell Bell, research director for the 2,000-member Canadian Labor Congress, said in Ottawa the proposals are unacceptable to workers.

The CLC will oppose the guideline "as strongly as possible," he said.

"This is a highly inequitable approach to the whole inflation problem. We have pointed out time and again it is unfair to restrain wages unless other forms of income and unearned income are dealt with."

William Mahoney, national director for the United Steelworkers of America and a vice-president of the CLC, sent a telegram to CLC President Donald MacDonald.

"Let the labor movement state clearly that we will co-operate in an honest policy of control of rents, profits, speculative income, interest rates and other forms of income," he said.

"But he will not join the chorus of dishonesty now being presented to the Canadian people by the Trudeau government."

He asked for an immediate meeting of the CLC's executive committee to draw up a firm reply to the proposal.

Federal Finance Minister E. J. Benson announced at the conference Ottawa's co-operation with the pay-restraint guide was starting in current pay negotiations between the government and 27,000 postal workers.

In Toronto, Alex Power, president of Local 1 of the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada, said the workers "do not intend to bow to this type of action".

James Todd, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Maritime Union, was critical of any restrictions of the right to bargain.

- In Winnipeg, Jean Beaudry, executive vice-president of the CLC, said it is evident that the government has declared "open war on labor."

- H. Lorimer Ladd, international vice-president of the International Woodworkers of America, said inflation has nothing to do with high wages.

- Within the last few years, he said, corporations have built up tremendous profits and workers are only trying to catch up.

Stock Markets Show Gain Despite Late Dip

By ART JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets dipped sharply Friday, but gains made earlier in the week kept most sectors up for the five-day period.

The Toronto Stock Exchange's industrial index f ell 1.28 to 132.83. However, on the week, golds were up .02 to 143.68, base metals 1.13 to 90.99 and western oils 2.25 to 138.05.

The price slide began late Thursday, triggered by a slump on Wall Street when profit-taking was chipping away at large advances made in several sessions of rally.

Industrial issues were generally soft on Canadian markets throughout the week because of the unpegging of the Canadian dollar.

The free-floating dollar rose in value from the 92.5 cents in American funds at which it had been pegged since 1962, almost reaching parity with the American dollar before receding in value on international markets.

Observers had predicted that the export industry would be adversely affected in direct proportio nto any rise in the value of the dollar because Canadian exports would become more costly to purchasers.

However, Finance Minister Edgar Benson said earlier this week that any export industries which suffered losses as a result would be aided by the federal government.

Gold and forest products stocks took the biggest beating because of the dollar.

At Toronto the gains and forest products sub-index was down 1.53 points to 86.64 from the previous Friday.

Market activity through the week followed this trend: down Monday and Tuesday after the announcement of the free-floating dollar, up Wednesday and Thursday following Mr. Benson's assurance of aid to industries, and down sharply Friday under pressure from Wall Street's slump.

Many analysts now believe that the rally last week which brought Canadian markets out of a slump lasting several weeks signalled a new base for trading.

Some say a series of declines and rises is still necessary to confirm the market has "bottomed out."

Another proposal made to FIFA—this one by Israel—asks that any country which refuses to compete in FIFA-organized tournaments be expelled and punished. The Israeli suggestion appeared at some Arab countries which has vowed to drop from the competition if drawn against Israel.

There were two items this week which would tend to inspire a more optimistic outlook among investors.

The first, a series of figures compiled by Bongard, Leslie and Co, a Toronto-based securities firm, showed that dividends declared so far this year by Canadian companies are the highest first-half disbursements in history.

Also, it was noted that interest rates began to decrease after the latest reduction in the Central Bank rate to seven per cent from 7½ per cent, perhaps indicating a general easing in the economy.

Volume at Toronto this week was 14,532,000 shares, up from 12,772,000 last week.

Gains outnumbered losses 451 to 319, with 191 issues unchanged.

On the Montreal and Canadian shares, the composite index was off 1.13 to 149.1. Combined volume was 3,802,000 shares, compared with 3,711,000 last week.

Gains outnumbered losses 173 to 154 with 97 issues unchanged.

Auto Union Supports Car Agreement

ONAWAY, Mich. (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union called upon the United States and Canadian governments Friday to continue their automotive products trade agreement.

The four-year-old agreement, now up for review, permits the free flow of automobiles and automotive parts between the two countries.

The UAW international executive board conceded in a statement there were "deficiencies" but said they can be "corrected under the terms of the agreement". The board said "both sides have benefited".

The union, with 1,600,000 members in Canada and the United States, urged the two governments to continue negotiations, saying "both sides would suffer" by termination, "both economically and in terms of our continuing friendly neighborly relations."

"By combining what were formerly two separate markets separated by high tariff areas," the union continued, "the trade agreement has permitted the industry in both countries to take fuller advantage of economies of scale. . . .

"Increased Canadian productivity has enabled the UAW to negotiate the long-sought goal of wage parity with U.S. auto workers."

Ontario Vote at 18 Recommended

Proxy Votes for Students Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — A select committee on election laws Friday tabled a report in the Ontario legislature suggesting electoral changes that would allo parents to vote for their student children.

The suggestion would have students voting in their home riding, either in person or by proxy. This provision would be against a 1969 amendment to the provincial electoral laws which permitted students to vote either in their home ridings or where they attend college.

The report also recommends reduction of the voting age to 18 from 21 so long as legal majority was set at that age.

A minority opinion on the question of proxy voting said that many students "will resent having their parents vote for them and will opt out of the election process altogether."

Dissenting opinions were registered by both Liberal and New Democratic Party members of the committee.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) said the report's recommendations "are directed solely to the preservation of the Conservative party."

The committe urged reinstatement of vouching, the practice where an enlisted voter can cast a ballot on election day on the recommendation of a person on the electoral list.

Another recommendation asked that the province have a permanent redistribution commission similar to the permanent federal commission which revises electoral boundaries.

In other business:

—Transport Minister Irwin Haskett told the legislature that tests for drivers would be available in French. "almost immediately"; but added that there was little hope for a fast translation of the Ontario driver's manual.

He said his department had received "very few requests" for French-language literature.

Mr. Haskett was replying to a question from Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) who said a French-speaking Toronto girl had to go to Ottawa to take her driving test because it was impossible to pass a test in French here.

—Agriculture Minister William Stewart told the house he was trying to find ways to soothe Ontario farmers protesting increased taxes for education.

"We have the matter under close and serious consideration," he said.

—On pollution George Kerr, minister of energy and resources, said action would be taken to stop arsenic leakage into the Moira River in the Peterborough area. He also said the level of sulphates in the Ottawa River does not constitute a danger to human or aquatic life.

Law Urged to Let Province Sue Polluters

TORONTO (CP) — James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia) suggested Friday that legislation should be drawn up to allow the provincial government to sue industrial polluters.

He told the Ontario legislature the province has a duty to the citizens and fishermen to take such action against industrial polluters.

A confidential report has been prepared for the government, giving legal opinion on whether the province has the right to take action against polluters. But details of the report, sought in connection with the mercury pollution of the St. Clair River and Lake St. Clair, which led to fishing bans, have not been made public.

Since the mercury scare last March, the province has said it was considering the legal aspects of launching its own suit against Dow Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd. of Sarnia, blamed for the major polluter of the St. Clair waters.

Mr. Bullbrook said the government should consider drafting legislation allowing it to sue polluters regardless of the legal opinions expressed in the report.

Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said he is considering legislation along the lines suggested by Mr. Bullbrook.

Eighteen High School Pupils Survive Ordeal in Rapids

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Eighteen young canoeists and their leader miraculously escaped death Thursday when their canoes overturned in rapids north of here, a rescue official said Friday.

Mac Nicholson, co-ordinator of a volunteer rescue group, said he would have expected half the boys to have drowned when the canoes overturned in a section of the Little Garden River called The Hook.

The boys, all Grade 10 students at Lion's Head High School at Lion's Head, on the Bruce Peninsula, had been travelling the river in 10 canoes under the leadership of their teacher, David Caudle, 31.

They were spotted by a plane after the mishap and were flown out by helicopter in groups Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Nicholson said without Mr. Caudle's help, and the training he gave them, half the boys would surely have died.

"They knew what to do and they did it," he said.

Mr. Nicholson said The Hook is normally "a nice run" but was swollen by floodwaters Thursday and "it would have taken a real white-water man to shoot the rapids."

When their canoes overturned at the start of the rapids, dumping all their equipment, 12 of the boys were able to swim ashore. The others were swept up to five miles downstream. All were wearing life jackets.

After setting up a camp for the large group, Mr. Caudle and one of the students, Elgin Long, set out to round up the others.

A pilot for Air Dale Flying Services of Sault Ste. Marie spotted the first group and tipped the Sault rescue service, which brought five boys out by helicopter Thursday night and five out Friday morning.

The helicopter also spotted the other boys, who had gathered further downriver, but was unable to land Thursday night. By Friday morning, before Mr. Caudle had reached them, the seven had cleared a landing area for the helicopter and were flown out.

Later Friday a fixed-wing aircraft carried Mr. Caudle and Long and five them out.

The group, which was to end its canoe trip today at the Garden River Indian Reserve 15 miles east of here, instead spent the night at a motel in the Sault.

Wilson Has Woes

LONDON (Reuters) — With a general election only 12 days away, Prime Minister Wilson today faced the threat of a national newspaper strike and the disruption of Britain's public medical system.

The British Medical Association was expected to announce today measures to disrupt the National Health Service — one of the proudest achievements of the post-war Labor government — in a bid to force the present Labor government to grant all doctors a 36-per-cent pay raise.

Meanwhile, British newspapers, which have a combined daily and Sunday circulation of more than 25,000,000, faced a total shutdown starting Tuesday night.

Government mediators stepped into the newspaper dispute Friday night by calling in a top representative of the Newspaper Publishers' Association to discuss a threat by the Society of Graphical and Allied Trades to call its 22,000 members out.

The mediators hope to see representatives of the printing union this weekend.

SOGAT has called the strike in support of its claims for a 25-per-cent interim pay raise until its present contract ends in September. The publishers are offering five per cent.

Both the medical and newspaper issues could hurt the governing Labor party's chances of being returned to power June 18 if they are not quickly resolved.

Hospitals Planning Extension of Services

EDMONTON (CP) — Extension of hospital services to provide greater health care for the community could mean a reduction in the number of patients who have to be admitted to hospital, says Dr. R. L. P. Broseau, executive director of the Canadian Hospital Association.

Dr. Broseau, commenting on the association's three-day annual meeting which ended Friday, said the CHA has accepted the concept that the hospital must provide total patient care.

"It must extend its services into the community through outpatient clinics and home care programs."

These programs will be much cheaper to run, Dr. Broseau said.

"If you can treat a patient now cared for in a 365-a-day hospital bed by out-patient care at about $6-to-$8 a day, that's a significant saving."

First Convoy of Relief Trucks Rumbles Into Ruined Valley

LIMA (Reuters) — A first relief convoy of 30 army trucks rumbled today into the devastated Huaraz Valley in earthquake Peru, where thousands of injured and homeless anxiously have waited since an earthquake killed about 50,000 persons in the area last Sunday.

Army engineers today night finished clearing away thousands of tons of rocks from landslides blocking roads after working around the clock through the week.

Air force planes dropped 11 tons of supplies Friday over the Huaylas corridor which runs down the central Andes, but the amount was almost insignificant compared with the need.

Columns of smoke could be seen rising from improvised crematoriums in devastated villages after survivors set up communal funeral pyres to burn the dead. The action was taken to prevent outbreaks of typhoid and dysentery.

Cremation is usually frowned upon in heavily Roman Catholic Peru, but the sanitary burial of so many bodies was impossible.

In Huaraz, where an estimated 18,000 persons were killed and 20,000 injured, government experts suggested Friday that the ruins be set ablaze to burn an estimated 5,000 bodies rotting beneath them.

Huaras, one of the worst hit towns in the corridor, had a population of 40,000 before the quake.

Military authorities warned Friday night that all looters would be shot, and a night curfew was clamped on the dense-

Rotating Strikes Designed To Bring Flood of Complaints

OTTAWA (CP) — The leaders of Canada's 21,000 restive postal workers like to use a military analogy to describe their prolonged siege of the government's wage restraint policy.

They call it war and accordingly conduct themselves with as much secrecy as possible considering the constant prying of the capital's press corps.

"A good general doesn't tip off the enemy about his next move," Roger Decarie president of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, says of his refusal to say where the 10-day-old rotating postal strike will hit next.

"We're trying to be good generals."

The Council of Postal Unions tries to hit key cities and towns with 24-hour walkouts that pile up mail and draw frustrated complaints to government, especially from businessmen who stand to lose money from the delay and uncertainty.

Surprise is essential, one council official points out, because with advance warning the post office would be able to re-route mail past the struck centre and minimize the inconvenience.

Campaign headquarters for the council is the former national office of the letter carriers union where a newly installed Telex system links the leadership in 12 centres across the country.

Using the system local union officers who are familiar with the operation of the post office can tip off headquarters whenever an important consignment of mail arrives in their centre for sorting and shipment—bank correspondence, for example to be sent to Toronto or Montreal.

Within an hour, the council official noted, the headquarters can respond and have the local membership all on the street with their picket signs.

The strike so far has restated through a variety of smaller centres as well as such cities as Calgary, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Halifax. Earlier this week, it tied up an important drop of bank correspondence in Saint John, N.B.

So far it has missed Montreal, partly because militant postal locals there have led the post office in recent years to cut back on the city's role as a distribution centre. As for Toronto, "the key is the whole system" the council official said: "We're saving it for later."

William Houle, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, sees the rotating strike as the best course for the union because it is not less heavily on the general public and spares the workers the risk of ill-received, possibly inconclusive strike which the government might even prefer.

As with any form of guerilla warfare however, it makes heavy demands on the morale of the men on the line. The national leadership has been under pressure to call a national strike and at one point last month appeared to be losing control of its troops. As it is close to 300 postmen in Windsor whose turn in the rotating order came May 28 voted last week to remain off the job until the government is brought to terms.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am sorry to look like a clown. Although I've always had a beautiful complexion, lately I am covered with white splotches on my face and hands. I've become so self-conscious I've stopped entertaining and going out and am living the life of a recluse.

My husband says, "Forget it. I love you anyway," which is of little comfort. I must look a mess to my children to friends and to strangers. My family doctor says nothing can be done except applying some makeup. Any slither of advice will be appreciated by an unhappy woman. — Mrs. T.

Comment: I can only guess that the white spots are areas of depigmentation called Vitiligo." They are the opposite of freckles, in which there is too much melanin deposit in the skin. The cause in unknown.

Rather than give you a "slither" of advice, I am offering two large slices. First, ask your family doctor to refer you to a dermatologist. Reason? There's a possibility — but only a possibility — that what you have is a ringworm infection called "tinea versicolor" — which sometimes ages rapidly.

The doctor will scrape off some of the involved skin and examine it under a microscope. If he finds the spore-like fungi present, he can treat the condition successfully. The spots will eventually disappear.

Second, suppose it's really vitiligo. Then your doctor is right. We have no specific cure. But we do have this advice for you. Try to stay out of the sun. Tanning of the skin only exaggerates the presence of the white spots.)

Also, patiently experiment with appropriate "cover-up" skin preparations.

Lately, there has also been experimentation with drugs taken internally called "psoralens." They are not invariably effective.

Follow one or more of these suggestions, Mrs. V., and I hope you will again become a happy member of the human family.

* * *

For Mr. O.: A "ruptured disc" diagnosis does not indicate the need for immediate surgery on the spine. Unless there is a definite indication for it, doctors usually prefer to try conservative management: like stretching the spine (traction) and rest.

This often helps overcome the severe back pain and the referred pain down the leg. If weeks and months of conservative treatment do not help, then surgery offers good results.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm disturbed. I'm only 33 (and in my fifth month of pregnancy) and I suffer from varicose veins. They are mild—bad, especially in my right leg. And my right ankle is covered with ugly spider-like veins. Isn't it a good idea to have my veins stripped? — Mrs. T.

Comment: During pregnancy is not the proper time to consider surgery for varicose veins. As you may have been told, the pressure of the growing uterus on the veins predisposes it to various ills in some women. In many the problem disappears a few months after the baby has been delivered. Why not be patient a while longer? There's time enough in this-cuss "stripping" after you have had your baby.

For Mrs. T.: Funny thing about "old - age depression." Most people grow out of it. Besides, 45 is far from being old age. And once you successfully navigate what you call the upsetting years you will find the mellowing years can be quite enjoyable.

Many a woman (and man) has told me she has been happier and more contented between the years of 45 and 65 than in her earlier years burdened by the responsibilities of raising a family. Cheer up, Mrs. T. The best is yet to come.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Personal plans improve your standing in the community. Your hobbies attract collaboration in surprising places.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Retrieve borrowed items, collect payments due you. People you care about don't understand all the details — work it out a bit at a time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Make peace with those you've put off, but make a note to start earlier in the future. Your work is upshi for the moment and requires more exertion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Explain details to everybody concerned. Expect to be interrupted; misunderstood, remain serious but serene. Tomorrow brings stronger stress if you neglect activities today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The important area continues to be your home life. Do what you can for the people you care the most about; let them know your real feelings with more than just words.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Balance your energies between personal and career projects. If they coincide, some diversity should be added to freshen things up.

Bid Planned to Pare Social Service Costs

Provinces Back Economy Drive

WINNIPEG (CP) — Federal and provincial finance ministers have concluded two days of unusually-cooperative talks by reiterating that they will try to slow the inflation of their shared costs for major social programs.

Combined with general agreement Friday for a formal pay-restraint program and federal agreement to fatten provincial treasuries this year, Saturday's promises of further co-operation on spending curbs underscored a divergence from previous such meetings.

Earlier finance conferences generally featured a tug-of-war between the two levels of government involving money.

Despite general agreement on key conference topics this time, seeds of serious future disputes were sown.

Documents presented by Ontario, Quebec and Alberta posed major challenges to fundamental elements of federal plans for tax reform.

Federal participants reserved their comments until later and steered the meeting onto the matter of immediate concern—the wage restraint program designed to diminish the cost push behind price inflation.

The provincial ministers generally promised to seek the support of their governments for enforcement of the federal limit of six per cent on pay increases.

Enforcement methods would vary and be flexible ranging from direct pressure on government employees to enlistment of public support for restraint.

Even host Saul Cherniack finance minister in Manitoba's New Democratic Party government and an advocate of extending controls to business profits, said Saturday:

"We recognize the need to prevent incomes from rising to the point where they cause inflation."

While Manitoba supports the present limit, his government believes it is "too simplistic." It does nothing to restrain profits, rents and professional fees, he said.

Mr. Cherniack also had reservations about the final day's reiterated a g r e e m e n t to seek ways of controlling the upspiral of shared costs for medical care, hospital insurance and post-secondary education.

The ministers agreed Friday on the need to control the rise in the cost of such shared programs, and will try to work out a target limit in percentage terms to guide the rate of annual increase.

Prompted by previous agreements to exercise restraint in shared cost programs, federal treasury chief C. M. Drury had canvassed the provinces in advance of this conference to try and work out a formula of restraint.

He said after S a t u r d a y's meeting that the effort to find a formula will continue. There was agreement that the percentage limit would take into account different regional needs.

He declined to say what restraint rate Ottawa wants but it would be well below the pace of up to 25 per cent a year for recent increases in the shared costs.

200 Forest Blazes

Planes Fly Out 500 Threatened by Fire

EDMONTON (CP) — About 200 forest fires raged in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan Sunday and one tiny northwestern Saskatchewan community has been evacuated.

Airplanes Sunday flew 500 persons to safety as fires approached their homes in Black Lake, about 500 miles northwest of Prince Albert, Sask.

Because of poor communications and the large number of scattered fires, only sketchy reports were being received on the Saskatchewan blazes.

Reports early Sunday estimated 150 fires were burning in the province but a forestry official said later that some of the fires had merged.

Fred Hewett, director of forestry for Saskatchewan, flew over some of the burning areas Sunday night and estimated 95 fires were being fought by 900 men.

One fire, he said, was burning on a 50-mile front in the Buffalo Narrows area in northwestern Saskatchewan.

Lightning from thunderstorms started most of the fires, he said.

Forestry officials in Alberta said 82 fires were burning in the northeast, 63 out of control. About 1,000 men, 72 water bombers and numerous pieces of heavy equipment were being used to fight the fires.

The largest Alberta fire, covering 25,000 acres, was burning near Cold Lake in the northeastern quarter of the province.

Postmen Are Idle In Metro

TORONTO (CP) — The country-wide series of r o t a t i n g postal strikes called to put pressure on Ottawa for a contract settlement moved into the Metropolitan Toronto area Sunday night.

Robert McGarry zone director of the Canadian Council of Postal Unions, announced that 2500 postal workers had been authorized to leave their jobs at 21 post offices in the five Metro boroughs and in 14 adjacent communities.

However, the City of Toronto, a key distribution point for domestic and international mail, was not included in the walkout and airmail handled at Toronto International Airport will not be affected.

Revaluation Questioned

Need for Strong U.S. Dollar Said Main Monetary Problem

BASEL Switzerland (Reuters). — The Bank for International Settlements singled out the United States dollar today as a main element of uncertainty in the international monetary system, which it said is "passing through a process of radical change."

"Given present political and economic limitations, one of the principal uncertainties is how the position of the dollar is to be strengthened," the bank said in its 40th annual report released today.

The floating of the Canadian dollar was expected to be discussed by the bankers later today.

"The problem of the restoration of balance-of-payments equilibrium in the United States forms one element of the background to current official discussions about possible greater flexibility of exchange 'rates,'" the annual report said.

The report questioned the idea that the deficit position in the United States balance of payments should be corrected mainly through systematic upward exchange rate adjustments by other countries.

"It may be doubted whether the countries prepared to revalue would be sufficient in number or in economic strength to produce the desired result" it said.

"Serious tensions could well arise if partner countries of the United States were to be faced repeatedly with the dilemma of whether to accumulate unwanted dollars in their reserves or to revalue" the bank added.

"Does that mean we can take it with us, Harry?"

Cambodians Recapture Airfield Near Angkor

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian government forces recaptured the Siem Reap airfield in northwest Cambodia and drove Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces from the centre of Kimpong Thom, in central Cambodia, a government spokesman said today.

The spokesman said Sporadic and confused fighting continued near the famed temple ruins of Angkor, Cambodia's chief tourist attraction six miles north of Siem Reap. Communist forces took the airfield Sunday morning, but government troops and Cambodian Air Force MiG jets drove them out in the afternoon, the spokesman said.

He reported that the airfield still was not sufficiently secure for planes to land there. Instead reinforcements were being flown to Battambang, 69 miles to the southwest, and then taken by trucks to the battle.

Although there was some fighting near the tourist hotel the centre of the town and its main market were unscathed, the spokesman said. The last tourists were evacuated last week.

No troops were known to have entered the Angkor ruins, which extended over 40 square miles, the spokesman said.

Siem Reap is on the only highway from the Thailand border to northern Cambodia. There was speculation that the Communist forces were trying to block the troops the Thai government said last week it would send to Siem Reap to aid the Cambodians.

Million Homeless in Peru

Hercules Provides Grandstand View of Awesome Destruction

LIMA (AP) — A grandstand view of death and destruction swept beneath a big United States C-130 cargo plane as it dropped supplies to survivors of earthquake-torn north central Peru Sunday.

"Unbelievable," said the pilot, Capt. Bill Hudspeth as he guided the big Hercules up the 80-mile Huaylas Canyon. "Worse than anything I have seen in my life."

Hudspeth shook his head in disbelief as the transport passed over what was left of Huaraz, once a city of 50,000 at the southern entrance to the canyon, 180 miles north of Lima. Half the buildings had crumbled. Not a single roof remained intact.

The government says the earthquake a week ago may have killed 30,000 or more people; a United Nations observer says the count more likely will exceed 50,000. An estimated 1,000,000 more are homeless, injured or both.

Hudspeth headed the giant craft 21 miles up the gorge to Anta, the target of the air drop. Anta, a village of about 2,000, was devasted. But by some freak of terrain enough of the town's tiny airstrip was spared from avalanches that hurtled down the 18,000-foot Andes to leave it still usable by small aircraft.

A quarter ton of sleeping bags, blankets and food rations was packed in plastic-wrapped survival kits and stapled into 12 large crates. The back bay of the plane lifted open as Anta came into view and the crates were shoved out, two at a time, as the Hercules made six passes over the runway.

A few miles further up the canyon was Yungay, which used to be home for some 23,000 persons. All that could be seen of it were the tops of four palm trees where the town square had been and a statue of Christ, with arms A slide of rocks and mud two to three miles wide had buried Yungay. Only about 2,500 residents are believed to have survived.

The C-130s fly twice a day, dropping supplies over the canyon then picking up survivors at the evacuation centre in Chimbote. They are brought there by helicopters and old C-47s that can just negotiate the little airfield at Anta.

More than half of Chimbote, a thriving industrial port of 80,000 persons, is gone. Its fishmeal processing plant is partly ruined. Engineers estimated it will take many months to get Peru's only steel plant there to operate again.

But the undamaged airfield has been turned into headquarters for planes and rescue teams from 14 countries.

The air drops into Anta are part of a multi-million dollar U.S. relief effort. In addition to more than $1,000,000 spent on the relief during the first week after the quake, the United States has pledged $10,000,000 to help rebuild the shattered areas.

The Canadian government is providing air transport aircraft for relief flights. The planes—five Caribou and a Hercules—are expected to arrive in Peru early this week.

The Canadian government announced earlier it was giving $25,000 for aid to the earthquake victims.

Annual Service Marks Chapel's Anniversary

PICTON (Staff) — Speaking from the pulpit of the White Chapel, Rev. Guy W. Case, minister of Grace United Church, Napanee, yesterday afternoon conducted the 161st anniversary service of Prince Edward County's first Methodist Church. Assisting him were Rev. R. F. Sherwin, minister of Picton United Church and organist Andrew Bervin. Soloists during the service were Janice Church and Mrs. Ronald Colliver.

Built in 1809 on land donated by Stephen Cooper, a Loyalist from New Jersey who settled here in 1787, the White Chapel has been maintained as a place of worship for a longer period of time than any other Ontario church of Methodist origin. Its congregation was established as a Methodist Class in 1792 by the county's first itinerant preacher, Darius Dorland.

Although the White Chapel is no longer open as a regular place of worship, an anniversary service held the first Sunday of every June constitutes a tribute to its early builders.

Choosing "Unions Made in Heaven" as the topic for his sermon Rev. Case emphasized three important "marriages" made by God. The first of these, he explained, is the union of blessing with responsibility. When nature, mankind, he persons enter into marriage," noted Rev. Case, "they surely must accept its responsibilities. When their marriage is blessed with a child further responsibility is added. The historic old building has tremendous spiritual significance and the blessing of this chapel brings to us a tremendous responsibility."

Outlining the old chapel's challenge to modern times, Rev. Case said, "All that has flowed through the centuries is not here today — all the spiritual blessings, and yours is the responsibility of carrying on the spiritual ideals of living their principles daily by words and deeds."

He observed that criticism of the church has existed since the first century when early Christians were persecuted and died unjustly for many ill of society. "The early Christian's answer to this criticism was to show forgiving their actions, their Master's life and it remains our answer today," he stressed.

Cause and consequence was described by the minister as another union recognized by most men as a law of life. He remarked that it is impossible to sin as an isolated individual and illustrated the far-reaching effects of misdeeds upon persons close to the sinner. Referring to the biblical quotation "Whatever ye shall sow, so shall ye reap," Rev. Case observed that most men consider it a threat. "Why not think of it as a promising instead?" demanded the speaker. If a man sows wisely with God, what a wonderful blessing it is."

A third union discussed in the sermon was that of prayer and power. Rev. Case urged the congregation to believe God's promises of blessings in His name. "It can be said of this generation, 'Oh ye of little faith.'" he commented. Through continuing united prayer, the promised power will come. Hope through prayer is a promise of God, all the power of the universe, all the power of the Creator of the universe. Those who meet here 100 years ago experienced that kind of power and that is why we live in such a wonderful society today. We owe those people something."

Following Rev. Case's address Rev. Sherwin pronounced the benediction bringing the simple but powerful service to its close.

Pen Pals Are Here In Person

Even in an electronic age the written word can produce some electrifying results.

That is, if you're young enough to appreciate the fact which Belleville's latest visitors definitely are.

For them, it's meant a weeks vacation in another country.

The group — 18 grade six students from Webster City, Iowa, rolled into Bellville Sunday morning for a week's visit.

For them, the end of a 23-hour, 1,100-mile bus ride, also was the end of a long pen-pal trail.

It all started earlier this year when the Webster City youngsters began pen-pal correspondence with grade counterparts at Queen Victoria School.

One written word led to another and the decision was a decision by the Webster City students to follow up the correspondence with a visit.

The Queen Victoria youngsters accorded the suggestion.

Down in Webster City they raised the $1,500 expenses through various community projects. Then the Webster City students accumulated about $300 as entertainment expenses.

Yesterday morning the pen pals came face to face outside the Belleville City Hall as the Webster City chartered coach rolled up at the end of a nonstop journey.

Once introduced-the young-sters headed off into Belleville's fair city to begin showing their visitors to their homes.

From these billets, both groups will fan out to a program of shared activities — and classes — until the end of the week.

Among the highlights: a Kiwanis-sponsored Zwick's Island cookout tonight, visits to local industry, a tree-planting ceremony Wednesday at Zwick's, an Outlet Park picnic and a visit to Ottawa Friday.

The pen pals exchange verbal farewells Saturday at 9 a.m.

Quinte Area Will Receive Toronto Population Fallout

John Kenneth Bradford Saturday took public leave of Loyalist — the Quinte community college for which he initiated founding concepts three years ago.

"The college has now attained the objectives of its founding years in retiring president told Loyalist's third annual convocation at Centennial Secondary School Saturday.

But both the college and Quinte community must gear themselves for a future of "incredible" social implications caused by the fallout of a metropolitan population explosion.

Mr. Bradford's retirement was announced in April and as key convocation speaker he reviewed the Loyalist spectrum for staff, students and community representative crowding the school auditorium.

He was the leading figure in a ceremony that saw graduation of more than 130 students — among them Loyalist's first three - year graduates.

"On balance" he told his audience, "I would say the college has more than reached the goals of planning that I and my staff have devoted to its initial three years."

The progress of Loyalist to that time has assured the college of a sound curriculum and soundest base for the future he said.

However, "I believe that developments in it will become somewhat slower until the Quinte area has caught up with the college," Mr. Bradford added.

However, this is an age of rapid change — and the Quinte area could be caught up in governmental decentralize the Toronto population explosion.

"The sociological implications of this metro explosion will be incredible. It will demand understanding and reassessment in the stabilizing forces of conservation traditional to this part of the province," he cautioned Mr. Bradford.

Loyalist staff members would share in the civic leadership roles created by such change, he expanded.

"It will be a major task for the staff of this institution to assist in leading the community in this economic volcanic eruption," predicted Mr. Bradford.

He admitted disappointments during his founding administration — a major one being failure to develop a professionally - staffed performing arts centre.

"Provincial and private support was available for its design," he said. "Unfortunately due to purely localized, parochial difficulties, the centre has had to be put into indefinite deferment. I cannot stress too strongly the real need for a focal point for cultural and other activities in the Quinte area."

However, the groundwork already laid should "materially assist" any rekindled interest in the project.

He also hoped easier access could be obtained in future to the Loyalist campus, where the first permanent college building is almost completed.

This would involve completion of a Bridge Street extension from Belleville and connecting roads to the east side of the campus.

Operational and capital accounts at Loyalist now total more than $3,000,000 a year, Mr. Bradford said. Under his administration a "rigid" accounting kept administrative costs to the "lowest possible figure", guaranteeing the maximum for academic purposes.

This resulted in the lowest per-student expenses ratio in the college system, he said.

Mr. Bradford recalled he had only been commissioned sworn into office a year ago.

During that time he had "faithfully carried out every obligation" of his oath, he told the students.

"I know now that you have a sound academic structure and that you're a worthy member of the greater community of Ontario college."

Graduates were cautioned that there is no total end to the learning process.

Frank Rabel, chairman of the Loyalist board of governors, cautioned graduates that there is no total departure from the learning process.

"When we cease to be learners, we cease to be a part of the great movement that has marked the economic and social development of our way of life . . ." he said.

"In slipping behind, we will soon find ourselves on the mainstream of exciting change that will continue to occur in the remaining years of this century."

A Leave-taking

Loyalist College president J. K. Bradford (left) leads convocation procession out of, Centennial Secondary School auditorium, after delivering final keynote address. With Bradford — now retiring from college's first presidency — is Loyalist board chairman Frank Rabel.

A Touch of Tradition

Albert College students join in procession to Bridge Street United Church Sunday for baccalaureate service — traditional of annual graduation ceremonies. Today, convocation sees installation of L. L. Shewfelt, as headmaster of the 114-year-old college.

L. L. Shewfelt Installed Today

Albert College today marks its 114th year with the installation of a new headmaster.

Formal induction of Lorne L. Shewfelt was scheduled during convocation ceremonies at the college this afternoon.

The convocation peaks a program of events for Albert launched during the weekend.

Yesterday, students, parents and staff thronged Bridge Street United Church for a traditional highlight of college graduation events — a baccalaureate service, this year addressed by Rev. R. K. N. McLean, of Chalmers United Church, Kingston.

Social disparity equals social insecurity, Rev. McLean warned the congregation.

The very existence of poverty poses a perpetual threat to the more privileged citizens of the world, he indicated.

The classic single example was the tragedy that finally involved John F. Kennedy and Lee Harvey Oswald — one the scion of a wealthy family, the other the offspring of an underprivileged world.

"The Kennedys and the Oswalds of this world are destined to meet," said Rev. McLean.

"There is no safety, no adequate nurture for any child unless there's an attempt to nurture every child," he warned.

Bread is a human right because it is a human need. We're not always as clear about that as we should be."

However, said Rev. McLean, there is an increasing awareness — particularly among young Christians — of the world's social disparities.

"It is the task of the Christian church to press for adequate community resources to meet the needs of the underprivileged," he added.

The service was followed by a board of governors' tea Sunday afternoon.

Saturday a dinner and dance were held for the graduates in the college's Ackerman Hall.

Today's installation of Mr. Shewfelt will be performed by Bishop Richards Belleville Presbytery officials.

Odessa Man Is Charged

NAPANEE — A 25-year-old man was remanded here today for one week on a charge of non-capital murder in the shooting death of his wife.

John Andrew Patelakis, of Odessa, was charged Friday after his wife, Janice, 25 — mother of three — was found dead at their home Thursday night.

Mrs. Patelakis had been shot in the head, say provincial police.

Police were summoned by a call in the home about 11.30 a.m., said an OPP spokesman.

Insp. John Hillmer of the provincial police Criminal Investigation Branch was called in to assist the investigation.

Picton Youth Is Injured

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton youth was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital by a passer-by Saturday evening after the car he was driving overturned in a ditch two miles east of Woodcote.

Edwin Thompson, 16, RR4, Picton, sustained head lacerations when the vehicle he was driving crossed the road, went into the ditch, then overturned.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police estimated damage to the car at $400.

Last Diplomas Awarded By BGH Nursing School

The end of a thousand days came Saturday for a group of young Belleville student nurses.

That's the count on study time that led to graduation ceremonies for the last class of Belleville General Hospital's 77-year-old School of Nursing.

The ceremony held in Belleville Collegiate auditorium — combined sentiment for the final break of the old school with the sense of personal achievement for its last 55 graduates.

The diplomas, which symbolized that the young graduates now have individuals in their own right, came with cautions and advice from the keynote speaker — Jessie B. Ives, senior nursing consultant with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Miss Ives advised the graduates never to discount public opinion.

"To the world, what you do and say will affect nurses everywhere.

"Never underestimate the importance of public opinion which, in respect to our profession, is based largely on emotional reactions to the efficiency and behavior of individual nurses."

Nurses must always be aware of new developments in keeping with the "constant infusion of new ideas and ideals," said Miss Ives.

The graduation climaxed a week of special events marking the final activity of the nursing school which has graduated more than one thousand nurses in 64 classes since its foundation.

Graduation ceremonies were followed by a reception at the hospital's education hall, while the week's programs ended with a dinner-dance Saturday night at Son Valley Motor Inn.

A total of seven special awards were presented at the graduation exercise.

Winners were: Donna Shorey, gold medal, general proficiency; Rose Pogoda, silver medal, general proficiency; Lorraine Wickens, medical - surgical nursing award; Kathryn Edgerton, obstetrical nursing award; Geraldine Frost, faculty award; Mrs. Irene Tarkachuk, Dr. Donald Scott Memorial Award for outstanding operating room ability.

BGH Graduation A Family Affair

Irene Tokarchuk and Irene Irvine had more than first names in common at Saturday's graduation of Belleville General Hospital's last School of Nursing class.

They also are married and the mothers of four children — and returned to study.

The Tokarchuks and Irvines were out in full force for Saturday's graduate exercise at Belleville Collegiate — at which Mrs. Tokarchuk also was valedictorian and winner of the Dr. Donald Scott Memorial Award for outstanding operating room ability.

In her valedictory Mrs. Tokarchuk — whose husband Gene is a corporal at CFB Trenton — told her sister graduates that challenging new fields were opening up for male and female.

"Complacency and stagnation go hand in hand and are deterrents which must be avoided if we're to make a meaningful contribution to our profession."

Mrs. Tokarchuk began studying for her nursing diploma in 1957.

The family — including Linda, seven Richard, five, Robert 11, and Susan, 10 — are not entirely through with adult study yet. Cpl. Tokarchuk says he intends going to university in the fall, with plans for becoming a teacher.

Mrs. Irvine and her husband, Don live in Belleville. Their children are Steve, nine, Karen, 10, Kim 12 and Sandra, seven.

Tweed District Fires Quiet

TWEED (Special) — Forest fires in the Thunder Bay area of Northern Ontario have resulted in Lands and Forests personnel from the Tweed district being called in to help fight the blazes.

Over the weekend five department men were flown from Tweed to Toronto from where they were air-lifted to the Thunder Bay area. It is not known how long the men will be away.

Brush fires are quiet in the Tweed district with only two small blazes being reported over the weekend.

One of these was in Clarendon township near Ompah, where half an acre was burned over before the blaze was extinguished.

The other was a four acre blaze in Bathurst township near Lanark, said caused by campers.

Two Area Men Killed In Traffic Accidents

Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Percy Dennis Walker, 41, RR4, Belleville — one of two victims of weekend highway traffic accidents in the Quinte area.

Mr. Walker, father of seven children, was fatally injured Saturday when the truck he was driving veered across Highway 14, five miles north of Stirling, and crashed in a ditch.

Cause of the accident was not immediately known. Police said the three-ton stake truck was loaded with a tractor which may have shifted, throwing the vehicle out of control.

The tractor was smashed in three pieces, say police.

Mr. Walker was thrown from the vehicle and was dead on arrival at Belleville General Hospital.

Born in Thurlow township, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, he was an employee of Allen Hadley Farm Implements.

He was a member of the United Church.

He is survived by his parents, his wife, the former Joyce Donaldson, and children Donna, Carol, Velva-Jeanne, Lorna, Susan and Roger.

He also leaves a brother, Cecil, RR8, Belleville, and three sisters —Mrs. Milton (Edith) Grills, Frankford; Mrs. Douglas (Hazel) Tummon, Corbyville and Mrs. Wesley (Bessie) Mifflin, Burlington.

He is resting at the Grant-Funeral Home where service will take place at 2.30 p.m. Wednesday with interment in Belleville cemetery.

The second highway death in the Quinte area occurred late Saturday night on Highway 62 at Yelverton.

Police say pedestrian, 69-year-old George Patrick Warren, RR1, Cloyne, was fatally injured when hit by a car driven by Earl William Jackson, 53, of Denbigh.

Industry Thrives

Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown has been in Belleville only three years or so, but during this period he has made a strong impact on the industrial scene.

The Commissioner has accepted a position with a British firm locating in Canada but will remain here as lead until a successor has been appointed and is established in the job.

His term has been marked by a sharp upsurge in Belleville's industrial fortunes, beginning two years ago with the establishment of a plant by Allied Chemicals and subsequently three others — by Brooks Bond Foods Ltd., Constellation Canada Ltd. (carpet manufacturers) and Wilson Sports Equipment Canada Ltd.

Much of the credit for this growing status of the city as a business and manufacturing centre must go to the Commission and Mr. Brown as its executive head. As the Commissioner noted in a recent interview, the four new firms had helped the city commit its servicing programs to the areas designated as industrial parks. Belleville's strategic location between Toronto and Montreal, allied to improved road and rail services and freight facilities, plus a reliable labor pool, are other factors in the city's progress.

Important too, as Mr. Brown pointed out, has been the Commission's straightforward presentation of the facts about Belleville. There has been no nebulous padding, no meaningless references to what does not exist, no leading up the garden path.

As an Allied executive has put it, "the product (Belleville and what it has to offer) is as advertised."

In his three years here Mr. Brown has been in the van of selling Belleville industrially and in the creation of a new and attractive image which the city well deserves. Much of this image was already apparent, for Belleville has always had the potential it is now realizing. Educational and recreational facilities for example have always been in the first rank and in both cases have been expanding. Making Canadians aware of these attractions has been the task of the commission and officials like Mr. Brown.

After-dinner Speeches

Speeches . . . oratory . . . seminars . . . conferences . . . think-tanks . . . and so on. It makes one wonder what it would be like if all the speakers and talkers of the world were laid end to end . . . readers can finish that one off themselves.

It can be a bore you know, although now and again there are bright spots when a clever, compelling chap comes along and says his piece plainly and forthrightly. Such a man was W. J. Punter, a Toronto businessman and toastmaster, who regaled Belleville Rotarians recently with some of the banalities and absurdities of what constitutes news.

Mr. Punter had been billed to speak on "The Sexual Revolution" — and very quite knew why — but he sidled out of that one and just chatted on wherever his nimble mind led him.

Most speakers, Mr. Punter said, are not born. He is pretty well accidental, this speaking business." Often he starts as a thanker, gets some laughs and he is hooked.

As a toastmaster and regular on the speaking trail, Mr. Punter and his fellow orators get to know their audiences well and he put it statistically when he noted: "You find you get 68 per cent will say they enjoyed the speech, about 27 per cent are indifferent and the remainder are bored to tears."

Fifty-nine per cent, he went on, give a speaker their full attention, 16 per cent listen subconsciously, nine per cent doze and five per cent are sound asleep.

One of the horrors of being part of a captive audience is to be inflicted with a poor speaker, or one who talks too long or just does not know when to stop. It is then that an audience can die, a thousand deaths, and finally emerge from the room limp and exhausted. It is then too that the chairman really win his spurs — by picking the best of what the speaker had to say, or inventing it if necessary, while at the same time subjecting some wit and verbal oxygen into the hapless audience's systems. Finally everyone may leave feeling reasonably happy.

Reading a speech is always a rather second-best affair too, although a vast improvement on the labored efforts described above. A few, like Mr. Punter's address, are marked by wit and spontaneity and conclude when they are meant to.

Nationalism in Focus Too

Prairie Farmers Contemplate An Uncertain Future

Joseph MacSween of the editorial staff of The Canadian Press is in the best place to have written several series of articles on subjects in all parts of Canada. Now, after a tour of British Columbia, he is moving his family.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The view is widely held that Canada is coming through an exciting test of mind and emotion in a turbulent period of history for all mankind.

The upsurge of two great forces in Canada — this is the "French fact" and regionalism — amounts to perhaps the greatest challenge Canadians have ever faced.

Quebec and Western Canada are not turning their backs on Confederation but, in their different ways, are demanding more cultural and economic elbow room. They feel their aspirations have been frustrated.

Official nourishing of the French culture has brought a bloom to other cultures as well and Canada is developing a people—diversity equal to its fantastic landscape. Walls dividing Canadians are coming down, not going up—and that's a prime reason for all the fuss and bother.

Those were findings of a Canadian Press reporter who studied attitudes from St. John's, Nfld., to Victoria—and they seem to be borne out to a degree by the recent Quebec general election.

Like a youth at once repelled and attracted by past and potential guardians of manners, Canada is at last trying to "do its own thing" in a real sense—make its own way. In a hundred directions. And as one citizen put it: "Sometimes we try so hard to prove we're not Americans we forget to be Canadian."

We've seen in effect the birth or rebirth of a nation if only we can realize the opportunities," said Transport Minister Merrill Menzies, assessing the contributions of former prime ministers John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson.

Dr. Menzies, one-time economic secretary to Mr. Diefenbaker, claimed he has never belonged to a political party, has served governments of various persuasions and feels unbiased by past associations. He declared:

"I think the Diefenbaker government brought to the surface a recognition of the regional problem in this country."

The problem had been rankling in the Atlantic provinces and the West but during the Diefenbaker regime it emerged and "became a fact of life in Confederation for the next 100 years."

The big Pearson achievement was recognition of the "French fact." But Mr. Pearson's "understanding" of the West was of an "intellectual" type, and Mr. Diefenbaker, for his turn, lacked a "real feel" for Quebec—though he was not anti-Quebec, as some critics claimed.

"Perhaps it is a pity we couldn't have had a prime minister who embodied both of these understandings and expressed both of these major facts during the confused and at times quite incredible 1960s," Dr. Menzies added.

Where is the most stimulating thought found today?

"The good or ill, Prime Minister Trudeau has taken Canada by the scruff of the neck and shaken it well," said Peter McGregor, executive editor of the Winnipeg Free Press.

Probably the central paradox in a land of paradoxes is that the United States — magnet for so many gifted Canadians — helps keep Canada together.

If by some "evil magic" the U.S. broke up, Canada would also fly apart because of its regional quarrels, said Thomas H. Raddall, Nova Scotia historian and novelist.

And Edmonton editor Andrew Snaddon, exploding against the Canadian Radio-Television Commission's attitude on cable television, said: "If U.S. radio and TV programs were going to break the connection, it would have broken up a long time ago.

Attitudes to Canada come out in laconic and fervent ways.

"There's always hope for a country that makes an sweat to a town fool," said Toronto artist Donald Jean, referring to a many crafted to a Vancouver jokester.

Arthur J. Block of Vancouver, chairman of the board of a British Columbia realty company, related how his Mennonite parents, fleeing the Russian revolution, found, literally, a new lease on life in Canada.

"A country that has given such opportunity to so many people can't be all bad," he said.

Hundreds of interviews showed that some Canadians know and love all of Canada, a far greater number know only a piece of it but few indeed would be willing to let it go.

This account does not, of course, pretend to be anything like gospel on the attitudes of 22,000,000 Canadians. Many conflicting ideas were encountered besides some apparently prevailing patterns.

Some of the most patriotic Canadians are in the Yukon, as tailor on Spadina Avenue, the Greek immigrant, the Italian or even Canadians of Lebanese "because they see the country's potential better than others long established." Or as said a fiery English immigrant in Cobalt, Ont.

The topic of Canadian identity has been wildly overworked, in the opinion of many citizens.

"Canadians are the ones who add Canada short, not the rest — Canadians," said Morris T. Chernecky, Saskatoon lawyer, leader in civic and Ukrainian affairs.

"A few years ago somebody asked what is a Canadian and we couldn't define it. It's up to practically any European country to say what a Canadian is. A Canadian is a person who lives in Canada, the best country in the world."

Visiting Governor Urges Kiwanians To Fight Apathy

PICTON (Staff) — Kiwanis governor Raymond Allen, Owen Sound, was presented with a key to the town by Mayor H. J. McFarland Saturday night during his official visit to Picton Kiwanis Club.

More than 200 district and local Kiwanians and their wives attended the weekend dinner meeting at Prince Edward Collegiate following a reception at the Royal Hotel.

Guests on the special occasion were officially welcomed by president of the Picton Kiwanis Club, Donald Stewart. Picton Kiwanian Lt.-Gov. Chris Lockyer noted that many representatives from the Loyalist Division, 10 clubs, were present for the governor's visit. Among them were Kiwanians from New York State, Brockville, Peterborough, Madoc and points east, north and west.

The Kiwanis International Distinguished Service Award was presented to Mayor H. J. McFarland by Governor Allen during the meeting.

A Kiwanian since 1958, Mr. Allen told club members that their service club was reaching a crisis. He pointed out that a growing lack of interest on the part of the individual in giving of his service to the life of the nation is leading to a fatal apathy.

"Superior job service and serious self-examination of Kiwanis Clubs and their programs," he warned, "will be necessary to avert such indifference."

He added that Kiwanians must be highly selective and realistic. Implementing programs geared to the 70s. The role of the service club, in Mr. Allen's opinion, is rapidly changing and mere volume of work is no measure of greatness in a Kiwanis organization.

"It's the intangible contribution we make that really counts," he said. "There is the dual responsibility of the Kiwanian to his club, and of the club to the individual Kiwanian.

"In an age when people seek status, it's not unrealistic for Kiwanis Clubs to give it to their members," he said.

"You can't challenge big men with small plans. We must have big plans and big ideas and carry them out magnificently," he observed.

At the close of his address, Mr. Allen was thanked by past Lt.-Gov. Gerry Wishart.

The Fallen Not Forgotten

Veterans of World War II pause in tribute to fallen comrades at Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment memorial Sunday. Service was part of weekend reunion of artillerymen hosted by 34th (Belleville) Battery of Royal Canadian Artillery.

Generation Gap Can Be Bridged

Veterans were told by a distinguished World War II soldier Saturday that it is their duty to attempt an understanding of the younger generation.

The generation gap is only skin deep, retired Brig. F. A. S. Todd told a reunion banquet of the 14th Field Brigade at Bon Echo Inn Saturday.

It was the job of all veterans to understand the younger generations and encourage them to the same degree of service exemplified by the men who fought World War II, said Brig. Todd.

In appearances and behavior the new generation may appear vastly different. But its restlessness, its inquisitiveness, stems from the availability of modern communication.

"Now they're testing the truths of what has been handed down to them," said Brig. Todd.

This also is the first generation since 1930 that has never known the disciplines of a society totally at war, he reminded the veterans, whom he had led on the D-Day landings.

Despite appearances, the difference between the generations "when all is said and done . . . is all skin deep."

The visit of the brigadier—now a Hamilton resident—was a highlight of the reunion, which drew veterans from across Canada to its two-day program.

Its concluding event came Sunday with a parade to the Hastings and Prince Edward regimental memorial for a special service in tribute to fallen comrades.

The reunion was organized by veterans of the brigade's 34th (Belleville) battery.

Man Injured In Collision

PICTON (Staff) — A one-car collision on County Road 1 early yesterday, sent a Consecon man to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

York Walter Ryer, 40, R.R. 1, Consecon, was treated for minor cuts and released after his car struck and broke a telephone pole and knocked out four guard posts.

Damage to the Ryer vehicle is estimated by police at $400.

Old Records Make Amusing Reading

PICTON (Staff) — Buried in the White Chapel cemetery is magistrate Stephen Conger, justice of the peace in Hallowell township from 1803 to 1823.

Glancing at photostatic copies of the register he kept in the Conger chapel it becomes apparent that he was not convinced that all marriages were made in heaven. Pencil beneath the record of a wedding ceremony he performed between Jacob Cooney and Susanah Pine in 1818 is the notation, "travelled 19 miles through the mud and got nothing for it."

Written under the record of a marriage between William McGrath and Mahitabel Simson is the observation, "Said marriage was forbidden by her father but not for lawful reasons and no attention paid to it by me."

Two interracial marriages were recorded in the chapel in 1817, with the word "coloured" penned after the bride's name in both cases.

Recording the marriage of Sabra Ann Goldsmith to Richard Clute, Mr. Conger observed that the groom had produced a licence issued by His Excellency Sir Francis Gore, Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada.

Stephen Conger's records were kept by a grandson Nelson Conger until his death in 1896. In 1913 the original pages were deposited in the office of the Registrar General for safekeeping. Photostatic copies of all marriage ceremonies recorded by Conger in the White Chapel remain for public viewing.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES HAGGERTY

Haggerty – McInroy

Thomasburg United Church was the scene of the wedding on May 30 of Diane Marie McInroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McInroy of Moira and James Thomas Haggerty son of Mr. and Mrs. Barton Haggerty of West Huntingdon. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. L. Bixby assisted by Rev. I Munro. Organist was Mrs. Douglas Farrell and soloist Mrs. Gordon Foster.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length empire style gown of silk organza over tulle and taffeta featuring a portrait neckline and short scalloped sleeves. The bodice was heavily appliqued with organza flowers and re-embroidered guipure lace which decorated the hemline in matching scallops. The back was highlighted by an applique and lace covered cathedral train. The three-tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a cluster of lily of the valley and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, lily of the valley and trailing ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Lorri Workman attired in a misty mauve chiffon gown featuring an empire waist and trimmed with a band of imported Swiss embroidery as were the short puffed sleeves. The U neckline and A-line skirt completed the gown. She wore a head band of feathered yellow carnations and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of yellow carnations.

Bridesmaids were Miss Shirley McInroy, sister of the bride, Miss Cheryl Haggerty sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Donna Preston, cousin of the bride. Each was dressed identically to the maid of honor.

The best man was Gary Thompson, West Huntingdon and ushers were Bill Roberts, Brampton, cousin of the bridegroom: Gary McCullough of Agincourt and Grant McMullen of Belleville, cousin of the bride.

For the reception held in the church hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a primrose yellow footed ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white gladmelias.

The bridegroom's mother wore a blossom pink linen A-line dress with pink accessories and a corsage of white gladmelias.

For the wedding trip to Quebec and the eastern United States the bride chose a coral princess style crimplene dress with white accessories, a hair band of lily of the valley and coral sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside at West Huntingdon.

Recipe for Chicken in a Bag

By MARY MOORE

The chicken came back buttered.

You see Bernice C. wrote asking me for a recipe for Chicken in a Bag. I replied that I did not have it. She wrote again saying a neighbor had located it, she made and liked it and described it to me. I took exception to the procedure and asked if the vegetables could be put in, instead of around, the chicken in the bag. She responded but was little reluctant to agree.

So I tested Chicken in a Bag both ways — vegetables in and around. Bernice was right — vegetables around chicken are better. They them both ways, moist and "tender as chicken".

CHICKEN IN A BAG

(courtesy Bernice C.; tamper-ed with by Emma)

One 4-5-lb. roasting chicken
1 or 2 thsps. butter
Salt and pepper
1 tsp. thyme
1 whole clove
1 bay leaf
4 long slender carrots sliced
1 onion sliced
½ to ¾ lb. mushrooms, scrubbed and sliced (or 5 oz. can)
¼ Spanish onion, chopped (or 2 small)

Dry the chicken thoroughly and rub the skin all over with butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Prepare the carrots and onions and put half of each in the cavity of the chicken. Add the thyme, whole clove and bay leaf. Lightly butter a strong brown paper bag on the inside and slip chicken in-to it. Add the remaining carrot and onions to the sides and staple bag shut. Place on lightly buttered pan and bake at centre of oven at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 min. Remove chicken from oven and reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. Carefully open bag (and discard used staples) and add prepared mushrooms (drained if canned) and re-staple bag. Turn bag over in pan and return to oven to finish baking for 1½ hrs. longer. Mine baked 2 hrs. in all. )

I carefully slit the bag and ripped it away and used two lifters to transfer chicken to preheated platter. Then I spooned all verious vegetables around it. The juices which had escaped into the pan were poured over the chicken and vegetables without asking for the opinions of guests this chicken was praised spontaneously. I think it is its moist tenderness and delicate herb seasoning that made it a little different and better.

Thank you Bernice C.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "We don't like Tim. He's always boxing us around."

Mother: "That's not a nice way to talk about your big brother. I don't know what I would do if he didn't help me look after you younger boys."

An eldest child should not be concerned with the responsibilities of younger children in the family. If he is domineering with them, it may be because he resents their demands. It may be he does not have a satisfactory range of interests beyond the home.

Father: "I think we've been spending on Tim too much to help supervise the younger boys. I'm going to try to interest him in Scouting. If he can develop his leadership qualities with boys his own age, perhaps he won't feel he has to dominate his little brothers."

An eldest child should not be concerned with the responsibilities of younger children in the family. If he is domineering with them, it may be because he resents their demands. It may be he does not have a satisfactory range of interests beyond the home.

Ann Landers

Suggested Solution For Drug Problem

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a solution to the pot and drug problem — also heroin or whatever else the screwballs want to inject into their veins. Let them do it. Give them as much dope as they want. Eventually they will kill themselves and the world will be better off without them.

ANN LANDERS

I am sick and tired of looking at dirty, long-haired slobs who would rather fight the establishment than wash and go to work like self respecting people. They are losing up our world and contributing nothing but trouble, which we have enough of already.

I am sure you won't print this letter because you only publish letters that agree with you or make you look good. — ST. LOUIS.

DEAR LOU: I've heard some classic "solutions" but yours is in a class by itself. If addicts were given free and easy access to drugs, they would surely create an enormous health and welfare problem before they got around to killing themselves. The loss, in terms of human resources would be staggering. No country can allow its youth to burn its brains out. We now have approximately eight million alcoholics in our country and we don't need five million potheads.

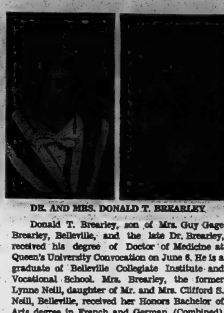
* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disappointed in your advice to the wife who was mad at her husband because he abandoned her at parties and went and had a great time. You told her, "Stop following him around. Quit making a spot of yourself." Instead of telling her what not to do, why didn't you give her some positive advice, such as: "Force yourself to talk to people, even if your stomach is in knots and your legs feel like they are going to collapse."

My husband used to leave me stranded, too, but I was determined not to be that "pest" you spoke of. Instead of hiding in the powder room I decided to make it on my own. To my surprise I discovered I could have a good time if I made the effort.

Most exciting of all was my husband's reaction. When he saw me standing in a group, the center of attention, laughing and talking, he came over to get in on the interesting conversation. What fun it is now to show off for him! And if a former shrinking violet like yours truly can do it, anyone can! Spread the word. — M.D. of D.C.

DEAR M.D.: The word has been spread. Thanks for providing it.



* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you settle an argument? Should a husband mind if his wife goes through his billfold?

Two years ago I found a telephone number. Out of curiosity I called the number and was shocked to hear the voice of a friend. When I confronted Gil with my astonishing discovery, he confessed they were having a stealing affair.

Gil has been behaving pretty well these past several months, but every now and then I check his billfold to see if there are any new numbers. Is this wrong? I feel if a man has nothing to hide he would not object. — MRS. SHERLOCK H.

DEAR MRS.: A wife who goes through her husband's billfold violates some basic rules of good human relations — a show of confidence and respect for the privacy of others. "The husband who is watched does not behave better. He merely becomes more circumspect. Wake up and smell the coffee, Dearie.

Swiss-born Couple Open Crafts Centre, Workshop

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE Ont. (CP) — Inside a large redbrick former canning factory in this historic town is evolving a crafts centre and workshop unique in this area and possibly in Canada.

Eric and Mrs. Edwin Thalmann, the Swiss-born operators of Crafts Centre Industries, have a three-fold purpose in mind for the new venture which is due to open they say.

"We are trying to create an outlet for serious crafts and crafts people who haven't had an outlet so far or have been disappointed by too high a markup," says Mr. Thalmann.

"We are creating an outlet for them, for others and for ourselves."

Their aim ti revive old crafts like pottery and weaving and provide a market for examples of these crafts which are distinguished by craftsmanship and artistry. They are also interested in paintings and have already been in touch with two artists noted in the area for their work displaying vanishing landmarks of the Niagara Peninsula.

One of the artists, George Balbar of St. Catharines, has also designed a series of notecards of sketches of old Niagara buildings.

Wood carvings, glassware, science-cut acrylics, candle making dried flower arrangements, quilting and rug making will also be added to the showroom.

In addition to the work being displayed and sold in the showroom of the old canning factory, the public will be able to look behind the scenes and watch unexpected demonstrations of the crafts.

The Thalmanns, who were associated with a similar type of venture at Upper Canada Village before coming to Niagara several years ago, are planning to provide studio space for artists to work undisturbed on the third floor of the building.

They feel there is a need for a crafts centre, both to give area artists an outlet and to provide crafts of a high calibre for the many tourists who come to this area of rich historic interest.

Due to open about the same time as the crafts centre is a restaurant named The Pillar and the Post, for the old posts and heavy beams are still remaining in the building. To continue the theme of age, with the mellowed bricks and open fireplace, waiters will be garbed in period costume.

Good Study Habits for Students

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Before you sit down to plug for that exam, get anything off your chest that is worrying you. If you are wondering whether Barb or Joan will go out with you Saturday night, call her up and find out. If you have an uncomfortable feeling that mother is displeased with you, clear the air and explain your side of it.

Do your studying in a quiet room sitting on a straight chair with good light over your right shoulder. When you work out your study schedule, draw columns for each day of the week. Take everything into consideration and allow a fair amount of study for each subject, keeping in mind the one you find the toughest.

Make allowances for some breaks in the schedule, but don't break up completely. If you do it right your organized study habits will be reflected in better exam marks.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 39. My boy friend wants me to move to where he is but I don't think Mom and Dad will let me go. They say something might happen to me — I might get killed or something.

The way I see it is if anything is going to happen to me it will happen wherever I'm at. He said he would look after me and make me happy.

I told him that he's not letting me get married until he dies. That's foolishness. Mom and Dad like my boy friend but maybe I will love him if I listen to them.

— In I Settle.

Dear An I: Not selfish — eager for life. But think over these points:

(1) Your parents want you to go to summer school. You'll need all the education you can get to get a good job in that distant city.

(2) Loving parents long to wrap their little ones in cotton wool. To them it doesn't seem like 20 years since you were completely dependent.

(3) A few months' separation will let you know just how genuine your love is.

(4) You are old enough to leave home if you want to. He is a good sport about the extra studies, and then, if you do decide to travel later, ask for their blessing.

* * *

Confidential to Amateur Decorator: My interior decorating prowess is mainly confined to food. However, since you ask me, I'd say the tek rose paint is just right to blend with the piece of tile you sent me.

Most bathrooms are fairly small and light colors are needed to keep them bright. One friend of mine painted her small bathroom flamingo, and she said it makes it so dark, she could no longer read in the bathtub!

You can lighten up this tea rose shade if you need to, by blending in a little white paint.

(If something is troubling you, there's help to be had. Write to Doris for another slant on your difficulty.)

Trenton's Milligan Gets Jump on Quinte Track Entrants

Bay of Quinte athletes didn't burn up the CNE track at the all Ontario track and field champions this weekend, but they did put on a highly respectable showing against the top secondary school trackstars from all over the province.

A total of 1,027 athletes from 220 differend Ontario Secondary schools competed in the two-day meet, which finished Saturday afternoon.

"Any time you place against this kind of competition it's almost like a bonus," said Trenton coach Peter Howe, whose athletes gave the strongest local showing. "The Ontario meet is probably the third or fourth toughest in North America. Collegiate and Texas have better times, while New York States are roughly the same."

Glen Milligan was the best of Trenton Junior long-jumper the Bay of Quinte competitors, placing second in the long jump with a leap of 21' 9¼" to trail Ottawa high schooler Alex Berke's record-setting distance of 22' 8".

Dave Thompson was another standout as he clipped off a 2:02.4 performance in the midget 800 metres to place fourth. He was closely followed by Motra rival Dave Rutherford, who turned in a 2:03.1 performance. Either runner's mark would have been good enough to win the OFSAA title last year, and Thompson's would have captured the last five All-Ontario crowns. The Trenton runner also added a sixth place finish in the midget 400 metres.

Other Trenton athletes competing were miler Duncan Rogerson whose excellent timing of 4:27.5 was good for seventh place in the senior 1600 metres, Grant Martin who came, sixth in the midget 1600 with a time of 4:47.4 and junior triple jumper Duncan Armstrong with a distance of 40' 5", good for eighth place.

Senior sprinter Frank Johnston of Centennial was the best of the Belleville athletes, finishing fifth in both the 100 and 400 metres.

Johnston turned in a 49.5 timing in the senior 400 which he won in a time of 48.8. "Frank got kind of a bad break because he was on the inside lane and the runner in second pulled up lane." Claimed his coach Bruce Faulds," so Frank had no one to pace him until they owned out the stagger."

The Centennial coach was "highly pleased" with the performances by Johnston and Judy Tyner who finished sixth in the junior high jump with a six-foot effort.

BCI 800 metre runner Dave Simonds also came through with a six - place finish as he turned in a time of 1:57.4 in the junior division.

Quinte performers Jim Sled and Ron Casey failed to reach the top circle of performers, although Sled turned in a fine 10.9 performance in a heat of the senior 100 metres.

Picton's Paul Cory showed he belongs with the top distance runners in the province as he finished fifth with a time of 8:39. In the open 3,000 metres.

Kinsmen Rally Too Late to Halt 11-9 Sunday Loss

Belleville Juniors came with "too little, too late," despite scoring six times in the last two innings as they dropped an 11-9 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association game to Little Britain Sunday.

Despite outhitting the home team 15-10 the Juniors came out on the short end of the scoring as Little Britain capitalized on two hits, a walk and four Belleville errors to score six times in the sixth frame.

The Kinsmen rallied in the ninth to score four times as Craig Runge opened with a triple and Duval and Rick Meeker followed with one-out hits. A pair of walks and Steve Moore's base-hit gave Belleville the home team two more runs on base before the home team was able to put out the fire.

Garnie Adams went the distance for Belleville, allowing 10 hits, fanning 14 batters and walking four. Osbourne pitched the Little Britain win, allowing 15 hits but setting 18 of the Kinsmen down on strikes.

Dale Duvall and Chris Carleton each had a double and two singles to lead the losers' attack. Other top batters were Steve Moore with three singles Randy Barks with a triple and Kinsmen Rick Meagher with a pair of base hits.

The Kinsmen's next action comes Tuesday night at the Fairgrounds when they play a South Hastings League doubleheader with Read and Shannonville.

Jim McCreary (centre) credited much of his success in Sunday's Bay of Quinte Country Club Opening Men's Field Day to successful wedge play. McCreary's 74 was the best gross score recorded in the 111-entry field. An 80 by Fred Smith (right) and a 90 by Bill Coughlan made them low gross winners in the B and C flights, respectively.

Still Afloat

Bill Bonnell is still afloat, but he's lost the right of way!

The tremendously past-commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club was installed Saturday as the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron's 1970 Commander.

Other officers inducted into the Belleville squadron's annual change of watch were: executive officer — Charlie Bristol; training officer—Reg. Morry; secretary — Frank Wilcox; treasurer — Vic Allen; and lieutenants — Lee Jozwiak, George Shaw, Bob Tyndorf, G. T. Wallace, Peter Burnett and Ross Dafoe of Madoc.

Shannonville Cash In Plane's Errors

Shannonville was behind on hits but ahead on the scoreboard as timely hitting and offensive mistakes by Plane's Concrete combined to give the Hawks a 7-2 South Hastings Baseball victory Sunday.

Shannonville scored four times in the winners allowing six hits, striking out 8 batters.

Lions Boot Nine in Loss

The Belleville Lions Midgets lost a "comedy of errors" to Port Hope absorbing a 10-4 loss while committing a total of nine fielding miscues in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play Sunday.

Carman McCaffery and Stan Brooks worked on the losers' mound giving up seven hits while they fanned 13 batters and gave up five bases on balls.

Doug Denmark and Dan Lapenotis each had a double for Belleville which saw a four - run rally in the final inning fall short.

Sinclair's Six Sets Record For Riverview Speedway

John Sinclair made his presence felt at the Riverview Speedway Saturday night as he guided his stylized 1955 Pontiac to three wins.

Included in Sinclair's performances was a 20.2 second lap, a track record for six-cylinder cars.

In the super Feature Sinclair took the lead from Wayne Foster and picked up his third checkered flag of the night.

Bill Cooney holds the top driver point totals with 228 followed closely by Sam Dingman with 226 points.

White and Larry Marshall split the pitching chores for Mead Johnson allowing seven hits, fanning five and walking four batters. Carl Gauthier took the blame giving up 11 safeties, while fanning nine walks and getting six men on strikes.

Generaux collected three singles for Mead Johnson with Young doubling and singling and May chipping in a pair of singles. Collins paced UIC with three safeties.

In the other league game played on the weekend Ameri-can Optical came up with their first win of the season as they stopped Deloro Stellite 8-4.

Rick Halsey pitched the win for AOCO allowing five hits, striking out two and walking eight. McCoy took the loss, also pitching a five hitter while walking three men and fanning two.

Nobles had three of the winners' hits with a triple and two singles. Sheriff doubled and Bob Ben singled for the other safeties.

Dennis Lane led the losers with a pair of singles with other safeties going to Dave Shelly, Ken Kleinsturber and Bill Elliott.

Imlach Will Pick Perreault If Coin Flips in His Favor

MONTREAL (CP) — Punch Imlach general manager of the fledgling Buffalo Sabres in the expanded National Hockey League says he will try to pick up highly-rated Gilbert Perreault in the NHL's amateur draft Thursday.

Perreault, team captain of the national champion Montreal Junior Canadiens, is rated No. 1 draft choice by most, NHL scouts.

In an interview Sunday, Imlach, former coach of Toronto Maple Leafs also said the Sabres will ask that the toss to get first pick in both the amateur and expansion drafts be held earlier than scheduled in the two-day annual league meetings.

The loser of the toss will have first pick of goalies and Imlach suggests that it be moved up so the teams can plan strategy for Wednesday's expansion and Thursday's amateur drafts.

Vancouver Canucks, the other new NHL entry and Buffalo are expected to finish with considerably less quality for considerably more money than their 1967 expansion predecessors. Each will pay $6,000,000 for the privileges of bringing the NHL to a 16 - team, two - division league.

The price is three times what it cost St. Louis, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Minnesota, Oakland and Los Angeles for membership three years ago.

In the 1967 expansion draft, each of the six existing clubs protected 11 skaters and one goaltender. This time around each of the 12 clubs can protect 15 skaters plus two goaltenders.

First-year, professionals and all amateurs under 23 years of age Dec. 31, 1979, are exempt from the draft.

Vancouver and Buffal each will draft until they have obtained 18 skaters and two goalies. Maximum loss from each existing club will be three players and one goalie.

Tuesday, the day before the expansion draft, the NHL will hold its annual intra-league draft in which they protect 18 players with all goalies first-year pros and amateurs under 22 years old Dec. 31, 1979 exempt.

The clubs pick' from each other, at $20,000 a choice, starting with Los Angeles. Owned by Toronto, Philadelphia, Montreal, Oakland, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, New York, Detroit, Boston and Chicago.

In the amateur draft Thursday Buffalo and Vancouver get the first two picks of junior players who have reached their 20th birthdays between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31 this year. This will be followed with selections by existing clubs in reverse order to the last pro-bal picked during last season's play.

The two new teams will not be allowed to trade their first and second amateur choices for at least three years.

American Hockey League and Western Hockey League clubs for the first time get amateur choices when the NHL is through.

Before the amateur draft Thursday AHL and WHL teams can pick up to two players from each of the 14 major league teams who each protect 22 players, including four goaltenders, against the $15,000 draft price.

Today the NHL rules committee will consider several changes.

Top Seeds Taken Out

WINNIPEG (CP) — The top-rated players from both Canada and the Commonwealth Caribbean were withdrawn Sunday from final singles competition because of injuries and sickness with Canada already winner of its North American zone Davis Cup tennis elimination round.

Mike Belkin of Canada, who was to face the Caribbean's Richard Russell today suffered recurring back trouble and will be replaced by Peter Burwash, Canada's third-rated player.

And Russell, hindered in his first singles match by flu, was reported suffering tennis elbow and severely blistered hands after Sunday's doubles match. Leo Rolle of the Caribbean is to replace him today.

Today's games mean nothing to the outcome of the tie but must be played out.

Saturday, John Sharpe, a 30-year-old stockbroker from Toronto, via Australia, came up with a key first-match victory to lead Canada into the second round against New Zealand in Winnipeg next weekend.

"That was a strategic game and Sharpe came up with some terrific tennis," said non-playing captain Lawrie Strong of Toronto.

In the match, Sharpe pulled out a victory over Caribbean captain Russell, beating the veteran in five sets, 6-8, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1 and 6-1.

Belkin won the second singles match, defeating Lancel Lamden in five sets, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, 3-6 and 6-0.

The win Sunday in the doubles put the best-of-five series on ice for the Canadians in what was considered a mild upset.

The Caribbean doubles team of Russell and Lumsden had been given the edge, mainly because of their many years of playing as a team.

But Belkin and Sharpe took the doubles in straight 6-2 sets.

"I guess we just lost whatever spirit we had," said Russell.

"We really thought we were better than Canada at doubles . . . and we had spent all week concentrating on the singles."

Russell said he thought the major factor in their doubles loss was that they couldn't settle down to a pattern against the separate styles of the Canadians.

Russell agreed that his first singles match against Sharpe was the key. But the Caribbean captain said he had been bedridden Friday on the advice of a doctor after coming down with a mild case of the flu.

"I was feeling pretty good after a warmup and thought that with a little luck I could get by Sharpe. I tried to pace myself . . ."

But he said that at the start of the fourth set, when he held a 2-1 lead in sets, "I didn't have any strength left."

Sharpe, who came to Canada from Australia in 1965, said he was a little surprised in his last two sets against Russell.

"It seemed that he (Russell) just ran out of gas."

Pele Pass Puts England on Ropes

Pele, the undisputed "king" of world soccer players, is seen fighting for possession of the ball with England's Terry Cooper during the first half of Sunday World Cup game in which Brazil beat defending champion England 1-0. (AP Photo)

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Brazilian winger Jairzinho swept up a pass from the celebrated Pele, rounded an English defender and fired the ball home from eight yards Sunday to hand England a 1-0 defeat in World Cup soccer competition.

The goal in the fifth minute left the defending World Cup champions from England with a must-win situation in its next game.

Brazilian rooters and Mexican friends among the 70,000 fans set off a deafening barrage of firecrackers as time ran out on England's bid to get back into the game. Bad shooting cost England many fine chances.

The euphoria in the stadium was nothing compared with scenes in Mexico's streets after the host entry downed the weak El Salvador squad 4-0 Sunday, although Mexico is not yet assured of a quarter-final berth.

Eight games were played in the hectic weekend of World Cup action. Other Sunday results were West Germany 5, Bulgaria 2; Sweden 1, Israel 1.

On Saturday, the Soviet Union downed Belgium 4-1, Italy and Uruguay fought a defensive battle to a 0-0 tie, Peru stopped Morocco 3-0 and Romania defeated Czechoslovakia 3-1.

Of the 16 teams competing here, only West Germany and Peru have clinched entry into the quarter-finals. At the other end of the scale, Bulgaria, Morocco and El Salvador already know they are eliminated.

All 16 teams will play Wednesday and Thursday to wind up the round-robin competition which is being waged in four groups of four teams. The top two teams from each group go into the quarter-finals.

In the unofficial battle between Europe and South America, the Latins are away ahead with Mexico, Brazil and Uruguay leading their groups and Peru level with West Germany in another.

Each of the 16 competing nations has played two games but only three—Brazil, Peru and West Germany—have collected the maximum four points.

With three points are Mexico and Russia in Group I and Uruguay and Italy in Group II. In Group III, England and Romania , trail Brazil with two points each.

Belgium has two points in Group I and Sweden and Israel one each in Group II. The four countries without a point are Czechoslovakia, El Salvador, Bulgaria and Morocco.

Jockeying for a favorable quarter-final slot can be expected this week.

In the knockout quarter-final games next Sunday, Groups I and II are bracketed together, as are Groups III and IV. The top team in each plays the second-place team in the other.

Lotz Over $100,000 After Kemper Win

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Winning, says Dick Lotz, begets winning.

"It was awfully important to me, winning at Alameda," he said Sunday after winning the Kemper open golf championship.

"I started getting paired with tour winners and I could see what they did, how they did it, and convinced myself I could play as well as they did.

"That Mr. Monsanto, well, that gave me confidence."

The 27-year-old Californian was a virtual unknown until he won the $150,000 Monsanto open golf tournament two months ago.

He added the Kemper Open Sunday and with the $30,000 first prize, vaulted into second place on the money list at almost $100,000.

He came from one stroke off the pace with a one-under-par 71 for 278, 10 under par on the 7,331-yard Quail Hollow Country Club course, and overhauled faltering Lou Graham, the leader through the second and third rounds.

"I just donated it," said Graham, who struggled home with a 71 for 280. He was tied at that figure two strokes off the pace, with Tom Weiskopf, Larry Hinson and Grier Jones.

Dan Sikes, Bob Lunn, Steve Reid, and Lionel Hebert were tied at 281. Rod Funseth was alone at 282 and Arnold Palmer, who had a final 70, topped the group at 283.

Toronto's George Knudson and Al Balding each finished with a 289, worth $430. Knudson's four-round score was 71-71-69-78—289 and Balding's 71-69-74-75—289.

Sports on All Fronts

LUTHERVILLE, Md. (AP) — Shirley Englehorn won her third consecutive Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament Sunday by capturing the Lady Carling Open at Pine Ridge Golf Course by one stroke with a 210 total. Miss Engelhorn posted a two-under-par 71 to beat hometown favorite Carol Mann out of first-place money of $3,375. Miss Mann shot 72 after sharing the 36-hole lead with Miss Englehorn.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg is the "prime site" for a franchise in the AAA International League, Jim Fanning, general manager of the Montreal Expos of the National League, said Sunday. Fanning is in Winnipeg to discuss the possibility of moving the Buffalo franchise of the International League to this city. Buffalo was told by the league last week it would have to relocate. Both Buffalo and Winnipeg Goldeyes of the Class A Northern League are farm clubs of the Expos.

TORONTO (CP) — Olympic sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver Saturday won the 100-metre dash at the National Invitational track and field meet in 10.3 seconds, missing his own Canadian open record by eight-tenths of a second.

NEW YORK (AP) — Intrepid and Valiant square off today and Tuesday in the opening races of the America's Cup preliminary trials to select a defender against challenges from France and Australia in the 12-metre yachting classic. Intrepid and Valiant will test each other in several races on Long Island Sound each day before the third potential Cup defender, Heritage, arrives for competition that will continue through Friday. The three yachts also will compete in trials off Newport, R.I., July 7 and again beginning Aug. 18 until a defender is chosen. Australia is preparing an all new challenger, Gretel II, and France will have a yacht named France. The challenge finals begin off Newport, R.I., Sept. 15.

PARIS (AP) — Margaret Court of Australia easily rolled to her second title toward a tennis grand slam by defeating Helga Niessen of West Germany 6-2, 6-4 Sunday in the women's singles final of the French Open. The 27-year-old Mrs. Court, who previously won the Australian championship, used an amazing display of power and finesse to win her fourth French crown. She now needs only the Wimbledon and U.S. titles to duplicate the feat of Maureen Connolly of the United States in 1953.

TORONTO (CP) — Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., set a record in the 100-yard freestyle Saturday to lead a group of 11 Ontario swimmers who qualified for the national championships in Winnipeg next month. Miss Coughlan covered the 100-yard freestyle in 58.6 seconds to beat the old mark of 52.2 on a 25-yard course shared by Elaine Tanner of Vancouver and Sue Smith of Edmonton.

PANAMA (AP) — Ismael Laguna of Panama mounted a methodical, relentless attack on Ishimatsu Suzuki and pounded out a technical knockout victory over the game Japanese challenger in the 12th round to maintain his world's lightweight title Saturday night.

Improving with Age?

MONTREAL (CP) — Pacer Laverne Hanover reined by George Sholty won the $75,000 Prix d'Ete Sunday at Blue Bonnets Raceway to establish a Canadian record for the distance for aged pacers—horses which are older than three years.

Laverne Hanover covered the mile in 1:57 2-5 to best a field of eight in Canada's richest harness race.

His mark bettered the old record for aged pacers of 1:58 set by True Duane. Laverne Hanover's time was only 1-5 of a second of the Canadian 'all time' record for the mile of 1:57.1 set by Romalea Hanover at Blue Bonnets in 1957.

The world record held by Romeo Hanover, is 1:56 1-5.

Laverne Hanover, owned by Thomas Murphy Jr. of New York, had not won in seven previous starts this year.

His $37,500 top prize Sunday brought his life winnings to $529988.

Outscore Braves 25-7

Mauch Talks Expos Into Triple Sweep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Gene Mauch's Montreal Expos up-load the Atlanta host Friday they had just lost 11 straight baseball games and were looking forward to more beatings against the Braves in a three-game weekend series.

But manager Mauch called a clubhouse meeting and told his men they could win. Mauch believed him and swept the series, winding up with a 10-1 rout Sunday after 12-4 and 3-2 victories Saturday and Friday.

"He expected to be splattered on the wall," pitcher Carl Morton said in describing the Expos' mood when they arrived in Atlanta.

"But Gene just talked baseball to us. He told us to play aggressively and that we could win if we thought we could win but that we would keep losing if we thought we would lose.

"He relaxed the whole team. You could tell the difference as soon as we left the clubhouse."

In other National League action Sunday, Cincinnati Reds whipped New York Mets 10-2, Pittsburgh Pirates beat Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1, Chicago Cubs downed San Francisco Giants 8-4, St. Louis Cardinals defeated San Diego Padres 10-7 and Philadelphia Phillies drubbed Houston Astros 10-3.

Saturday, the Reds beat the Mets 5-1 San Francisco downed the Cubs 5-3, San Diego edged the Cards 3-4 and the Phillies rapped Houston 7-3.

Bob Bailey socked two homers and Coco Laboy one as the Expos lashed out 15 hits in support of Morton's 18-hit, pitching Sunday. The Braves' only run was unearned as the rookie right-hander boosted his record to 5-3. Morton a former outfielder in the Braves' farm system helped his own cause with two singles.

Rusty Staub hit his first career grand-slam home run Saturday to cap a seven-run eighth inning. John Boccabella and Laboy also hit homers to back pitcher Bill Stoneman in his third win this year.

Cincinnati rookie Wayne Simpson breezed to his eighth victory to nine decisions Sunday as Johnny Bench drilled a three-run homer, Lee May a solo shot and Tony Perez a two-run triple.

The Cubs clouted five home runs to beat the Giants and maintain their four-game lead over Pittsburgh in the East Division. Billy Williams snapped a 4-4 tie with a seventh-inning single and Jim Hickman followed with a homer. Johnny Callison, Williams and Jackie Hiatt all homered for the Cubs in the fourth and Cleo James hit one out in the eighth.

Rigney Proves Twins Tough in Pinch

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manager Bill Rigney uncovered his bench strength Sunday, twice producing runs with a pinch-hitter for a pinch-hitter as Minnesota wins outscored Washington Senators 10-9 to keep a three-game lead in the American League's West Division over California Angels.

The unusual repeat situation in a single game developed when Rigney engaged in a battle of wits with Washington field boss Ted Williams.

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Baltimore Orioles edged Milwaukee Brewers 7-6, Chicago White Sox downed New York Yankees 6-1 in 13 innings, Cleveland Indians defeated California 8-4, Oakland Athletics dropped Detroit Tigers 5-3 and Boston Red Sox won two games, 7-4 and 5-2, from Kansas City Royals.

Saturday, New York clipped Chicago 3-1, Milwaukee toppled Baltimore 6-4, Detroit downed Oakland by the same score, Minnesota dumped Washington 8-2, and California edged Cleveland 2-1.

With the score tied 3-3 in the sixth inning, the Twins loaded the bases against the Senators and Rigney summoned right-handed pinch-hitter Bob Allison to face George Brunet, the Senators' left-handed pitcher.

Williams countered by replacing Brunet with Dick Bosman, a right-hander. Rigney, perplexed over the right-left percentage strategy, replaced Allison with Rich Reese, a left-handed hitter.

The result was a grand-slam home run by Reese and a 7-3 Minnesota lead.

The Senators pecked away at the four-run deficit and forced extra innings, tying the score 7-7 with two runs in the eighth and two more in the ninth.

In the Minnesota 11th, consecutive singles by Leo Cardenas, Harmon Killebrew and Tony Oliva gained an 8-7 lead.

Rigney then repeated his double pinch-hitter act and Charley Manuel kept the rally going with a single. Jim Holt followed with a two-run single for a three-run Minnesota lead.

The Twins needed the cushion as Frank Howard hit a two-run double for the Senators.

Trainer Had Two Belmont Aces

NEW YORK (AP) — Trainer John Jacobs lost his ace for the Belmont Stakes but he still had a trump card and jockey John L. Rotz played it perfectly.

The ace-personality missed Saturday's Belmont because of a cough but the trump card — High Echelon — won the pot from nine rivals for Jacobs and his mother Ethel who own the two colts.

"I lost my ace but had a lot of faith in High Echelon," Jacobs said. High Echelon vindicated that faith by beating Thomas F. Fleming's Needles N Pens by three-quarters of a length after a perfect ride by Rotz.

High Echelon winless in nine previous starts, not only picked up the winning knack from his Preakness-winning stablemate he also apparently contracted Personality's ailment.

Personality, who followed his Wood Memorial victory with a disappointing eighth in the Kentucky Derby but then won the Preakness and Jersey Derby, developed a nasal discharge and a cough. Jacobs who entered him in the Belmont Friday morning, declared him out later in the day.

Jacobs said he plans to rest both halves of his one-two punch pointing them for the Monmouth Invitational Aug. 8.

High Echelon had finished third in the 1¼-mile Kentucky Derby and fourth in each of the 1 3-16-mile Preakness and the 1¼-mile Jersey Derby.

In winning the $158,750 Belmont, timed in 2:34 over a sloppy track High Echelon charged through the middle of the stretch to pass Brookmeade Stable's pace-setting Chieftain and Her-Jac Stable's Naskra inside the eighth pole and then withstood Needles N Pens. Needles N Pens was second by a neck over Naskra, who was a head in front of Climber.

Raymond M. Curtis' My Dad George second in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and the Belmont favorite after Personality's withdrewal, was fifth in the field of 10 three-year-olds.

High Echelon paid a winning mutuel of $11 and picked up first money of $115,000 in taking the first Belmont run without the Derby and Preakness winners since 1964. Derby winner Dust Commander came up with a sore ankle after his steeplechase Preakness finish.

Profits Squeeze Means Firms Can't Give Big Wage Increases

MONTREAL (CP) — Retiring president L. F. Wills told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today that the squeeze on corporate profits means that business can no longer accept hefty wage increases such as those of the late 1960s.

Mr. Wills, chief executive officer of Honeywell Controls Ltd., Scarborough, Ont., said that "government and labor, no less than management, will have to note the downward trend of corporate profits."

The last quarter of 1969 was the first time since the recession days of 1960 that profits fell in this normally most-buoyant quarter of any year," he told opening business sessions of the association's 104th annual convention. "The first quarter of the current year also makes for distressing news."

The convention opened in what an association newsletter termed a "serious mood."

"The combination of soaring costs, falling profits, dear credit and softening markets makes for an unpalatable short-term picture," the newsletter said.

"The confidence of manufacturers in Canada's long-term outlook, however, remains undimmed."

J. C. Whitelaw, general manager, told today's session that businesses would have to continue emphasis on efficient production and marketing, but would have to maintain "an interest in these broader questions of concern to society."

Mr. Wills, in his presidential report, said "it's getting nearly as hard for business to earn a dollar as to keep it."

"In these circumstances, there can no longer be any question of manufacturing companies generally being able to agree to the kind of wage settlements which have been the fashion in the second half of the '60s."

He said labor could be expected to apply as much pressure as ever "but the difference now is that their efforts will be far more likely to result in layoffs, short time and fewer jobs than in the past."

"We're in a situation where the Canadian consumer is noticeably less willing and able to pay the cost of these settlements and management, at least, realize it."

Mr. Wills said he is not trying to "lay all the blame for inflation at labor's door."

"But it would be equally wrong to underplay the chain-reacting consequences of the many unreasonable settlements forced on industries by unionists who, in many cases, were already among the best – paid members of the labor force."

Mr. Wills said industry had agreed to the voluntary price restraint program of the prices and incomes commission and resisted the temptation to withdraw its support "in the wake of organized labor's resounding negation of any thought of voluntary moderation of wage demands."

He said it was discouraging that these voluntary restraints by industry, which amounted to a "voluntary reduction of profits," accomplished so little in slowing rising prices.

"We recognize that it is in our own interests as well as the country's that we do everything we can to hold down prices—but that means that costs, essentially labor costs, must be restrained and that is not within the powers of a one-sided arrangement."

Mr. Wills said there was no justification for business to refuse demands for higher wages and better benefits, "which are demonstrably related to productivity improvement."

Mr. Whitelaw said business would have to try even harder to understand youth.

"The current upheaval and expressions of dissatisfaction with the status quo are not to be ignored, nor the restless challenges of 'youth power' lightly dismissed," he said.

Auto Workers Won't Limit Demands

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — The new president of the United Auto Workers union said Saturday inflation will not hold the union back in its efforts to get higher wages for its members.

Leonard Woodcock, elected last week to succeed Walter Reuther who died in a plane crash last month, told a weekend conference of the Canadian UAW council:

"We've got to set the record straight. The notion that labor is the cause of inflation is nonsense. Labor is the victim of inflation."

Mr. Woodcock said earnings of 47,000,000 United States workers engaged in non-agricultural occupations, in terms of 1957-59 dollars, were down by two per cent in the first quarter of 1970 compared with the first quarter of 1965.

The wage and salary increase of the U.S. population on the whole, however, was up 18.3 per cent over the same period, he said.

Mr. Woodcock said the UAW is going to pursue the same negotiation policies as in the past.

Emil Mazey, the union's secretary-treasurer, Douglas Fraser, vice-president, echoed Mr. Woodcock's prediction that there will be no change in union policies.

"Walter Reuther's collective bargaining and social goals were our goals," Mr. Mazey said. "We worked them out with him. We will pursue them as vigorously as we know how and we will win in 1970."

Said Mr. Fraser:

"People outside the union who say we will change don't know our union. The policies of our union are made by the whole board. We may have a different style but we will be even more determined. We all know that we have to be even better than before as Walter wanted."

At a news conference later, Mr. Woodcock said the UAW would not limit demands for wage increases in the face of inflation.

Exploitation Charge Denied In Jobs for Quebec Girls

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Poritz, 25, whose Mothers' Summer Helpers agency is being investigated by the Ontario labor department for "apparent exploitation of French-Canadian female teen-agers," said Sunday the charge is "totally unfounded."

Mr. Poritz was replying to an accusation by Pierre Laporte, Quebec's labor minister, who said Friday he would take "strong measures" to put an end to the treatment of Quebecers as "cheap labor."

Mr. Poritz said in an interview his domestic help agency had been founded two years ago with the help of a French-Canadian friend to assist Quebec girls in finding summer jobs in Ontario.

Although the agency had never advertised in Quebec province, he said, "it looks as if we'll have at least 50 more girls than families wanting them this summer."

The families are charged $15 a week for the service, $10 of which is paid to the girl and $5 to the agency.

He added that besides the weekly salary and the opportunity to learn English, the girls are provided with free board, lodgings and recreation.

Mr. Poritz said an indication of success was that 80 per cent of 90 girls who came last summer stayed for the full eight weeks of the program.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself!... Do you realize you're the first man in the neighborhood to let his wife get away with lavender pillowslips."

Levesque and His Top Aides Will Contest Their Defeats

QUEBEC (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, said Sunday the party will contest results in three Montreal ridings in the April 29 provincial election.

Mr. Levesque, economist, Jacques Parizeau, and Pierre Bourgault were defeated respectively in the Montreal ridings of Laurier Alnaudat and Mercier.

Mr. Levesque claimed Sunday electoral irregularities contributed to their defeats.

He said the party may also contest election results in Fabre and Bourassa, two Montreal ridings that went Liberal in the landslide victory of Robert Bourassa.

The Parti Quebecois won seven of the 108 seats in the April 29 election, but it received 22 per cent of the popular vote. All but one of the seats are on east-end Montreal Island.

Mr. Levesque noted that under Quebec electoral laws, the party has until Tuesday to bring their case before the courts.

He gave two examples of what he called election irregularities: that non-naturalized Canadians cast ballots and that some eligible voters were disfranchised without reason.

PLANT OPENED

CASCADES, B.C. (CP) — A $1,500,000 particle board plant has been opened in this Kootenay area community 215 miles east of Vancouver. It employs 70 men. The federal government contributed 25 per cent of the cost of the plant under the regional development scheme.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'd be a liberated woman your way!" "I'll be a liberated woman my way!"

Nude Pair Takes Communion

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — About 800 communicants maintained their composure when a nude couple took communion at the American Lutheran Church's Southeastern Minnesota district convention.

The couple identified only as being in their late teens or early 20s, got some shocked reactions but did not disrupt the service Friday night as they partook of bread and wine at Coffman Memorial Union on the University of Minnesota campus.

"The zealots were disappointed that they didn't get more reaction," Rev. Gordon Dahl, pastor of the Lutheran Campus Ministry at the university, said Saturday. "They apparently wanted to shock the convention."

He said the couple disrobed when the communion procession formed.

They entered the communion lines, and knelt and received the basic elements when they approached the stations.

Rev. Sheldon Torgerson dispensed bread and wine to the kneeling nude woman.

"We didn't challenge her and she didn't challenge us," he said.

"She came very respectfully. My feeling was that she was very devout. There were no smirks remarks or obscenities of any kind."

Founder of Canadian Nazis Orders Party Dissolved

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The president of the Canadian National Socialists party said Saturday the party will be dissolved so that members can align with the National Socialist White Peoples' Party in the United States.

However, his party chairman, Martin Weiche of London, repudes his authority to do so.

John Beattie, self-styled leader of the party, said the move is designed to ready a force to protect the white race in North America when anarchy inevitably takes hold on the continent.

WALL DESIGNS

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Felix De Sabato, a 26-year-old former Yugoslav immigrant, has developed a paint roller he says can apply designs on a wall in eight colors at the same time. He said the rubber roller can be changed to allow 400 different designs. Special paint, used in preparation for the roller designs, will last longer than wallpaper and is washable, he said.

Peace Festival Appears to Be Doomed

TORONTO (CP) — "It really was such a fantastic idea."

That's the epitaph John Brewer suggested during the weekend for the Toronto Peace Festival, his dream that has grown into a nightmare in the last nine months.

"I just can't believe it, man" Brewer said in an interview, virtually admitting there will be no festival.

"The peace festival could have done so much for Canada and for understanding and for the alternative (peace) movement. There was no limit to what we could do."

He is bitter at Cardwell Township and a number of others—the provincial police and Beatle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, when he described as totally "phoney."

He said the row about the latest proposed site for the festival, Cardwell Township, against which he is currently fighting in the Ontario Supreme Court, didn't start until after a contract had been signed.

After township council agreed to allow the festival, he said, council members were shown movies by provincial police of couples making love at the Woodstock N.Y., rock festival and of controversial Lennon lithographs.

He becomes incensed at the laconic police comment that "we are not trying to kill the festival; we are trying to point out the dangers."

In a Supreme Court hearing last Wednesday, when Kenyas was refused an injunction to passing bylaws which would prohibit the festival there, the court was told that Mr. Brewer had approached the township with an idea for "a music festival" that would attract some 25,000 persons.

The township's lawyer,, Bert MacKinnon, told the court the township's council members changed their minds about allowing the festival there after they heard Mr. Brewer speaking on local radio stations about holding a rock festival which would attract some 250,000 persons.

Mr. Brewer, president of Karma Productions Ltd., which was to have been the greatest show on earth as far as he and other organizers were concerned, has dwindled and has left little more than bitterness about the peace festival which was to have been the greatest show on earth as far as he and other organizers were concerned, has dwindled and has left little more than bitterness.

He says he hasn't given up completely yet. If a peace festival can't get off the ground in Canada maybe he'll go and produce one in the U.S.

Boy's Tape On LSD Is Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — "Can't think. Can't think. Can't think . . . You really get messed up boy, on that stuff. You might hear it sooner or later. Mom but I'm sorry Mom, Dad and Bill. Sorry that your little boy has turned into an LSD addict."

Those halting words by Craig Dexter Gardner were played at his funeral in Salt Lake City last February. He made the tape recording shortly before shooting himself to death at the age of 18.

"I been getting pretty stoned lately and you just don't know what's real and what isn't real. You really don't. All I can say is I had to find out myself—kind of poor excuse, you know—I really shouldn't have taken any dope at all—any acid or I shouldn't have started off with any grass, either. Course grass isn't bad—it's the acid that got to me."

In all the tape runs for 13 minutes. Dis-jointed. Rambling. Unable to cope with it. References to ending it all.

Since it was first played at his funeral the tape has been heard across the continent and it is finding responsive audiences in hundreds of schools.

Young Gardner's mother, Mrs. William J. Blaine of Kearns, Utah, said in an interview, "It was a shock I guess, to all of us, but we also felt with him leaving this tape, that maybe there was a purpose to it, that maybe it wasn't just a complete waste, that maybe this tape could help others."

Supersonic Jet Could Produce Climate Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional critic of the supersonic transport says a secret Boeing Co. study predicts that regular SST operations will produce atmospheric changes that could alter the climate.

Representative Henry S. Reuss (Dem., Wis.) says the study concludes that water vapor placed in the upper atmosphere by the SST will result in increased cloud formation that could significantly decrease the earth's temperature.

CAREFUL GUARDS

LIMA, Peru (AP) — When Roberto Suarez Oliveira, second secretary of the Brazilian embassy, parked his car beside the U.S. embassy and walked inside to see an American diplomat, there were the usual police sidearm guards armed with submachine-guns. When he came out a short time later the guards were still there but his car had been stolen.

Your Car

Car Doors Need Attention And Adjustment Is Possible

By RAY STAPLEY
A reader writes:

My car is a five-year-old, four-door sedan which has gone about 70,000 miles. As hard as I try, there seems to be no way to get the doors to fit in proper adjustment and last week (when making a right hand) the driver's door flew open.

I have spent over $20 with three different repair shops, but shortly after the work is done the doors either rattle or must be slammed hard to make them close properly.

I have a collection of tools and enjoy tinkering with cars. Is there anything I could do to cure this problem? — Mr. C. J., Toronto

No other car component is more taken for granted than the doors, but-like most moving parts they require lubrication and routine adjustments.

Lack of lubricant on the latch mechanism is one of the major causes of malfunctioning doors.

When the doors become difficult to operate the first step is to check for adequate lubrication. The striker plates on the door post or body and the exposed part of the door latch mechanism must be coated with a specially formulated non-staining lubricant that comes in stick form (available at accessory stores).

The hinges on which a door swings should be thoroughly lubricated with general purpose oil.

Over a period of time, especially when a vehicle is driven over rough roads, the doors tend to sag slightly and adjustments are provided to compensate for this condition. Rattles usually indicate that the doors are in need of attention, and to ignore this warning can be dangerous.

Correct position of the striker plates is often the key to proper door operation. In most instances doors can be adjusted by loosening the screws a little and moving the plates slightly inboard. The plates can also be moved up or down to compensate for door sag.

Do-It-yourselfers can experiment by shifting these plates until they find the most suitable position. To keep track of the original position, a pencil line should be drawn all around the outside edge of each striker plate before loosening the screws.

Seldom is it possible to properly lubricate the part of the door latch mechanism that is hidden behind the door panel. These are lubricated at the factory and usually last for several years. But occasionally the mechanism will dry out. When this occurs the locks should be removed from the doors and thoroughly serviced. Worn weather-stripping, or sections of this thick rubber that are torn away, can throw the doors badly out of adjustment.

Problems that stem from damaged doors or bent door hinges should be repaired by a skilled body man.

It helps to open a window slightly before closing a door. This reduces air pressure that builds up briefly inside the car, making a hard tug or a slam unnecessary.

The number of vehicles we see moving along the road with one door ajar is astonishing. Just recently I saw a car filled with children belching along the highway and one of the rear doors was not closed properly.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Weekend Is Ordeal For Many People

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I dread the weekends in our home. The children are grown and away and only my husband and myself now occupy our large house.

He is a hard - working executive in his early 50s, who impresses jokers and depression which begins on Friday night and doesn't end until Monday morning.

During the week he is highspirited and easy to live with. But come the weekend and he mopes, worries and makes life miserable for both of us.

How do you explain this? Is there any answer to this problem? — Mrs. U.

Comment: One of my favorite authors is William Saroyan. I like to read him because he has such a penetrating insight into human beings and their relations with one another. For example, in a short piece called Sunday in A Hell, he writes: "Sunday is the day people go quietly mad one way or another."

Now what does he mean? For one thing, it expresses the truth that for most people it's a trying task to unwind from our daily duties. We have been at full speed during the week, heavy foot on the accelerator, but don't know just how to gently apply the brakes so we slow down safely and painlessly.

Your husband, like many others, suffers from "weekend fatigue." He is like a fish out of water. He misses the oxygen - giving energy he finds in his work. So he mopes around the house.

Your job, as I see it, Mrs. U., is to try to plan your weekends ahead to fill up the void — social engagement on Saturday night; a movie or short car trip on Sunday. Maybe you can get him interested in playing golf. Whatever the remedy, mental, physical or emotional, it seems he needs your help to overcome his weekend depression.

You ask for the answer. It is efficient planning on how to fill those hours which can get quite depressing if they remain empty. It is true that many men are quite content to be left alone on weekends so they can relax and read quietly. But if your husband isn't the type to enjoy such leisure for two days each week then you can help him overcome the blues by remembering that "Sunday is the day people go quietly mad, one way or another."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Is operation the only way to induce abortion? In view of the laws being passed by several states to make it legal under certain circumstances, isn't there an easier way? I should think that abortion might be produced by medicine as well as by scraping the uterus. — Mrs. G.

Comment: Researchers are studying the problem. For example, Drs. S. M. M. Karim and G. M. Filshie, writing in the British medical journal, Lancet say that certain hormone - like chemicals can produce abortion. Dr. Marc Bygdeman and associates of Stockholm also report successful inductions of abortion.

The women do not have to be hospitalized if they are not more than nine weeks pregnant. All this is still in the experimental stage, Mrs. G. However, as you see, an "easier way" than operation is being sought. Treatment, however, will still remain in the hands and judgment of the doctor.

For Mr. L.: I see no reason why under your doctor's care and observation, you can't take eight to 18 aspirin tablets a day for severe rheumatic disease.

However too many people self - treat themselves with daily, large doses of aspirin, who do not realize that it may, in some instances be a harmful drug — causing asthma attacks, gastrointestinal hemorrhage excessive thinning of blood and other complications.

Aspirin is one of our most valuable drugs, but it deserves respect. It should be used with care.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Nature of 'Family' Changed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We may be taking too short a view of what is popularly (and thoughtlessly) called "the generation gap." What is happening between parents and children today may be the end result of a longer process than we have considered.

Around the beginning of the 20th Century, the traditional "extended family" started to be replaced by the modern "atomic family" for the first time in human history — an event almost unmarked and unobserved, except by a few specialists in sociology.

I was the last of my family, for instance, to be born in an "extended" setting — in a house inhabited not only by my parents, but by grandparents and uncles and aunts as well. At that time — by the end of World War I — families were already being atomicized.

That is to say, young people were marrying and setting up their own households free from parental and traditional restraints. The "family" came to consist of a mother and father and several children, and was bound together in a constellation that was uniquely new in human society, replacing the tribe and the clan of the past.

This has become the prevailing pattern for the past couple of generations (as generations used to be measured in 26 year spans), and perhaps it is time we examined its viability. The benefits of marital independence were immediately obvious to young couples: the strain of rearing children in an isolated family constellation was not.

Is it possible that much of the conflict and tension and rebellion of youth in our time springs from the social and emotional insufficiency of the atomicized family? Are a mother and a father alone enough to handle a child, much less several children? Is the double burden of exclusive proximity with each other, and isolation from other families, too heavy for parents and children to bear?

We must at least begin to ask these questions of ourselves. In the past, children were reared by many adults. They could go from one to the other, seeking consolation or understanding, and finding different responses from the varied adult members of the extended family.

The pressure was not nearly so great on the parents alone; decisions were balanced, and authority was diffused. Grandparents, both softened the rigors of growing up and sustained family unity. Even though they had difficulties and conflicts, possibly the not result was supportive for the parents and satisfying for the children. Maybe no family, like no man, was meant to be an island, either.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For June 9

Your birthday today: This will later be called "the year of the unexpected." Aside from a few events (perhaps only a single one) all goes reasonably well. Alternate plans will have to be improvised quickly when the need comes; they will be wise rather than expedient. Today's natives are generally ardent, enthusiastic, enjoy material and family harmony.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The unexpected is characteristic of today. Enjoy the bizarre aspects of the accidental while striving for as nearly normal a schedule as possible.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Be cautious with anything that has an edge or works on power sources. Personal contacts arouse endless discussion, particularly family affairs.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Exploiting a sudden advantage or flashy action in any direction is unlikely to give the results intended and is unfair to somebody you have not considered fully.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Events intrude into your travels. Presence of mind is extremely important in getting your life back on an even keel. There will be much to talk over tonight.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If a project is unrealistic, the flaws will be apparent today. Your full comprehension of any ingenuous results, but be sure that others are kept informed. Be explicit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Fresh information promises to change your whole scene abruptly for the better. Ignore the general tendency of everybody toward disagreement and tedium.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Group action is the better course as unplanned incidents disrupt normal plans. At best this can be a very joke or a prank. Pause to let intuition give you the right lead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your strong mood for independent action today may bring you ingenuous results, but be sure that others are kept informed. Be explicit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Get started early, to make allowance for last minute tangles and some thoughtless words from people around you. Stay out of disagreements.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your private life fills up with pressing issues. Your work may have to be de-emphasized for the time being. Don't stir anybody's temper. Be willing to travel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Whatever happens today includes much discussion, some by people who have no business in it. However, it will eventually bring workable arrangements.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Errors in your work can produce chaos if you are not assiduously wide - awake to double-check things as they pass. Be very easy in your demands on your loved ones.

West Liberals Seek Guaranteed Income

EDMONTON (CP) — Western Liberals decided Sunday that abortion should not be a criminal offence and that welfare programs should be replaced by a guaranteed basic income.

More than 200 delegates attending the party's western policy conference approved resolutions which will be presented to the party's national policy conference in Ottawa in November.

The resolution on abortion attracted the largest debate during the second day of the conference which ends today. It urged that abortion should not be a criminal offence for any reason, when performed by a qualified doctor. It was the only resolution which, when passed, was applauded.

The westerners also urged Parliament to replace, when possible, existing poverty programs through legislation for a guaranteed basic income program administered on the basis of a negative income tax.

They called "for an income level at least as high as the recognized poverty level in Canada and one that will provide an incentive to the working poor."

Another resolution called on the federal government, in co-operation with the provinces, to consider the rights of municipal governments and examine the possibility of setting up a third level of government under the constitution. Municipal governments now are creatures of the provinces, not established under the constitution.

Marketing problems appeared uppermost in agriculture resolutions which Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson told delegates "focussed directly on the problems of Western Canada."

Jordanian Troops Battle Guerrillas

Assassins' Attempt On King's Life Fails

By The Canadian Press

Jordan said King Hussein escaped an assassination attempt today as Jordanian troops and Palestinian Arab guerrillas conducted a bloody battle in and around the capital of Amman.

The battle between Jordanian troops and the guerrillas, who have been a painful thorn in the side of the government for a long time continued to rage even after a ceasefire was announced by Amman radio.

Radio Amman interrupted its normal program to announce that the king's motorcade was fired upon as it was travelling through the town of Sweileh, 12 miles northeast of the capital.

Palestinian guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said the king's driver was wounded in the incident, but gave no other details.

Earlier Radio Israel had reported that Maj-Gen. Sharif Nasser, uncle of the king and commander of the Jordanian army, had been killed. But Amman Radio later issued a denial of this. The Radio Israel report said that the commander had been hit by a stray bullet during street battles.

The street battles came as Jordanian troops moved to curtail guerrilla incursions into Israel. In Jordan and Lebanon, the guerrilla organizations have been a virtual law unto themselves.

Many dead and wounded were reported in the fighting. Radio Amman broadcast during the morning that a ceasefire had been arranged in governmentguerrilla talks. But by the afternoon Jordanian troops were reported shelling guerrilla positions in and around Amman.

The combatants battled with rockets, bazookas, machine-guns and automatic weapons.

Jordan clamped a total censorship on news reports from Amman of what appeared to be the gravest confrontation yet between authorities and the guerrillas.

But Amman Radio announced in the morning that authorities and the central committee of the guerrillas had met and agreed to an immediate ceasefire. They agreed to establish a joint operations room to "supervise and control the situation."

A spokesman for Al Fatah, the largest guerrilla organization, said in Beirut the commandos had respected the ceasefire agreement but "the army has not so far done so."

But travellers reaching Beirut reported many commandos and civilians dead and wounded in a series of battles in which the guerrillas said the troops used artillery and tanks against guerrilla strongholds in the refugee camps which ring Amman.

Some reports from Amman said the guerrillas seemed to be in control of the city centre.

The guerrilla spokesman denied reports from Amman that the army had captured the headquarters of the Palestine Armed Struggle Command.

School Board Deep In Red

By Lenny Williamson
Staff Reporter

Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School Board has budgeted for a deficit of almost half a million this year.

Teachers' salaries and cost of educational services have increased by $405,065 in 1970 and the board is carrying an operating deficit of $117,012 for the 1969 operations.

These increases are offset somewhat by a drop in the costs of business administration, computer services and capital expenditures.

The 1970 estimated expenditures of the board were released today by chairman E. J. Buckley.

The year's budget is $2,574,198, up 28 per cent over last year's actual expenditures of $2,114,208.

Although the budget permits no new programs or major repairs and renovations, total revenue of $2,190,359 will fall $483,839 short of covering expenditures.

No programs will be cut in an effort to bring the budget into balance, but class sizes will be increased next September and the pupil-teacher ratio increased.

Breakdown of expenditures shows a saving this year in business administration expenses and cost of computer services.

Kierans Fears Strikes Will Cut Use of Mails

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said Monday he is afraid the rotating postal strike is ruining chances of turning the post office into a modern, competitive enterprise.

Mr. Kierans said in an interview the post office lost close to $6,000,000 in anticipated revenue last month as a result of public fear of a strike and lost a number of leading business clients "who may or may not come back after a settlement."

He warned that the effects on post office business could be "disastrous" if the rotating strike continues through the summer as union leaders have threatened.

Mr. Kierans said it is the post office itself that is being hurt. Without an early settlement as an aggressive campaign to out new competitors, he said, the post office will lose importance.

The anger is not that postal workers will be laid off as a result of changes in operation but that the post office will remain static, he said.

"We should be aiming at handling 5,500,500,000 pieces of mail next year . . . but what could happen is that the post office will settle back around 4,500,000,000," he said.

He said a peak of 4,997,000,000 pieces were handled in 1967-68 and that the operation declined to 4,875,000,000 last year. Postal revenues in May declined to $29,432,000 from $32,549,000 in May 1969. It had been projected that under normal circumstances the May, 1970, revenue would have been $33,249,000.

Mr. Kierans said he hopes to meet with the unions' leadership as soon as a settlement has been signed.

The unions will be asked to assist post office management in revising work rules as the basis for an aggressive $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 selling campaign to win back lost business. Such meetings have not been possible earlier, he said, because contract negotiations have been under way.

Toronto Mailmen Strike

TORONTO (CP) — About 8,800 City of Toronto postal workers walked off the job today in the latest of a series of rotating strikes which have marked the wage dispute between Canada's postal unions and the federal government.

The walkout came after 2,500 postmen in the five Metropolitan Toronto boroughs and 14 adjacent communities returned to work Monday night after a 24-hour walkout.

Monday's strike affected only those areas directly concerned. But the City of Toronto is the main distribution point for the Metro area and also a major relay point in the flow of mail nationally. The strike could mean delays in service throughout the country.

Rain May Aid Halt West's Fires

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rain forecast for today was expected to bring much-needed relief to 2,000 men fighting an estimated 17 forest fires in northern Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Forestry officials said cool, damp weather Monday allowed firefighters to contain 11 of the fire lines in northwestern Saskatchewan where 85 fires were burning. Some of the fires had been brought under control.

There were unconfirmed reports that residents of Black Lake, 450 miles northwest of Prince Albert, were returning to their homes after being evacuated Sunday.

Shulman Is in Sicily Hunting Mafia Clues

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said Monday Dr. Morton Shulman is in Sicily to "pursue a lead" in his investigation of the alleged Mafia connections with the provincial police.

Mr. MacDonald said Dr. Shulman, NDP member of the legislature for Toronto High Park, left Saturday for Sicily and will not return until later this week.

He said Dr. Shulman had planned the trip some time ago. He said he did not know if the NDP member would visit other places than Sicily.

"You never know where you might end up when you are pursuing a lead," Mr. MacDonald said, however.

Dr. Shulman claimed in a legislature meeting last Thursday that senior OPP officers are close friends of a man with alleged Mafia connections.

This Cheese Show Has Got to Go

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — A controversial "art exhibit" was up for sale here Monday for anyone with $21,000 and a strong nose.

The exhibit consists of 27 suitcases of rotten cheese.

During its month-long showing in a local gallery, health authorities threatened to close the show for "breeding and harboring flies" although the charges were later dropped.

The art work was by Swiss artist Dieter Rot.

Limberger, cheddar, camembert and Brie cheeses were shoved into suitcases which were put into a wooden crate. Visitors to the gallery had to peer over the top of the crate to look at the cheeses.

The swelling cheeses split the suitcases and the cheese rotted.

Argentine President Is Ousted

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina got a new military government early today after the armed forces ousted President Juan Carlos Ongania, the general they installed in a coup four years ago.

Not a shot was fired, and life went on mostly as usual for the 2,000,000 residents of Buenos Aires.

The three military commanders—Lt.-Gen. Alejandro Lanusse of the army, Admiral Pedro Gnavi of the navy and Brig.-Gen. Juan Carlos Rey of the air force—were sworn in as provisional leaders of the country of 23,000,000 people. The junta said it would name a president within 10 days.

Labor--Villain Or Victim of Inflation?

OTTAWA (CP) — Organized labor was the villain or the victim of inflation in Commons rhetoric Monday, depending on which party was speaking.

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) maintained that, instead of pulling with the rest of the economy to curb inflation, labor is "merely standing off on the sidelines and taking what I suggest is a purely negative stance."

NDP finance critic Max Saltman (Waterloo) disagreed.

Labor is willing to co-operate, he said, but the government would never obtain co-operation by bringing in guides which "apply to labor alone" and pointing its finger at labor as the villain.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson said labor had disappointed the government in failing to "join representatives of other sectors of the economy" in a voluntary approach to curbing inflation, necessitating the wage guides proposed last Friday and Saturday at the finance ministers' conference in Winnipeg.

"It is abundantly clear," he said, "that it is no longer realistic to expect such co-operation to be forthcoming" from labor.

The divergent views were expressed following a statement by Mr. Benson on the Winnipeg conference in which he said the government is still determined to "break the back" of inflation.

Mr. Benson said the agreement to hold price increases below cost increases obtained at the February conference with business on price restraint had held back price increases and lowered profits by 3.3 per cent in the first quarter of 1970 compared with last year.

If voluntary methods were not effective, "then the government is fully prepared to consider other measures which may have to be adopted to eliminate this threat to the well-being of our economy. . . ."

Crossing Delays Bring Apology

The Canadian National Railways Rideau Area headquarters in Belleville has apologized for the delays and inconvenience caused motorists at the Canniton Road level crossing during recent weeks.

But as of 11 a.m. Monday, the crossing signal system is again operating normally.

Howard Allan Pulver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Pulver of R.R. 1, Carrying Place, received his Honor BA degree in geography at the convocation exercises held at the University of Guelph on May 28. Howard received his high school education at Belleville Collegiate.

Yesterday G. A. Van de Water, acting superintendent for the CN Rideau area, attended the city traffic committee meeting to explain the reason for delays of 20 minutes to half an hour which motorists complained of at the Canniton Road crossing.

He said the delays were being caused as a result of the installation of a centralized traffic control for rail traffic between Bowmanville and Belleville. During the installation, circuits remained activated and crossing protection was not being released until trains were completely off the crossing area.

Normally, he said, when a train clears the crossing, protection is released and the gates are lifted.

"We apologize for not notifying the city about what was going on," Mr. Van de Water said.

City traffic committee chairman Alderman Arthur Keegan and Mayor J. Russell Scott said complaints about the long delays at the crossing had been ringing the phone off the wall at city hall.

Ald. Keegan said the delays were causing people to be late for work and had also held up ambulances.

"Maybe the phones will now stop ringing," commented Mayor Scott.

Area Unemployment Tops National Average

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Most recently compiled statistics show unemployment in the Belleville area higher than the national average, the Quinte Labor Council learned last night.

At the end of April 7.7 per cent of the local work force was reported jobless, compared to 6.6 per cent for national average.

The total does not include job refusees and persons who have not registered as unemployed, the labor council was told.

The figures were contained in a report of the Belleville and District Employment Committee — a local community group under the aegis of Canada Manpower — filed at a council meeting last night.

Today, a Manpower spokesman in Belleville said the percentage, while above the national average, still was better than other years.

"This area always had a much higher percentage than that," he said.

One of the problems was that Belleville still was a dormitory community, which provides workers returned for the winter.

Statistics for May should be available by next week.

Total labor force in the Belleville Manpower district is estimated at 27,500.

The April statistics don't give the complete total of jobless, Reg. Loader, labor council representative to the employment committee said last night.

Among those not included were persons taking job retraining and recipients of unemployment insurance who have not yet bothered to seek new jobs.

Such unknown quantities could boost the actual total of jobless another two or three per cent, Mr. Lander believes.

Bata Shoe Imports Spark Criticism

TRENTON (Staff) — Bata Shoe — one of the district's biggest industries — now imports more shoes than it manufactures, the Quinte Labor Council was told by a caller last night.

At the same time, charged a union delegate, the company pleads low - price, foreign competition as a reason against higher wages.

Ironically, Bata itself was the target of the labor council's criticism.

Touching off the debate was an advertisement in last Friday's Intelligencer, in which Bata advertised 10 per cent discount on imported shoes. The advertisement carried the numbers of about 400 different shoe styles, estimated one labor councillor.

"Bata imports more shoes into this country than it manufactures here," said Roy Lake, president of Stirling local 754 of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union. "So far in 1970, 15 companies have gone bankrupt because of imported shoes."

Yet, the threat of foreign competition is cited by management when negotiations seek better wages, said another council member.

"It's certainly not right. I great yes," agreed council president Robert Andrus.

The council agreed to support shoe workers in whatever measure they would take against the situation. Weys of informing the public on the impact of shoe imports on local labor also will be viewed.

Sidney Permits Total 92

In a meeting last night of Sidney Township council it was announced, as a carryover from last Monday's meeting, that $445,575 in building permits had been issued for the month of May, a total of 36.

So far this year, Sidney has issued 92 permits. There were 40 in April, with a value of $322,475, 10 in March at $177,-702, two in February at $20,-300 and six in January with a value of $86,130.

Revenues for permits issued in May were $310.

Subject to approval by the Ontario Department of Highways, Sidney Township has approved the purchase of a new Massey Ferguson Model 44 loader with a two - yard bucket from Alton Hadley Ltd. at a net price of $13,-917.44 with the trade-in.

Lots 17 and 18 were approved by the council as a waste disposal site complying with regulations set down by the Department of Energy and Resource Management waste management branch. This piece of property lies on the Ahrens Road in the township.

Following the relocation of the Glen Miller Road, a stretch of the old road, which runs through the property of Ernest Bush, almost cut off, is considered inadequately closed off by the owner.

In a letter presented to council last night, Mr. Bush requested proper flooding off of this stretch of road as it serves as a cattle crossing. Mr. Bush explained that the road is "a real eyesore" and he would like to see it returned to nature by a bulldozer.

Council informed him that the closing of roads was subject to approval by Hastings County Council and the county would decide what steps to take. They further informed him that three public notices, plus three statutory declarations of the plans be published in the local newspaper.

Recommendations were passed last night on 16 land splits which will go before the committee of adjustment of Sidney Township in public hearings to be held on June 17.

The controversial subject of the proposed dismissal of a Sidney Township fire captain came to a head last night as possible decisions were made.

However, subject to concurrence by the parties involved, the end result is still pending. Announcements regarding this decision will be released at a future date.

Dry Spell Increases Hazard

TWEED (Special) — Lack of rain is increasing the fire hazard in the Tweed forest district, according to Lands and Forests officials.

The current fire hazard is given as extreme, but if no rain falls, the fire hazard may become serious in a very short time.

A four-acre blaze in the Tweed area of the forest district is still burning although under control and yesterday a small blaze was reported in the Denbigh area.

Since April 1, 66 fires have been reported in the Tweed area, burning over 473.5 acres.

City Seeks Help For Storm Sewer

The Ontario Department of Highways will be asked to contribute toward the cost of storm sewer drainage for the North Front - Tracey Street area of the city.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that the natural drainage toward the river for the 401 cloverleaf area west of North Front Street had been cut off during construction and the face water being diverted through an open ditch south toward Tracey Street.

Now the city is proposing to construct a new 24-million storm sewer to drain the area north of Tracey Street to the Moira River and Mayor Scott feels that with the highways department contributing to the problem, it should assist with the cost.

The matter has already been taken up with the highways department divisional engineer at Kingston who will meet with the local area municipal engineer and City Engineer Wilbur Purcell to view the area.

Should the proposed storm sewer is included in this year's capital works budget. Normally the Tracey street area drains south through Coleman Flats but with the addition of surface water from the Park Dale area; the required pipe size would be too large.

To overcome the pipe size problem, the drainage area is being divided with one section to be drained across North Front Street and east to the river.

Student Jobs Created In Catering Business

The way to an employer's heart is through his clientele's appreciation — a rule paramount in the food service industry.

Knowing just how to win that appreciation could also open more work for students in a summer parched of job opportunities.

Now, in the next few days, an unique pilot project involving job-hunting students will put that rule into practice for the Quinte area.

Initiating the program are personnel of Canada Manpower student employment centre and Hastings Prince Edward Health Unit.

The goal of Manpower's student counsellor Eric Ferguson and health inspector Ed Lanctot is to train youthful employees in the skills of public catering — a thriving local industry in summer.

Elmental to the venture's success is the fact its participants will be largely responsible for their own success.

The program's uniqueness hinges in the fact students will gain practical experience while running their own restaurant.

Last weekend redecorations began at a roadside cafe on Highway 2 just west of Belleville in readiness for a business opening in the near future.

The practical experience will follow an introductory round of lectures and study sessions on basic facts of catering.

Its two main organizers say the program's success could be a two-fold achievement:

(1) It would facilitate employment placements for its graduates, says Manpower student counsellor Eric Ferguson.

(2) It would provide the local food service industry with personnel acquainted with the rules of the business — including public health stipulations, adds health unit inspector Ed Lanctot.

Both officials have been busily drafting the project's blueprint in recent days.

Vital to its initiation was community co-operation — an ingredient that's been rising like yeast since they began organizing, enlisted help.

Loyalist College made available teaching space for the preliminary study sessions. A roadside restaurant at Jones' Creek just west of the city was procured for business operations. To date, two local restaurateurs have offered equipment to the venture.

Its operation will be "a free enterprise, profit-sharing venture", explains Mr. Lanctot.

The students will be responsible for its measurements of success.

"The spirit of intent is to have them do everything", says the health inspector.

The operation likely would work in three shifts, with about five students each shift.

"This practical experience is the most important part of the project" add Eric Ferguson.

Schedules call for instructions to get underway at Loyalist Wednesday.

Instructional movies have been obtained from the provincial department of health. The study sessions also includes instructions from a department spokesman.

After that comes one week's practical experience in the restaurant.

Graduation is signalled by a health department certificate in "training, foodhandling, sanitation and service to the public".

To obtain the certificate a written examination is necessary, says Mr. Lanctot.

Already, students are responding readily to the project, says Eric Ferguson.

Applications are not confined to the Belleville area but are "wide open to the Hastings-Prince Edward region.

Applications are being taken at the student employment centre on Pinnacle Street.

Committee to See Traffic Controls

City traffic committee members will go to Georgetown in the near future to see the different types of traffic control systems available and decide which type would be best suited for Belleville.

An amount of $20,000 has been included in this year's current budget for the purchase of the control system which would synchronize all the traffic lights in the city's downtown area.

The equipment to be considered is made at Davis Controls in Georgetown.

Yesterday Police Chief Cressle said company officials are ready to talk with traffic committee members and have suggested they go in the plant to see the various systems available.

Traffic committee members will view the equipment and make a recommendation to city council.

Meeting Arranged On Kente Project

PICTON (Staff) — Executive members of the Committee for Quality Education with Fair Taxation, a group of Ameliasburg ratepayers, will met June 25 with trustees of Prince Edward County board of education in Bloomfield.

Topic for discussion will be the Kente project, involving construction of a $3,000,000 elementary - secondary school complex.

A request for this joint meeting, presented by the committee in a letter to board members two weeks ago, reportedly elicited no response until last Thursday.

Trustees, however, had expressed their willingness to examine projected plans for the school with Ameliasburg taxpayers — with the provision they (the trustees) receive a copy of the committee's agenda prir to the meeting.

Two weeks ago the committee prepared a list of questions it feels county board members should answer before construction of the proposed Kente school begins.

Trustees have requested a copy of these questions be included in the committee's agenda "in order that the meeting might go smoothly and all questions be answered to the satisfaction of all."

Members of the board still are seeking approval of the Kente project from the education department.

Joseph Black, son of Lt.-Col. and Mrs. J. B. Black received his Bachelor of Education degree from McArthur College, Queen's University on May 22, 1970. Mr. Black received his BA from Ottawa University in 1969.

Bright, Vigorous Future Predicted for Albert College

It's an older among Ontario institutions. It's one of Belleville's oldest landmarks.

And yesterday, as it entered its 116th year, wider vistas and new horizons were being visualized for Albert College.

The predictions for Albert's future came from its new headmaster Lorne L. Shewfelt, at his ceremonial induction into office at the annual college convocation.

"I visualize, within a very few years, an Albert College from which many students will have to be turned away because of overcrowding," forecast Mr. Shewfelt.

New residences, if gymnatorium, an art centre serving all Eastern Canada, are were among the shapes of things to come for Albert, he believed.

Most significantly, he envisioned a bursary fund, of sufficient stature so that "any man's son or daughter may come to a place of personalized education."

New patterns of financing Albert must evolve in future years along with the new Albert, Mr. Shewfelt's speech indicated.

For one thing, the college is ending the small subsidy it has received from the United Church. It relies entirely on free-enterprise operation.

But Mr. Shewfelt strongly believes in the role of such a school.

"There are no independent schools beyond the Iron Curtain," he said. "So here we have a balance to freedom in our society. And society should listen to help us: and others like us to have their say moving forward. We have no provincial or federal aid . . . If you really believe in the value of education then do something about it."

Albert has its place in the modern education spectrum—particularly at a time when experiment is a theme of education.

"There is a place for experimentation in education on a small scale without throwing out the proven needs of students," he told his audience.

Mr. Shewfelt — whose administration began last year and already has borne fruit—believes the college has even more popular potential.

"I still believe that every man's son should have the opportunity to come here" he said later. "I believe we have an education second to none."

But to retain such an expanding environment, the college "needs bursary funds, capital funds."

Shewfelt's view of Albert ties it closely to its surrounding community.

Belleville, he says as a "tremendous city" upcoming city."

Albert has the potential to make Belleville an artistic centre for the fine arts in eastern Canada — something akin to the role of the Banff art school in the west, he says.

The Shewfelt innovations already are pointed in that direction. A new emphasis has been placed on art and theatre arts.

"What I'm after is a rounded education involving the arts," Mr. Shewfelt reveals.

His views the college-city relationship as interdependent.

For the city, Albert is more than a unique tradition, or the city's most graceful architectural setting.

Injured Youth Reported 'Fair'

TRENTON — A RR4, Brighton youth injured in a farm accident Saturday is reported to be in fair condition in the intensive care unit in the Kingston General Hospital.

Peter Eddy, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Eddy received emergency treatment at the Trenton Memorial Hospital after a tractor that had been stopped rolled backwards and passed over his left shoulder and back, the OPP at Brighton reported.

Later the youngster was taken by ambulance to the Kingston hospital.

It also is an economic contributor. Its presence means an annual spending of $300,-000 a year, Mr. Shewfelt estimates.

This doesn't include the money spent by students — another unique quality of Albert.

Resident students come to Albert from across — and outside — Canada.

Its cosmopolitan environment was graphically demonstrated at yesterday's convocation.

Albert's two top students of the year hailed from Bermuda.

Maureen Edness, 20, who has attended Albert for five years, was awarded the Howard Award, as the "finest representative lady student."

Allan Tyrer, 23, won the Marsh Award as the top male student. He has been attending Albert four years.

Parking Authority Wants New Light On Front Street

The city parking authority has suggested installation of a traffic light on Front Street north of Bridge - Street to speed the exit of cars from its downtown off-street parking lot.

But Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie wants further investigation before such a proposal is recommended to council.

Yesterday Douglas Dunnie, chairman of the parking authority said that recent trial period of police traffic direction improved the exit times of cars from the off-street pay-lot, especially in non-peak periods.

But he said that pedestrians were very inconsiderate of cars emerging from the lot and often "dashed out to challenge" the vehicles to hit them.

The Authority suggestion was the installation of a traffic light at the parking lot "in and out" laneway, together with a sidewalk "walk" light to control the movement of pedestrians.

Mr. Dunnie said the trial period of traffic direction at Campbell Street had proved that a traffic light at that location would not have the desired effect.

At the present time, during peak traffic periods cars exiting from the municipal parking lot take up to 20 minutes or more to get onto Front Street.

However, Police Chief Crosbie said he wanted to investigate all ramifications of another traffic light so close to the light at Bridge Street.

Also, he questioned the legality of "walk" lights on sidewalks.

He felt they might be unforeseeable and said "I never heard of them."

Developers' Quarrel Slows Subdivisions

TRENTON (Staff) — Judging from recent steps announced at last night's meeting of Trenton council, the rift between two Trenton subdividers may soon be corrected.

The rift between Sunrise Developments and Dufferin Developments began when Sunrise was ordered by the town to deepen a sewer beyond its requirement in order to service Dufferin Development, which at the time was still in its infant stage.

Dufferin paid $9,800, which has since been returned, to pay Sunrise for the extra work.

Sunrise stopped work on the sewer extension to its property line until certain conditions were agreed upon by Dufferin One of the conditions was that Dufferin agree to be paid immediately. Dufferin Developments has agreed to give the money to the town to pay Sunrise when the sewer is completed to the town's specifications, or in the event it be allowed to connect immediately.

Sunrise announced it is willing to co-operate but there are stipulations which must be outlined first. The stipulations were not revealed, but Sunrise is considering "forcing "forcible resistance" and court action if the other subdivision be intruded on its property without consent.

Council agreed that all parties involved should meet and discuss the last remaining details, which are slowing construction of both subdivisions.

Both subdivisions are in the western end of the town.

A City's Progress

In South Africa there is a city called Pietersburg whose development is of the kind Belleville is currently experiencing, and in some ways perhaps exceeds it. A recent issue of the colorful "South African Panorama" tells the story of this community of 40,000 which has come to be regarded as the principal centre of the northern Transvaal.

One hundred and thirty years ago the first Voortrekkers were not interested in this vast, dry plateau region and it was not until 50 years later that the town was established. Today it is a commercial, industrial, educational and communications centre.

A picture of downtown Pietersburg shows a scene that might be Belleville's four corners. A businessman in lounge suit and a middle-aged housewife with her little boy are seen crossing a pedestrian walk, while overhead signs (but not too cluttered) and a gas station (where in the same configuration here we have a taxi firm) indicate that Pietersburg is much like its counterparts overseas.

Now we hear a great deal about apartheid. The South Africans regards it as separate, parallel development of the white, black and colored peoples. Its critics around the world, on the other hand, see it as discrimination against the non-whites, although this is not our concern here.

Rather it is interesting to note that Pietersburg's educational facilities include a training college for Bantu teachers while 30 miles east is the University of the North, one of the republic's four universities for non-white students. It has more than 600 Bantu and faculties in arts, education, mathematics, science, economics, administration and theology.

The city council is building a cultural centre which will house a library theatre and lecture hall. Not far away is the famed Kruger National Park and the city's recreation facilities include parks, a golf course, swimming pool, rugby and cricket pitches, tennis courts and a trailer camp.

A 3,000-acre game reserve is currently being developed on the outskirts and industry is booming, with three more industrial areas being planned to absorb anticipated growth. It is little wonder that Pietersburg is known as the "Capital of the North." Its progress and facilities, as we have noted already, are much like Belleville's.

The Drug Scene

Some facts on the drug scene — as revealed by Dr. Lionel Solursh, a psychiatrist who works closely in Toronto street clinics with young people dependent on illicit drugs: the use of cough medications containing codeine is a popular pastime among Canadian high school students . . . even young children in grades seven or eight will chew vitamin pills stolen from their homes; LSD, hashish and drug substances are so easily made, chemically, that the recent arrest of one major Toronto manufacturer of illicit amphetamines left the field open for any other suspected major producer, a 16-year-old suburban youth.

But adults are little better, said Dr. Solursh, citing alcoholism, cigarette addiction and misuse of sedatives and stimulants by many people, as well as what he called "overprescribing by doctors and misdispensing by pharmacists reinforced by drug companies. Even that old standby, aspirin, did not escape the critical attention of Dr. Solursh, who was addressing the Canadian Hospital Association convention in Edmonton. About 30 tons of it, he said, are used daily in the United States.

"Those who require illicit substances to help speak for themselves, they betoken a segment of society dependent on artificial props — stimulants and depressants, incapable of appreciating the true worth of the mind, the creative genius of the past and present, feeding only on the destructive aspects of their inner beings rather than on the positive forces that emanate from the same sources.

We recall a verse from Omar Khayyam which goes something like this: "I sent my soul through the invisible, some glimmer of that after-life find. My soul returned to me and said, I myself am heaven and hell."

Many today are discovering the truth of these lines.

Arctic Haven

Want to get away from it all? Not many of us manage a journey to the Arctic but that was the destination recently of Russell Honey, the MP for Northumberland. He went to Baffin Island to rendezvous with the U.S. tanker Manhattan and pollution worries were forgotten for a moment amidst the grandeur of one of the last unspoiled regions on earth. As Mr. Honey wrote: "The beauty of the eastern Arctic is unforgettable. It must be one of the most beautiful areas of the world. Mountains shoot up a sheer 5,000 feet from the sea, forming fiords which rival the majestic inlets of Norway. . . ."

How Billions Can Go Astray

More on Parliament's Game of Hide-and-Seek

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Now to continue that great game of hide and seek as it is played on Parliament Hill . . .

With the prize that $13 billion, the federal government takes from you in taxes, and gives back to you, at least theoretically, in the form of — well, to put it under the broadest possible heading — public service.

It is in the giving-back process that the hiding and seeking goes on.

For no matter how noble are the Government's intentions of giving it back, some — millions upon millions — of that $13 billion gets astray.

It vanishes, with nothing to show for it, in waste, extravagance, official indifference and indolence, and yep, sometimes even a little touch of larceny.

This is all very embarrassing. Makes the Government look a little less than the best of all possible administrations. I would like you to believe it everlastingly is.

So just like less perfect administrative establishments, it tries to conceal its humiliating falls from the grace of perfection.

And Parliament — especially the Opposition, Conservative, New Democratic and Creditiste — strives to reveal them.

Herewith, then, the great game.

And another refinement in its playing.

This particular little stratagem is the "hiding" half of the game in figure, as "Cutting the Auditor General Down to Size" or perhaps "Pitting Maxwell Henderson in His Place."

This the Government feels it must do because, for a brief moment in Parliament Hill time this Session, it looked that it might not be the winner all the way it almost always has been.

And that, in the Government's view of playing the great game, is not really fair.

The Government had done a pretty good job of hiding its secrets of waste and extravagance — in, of all unlikely places — the 22 Standing Committees of the Commons, plus a few Special ones.

It had been ridiculously easy. All the Government did, actually, was transfer the examination of its $13 billion spending estimates from the Commons to its Committees.

In the Commons where any Opposition MP who was in the mood could demand an explanation for the spending of each and every dollar — and some of these "dollar" items are dandies, covering the blind spending of multi-millions of dollars — the Government was under the glare of a national publicity spotlight. The Commons was concentrated, and it was not easy to dark into the shadows.

So the administration transferred the examination of those estimates to the 22-plus Committees — diffusing both the Opposition forces and the often embarrassing publicity.

The hiding became a whole lot easier for the Government, and the seeking that much harder for the Opposition.

But Auditor General Maxwell Henderson kept getting into the game, and telling Parliament and the Opposition where the Government was doing some of the hiding.

Just recently he tipped off the seekers in the Commons to some 40 different places where the administration had been hiding some of the evidence of the wasteful and extravagant ways it had mismanaged to let $40 million go down the drain.

In these days of economy and austerity are supposed to be an in Government word, at least that is what the administration brags swearing — this was all very embarrassing.

So what could be more human than that the Government should wish to shut up Max Henderson whom it clearly considered was a blabbermouth?

Thereupon, first, Treasury Board President Bud Drury, then Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau accused him of being a busy-body intimidi meddling in Government affairs.

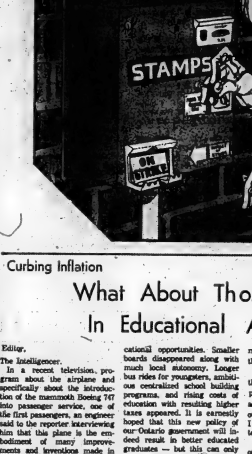
"He was intruding on policy matters, they complained, he was trespassing on forbidden administration grounds. His assignment by Parliament as "Watchdog of the Treasury" would have to be "redefined," they said.

He was being sized up by the Government for a muzzle. Parliament knew it. The Opposition — all three splinters of it — raised an embarrassing howl of protest. This was not just changing the ground-rules of the great game of hide and seek. It was changing the game itself. It would be all hide and no seek.

But true Bud Drury, he came with yet another refinement.

Okay, he agreed, amiably, let the rules ride.

The Watchdog of the Treasury could continue sniffing out evidence of waste and extravagance, just like always. . . .



Except that when he found it, he would not bark to Parliament about it, and the Opposition would not know where some of it was being hidden.

Instead, he would tell whatever Government department or agency was responsible for it, and that board, bureau or commission could stop it, and see it did not happen again.

Far more civilized that way, explained Bud Drury, only the decent thing to do, when the department a chance to mend its wasteful ways.

Then nobody would need to know, and everything would be just fine and dandy.

Now how sholt that?

Curbing Inflation

What About Those Big Salaries In Educational Administration?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In a recent television program about the airplane and specifically about the introduction of the mammoth Boeing 747 into passenger service, one of the first passengers, an engineer, said to the reporter interviewing him that this plane is the embodiment of many improvements and investments made in the past by a multitude of persons. This is generally true of innovations, ideas and policies. Abrupt changes from former patterns may be good — often they are not — especially when they are implemented suddenly.

The county boards of education were begun across Ontario on January 1, 1969, with the intention of providing greater educational opportunities. Smaller boards disappeared along with much local autonomy. Longer bus rides for youngsters, ambitious centralized school building programs, and rising costs of education with resulting higher taxes appeared. It is earnestly hoped that this new policy of our Ontario government will indeed result in better educated graduates — but this can only be discovered in the future. In any event all expenditures should be geared to the end result of the final produces, these graduates.

It is difficult for me to see in these days of inflation how labor unions and their members can be convinced to hold the line when administrative and management groups do not lead the way.

Many school trustees believe that salaries of administrative personnel in education are above the levels of industry and other parts of the economy, and I include myself with these trustees.

At the Hastings County Board of Education meeting held June 1, 1970, the salaries of administrative staff came up for review. On a recorded vote, I voted "No" to each increase, because I could not see that such increases were justified, because of the current high levels ranging from $18,000 to $25,000, and because I don't believe that such increases will improve the education of the students. Instead, they will add to the inflationary spiral and the ever-increasing tax load.

Cost-of-living increases do not hit all income groups with the same impact. Percentages, when applied by the unskilled can be misleading. For example if the cost of living rises by 8 per cent an increase of 8 per cent in the wages of all levels of employment is not thereby justified. The increase in the cost of living affects the lower and middle income groups to a far greater degree than the higher income groups.

If we are to curtail inflation, let's start at the top!

PAUL EDWIN FLEMING, CA.
Trustee, The Hastings County Board of Education.

Alabama Success

Wallace Likely Presidential Candidate Again in 1972

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — George C. Wallace is back in political command in Alabama, and as a result Republicans may have to change plans for the 1972 model of the southern strategy.

While the Alabama outcome is certain to echo in the campaign for the United States presidency two years away, the season's biggest primary election day produced no clear verdict from the voters on President Nixon's policies in Southeast Asia.

There were winners who broke with Nixon on the war issue and winners who sided firmly with the president.

The primaries were held to select candidates for the November general elections. In U.S. primaries, which serve the same purpose as nominating conventions in Canada, only registered voters can cast ballots for those running for their party's nomination.

The message from Montgomery was clear: in 1972, as in 1968, Wallace will be a man to reckon with in presidential politics.

The victory was not of the lowering proportions Wallace was accustomed to building during six years of total dominance of the Alabama polls. He had far more difficulty electing himself than in sending his late wife, Lurleen, to the governor's office four years ago.

And it was not without its political price. Facing the loss of his vital power base after his second-place finish in the inconclusive opening primary, Wallace openly invoked the issue of black against white in the showdown campaign.

He said a victory for Gov. Albert Brewer would deliver the state to rule by a Negro bloc vote.

The hardline strategy worked, but it could render more difficult a new national campaign across the North on the pattern of the 1968 race in which Wallace as a third-party captured more than 13 per cent of the presidential vote.

Wallace had worked to broaden his image from that of a one-issue, segregationist politician; the tactics he deemed necessary in Alabama undercut that effort.

Brewer, a Wallace presidential elector two years ago, called it "a hate campaign . . . the dirtiest campaign I've ever seen in Alabama."

Republican politicians had hoped defeat would have Wallace a man without a base, crippling if not entirely precluding a 1972 run at the White House.

Wallace now seems likely to fashion a regional strategy concentrating on the South and the industrial states in 1972.

Wallace captured five Deep South states in 1968, Nixon captured four southern and border states. With the Alabama out of the running, Republican strategists could have concentrated their efforts elsewhere in the buildup to 1972, meaning that the president would find solid support in the South.

Now the outlook is changed, and it may take a high-powered effort to hold or improve Republican prospects in the South.

Measuring the primary election impact of the Indochina war was another matter. It did not appear to be the primary factor in the outcome of any major election.

In the 13th congressional district of New Jersey, Louis Kadon, 31, ran against the war with campaign support recruited from the campuses. He lost, 3 to 1, to Representative Edward J. Patten, the Democratic incumbent.

But two critics of administration policy in the same state, Democratic Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr., and Republican Nelson G. Gross, won nominations to run for the Senate.

Government Will Not Discipline Four in Bonaventure Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Monday absolved four public servants recommended for discipline following an inquiry into the controversial overhaul of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

But in clearing the public servants, Privy Council President Donald Macdonald rapped Alf Hales (PC—Wellington), chairman of the Commons public accounts committee, for making public the names of the men recommended for discipline.

"We regret that this procedure has been followed, making specific attacks on particular public servants," Mr. Macdonald said.

The four men are: Capt. J. A. Lynch, principal naval overseer at Dockyard in Halifax; Lt.-Cmdr. T. W. Maxwell, director of maritime system engineering, both of naval defence; R. B. Wallace, associate director, shipbuilding and heavy equipment, and L. E. St. Laurent, chief estimator, for the former defence production department, since renamed supply and services.

Mr. Macdonald and Supply Minister James Richardson said no disciplinary action would be taken against the men. The statements came during debate on a motion criticizing the government's role in the Bonaventure refit.

The motion introduced by Thomas M. Bell (PC—Saint John-Lancaster) said the government failed to "protect the public treasury" in the overhaul of the aircraft carrier and neglected to stop waste in government spending.

Mr. Bell said his motion was providing public servants an opportunity for defending themselves through the government against committee charges.

Ran Hatfield (NDP—Kootenay West) criticized the government for not taking action on 14 of the 43 recommendations made by the public accounts committee last year and disagreeing with 14 others.

Mr. Macdonald said there was no evidence before the public accounts committee to justify discipline of Captains Lynch and Maxwell.

Mr. Richardson said that Mr. St. Laurent testified before the committee only on summaries of estimates, not details. The committee had attributed statements to Mr. Wallace that had been given to a subcommittee by other officials.

He also said that E. B. Armstrong, 55, deputy minister of national defence, and Gordon W. Hunter, also 55, at the time deputy defence production minister, "worked closely" the progress of the refit with interdepartmental committees and on-the-spot inspections.

The committee said in its report that it "failed to understand" why the two deputy ministers did not order an on-the-job inspection of the 1966-67 refit of the Bonaventure.

Original estimates by the naval dockyard in Halifax placed the refit cost at $8,000,000. The amount actually paid by Davie Shipbuilding Ltd. of Lauzon, Que. was $10,250,000, the committee said.

Mr. Macdonald suggested that the opposition should censure the public accounts committee chairman. Mr. Hales, for revealing the names of those recommended for discipline.

Public servants were responsible to the government, not to Parliament.

Mr. Richardson said the Davie Shipbuilding bid was well below those of competing bidders for the contract. The refit was "perfectly logical" since at the time the government had no plans to sell or scrap the Bonaventure.

Earlier, Mr. Bell said the political responsibility for the Bonaventure errors has not yet been settled.

It was up to Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, who was defence production minister at the time of the refit, to tell the whole story of the overhaul.

Mr. Drury stressed moves to increase public service efficiency and said opposition MPs "have not always supported our efforts to protect the taxpayers of Canada."

Mr. Harding said the government should beef up the auditor general's department. The watchdog on government spending sparked the public accounts committee inquiry with a report on the refit.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"She was an absolute sensation at the Value Day sale!"

Turner Presents Bill to Reform Bail System

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawbreakers charged with minor offences in Canada may get an easier road to the courts in future.

Justice Minister John Turner Monday presented his bail reform bill which was given first reading in the Commons. If it becomes law, policemen will be given more responsibility, cash bail will no longer be an integral part of the court system, and there likely will be less fewer people in jail awaiting trial.

There also should be fewer on-the-spot arrests.

But the bill is unlikely to cut court appearances, the main concern is with the treatment of accused persons from the moment they are nabbed by police until they reach the courtroom.

The bail reform bill will continue to humanize the administration of criminal justice in Canada," said Mr. Turner at a news conference. "The right to bail should not be the prerogative of the rich and detention the plight of the poor."

By introducing the bill now, with no plans to proceed with it until fall, Mr. Turner wants to expose it to provincial officials and police authorities, so it will be fully understood when debate begins.

It would make drastic changes in existing arrest and bail laws.

The long awaited bill is based to a large degree on the report of the Canadian Committee on Corrections, headed by Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet, of the Quebec Superior Court.

A special course would be needed for policemen fully to understand the new laws, but in the long run, the minister said, the laws would make the policeman's job more credible and therefore easier.

Under the bill, if a policeman picks up a suspect on any of a wide variety of minor offences, he would not arrest that suspect unless he had "reasonable and probable grounds" to believe it was necessary in the public interest.

Instead he would consider having a summons issued, or serving the suspect with an "appearance notice."

The appearance notices would be an innovation. Mr. Turner said these could be issued on the spot, requiring the accused to appear in court on a given day. If he didn't appear he could face a $500 fine, six months in jail, or both.

"We've got to be hard on the guys who abuse the process," said the justice minister."

The bill also provides for faster court appearance for those arrested, and once they were before the courts there would be fewer complications about bail. Under existing laws, said Mr. Turner, there is no real direction given to the courts on granting bail.

In general terms, the new rule would be that an accused person should be released simply on his written undertaking to attend court as required. No cash would be involved, except in the case of a person from outside a province, who would put up a maximum of $500.

Bail could be refused if the prosecution establishes that detention of the accused is necessary to ensure his appearance in court, or if it is considered necessary "in the public interest or for the protection or safety of the public."

Persons involved in major crimes, such as murder, manslaughter, piracy, treason, treason or inciting to mutiny, would not be affected.

The offences affected are those in Section 467 of the Criminal Code, those in which the Crown an option to proceed either by summary hearing conviction or indictment, and those involving summary trial only. This wide variety of offences includes dangerous driving, theft under $50, municipal corruption, common assault and forcible entry.

Mr. Turner said there is evidence of too many people being arrested and held in custody when a summons would have served the same purpose.

Magistrate Challenges Police To Marijuana vs. Liquor Contest

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A city magistrate received a standing ovation in his courtroom Monday during a hearing for alleged marijuana violators when he challenged arresting officers to a "pot-shot" contest.

"I'll smoke marijuana while you drink shots of liquor and I'll guarantee that by the end of the day I'll still be on my feet while you won't be able to do a thing," said Magistrate Anthony C. Troiano.

Troiano was addressing a state trooper who insisted the judge hold the grand jury for an 18-year-old suburban Pittsburgh girl, one of 13 young people arrested in a raid of a party last month.

The trooper testified one marijuana cigarette had been found in a purse later identified as belonging to the girl.

A lawyer for more than 30 years, Troiano said:

"I can't see where it will serve the cause of justice by giving this girl a record in traffic of dangerous drugs. I think we've been putting too much emphasis on marijuana.

"We should put more emphasis on arresting and convicting hard core dope pushers and suppliers."

Stanfield Opposes Curbs

HALIFAX (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday it is imperative that the federal government "stop feeling around" and take measures to ease the voluntary restraints it is placing on Canada's economy.

Mr. Stanfield, making a quick tour of his constituency here, said the federal government's latest economic move to "float" the Canadian dollar will be detrimental to the country's exporters.

St. Lawrence Basin Dying Complains Seafarers' Head

MONTREAL (CP) — Leonard (Red) McLaughlin, head of the Seafarers' International Union, says the "whole St. Lawrence basin is dying."

And, he said in an interview Monday, if the federal government doesn't start to sit up and listen "they're going to blow the whole thing."

The tough union leader said he is particularly worried about the future of Canadian shipping unless federal officials come up with dynamic leadership, foresight and understanding.

"It's not just the port of Montreal," he said. "The whole St. Lawrence basin is dying.

"And the reasons are the basic economics of shipping in an age of rapidly developing technology. There can be no solution so long as the intrasigence of Ottawa persists," he said.

The SIU leader said that at the moment ships of more than 50,000 tons cannot operate with full loads through the shallow waters of Lac St. Pierre, between Montreal and Quebec City.

He suggested that the seaway be rebuilt, something be done about Lac St. Pierre and other shallow stretches, and that the punative toll system be abolished or at least rethought so that it does not impair the competitiveness of the seaway.

Super-lottery Planned

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans for New York state's first $1,000,000 super-lottery were disclosed Monday by state lottery officials.

Tickets for the $1,000,000 top prize, plus smaller awards, probably will go on sale Friday, said Ernest B. Bird, who directs the lottery division of the state tax department.

Super-lottery tickets will cost $3 each. The regular monthly tickets cost $1 each. The big winner gets the prize at a rate of $50,000 a year for 20 years to take some of the sting out of the tax bite.

Americans Buy Tax Lands

Northland PCs Propose Priority on Park Lands

TORONTO (CP) — A private member's bill that would give the Ontario government first option to buy lands suitable for parks or recreation purposes was supported by members of all parties in the legislature Monday.

Private members' bills are not voted upon.

Leo Bernier (PC—Kenora) proposed in his bill that the lands and forest minister be given 90 days to buy lands up for municipal tax sales before the lands are offered to the public.

Mr. Bernier and James Jessiman (PC—Fort William), who seconded the bill, said Americans generally acquire choice recreational land in Canada through tax sales.

Mr. Jessiman told the house of a Duluth, Minn., lawyer who bought 7,000 acres of Lake Superior waterfront at extremely low prices through tax sales and now wants to charge the Ontario government $1,500,000 for 1,000 acres the province wants for a bridge and a tourist information building.

Cliff Pilkey (NDP—Oshawa) and Pat Reid (L—Rainy River) both called for a ban on sales to non-residents of Ontario of Crown or tax-sale properties.

Mr. Pilkey also urged an investigation of land-sale companies, quoting from advertisements in American magazines to show that prospective buyers are being lured with misleading facts about the province.

Government Wins

ROME (AP) — Italy's first regional elections have given Premier Mariano Rumor's centre-left coalition government a strong boost, while the Communists did not do as well as generally expected.

The voting Sunday and Monday put Rumor's coalition in control of 12 of Italy's 15 new regional legislatures, and the four government parties got 58.2 per cent of the 32,700,000 votes cast, an improvement of 2.8 per cent over the 1968 elections.

—Premier Robarts told the house Ontario does not plan any penalties for those who fail to comply with Ottawa's call for a voluntary six per cent limit on wage increases.

—It will Minister Thomas Wells said application forms for temporary subsidy of health insurance premiums are available through adult training centres and municipal and provincial welfare offices. The Ontario Health Insurance Act permits persons unable to meet premiums because of unemployment, illness, disability or financial hardship to apply for assistance.

—Energy Minister George Kerr said traces of cyanide in Murdoch Creek in the Kirkland Lake area pose no danger to either animals or humans. The cyanide traces come from the tailings dump of an old gold mine, the minister said.

Canadian Planes Arriving in Peru

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian airlift aid for areas of Peru devastated by massive earthquakes started arriving Monday, the defence department reported here.

The Canadian government sent five armed forces Caribou transports, with short takeoff and landing capabilities, and a big Hercules transport carrying equipment, maintenance personnel and spare parts, to Lima this weekend.

The Hercules packed two x-ray machines and 41 tents along with spares for the aircraft and the maintenance personnel.

The Caribous, able to land and get off from unprepared, rough terrain, are considered ideal for operations in the rugged interior of Peru where the quakes smashed entire communities and took thousands of lives.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday that he would consider a suggestion from Marvin Howe (PC-Wellington-Grey) that 200-bed government-owned portable hospitals be sent for earthquake victims in Peru.

Mr. Trudeau also said the government would consider any further request from Peruvian authorities for help.

Service Clubs Want Fees Kept Tax Deductible

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian service clubs and the National Council of Canadian Theatres urged the government Monday not to enforce provisions in the white paper on taxation changes that would make service club fees or scholarships and bursaries taxable.

A 14-member delegation representing most Canadian service clubs told a Commons finance subcommittee the white paper proposals "strike at the very core of the service club movement in Canada."

The brief said service club dues and luncheon expenses should continue to be tax-deductible.

Older Women in Czechoslovakia Just Not Interested in Fashions

PRAGUE (CP) — Miniskirts aren't plentiful in the streets of this lovely Czechoslovakia capital and the older women don't seem to be fashion-conscious at all—whether for political reasons or otherwise.

Livia Roubickva, a designer with the state-owned Institute of Interior and Fashion Design says that women over 40 in the Communist world just aren't interested enough in themselves nor even to the extent of using makeup.

Certainly this lack of fashion interest among the older women isn't the fault of the institute which North American fashion writers would consider an ivory tower anywhere in the world. Its designers are allowed to go to ariaP and London to study the latest trends, even though the Communist higher-ups don't encourage their c e l l i s e a to travel abroad.

The trouble seems to be a lack of rapport between the designers and the foundry type of dress production at the manufacturing level. The institute has a team of six designers—one is a man—who create the Prague collections but then must submit them to the state-owned manufacturing industry for production.

But the catch is that the manufacturers can alter the styling, which the designers find frustrating.

The largest manufacturer is Great National Enterprises in northern Moravia producing women's coats, dresses and costumes. There's a n o t h e r factory for women's clothes, and for children's in Prague itself. The other seven factories are scattered in Moravia and Slovakia.

The Institute designers are already working on spring 1971 in order to give the manufacturers plenty of time for p r o d u c t i o n. Asked about midis, Mrs. Roubickva said they had a few in this spring's collection and will have more for fall, but less than 20 per cent. Colors for spring 1971, will include the usual classic marine blue and white as well as pale lilac caramel, pastel turquoise and coral. This fall they like aubergine olive and black.

Only domestic fabrics are used in the collections since this will be the fabric most used by the manufacturers. But imported fabrics can be bought in the stores by the yard, in the larger cities.

T h e 1970 spring-summer collection includes a smart pants - and - mid-thigh - jacket with a quilted border. An amusing linen beach dress has a kangaroo pocket under an apron effect. Oddly the collection was strong on cocktail and late-day dresses, since the demand for these would be fairly limited except in Prague itself.

One short ruby red velvet was trimmed with matching ostrich feathers, a popular spring touch in New York. Many of the gowns were heavily beaded and ornamented since this is a specialty of Czechoslovakia, and much of the beding can be bought by the yard—a good buy for tourists.

One floor-length gown had four rows at the hemline in b e a d i n g and copper drop leaves. A sleeveless short dress had a beaded neckband and a double row of bugle beads and pearls around a front apron effect.

CZECH FASHION — This heavily beaded mini-length cocktail dress is among the styles turned out by the Czechoslovakia Institute of Interior and Fashion Design in Prague. However, although the institute designers are up-to-date with their styles, state-owned dress factories can alter the designs to more conservative styling. (CP Photo)

A Biography Of A Princess

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne believes she just might fall in love at first sight-preferable with someone who knows how to live in royal style.

If she falls for a man who can't take the royal pace the princess hopes she will be able to bow out before things get serious. She believes that "small irritation of a different background and way of life" can easily mar a marriage.

She also has some views on the permissive society and her own generation. She sympathizes with many protests, but she opposes licence in sex and also "noisy, self-styled intellectuals" whom she regards as loafers.

Their insights into the princess' feelings come from a biography authorized by the Queen. It is being published today by Cassell under the title, Portrait of a Princess.

Biographer Judith Campbell writes of Anne:

"She acknowledges that one can fall head over heels in love more or less on sight, but considers that, too, a tendency to cope with if and when it occurs —and it might present no problem anyway.

"Having a rational mind, and being used to facing up to drawbacks as well as the advantages of her position, the princess hopes that if she became attached to someone who would find it too difficult to fit into her kind of existence she would be able to extricate herself before things had reached a serious stage.

Anne, who will be 20 Aug. 15, is growing up with more freedom than that ever accorded other members of the family, Her biographer says:

"Princess Anne likes to consider, and discuss, the problems of the so-called permissive society and her own generation. Herself a lover of liberty, her strong views just include a conviction that license in sex does not produce freedom. . . .

"Nor can she see that freedom of speech is a possibility if only one section of society, the younger generation, is allowed to express its views.

"On the other hand, the princess sympathizes with many of the protests made against world evils, and admires those who try to do something about them. But she has little time for the noisy, self-styled intellectuals who are in fact mere layabouts, and thinks it a pity that they should command the publicity that . . . belongs to the vast majority of young people."

On the lighter side, the biography says Anne "has always loathed wearing hats." But she decided her unruly hair "flapping about" had to be controlled for her royal role and that if she had to wear it at all it might as well be an important one."

Miss Anne Brady, daughter of Mr. and—Mrs. Charles Brady, Marmora, received her BSc (nursing) degree from University of Ottawa on May 31.

The First Belleville L a n d Rangers honored the Guide and Brownie leaders of Belleville Division by convening and serving a dinner at St. Andrews' Church Hall which was decorated with spring flowers and insignia of the diamond jubilee year. Ranger Captain Mrs. J. P. Foster assisted the girls in their undertaking.

Special guests for the evening were the Rev. L. Sutherland, minister of the church, who welcomed the leaders and James Ives of the Department of Lands and Forests who was the speaker for the evening.

Mr. Ives was a most interesting and informative speaker and showed slides of his work with the department. He also showed some interesting wild life pictures and ended his talk with a series of pictures on pollution, both air and water in the Belleville district.

Mr. Ives was introduced by Ranger Dianne Bowerman and thanked by Ranger Jill Miller. Ranger Suzanne Foster was master of ceremonies for the evening.

Miss Eva Baker of Trenton, Quinte Area Commissioner brought greetings to the assembly and spoke briefly.

The remainder of the evening was taken up with special presentations under the direction of Division Commissioner Mrs. T. R. Colden.

District Commissioner Mrs. J. Miles was asked to read a paper which was recently circulated at the Annual Provincial Meeting on Jubilee year. It likened a new Brownie to a rough diamond and as the diamond is cut and shaped and polished to its final glow so is a child's life cut and shaped by others.

A special presentation was made by District Commissioner Mrs. R. Mason to Lieut. Helen Woodward of the Ontario School for the Deaf. The highest award a girl can receive in her company, the gold cord, was presented by Miss Baker to Carol Thicke of Co. 9. Heather Whaley, who received her cord at an earlier date was also recognized. The girls were presented with gold corsages by the Division Commissioner.

Mrs. J. Kostas made a presentation of a small gift to retiring District Commissioners Mrs. J. Miles and Mrs. D. Stewart, thanking them for their service to the movement.

It was announced by Mrs. Colden that Mrs. R. M a s o n would be taking over the duties of District Commissioner of the North East district and Mrs. A. Steenburg would be Commissioner for the West district.

The Rangers put on a most humorous skit depicting various activities during the year from washing cars to camping to knitting bed socks for the hospital.

District Commissioner Mrs. F. Donohoe thanked the Rangers for the dinner and the evening closed with the singing of Taps.

Ann Landers
Fiance Unreliable In Keeping Dates

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been dating a very attractive guy for over a year. He is three years my senior — marriage-minded and he has made it clear I'm the one he wants. (I want him, too.)

There is one small thing that is bothering me, Ann. Every few weeks he simply doesn't show up for a date. I have stood at the appointed place for as long as an hour and a half and then gone home — worried sick.

The next day he calls and acts as if nothing happened. When I ask him why he stood me up he says, "Oh, Did we have a date?" Then he rattles off some preposterous story — such as, "President Nixon summoned me to the White House," Or, "Queen Elizabeth needed an extra man at a dinner party." This morning he said, "I was with Ann Landers. She needed some advice."

ANN LANDERS:

I can't tell me to keep him. I'm in love with the guy. Just tell me how to cure him. — BONITA.

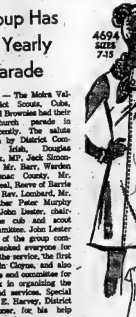
DEAR BON: O.K. I won't tell you to drop him. But I will tell you that if you marry this clown you will spend your life witnessing disappearing acts that will make Houdini look like an amateur. You don't say anything about his liquid intake, but he sounds like a boozer who loses himself periodically and the cure for this is to dry up completely.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The woman who lives in the apartment down the hall is a delightful person. I could not ask for a finer friend. The problem is one I don't feel discuss with anyone. I would hate to be misunderstood.

Lottie gives her age as 78. I suspect she has already seen 80. She is quite deaf and does not see well. She owns a '69 Chevrolet and is very generous about offering to drive me anywhere. Lottie has had several close calls and I have been in the car with her but she boasts that in the 40 years she has been driving she has never had an accident. I find this downright miraculous. How can I tell her I don't wish to let her drive me? I wouldn't hurt her feelings for the world. — PERPLEXED.

DEAR PERP: Most states are smartening up and making it mandatory for people to be re-tested when they reach a certain age rather than allow them to renew their drivers' licenses automatically. This will take the fatties of our land out of the driver's seat. I say it is better to hurt your friend's feelings than to let her kill you. Tell her candidly that you are afraid to ride with her. I know some terrible drivers who boast that they have never had an accident, but I'll bet they have caused a few.



* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine is built like a penguin. She is small on top and opens up like an umbrella from the waist down. She has a terrible time finding clothes that fit because she is only 5-10 as she is 48 inches.

She told me on my last year's spring cost a few weeks ago and it looked great on her. She asked if I would sell it to her and I did. Trouble is she now has the same coat for $10 less than what she paid for mine. She asked what I wanted to do about it. I was dumbfounded and said I'd think it over. What should I do, Ann? I'm burning. — DAYTON.

DEAR DAY: Tell your former friend to come and get her refund and bring the coat. And tell her a lesson to you. Stay out of the retail business. Let your friends buy their clothes in a store. Then if they have any complaints they can go to the manager.

Kitchen Tested Recipes
Cheesecake with Cherry Topping

By MARY MOORE

The attractive appearance alone makes an instant success of this cheesecake.

Do not be tempted to substitute graham wafer crumbs for the zwieback crumbs listed in the recipe. They would take away from its delicacy.

The great thing about this cheesecake is that it may be made a day in advance if the cherry topping is not applied. If transferred it to a lovely silver-etched glass pedestal, covered it carefully with Saran in the refrigerator and put the bowl containing the cherry filling beside it until serving time. The topping was evenly applied just before party time.

CHEESECAKE WITH CHERRY TOPPING
(Serves 12)

NOTE: You must have a spring form pan for this (with hinge on side and removable bottom).

6-oz. zwieback crumbs (use one 6-oz. pkge. finely rolled)
¼ cup soft margarine
1 cup plus 2 tbsps. granulated sugar
½ tsp. cinnamon
Two ½-lb. pkges: white cream cheese (room temperature)
1 cup 10 per cent cereal cream
2 tbsps. all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
3 large eggs — yolks and whites separated
½ tsp. almond flavoring (or vanilla)
2 tsps. freshly grated lemon rind

CHERRY TOPPING:
One 19-oz. can red (Montmorency) cherries, pitted
5 tsps. corn starch
1-3 cup granulated sugar
½ tsp. freshly grated lemon rind
About 1 tsp. red food coloring
Thoroughly mix the fine zwieback crumbs with the soft margarine or butter, 2 tbsps. of the sugar and the cinnamon. Butter a 10" diameter spring form pan generously on bottom and sides. Put mixture in evenly to coat.

Mash cream cheese and blend with cream. the remaining 1 cup sugar, flour and salt, until perfectly smooth. Beat egg yolks until pale and thick and fold carefully into cheese mixture along with almond (or vanilla) extract and lemon rind. Beat whites but not really stiff and fold in evenly. Pour into crumb-lined pan and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 70 min. then turn off burner and allow cake to remain in oven 1 hr. longer. Cool on rack and chill in refrigerator.

To make cherry topping, drain cherries and measure ¾ cup of the juice. Mix together thoroughly corn starch and sugar and stir into cherry juice over direct heat until thick, then 3 or 3 min. longer on low heat. Remove from and add cherries, lemon rind, food coloring. Cool and chill. Spread over cake to within ½" edge as party time approaches. Serve cold.

That Crown of Glory Needs Care

By DORIS CLARK

Hair! What about it? It's the biggest thing in the news that's what! The boys are wearing it longer, wigs are wearing it longer wings are topping the thinned - out heads; hair falls are doing a patch-up job.

Well - kept hair does more than any other feature to make a person easy to look at and that's for sure. This goes for the tiny golden curls of the toddler and the silver tresses of her great-grandmother as well as all the glamor girls in between. It also goes for the boys — as long as their hair lasts.

Marie Antoinette was an exquisite woman. She spent the last years of her life in prison, a place where even the stoutest - hearted would be tempted to yield up all pride. Yet her hair was never tousled like the other prisoners. She brushed it; worked with it. When the call came for her to ride in a rude cart to her death on the guillotine, she rode with her lovely head held high — still a queen!

The longer the hair the more the care. Ride into your life with well-brushed shining locks — or them off!
